Well might Holy Writ say, "The children of this world are wiser in their generation than the children of light," for in this respect certainly the brewers and distillers of our country are wide-awake to every possible means of furthering their ends. The latest move is the active work of an organization which, like the proverbial wolf, likes to parade in sheep's clothing, the better to deceive the unwary. In different localities different names are made use of, always such, however, as to hide the true character of the organization. Commonly the name of "Manufacturers and Dealers' Association" is employed, but whatever the name, the purpose is the same in every instance—the furtherance of the traffic. Several recent instances of intimidation have been traced to these associations. Merchants of known temperance convictions have been secretly threatened with loss of patronage and other evil results unless they promise to cease their opposition to the liquor interests. If the "tree is known by its fruits," we surely have a most emphatic demonstration in the pernicious activity of these liquor dealers' associations. Such determined opposition should arouse all temperance workers to renewed activity. Being "wise as serpents and harmless as doves," our best and most efficient agencies should be consecrated to the work.

Feed My Lambs.

By J. O. Barnhart.

In the green pastures, by waters so clear,
Jesus his flock is feeding.
And no trouble or harm do they fear,
While the "Good Shepherd" is leading.
But while he watches o'er the sheep,
He gives to them the lambs to keep,
Saying, "Give them food, oh, hear their cry!
Feed my lambs ere they starve and die."

The pastures his kingdom,—the waters the stream,
Of truth from his w'ord overflowing,
The Spirit of light is the beautiful beam,
That the pathway to heaven is showing.
Then take the children by the hand,
And gather them in a joyous band,
Tell them the power of a Savior's love,
Who said, "Of such is my home above."

Oh, the lambs are so young, and to rightly divide,
The Word of his Truth are unable,
And often they give to them nothing beside,
The crumbs that fall down from the table.
Then, while ye take of the Living Bread,
Pass it not o'er the children's head,
But let them share in the gospel feast;
Jesus will not despise the least.

Outside of the gate, in the darkness and cold,
Where its cry the lost one is betraying,
Lurks many a wolf,—fierce, fearless and bold,
To devour the lamb that is straying.
Then take the children in your arms,
Shield them from the world's alarms,
Let them taste of the blissful rest,
That is found in the loving Savior's breast.

Sister Missionaries.

BY P. R. KELTNER.

Their Need, What They May Do, and What They Should Be.

THE church must use all her resources in order to overcome the mighty forces that are at work in the world to destroy its influence, and hinder the good she is designed to do. The Great Commission to every minister is, primarily, to preach the Word. But there are aids at hand, outside of the pulpit, that, if wisely employed, may greatly aid in the efficiency and effectiveness of the preaching itself,—particularly in city work. There are many influences to be met and overcome, and after we have mustered all our resources, we shall still find the enemy of souls meeting us at every turn, and the success we achieve may not be great, even with all our forces set in array.

One of the universal lacks in mission work, is not only efficient workers, but any kind of workers. I am sure it would stir hundreds of our people, were they to be brought face to face with this need. Scores of times in the writer's experience, have there been, in our Sunday-school, a half hundred of children and no one in sight to teach them. At such times and in such places one is inclined to think not so much of trained teachers but any workers that are willing to make a sacrifice, and be there with their presence and help. The sister missionary is very much needed at such a time as this, and these conditions obtain in most mission points. These places are often much hindered, and at a great disadvantage to the lookers-on, by the struggling way we have to equip our places with workers. The importance of a faithful sister, at such a time, can not be estimated by dollars and cents.

Then, too, there is great need of our principles being lived in these places,—in the homes, on the streets and wherever we are to come in contact with the people.

The simple life, as exemplified by the Church of the Brethren, plainly and faithfully lived in open view of the public eye, is of inestimable value in mission work. There is so much of the vain, the frivolous and ridiculous in the dress parade of today, that a plainly-dressed sister, at her work each day, modestly, yet earnestly, is a benediction to a mission point, and its full import can only be measured in eternity. A faithful sister, going about in the Master's business in these places of gospel need, is sure to be productive of good results. Such an effort will not lose its reward. It is only the frivolous and the foolish who sneer. And what care we, if they do? There is everywhere good ground,—sober, serious ones, who will be touched and helped by such faithful living. It is the way to do mission work.

From the simple fact that mission points lack workers, and are full to overflowing with work, there is much that a sister can find to do that will tell, and that will be of material help to the minister in charge. At every turn in the work her help is in demand. Every service is needing her help and inspiration. The prayer meeting, that usually is needing more workers everywhere, is invariably in need of special help at mission points. The sister can be of great value here. There is no service of the mission church that is ready to do more for the work than the midweek prayer meeting. The regular meeting appointments will all be helped by her.

Then the Home Department and the Cradle Roll work are splendid auxiliaries in the church, and are waiting to be pushed by some one.

A sister missionary will find her time well engaged, when she spends much of it in the homes of the people, working herself into the graces of the children and the parents,—relieving a tired mother of some extra burdens and cares, and extending sympathy where it is so often needed. To show a willingness to help in the many home cares and burdens will bring lasting results to the mission.

Then, to lend a sympathizing hand to the sick and needy is another sure way of bringing our work in a favorable light before the public. There are more people need good visiting, than there are people needing good preaching. There are hundreds of lives that can only be reached by this earnest, prayerful way, of going into the people's homes and making them feel, by an earnest, faithful life, that you are their friend and will help their soul. Touch their home life with Christian sympathy and pure, religious living, and you have touched the heart.

There are calls to be made and work to be done that is peculiarly in need of a sister's hand. If she is young, she is in a position to give service to the young that will be of value. From her relation to them, she can touch them from an angle that the minister and his wife may not be able. There is an influence she can exert among them that will tell, if she is consecrated to the work. Then there are many places where her womanly hand and gentle sympathy will be of great value and service in the work.

Great care should be exercised that the right persons are engaged to do this work. A sister missionary is bound to have influence, and it is extremely necessary that her life leads up to the established principles and practices of the church. She should be thoroughly in accord with our teachings on the dress question. We can lose much by placing a sister in the field who is not in full sympathy with the church's nonconformity principles. If she is not grounded in the teachings of God's Word, as understood by the church, and is not willing to make herself a living exponent of them in the work, there are sure to be complications that will lead to serious results.

Great care should be exercised in the selection of all workers, that they be in accord with all the church stands for. A plainly-dressed sister, with the church's teachings on the dress question fully exemplified in her life, is of great benefit. Her plainly-made garments, together with the plain, neat bonnet, are sure to be a means for good. If we wish to maintain the place we occupy in the world on plain dressing, we can not be too careful in the selection of faithful workers.

The sister missionary should be a lover of children. It is a sad mistake to place a sister in such an important position, who does not have a special fondness for boys and girls. It is utterly wrong. The hope of all missions rests largely upon the children, and only she who loves children and is at home among them, should be eligible to fill such a place. It is the most fruitful field we have, and we should place only such a one in the work who is naturally adapted to work with child-life. She should love the work, and possess natural qualifications. In short, she should be a thorough Christian,—in perfect sympathy with all that the church teaches and observes. She should not be easily discouraged, but be full of hopefulness, confident of the successful outcome of faithful sowing, and have a willingness to do any humble service awaiting her. With such and similar qualifications, the Lord will be pleased, and abundantly bless.

The Promise of the Holy Spirit.

BY PAUL MOHLER.

OF all the promises of God, none are more important than those concerning the Holy Spirit, yet few Christians, today even, know what God has offered them in the Spirit. Why this is so, I do not know, but I am sure that the church can no longer afford to neglect these promises, nor can any individual Christian. There can be no true Christian living without the Holy Spirit, nor can there be any real Christian work done without the Spirit's power.

No one, indeed, can be a child of God without being "born of the water and the Spirit" (John 3: 5, 6; Gal. 4: 6, 7, 13). But that is promised to all, for Peter said to the multitude, even of the murderers of Jesus, "Repent ye, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ unto the remission of your sins; and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. For to you is the promise and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call unto him" (Acts 2: 38, 39, Am. Rev.).

I am glad for Peter's simple statement of the conditions necessary for the reception of the Holy Spirit. He links it with the other steps in regeneration, of which it is the consummation. Without the repentance and the remission of sins, of which baptism is God's seal, the Holy Spirit could not save, for nowhere are we told that the Holy Spirit can atone for or remit sins. But even the pardoned sinner could not live the Christian life without the gift of the Holy Spirit. Peter declares the whole process to be necessary and his authority can not be questioned.

This gift of the Holy Spirit is of the very greatest value. Without the Holy Spirit, the effort to live a righteous life is a heart-breaking struggle against overwhelming odds, whose utter failure Paul describes so graphically in the seventh chapter of Romans, saying, "I know that in me, that is in my flesh, dwelleth no good thing: for to will is present with me, but to do that which is good is not. For the good which I would, I do not: but the evil which I would not, that I practice" (Rom. 7: 18, 19, Am. Rev.). Is it any wonder that he says, "Wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from the body of this death"? How glad we can be that this is all changed, for the Christian who "walks not after the flesh, but after the Spirit"! "So then, brethren, we are debtors, not to the flesh, to live after the flesh; for if ye live after the flesh, ye must die; but if by the Spirit ye put to death the deeds of the body, ye shall live" (Rom. 8: 4, 12, 13). "And in like manner the Spirit also helpeth our infirmity: for we know not how to pray as we ought; but the Spirit himself maketh intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered; and he that searcheth the hearts knoweth the mind of the Spirit, because he maketh intercession for the saints, according to the will of God" (Rom. 8: 26, 27). "Walk by the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfill the lust of the flesh" (Gal. 5: 16).

Even our worship must be in the Holy Spirit (John 4: 24; Eph. 6: 18; Philpp. 3: 3). Moreover, it is the Spirit that unites the church into the body of Christ, working through each member, "dividing to each one severally, even as he will," and using all to carry on the work of God (1 Cor. 12: 1, ff). On the night of his betrayal, our Lord told his disciples that the Comforter, the Holy Spirit, would be with them forever, teaching them, guiding them into all the truth, bearing witness with their own witness when they testified of him, and convicting the world of sin, of righteousness and of judgment; and his very last recorded words are the promise, "Ye shall receive the power, when the Holy Spirit is come upon you: and ye shall be my witnesses both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth" (Acts 1: 8). This, you will notice, is the only equipment that he promised them, and it was by this power that they began so gloriously the work of saving the world through Christ. We need the same power now.

Finally, God is eager to bestow his Spirit. Again and again did he fill the apostles with the Spirit, and so he will do for us. "If ye then being evil know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him?" (Luke 11: 13).

School Advertisements.

BY O. F. SHAW.

THE wisdom and prudence of advertising is not only so generally accepted, but has been so thoroughly demonstrated that to contend for it through the MESSENGER, as a business principle, would be to set the church before the reading public as a body just awakening out of sleep. It would be well if all ministers would seriously consider the amount of free advertisement that is given to pernicious influences and evil institutions,—even from the pulpit.

Whatever stimulates thought upon, or in any way holds before the minds of the public any cause or institution, advertises it. The psychological effect of an advertisement, persistently held in the minds of people, is to attract people to the thing. The maker of so small and so simple a thing as a tooth-lotion has attracted to himself more than a million dollars by an extensive and elaborate advertising campaign. The liquor and tobacco merchants have long since learned that the way to make drinkers and smokers, is to advertise liquor and tobacco. Why should the merchant and the manufacturer be more awake to their interest than the church?

There are many principles to be learned in judicious advertising. All advertisements have their effect, but frequently do not yield immediate results. The maker of a small scouring preparation, that sells for ten cents a cake, and requires practically no capital to manufacture, invested all of a previously-acquired fortune of $20,000 in advertising before it was on a paying basis. The maker of this product is now marketing it in every civilized country in the world.

In the second place, advertisements must be placed not only in a place to catch the gaze and attention of the public, but in such a manner as to be convincing.

My third point is that a discrete advertiser seeks to reach the people to whom his wares are adapted. For instance, farming machinery is not advertised in the Ladies' Home Journal.

The General Mission Board has been making extensive search in quest of consecrated, school-trained men and women for the foreign field; the District Mission Boards are looking for school-trained men and women for city work at home; the mails are now carrying many letters from the various churches seeking school-trained men for pastors; the local churches are laying hold of their school-trained men and calling them to service as ministers, Sunday-school superintendents, teachers, etc. In the face of this, I am astounded at the fact that we have now eleven schools, well distributed throughout the Brotherhood, officially recognized by the church, and maintained and run especially for the benefit of the church, and yet, with nine publications, second to none, coming from our magnificent Publishing House, owned by the church, but one of them is carrying a school advertisement. I must, on the other hand, congratulate both the school that has been running the "ad," and the House, for their neat and tasty advertisement. Such an advertisement can not fail to bring results.

The purpose of a school advertisement is twofold: First, to create sentiment for schools; second to create sentiment for Brethren schools. It is desirable that the first be done through our own organs and institutions, and it is contrary to reason to expect the latter to come from any other source. If the creation of school sentiment is left to sources outside of the church, we may expect many of our young to be attracted into callings and professions not in keeping with the teachings and spirit of the Gospel. And, again, many will be attracted to institutions where they will be under entirely unchristian influences. The writer has in mind some concrete cases,—in some instances the children of elders of the church,—very bright young people, whose influence is now lost to the church. I have the most abundant confidence in the ability of our schools to furnish a wholesome influence for young people, second to none, and in furnishing a curriculum far better adapted to our needs than any other in the land.

But whatever be the attitude of the church toward this, our right and prerogative, one need not be a prophet to say that it is not a field that will be unoccupied. During part of the year some of the leading and most widely-read magazines are carrying as much as a half dozen pages of school advertisements, and many of the large dailies carry whole pages of school advertisements. If, in some cases, the parents have been lax in directing the ambitions of the children, it only shows, on the other hand, the need of enthusing the parents more with the school spirit.

Many, undoubtedly, will be quick to lay blame for the whole matter at the feet of the various school managements. To such let it be said, first, that the educational problem is not one to be left to the school managements alone. It is a question that vitally concerns every family in the Brotherhood, every local church, every District Mission Board, and, as already seen, is of most profound importance to the General Mission Board. Second, (a) Thus far our schools are not such profitable institutions as to put into the managers' hands the means to carry on much advertising; (b) an advertising campaign, carried on to the extent and in the manner that it should be, would require from fifteen to twenty years to reap the rewards of some of it, whereas most school managements have the schools for comparatively short terms only. By this I mean to say that, beginning with our fwenvile Quarterly, every periodical, issuing from our Publishing House, should in some manner advertise our schools.

Childhood impressions are not only strong, but far-reaching, and no one has any idea of the extent of them. A missionary to the foreign field states that his first impulse to be a missionary came from a remark of a Sunday-school superintendent when but a mere child.

In the third place, the advertising of our school interests is not a matter that we can afford to have done in a cheap and half-hearted manner, but we should set our educational interests before the young in a dignified and business-like manner, so that they are made to feel that our schools are second to none. This, too, needs to be done in the most tactful and thoughtful manner.

The church has its schools for the interest of the church; it has its publishing interests for the church's interest; why not use both for the saving of the young, which would be the most effectual exploitation of the church's interest?

The above remarks are directed to every member of the church to whom the schools and publishing interests belong; to the various mission boards who must look to the schools for their trained and prepared men; to the local churches; to the various boards of management who, because of their sacrifice, if for no other reason, are deeply interested to see their schools prosper; lastly, to our National Educational Board, that the interest of the schools, which is the interest of the church, may be set forth through the church publications, and that the interest of all may be protected and safeguarded.

Rebaptism—Acts 19 in Summary.

BY I. J. ROSENBERGER.

I. John's Teaching.

JOHN taught a coming Messiah and said: "He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire"; hence John's converts knew of a Holy Ghost. The twelve not knowing that there was a Holy Ghost, is evidence conclusive that they were not John's converts. Their words were: "We have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost." I had this version confirmed by Rev. Dr. Brown (Lutheran) in his German, Greek and Latin Testaments.

II. Their Rebaptism and Cause.

Paul proceeds to tell them what John preached. This shows that they had not been so taught before, hence their faith was not right, which invalidated their baptism; therefore their rebaptism became a necessity. The facts seemed to surprise them, for Luke says: "When they heard this, they were baptized," etc. Baptism had put them into that body, and it will take another,—a "re,"—to put them into Christ, the right body. Paul, again and again, says: "We are baptized into Christ," "into one body." This is true, because Paul says so. It is idle to say or assume that one baptism will take us into two or more bodies. To say so is to contradict Paul.

I have rebaptized about a score in my home and evangelistic work; and each and all, like the twelve, lacked in teaching, and, like Paul, I retaught them. Universally they were dissatisfied with some practice or teaching where they were, just as these twelve became dissatisfied. This was proof positive that their faith was lacking, and this invalidated their baptism. These twelve claimed they were baptized into John's baptism. Paul soon showed them their error. Those with whom I met, commonly claimed that they were baptized with a Christian baptism. I at once set about to show them their error; for a Christian baptism places us into full relationship with Christ. From this there is no appeal. "Re or again,"—naught else but going on to perfection. A man that has been baptized aright, is in Christ, and all he needs is faithfulness to his vow where he is, and he will receive promotion in that coming day. Paul improved the relationship of these twelve; but you can't improve the relationship of such who are in Christ as I have named. To spend time with such, relating to rebaptism, is time idly spent.

III. Apollos.

Luke says that Apollos knew only the baptism of John. All that is implied in this language is true and is further manifest; for it is said: "He was mighty in the scriptures." And when he was received into further fellowship, he was not rebaptized. It becomes morally certain that if he would have taught and baptized those twelve, they would have known of an Holy Ghost, they would have been perfectly taught. The twelve do not say who baptized them, and I will not; I do not consider it of much concern to us. I will venture to call it one of Paul's "unlearned questions," which were to be avoided. Let us do that. Again, I do not know that John had any baptizing for him. John was not at the head of a dispensation. His was a personal mission, as a forerunner of Christ, and when that work was complete, he ceased, and his work stopped.

IV. Conclusion.

I therefore aver that the circumstance of the twelve, in Acts 19, gives the church a clear-cut case of rebaptism for the church to follow now. Besides, rebaptism creates harmony with numerous texts relating to the baptismal question. Not to rebaptize throws us into tremendous confusion with numerous texts bearing on the subject. Let us do as Paul did and it will be safe; infallibly safe.

Captured by the Bedouins.

BY HETTIE STOUFFER.

(Last spring Bro. W. R. Miller told our readers how his party was captured and held for days by the Bedouins. Sister Hettie Stouffer was one of the party, and at our request she tells the story of the captivity as it was seen and experienced by a woman. Her story was written months ago, but held until this date.—Ed.)

The City of Karek.

KAREK is an Arabian city of 50,000 inhabitants, 30 miles east of the middle of the Dead Sea, and 102 miles southeast from Jerusalem. It is the ancient Kir of the Bible, and at present the military capital of a district of 150,000 Arabian inhabitants. Doubtless from this section of the country came Ruth, the Moabitess. This territory, as well as all Palestine, is under Turkish rule, and the oppression of this government is often almost beyond endurance.

In this territory, with Karek as the central mission station, Mr. Archibald Forder, an Englishman, has spent many years of his life in winning these wild men of the desert from the Mohammedan religion to the Christian life. He is well known to many of our people, being a contributor to some of our papers, and also having lectured in a number of our local congregations in America.

It was in the evening of Dec. 3, 1910, that our party of nine American tourists, with Mr. Forder as guide, entered the city of Karek. We were traveling neither in automobiles nor in carriages, but on horses, with a number of Arab boys as attendants, and some extra donkeys and mules which served as a means of conveyance for our tents, bedding, provisions, etc. All in all there were eighteen animals and fifteen persons.

During the day nothing unusual attracted our attention, with the exception of meeting several regiments of Turkish soldiers, going north from the city, with their armor, ammunition, field cannons, etc. However, we knew that Turkey always has her soldiers stationed at different points over which it holds control, so we gave it but a passing notice.

Karek is built on a very prominent elevation and is said to be one of the strongest, naturally-fortified cities in the world. We were nearly an hour in passing through the narrow streets to the top of the hill, on which is built the mission home of Mr. Forder. Instead of setting up our tents we decided to occupy these quarters during the Lord's Day. The entire compound is surrounded by stone walls, and is situated at the northwest corner of the city wall.

We enjoyed a much needed rest on Saturday night, and on Sunday, December 4, our guide gave a very touching talk as to the mission work among these wild people of the desert. He used as a basis of his remarks Matt. 9: 35, and it seemed to us that never was the situation, portrayed by Jesus in that verse, more real to us, as we were surrounded by the thousands who are ignorant of the love of Jesus.

In the afternoon we took a stroll through the city and visited the tomb of Mrs. Forder, the first white person buried east of the Jordan River. Some of our party called on the Turkish official, next door to us, and engaged a soldier to accompany us on our tour on Monday morning. They found the official quite congenial. He was, at the time, drinking coffee with some of the leading Arab Sheiks of the city. These men,—unknown to him as well as to our party,—had already planned his murder, as well as that of all the Turkish soldiers of the city.

The Uprising of the Arabs.

Sunday night we rested quite well in our comfortable quarters, entirely ignorant of the cold-blooded massacres that were being enacted by the Arabs in the rural districts around the city. Between 500 and 600 Turkish soldiers were murdered outright, immediately after dusk.

On Monday morning, Dec. 5, we were packing up, ready to leave, when one of our donkey boys came running and said that the Arabs of Karek had risen in arms against the Turkish soldiers. His declaration was soon verified by wild shouts and screams, and the cracking of guns and shells. At once we dismissed all thoughts of leaving the mission compound, for, being surrounded by stone walls, we knew we were secure, unless those engaged in the fighting would enter the compound.

Soon the Turkish soldiers were stationed on the walls of our home, firing down at the Arabs, who, in turn, directed their guns at the soldiers guarding our quarters. During the morning a fog had settled over the city and that gave the Arabs a great advantage in entering it.

From our quarters, and from the house of the Turkish official, some of our party watched the Arabs stealthily entering the city as they came to it in great numbers from the surrounding country. In some instances, however, their progress was stopped by the deadly bullet sent by the soldiers. Under such conditions it is easily understood that the stone walls were our only protection. Had we set up camp in our cloth-covered tents, our situation would not have been secure.

In the Face of Danger.

All day long the firing continued, and we felt for the first time what it meant to be besieged in time of war. Mr. Forder, with his usual tact and skill, had several times gone out the back entrance of our compound, and gained definite information that the Arabs were rapidly gaining admittance into the city, and that in some quarters all foreigners,—men, women and children,—were being murdered.

Towards evening Mr. Forder became more familiar with the situation. The Turkish official, next door to us, insisted on obtaining one of our horses, on which to escape, and he also asked for an outfit of woman's clothing by which he might flee in disguise. Of course his requests could not be granted. It can easily be seen that we, who were so unfamiliar with the cruelty of war, were a bit nervous, however we were not overly alarmed. Although we knew not how it would be done, yet we felt there would be some way of escape, and true, indeed, this was, for all that day, though we knew it not, the Lord was using one of our donkey boys as a messenger to the different camps and to the leading sheiks, bearing this message, "Mr. Forder, our friend and missionary, with a company of Englishmen is in the city, in the northwest district. Spare him and his people."

Now, we had missed one of our boys, and thought of him as a deserter,—one who left us in time of danger,—but when, in the night, he returned, his face all aglow, he told us that he had gone out to tell the people of his and the other camps not to kill the Christians, especially Mr. Forder and his company, who had been his friends. All that day those wild men had kept us from all possible harm.

In Anxious Suspense.

That evening, at the request of our guide, our tones were subdued to whispers, and no lights were lit. We sat thus in silence; then, as quietly as possible, lay on our pallets,—for rest more than for sleep. Some of us repeated Psalms; all prayed, and in different ways anchored our trust in the Lord,—man's extremity is God's opportunity. About 8 P. M. the soldiers on our walls ceased firing, and we realized at once that they had retreated, and that the Arabs had gained the day. In the distance, from all directions, we heard the wild clamor and shouts of the Arabs as they approached the city. We knew the situation was a critical one, yet, in some way, we had the confidence that we would be preserved. Bro. Forder strengthened that confidence by saying, "These people are my friends," and requested that we pray especially that he might have wisdom to know how to handle the situation.

Soon the invaders began pounding at our back entrance. Our guide went out, and passed through the first door to the second entrance, by the house of the Turkish official. He soon saw that the house was on fire, and he feared ours would be the next. He threw open the door, and stood in the light of the burning building. At once the maddened mob recognized him,—also remembering what they had been told by our donkey boy. They greeted him with these words, "Mr. Forder, we are glad to see you; you are our friend and we will not hurt you or your company." Then, at Mr. Forder's request, one of the sheiks, dressed in his warrior's garb, came into our room and promised to save our lives, and more, to send an escort early in the morning, to lead us out of the place of danger to their camps, ten miles away, where we would be safe.

We felt and knew that the Lord had heard our prayers, and there, in the midst of death and slaughter, we kneeled and gave him thanks for deliverance. An hour later a request came for Mr. Forder to come out, that the sheiks wanted to see him. He left our room and returned again, not telling us what was wanted until the next day, but this was the situation: After he left our entrance, four Arabs, with their weapons pointed at him, had this message for him, "We have saved your life and now, in turn you are concealing our enemies—the Turkish soldiers in your compound." Mr. Forder stoutly replied that he was not, but they said, "You are; for one of our men saw a soldier enter your door." Our guide took the strongest position that such was not the case, whereupon these Mohammedan men said, "You have never told us a lie and we believe you." They then permitted him to return to us.

A Way of Escape.

Early the next morning the escort that had been promised us came, and although firing was still continuing, we felt that the Lord had opened the way for us, and we could but trust him to deliver us safely out of the city. As we were preparing to leave, the ears of some of our party were greeted by yells, as of a man in trouble. We were ignorant as to its source, but our guide took in the situation, and went to our donkey boys with this question, "There is a dry cistern here in our yard. Did you hide a Turkish soldier there?" To his astonishment they confessed that during the evening a Turkish soldier had fled into the mission for safety and that they had lowered him into the cistern.

That statement chilled the heart of our guide as a snowstorm in summer, for he knew if the Arabs would become aware of this fact, he would be considered as a traitor, and that, perhaps, they would yet prove enemies instead of friends. The only thing to do was to tell the man to be still, or he would be killed by the Arabs who were just outside of our doors. Then we all, as quickly as possible, left the mission home, and descended the declivity, guarded by our escort. The Lord shielded us from any stray bullets, and though there were dangers all about us, we arrived in safety at the camp, ten miles away, by noon of Tuesday, Dec 6. As we left Karek, a Christian Arab told us that 10,000 Arabs entered the city during the night, and that at least 300 persons had been killed.

The Cause of the Troubles.

Here ought to be inserted the cause of this insurrection. Recently Turkey had imposed a heavy taxation, also enlisting the young men from the Arab camps as Turkish soldiers, and making other unreasonable requests. The Arabs said, "We will do it; but you must send some of the 1,400 soldiers that are in Karek, out into the rural districts to collect the taxes." Now, this was all a "put-up scheme," for they never meant to do it. And the soldiers that we met going out of Karek, upon our arrival, were going out to be massacred, though they knew it not. The Arabs meant to divide the forces, fall upon them and murder them.

This they did; then took the fire-arms and ammunition, and appropriated them to their own use. Later on they attacked Karek, to finish the work planned by them. However, their plans were not to attack Karek until 10 A. M., when the soldiers were on drill and off guard, but they were so elated over their success in the country that they rushed into the city, and began firing several hours earlier than they had planned. Had they waited until 10 A. M. we would have been out in the country with a Turkish soldier as our protection and, thinking of it from the human point of view, there would have been no escape for us. As it was, we were innocently and ignorantly in the very heart of the insurrection.

On the Way to the Arab Camp.

Our journey to the Arab camp, to which we were being guided, was not the most cheering. Though we were away from the imperiled city, yet our situation was not the most desirable. We had left our tents behind and had but little food for ourselves or our animals. Many miles, through a very dangerous country, especially in time of war, were yet before us. If we should go to the north we would, more than likely, encounter the Turkish soldiers coming down from Damascus with reinforcements. To the west of us was the Dead Sea, and to the south and southwest was a territory very likely to be infested by robbers in times of an uprising.

How we were to go depended entirely upon our faithful guide, for he knew the situation and we did not. He contrived this plan: A messenger was sent back to Karek to the chief sheiks, saying, "We are here without much food, either for ourselves or for our animals. We must leave the country. We desire your protection,—an escort to deliver us through the country; but if you will not give us an escort, we must go unattended. If we do this, and are injured by your people, you will fall under the jurisdiction of two governments,—England and America."

After making this request Mr. Forder was compelled to go back to Karek, and meet about 150 sheiks of the surrounding country before plans could be completed. After a great amount of argument he persuaded them to give him a letter of introduction, consigning him and his party to the different tribes, each tribe being made responsible to deliver us to the next one. All this required two days and nights.

Life in an Arab Camp.

In the meantime we contented ourselves in studying the homelife of the Arabs. This would have been more interesting had our situation been different. On Thursday noon,—after our guide had imperiled his life a score of times,—we mounted our horses and started for the first camp,—twenty miles away, situated at the northern point of the peninsula projecting into the Dead Sea. We were protected by a strong escort, and all went smoothly.

We arrived at about dark, and a most cordial welcome was given us. We were happy, for we felt that each mile brought us that much nearer safe territory. This tribe or clan was much darker skinned, and the African features were quite noticeable. They crowded around their strange visitors, and it was difficult to decide who was most stricken with amazement,—the visitors or the residents. We all had a good night's sleep, and early the next morning mounted our horses and proceeded over the irrigated peninsula toward the next tribe. A strong escort had been provided by the clan who cared for us during the previous night. Along the banks of the Dead Sea are great papyrus bushes, and soon we were fully concealed by their waving tassels.

Intercepted on the Way.

We had a feeling of anxiety at times, yet we passed through safely and were perhaps a mile beyond, in a plain, when suddenly a swift rider came from the rear and called a halt. Soon others followed until perhaps fifteen or twenty well-armed, strange men had joined our party. The man leading was a sheik, known by Mr. Forder as the leader of a wild Bedouin tribe, perhaps the strongest in all the country and notorious for its robbery and villainy. We all dismounted, and our guide had a long consultation with the new arrivals. Finally some agreement was reached, and we soon found our former escort turning back, and we were left in the care of the new men, the letter of introduction having been given to them, which consigned us to the next friendly tribe at the south end of the Dead Sea.

Further Complications.

Our guide subdued our anxieties by telling us that we had been transferred to a new tribe, and that they had obligated themselves to deliver us at Hebron,—but we soon found that in their hearts they did not mean to do any such thing. Simply because they were stronger than our former escort, they took us out of their care.

All went well for a little while, but they soon called a halt, and told our guide that if we did not give them a certain amount of money they would take our lives, and throw us into the Dead Sea. Our treasurer gave the money, but at least three subsequent times they held us up, took all our money, and, in short, everything they wanted,—steamer rugs, clothing, etc. By that time it was twilight and we were soon at their camp for the night,—in the care of well-armed men, who, we knew by sad experience, could not be trusted. But they refused to take us to the friendly camp, only several miles off, so we had but one thing to do,—make the best of the situation. We still had the same confidence that, after all, in some way, we would be protected.

Anxious Hours.

That night we spent in a half-reclining posture on our saddle-bags, and but few of our party slept. Some dozed, but a number were fully awake all night. Among the latter class was our trusted guide,—Mr. Forder. Though he pretended to be asleep, yet he was,—as he said afterwards,—praying all night for deliverance. It was then that he heard all the plans for the morning,—that we were to be taken out into the mountainous districts, and deprived of our lives and everything that we had,—horses and all.

The night dragged slowly by, but at length we were astir, and preparations were made for the starting. Our guide did not reveal to us the true situation, but we all felt that the atmosphere was anything but promising. At the suggestion of our guide we had a special season of prayer, and he led us in most fervent, touching petitions. Then we mounted our horses and started. The sheiks and a few others led the way. The other men had been sent on ahead. They started to the south instead of the west. Now our guide knew where the friendly tribe lived, and he felt that only from that point could come the Lord's deliverance. He protested that we ought to turn to the west. In some way he caused the man to yield at least partially.

Deliverance Draws Nigh.

Soon we came in sight of two tents,—the camp having moved that morning, all were gone but two,—and as we came nearer the two tents, a man came riding out, at which Mr. Forder stopped,—for he knew that our means of rescue had come.

Now these people were watching for us, which came about in this way: A man and woman were visiting in this camp, who had come from the camp at which we lodged on Thursday night, and who had accompanied us until they saw that we had fallen into the hands of these robbers. Then they went on to the friendly camp and told them that Mr. Forder, the missionary, was passing through the country and that he had been captured on the way. So they were watching for him, and as we turned to the friendly camp, at least fifty mounted horsemen came to meet us and took us to their home. A most cordial welcome did we receive. When the wicked tribesmen saw they had lost us, they said to each other, "We had better killed them last night."

On the Way to Safety.

Soon plans were on foot to deliver us at Hebron. We had no money to pay them, so we bargained to give them our best mule, and then pay for him at Jerusalem. At 10 o'clock that evening, in the stillness of the night, we quietly mounted our horses, and were escorted by much the strongest and most trustworthy mounted band of men we had yet had. All precautions were taken slyly to take us out of the country, so that our former enemies should not know the time of our going, thereby preventing them from attempting a recapture.

We passed through very dangerous places,—so much so that every guard placed a shell in his gun. However, when morning dawned, we were practically out of danger, and again we felt to thank the Lord for his deliverance.

We rode steadily on until 11 A. M. on Sunday, when we rested an hour. Then, at 4 P. M., we arrived at the camp of a friendly tribe, twenty miles south of Hebron. We had been seventeen hours in the saddle, with little sleep on Friday night, and none at all on Saturday night, so that even an Arab camp was a comfort to us. On Monday we went to Hebron and on Tuesday evening we reached Jerusalem. It can easily be explained why it would be a difficult thing to convince any of our party that Psa. 34: 7 is not a reality to the faithful believer.

A Recent Eastern Trip.

BY GALEN B. ROYER.

NEARLY two weeks were spent among the church schools in the eastern part of the Brotherhood. In that time each one was visited and the message of the Board set forth under two heads,—what the church is doing on the foreign field, and what are the needs there. These features were set before the student body and others who came to hear. Deep impressions have been made; the purposes of life have been fixed in some instances. One little brother, just entering his teens, said, "Will the Board send me when I am old enough to go?" The real results in recruits for missions will not all be gathered in the next ten years. Praise the Lord too, for what has been made manifest even without the forecast of the future!

The schools always have an open door for any representative of the General Mission Board. Special services are appointed,—hours for personal conference with students, and every other mark of helpfulness to facilitate the work in the short time, are given. It makes the work exceedingly pleasant, even if rather strenuous at times.

The attendance at each school is as good or better than the year preceding. The student body appears to be more mature,—a stronger type. As far as I could determine, each school was encouraged in spite of problems that they all must meet. For the most part mission study was receiving due attention. In several of the schools a larger number are studying missions, and at others the work will be taken up at once. The Bible Departments are showing an increase, taking them all together.

It was an unusual privilege, while on this tour, to spend part of a day in the home of our dear Brother and Sister, H. C. Early, with Brother and Sister I. S. Long, who had just two days before arrived home on furlough from India, and Brother and Sister J. M. Blough, who soon return to India again, and Bro. D. K. Clapper, of Meyersdale, Pa., who had been holding a very successful revival meeting in the Mill Creek church. In the evening the church gathered for love feast, and that spacious house of theirs was too small to accommodate all the members who desired to commune. In the presence of half of the earth's population, represented by two large maps of China and India, did the brethren and sisters take the emblems which are to "show forth the Lord's death till he come."

It has been planned that Bro. Long will give the time of his furlough to visiting ALL the churches of the Virginias, and do this under the direction of their District Mission Boards. He has already entered upon his work. Brother and Sister Blough sail for India Dec. 9.

Through the kindness of Brethren W. M. Howe and P. J. Blough a hurried tour among some of the churches of Western Pennsylvania was planned. This proved a revelation to me. To those who go through Western Pennsylvania on a fast train, simply looking out of the window, there is no intimation of the splendid homes and the large congregations of earnest Christian brethren and sisters so near by. One meeting, each, in West Johnstown, Meyersdale, Middle Creek, Brothers Valley, Hooversville and Maple Spring, Scalp Level and Walnut Grove, was a continual joy and happy service as the people listened practically to the same message given the schools. I went there looking for "rosy cheeks and smiling faces" in the spiritual activities of the church and I found them. I left the District with a desire to return and spend more time there, just as soon as opportunity affords it. At Hooversville a very helpful love feast was enjoyed at the close of Bro. Howe's series of meetings, where a number had confessed Christ. The last day in the District was spent in part in the home of our dear afflicted Bro. Berkley, in Johnstown, where a much appreciated visit with Brethren Howe and Cassady was enjoyed. Bro. Cassady's successful revival work, again this winter, is much reason for encouragement to the church.

Six schools visited, three love feasts attended, witnessing the sailing of the India missionaries, meetings in ten different churchhouses, and hospitable homes to rest in and be well entertained, are some of the blessings and opportunities enjoyed and for which I praise God. And the climax of it all is, after the work is done, to return to my own home and enjoy the rest and association of those who on earth are dearest to me.

An Interesting Scene in Florida.

BY ISAAC CRIPE.

TODAY was the most enjoyable day for the little band of members, here at Herndon, since we came here. Our minister, Bro. Joel Sherfy, who came here from Tennessee with his family, a while ago, had to live in a hired house, as Paul did. A few days ago he said to one of his neighbors that he would have to hire some one to move him to his little farm, which he had bought some time ago, but he was told that he should rest easy, as the moving would be done. So this morning people came with wagons and automobiles, and before long the goods, people, and all else were moved to the new home of our dear brother. At noon the table was set under a large shade tree, and loaded with the good things that those kind southern people know so well to prepare. Twenty-two of us were invited to be seated around the table.

The writer asked an old gentleman to give Bro. Sherfy and family an address of welcome. He complied with the request by describing how he first came in contact with the Brethren. He said: "I was in the Confederate Army in North Carolina, under Gen. Hill. At the time when Gen. Hill superseded another gen-

THE ROUND TABLE

Couldn't Turn Around.

BY JAMES M. NEFF.

I WAS driving up the river, recently, after a load of redwood posts. I had never traveled the road before, but was told to stop at the first ranch after I crossed the bridge. I had now crossed the bridge and supposed I was about at my destination, but on and on I drove. The road became steeper, the hills more rugged and the mountains nearer. I began to wonder whether anyone lived in such a country, forgetting, for the time, that the surroundings of my own home would appear to a stranger about as wild.

I remembered passing a gate soon after crossing the bridge. I came to the conclusion that, had I entered that gate, I would have found the ranch buildings, where I should have stopped, hidden among the trees a little way off the road.

Accordingly I decided I had gone too far and must turn around and retrace my steps. But now it dawned upon me that this was impossible. The road was a grade cut into the steep hillside, and so narrow that a team and wagon could not turn on it. So, on I drove, now in search of a place to turn around. I had gone but a short distance farther till I rounded a spur of the hill, when my destination came full into view. The only thing that saved me from missing it, though so near, was the fact that I could not turn around. The road, indeed, had not been made to turn around on. The presumption was that any one going that far would want to go farther. Why should anyone want to turn around at such a place?

And this has made me wonder how many people have made the sad mistake of becoming discouraged in a good work and giving up just before success was reached. What a pity that one should, for many years, toil on and on up a steep and rugged road, and then give up and turn around when so near the destination! Listen, brother. Do you ever become discouraged? Are you ever annoyed with doubts as to whether it is worth while to toil any farther up the hill? If so, remember you are on a road that was not made to turn around on. The only thing to do is to go right on up the hill. Then, too, the worst of your struggles are, perhaps just about over. Just beyond those bushes, ahead yonder, you may find an easy road. In fact your destination may be much nearer than you think. Remember, "He that endureth to the end, the same shall be saved."

Rebaptism.

BY F. N. WEIMER.

IN reference to the baptism of the twelve, mentioned in Acts 19, it has been clear to me that in this case the administrator was a man not legally appointed, or one not sent by Christ,—one that did not have a full knowledge of what Christ required of his people. Both administrator and applicants may have been sincere and honest in what they did. In fact, we know of nothing to the contrary, yet that did not atone for what was neglected in the teaching. Now, if Apollos' baptism was illegal, because he was not sent or commissioned by Christ, it seems to me that we have very good ground for us, as a church, to be careful as to what and whom we accept on the baptism of others.

If a man must be called and sent by Christ (and I for one believe that Christ must call and send), then the question is, Who is called and who is sent? The Church of the Brethren teaches that a whole Gospel is necessary to salvation, because Jesus said: "Teach them to observe all things," etc. (Matt. 28: 20). If Christ wants his people to observe all that he has commanded (and that is what the record gives us), then, how is it with those who see fit to reject a part, or all, of God's Word that does not suit them?

Does Christ call one man to observe all the Gospel and another to observe only a part, or just what suits him? God is no respecter of persons (Col. 3: 25; Eph. 6: 9; Rom. 2: 11). If God will accept some as his children when they willfully reject a part of his Word and teach others the same, why will he not accept all? Where is the consistency for us, as a church, to teach the whole Gospel and insist on the same as salvation, and then accept the work of those who claim they can be saved without obeying all? Why accept their work (baptism) and not accept them, and be one with them, and make the cross easier for all? If we accept their work, we can not, consistently, reject them otherwise, as not being right.

How can any one baptize a person into Christ when he is not in Christ himself, and not set apart for that work by those that are his? Some one has said that the twelve asked for baptism. If they did, Paul did not say, "It is not necessary." I wonder how much pressure the practice of the other churches exerts in this matter of not rebaptizing. Are we like the Israelites (1 Sam. 8: 5)?

A Watch Dog.

BY C. D. HYLTON.

WHEN I was a child we had a neighbor who kept a very severe watch dog. He had the reputation of a "bad, biting dog" all over the neighborhood, and many people in the community carried marks on their persons that verified his reputation. When we were obliged to go to our neighbor's house, we would slip up as close as we could, and climb up in a bush and call to the people to "hold old Ring" (as the dog was known). He did not always stay in his master's yard, either, and he would bite honest people as well as thieves, for he watched for people without discrimination.

But old Ring had some good qualities. He was an excellent 'coon and 'possum dog, and the woods were full of them. Then, too, in those days, watch dogs at night were sometimes necessary to protect property from pilfering intruders.

I suppose this was the reason why he was not assassinated by some of his own victims.

Well, to say the least, he died unmourned by the neighbors, and after that it was so much more pleasant to visit the home where he once stayed. We very seldom need a watch dog now.

In those days we had a few elders in the church that were watching other elders, and their membership. Sometimes these watching elders would get on church committees, and how they would "bite" whoever came in their way! They had some good qualities but their "watch dog" qualities overshadowed their usefulness. Their influence was lost and the church had a rest when they died.

It is a command of our Master to "watch," but the "dog" part was not attached to the command, and is now, and always was, objectionable.

We should first watch our own lives; then those of our family. When we have succeeded right well in this, we are then capable of helping others.

I am glad we do not have many of the "watchdog" kind of elders nowadays, and yet we ought to have some who do a little more watching, for the good of souls, than is done in most congregations.

Home Again.

BY LIZZIE HILARY.

SINCE May 20 I have visited in over seventy-five homes, and have been permitted to see many places of interest throughout Kansas and Iowa. The District Meeting at Belleville, Kans., was especially uplifting and inspiring to me. I was very glad to listen to a discourse by our colored brother from Colorado. He told how God had led him into the Church of the Brethren, and he also told of their work among their people.

My next place of interest was the Old People's Home at Marshalltown, Iowa. Here we found dear old hearts waiting for a smile and a kind word, to cheer them along the way. I staid all night with them, and after the work for the day was done, we all gathered in the large sitting-room for singing, Scripture reading and prayer. It did my heart good to see their happy faces during the hour of worship.

I also enjoyed being at the dedication of the new church at Maxwell, Iowa. They have built a very plain and neat house, and I believe they have truly dedicated it to the Lord. I visited six cemeteries, and found the names of many of my friends engraved upon the marble monuments.

When I started on my last run for home, I went by way of Abbott Crossing. Upon arrival the agent told me that I was just three minutes late, and I would have to wait sixteen hours before I could get another train on the road on which I wished to go. You may imagine how I felt, but I soon took in the situation, and settled down to make the best of it. I was thankful I had a lunch and a warm room to sit in. It again impressed me with the importance of being on time.

No matter how unadorned the preacher's speech may be with the flowers of rhetoric, he will always have good attention and be heard by the people with profit, when he stands before them in the right spirit, and in the right way gives them a message that comes from God. The greatest gift of oratory is nothing in comparison to that something which God can put into the words of the humblest man or woman who is filled with his Spirit.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS' TOPIC

Thanksgiving.—Special Program.

Psalm 100.

For Sunday Evening, November 26, 1911.

Song.—"We Praise Thee, O God."

Psa. 50: 14; 69: 30; 95: 2; 136: 1-3. By young Workers. Prayer. Reading of President's Proclamation.

Song.—"I Lift My Heart Today," etc.

I. How Does God Want to Be Thanked?—(1) Christ's example (Matt. 11: 25, 26). (2) How angels did it (Luke 2: 8-11, 13, 14). (3) We should, (a) when afflicted, "pray"; when cheerful and happy, "sing psalms" (Jas. 5: 13); (b) thank him by our service (Matt. 10: 7, 8); (c) we should do it cheerfully, and fearlessly (Dan. 6: 10).

II. When Should We Be Thankful?—(1) "In the morning" (Psa. 5: 3; 30: 5). (2) "At the evening sacrifice" (141: 2; Ex. 29: 39). (3) Mark 8: 6; Rom. 14: 6-8. (4) "Offer sacrifices of praise continually" (Heb. 13: 15; Psa. 50: 14).

II. Now.—(1) Tell of a Bible thanksgiving. (2) Name blessings you enjoy. (3) How have you proved your gratitude?

Song.—"My Father is rich," etc.

Christian Workers' successes reviewed.

Song.—"My brother, awake," etc.

Prayer, and Dismissal.

PRAYER MEETING

The Blessing of a Thankful Heart.

Psa. 103: 1-18; Eph. 5: 20.

For Week Beginning November 26, 1911.

1. A Thankful Heart Is a Joyful Heart.—"Singing and making melody with your heart to the Lord; giving thanks." Not only the expression of gratitude for the loving-kindness of God, but melody in the soul at the remembrance of Divine favor. The language of a grateful heart is set to music; its spirit is tuned to song. Such a soul rises above the marshes and, like the lark, sings its way toward heaven (Psa. 104: 3, 4).

2. "Giving Thanks Always."—No set times for the songs of gratitude! Today is as melodious as yesterday, and tomorrow will have the beauty and rhythm of today. No proclamation of president or governor is needed to induce that genuine thankfulness which, in the devout Christian is a precious jewel in the casket of his soul. As God's blessings are constant,—morning, noon and night, through all the days and all the seasons,—so should there be constant, grateful praise. Every prayer should be a psalm of thanksgiving (Psa. 146: 1, 2).

3. Give Thanks—for What?—"Giving thanks always for all things." Can we? Do we? Not hard to do when prosperity smiles upon us, and our "barns are filled with plenty." But how is it when the barns are empty, when want looks at the window? How is it when a loved one is lying cold in death? Can we realize, in those times of trial, that "all things work together for good to those that love the Lord," and that our God is still the same? His love is not changed and, somehow, if we but trust him, it will all turn out to our eternal good (Philpp. 4: 6, 7).

4. Give Thanks—How?—"In the name of our Lord Jesus Christ." He knows what is best. He can see across the vista of years, where to us is but dense darkness. To God, for the name of his Son, should our trust be expressed,—our faith and our gratitude (Col. 3: 17).

HOME AND FAMILY

Public Worship.

BY I. H. MILLER.

O, Lord, we come to thee
In fervency of prayer;
We come on bended knee,
Thy blessings now to share.

We ask thy blessing, Lord,
On all we now shall say;
And may thy blessed Word
Rule in our hearts today!

May the words that we hear
In loyal hearts be stored;
And all draw very near Unto our gracious Lord.

Then guide us through this life,
By thy good Spirit given,
Through all our daily strife
Into the port of heaven.

An Appeal to Mothers.

BY MARTHA E. LEAR.

It was my privilege, some years ago, to visit the Hull House, a settlement in Chicago. While there, I saw the potter with clay in hand, moulding vessels of different shapes and sizes. Some were beautiful; others were made for use rather than beauty.

The clay in the hands of the potter represents very nicely the child-mind in the hands of the mother. She has material with which to work, more pliable than clay. The potter knows when he is moulding. The mother moulds, many times, when she is not conscious of it, and would rather not be moulding, perhaps, if she were fully aware of the consequences.

The potter plans his vessel before he begins it. How many mothers have any plans for the future of their little ones? The mind of the babe is like the fresh lump of clay. You can shape it in any way you wish. It need not be a game of chance. Its brain paths are to be formed. Mothers, here is your opportunity! Do you realize your responsibility?

Even the child's feeding and bathing should be at regular hours every day. You say that does not matter? But it does! The first traces through that little brain, which will later form habits, are being started right; and as it grows up these habits will cling to it tenaciously. It will be far better, physically, and the habits of promptness and regularity, thus formed, will be invaluable to it, all through life.

How many adults we see, with minds so crippled, that they can scarcely get to religious service, business, meals, or even to a train, at the appointed time, and all because they did not form right habits at the right time.

Mothers, what do you want your child to be? This is such a serious question. One mother said, when her first born was brought to her bedside, "O, take the ugly little thing away." How can God be merciful to such a mother? Had she planned for her child's future? What had been her thoughts through the months which should have meant so much to her and her child?

What kind of disposition and habits do you want your child to have? Do you want it to have a sunny disposition that will be a blessing to you, and all with whom it meets? Do you want it to form the habits of truthfulness, order, correctness of speech, to be affectionate, kind and courteous? Be just that way yourself!

If the mother has weak points, she should correct them, and fortify herself against them. If she needs help, let her go to the one true Source of all help (Psa. 121: 2).

If you want your children to be cultured and refined, live a cultured and refined life. If you want your children to be spiritual, be sure to give them spiritual food.

A mother and her little girl, several years of age, were left alone a great deal, and the mother, after the prayers were said and the lights out, would repeat aloud the twenty-third Psalm. The child soon began saying parts of the Psalm also, and before she was three years old, could repeat it, and called it her Psalm. Then the mother repeated other Psalms, which the little one learned rapidly. When the father was home, he, too, would repeat Psalms, and the child soon had the habit formed, and thought no one should sleep until they had said their Psalm. Do you think that would pay? It certainly would. What better material could you use to form brain paths in that little, new mind than the words of God? Such beautiful words! You say they do not understand? Not all, of course. But they ask many questions about the things they repeat, and that gives you a splendid opportunity to explain.

As the mother goes about her daily duties, she can repeat scripture verses,—the Beatitudes or Psalms,—and sing good songs to the little ones around her. They will leave their impress so deeply in the child-mind that they can never be erased.

The "Mother Goose" stories and rag-time jingles, that are so common in our homes today are not the material with which to mould the mind of the young for strong Christian character. They will do just the opposite. Many little rhymes and really vulgar songs are repeated over and over again, in the presence of children, and thus the child's mind and character are weakened. The best material should be placed in the child-mind; and then, by repetition, cause the brain paths to grow deeper and deeper, until good, strong habits are formed. Repetition is memory's sturdy helper, and saves many a good thing from being lost.

Mothers, teach the little ones to pray! I have known children at three and four years to give thanks at the table. Teach them how good God is to give us food and clothing, the day and the night. It is such a suitable time, when all nature is sleeping, and before they retire, to ask God, who never sleeps, to "watch their sleep till morning light." In the morning they should thank him for his care, and ask him to help them be good through the day.

In Sunday-school, and all of the services, they should be taught to kneel, close their eyes, and pray, while some one leads. Very young children soon learn to keep their eyes closed, and thus they do not see the things that would otherwise attract their attention. So often parents seem to think it an excuse for them not to kneel, when they have their little ones with them. Remember, habits are being formed in their little minds! Is there any wonder that many young people refuse to kneel? The habit was not formed while they were young.

> "Sow a thought, you reap an act:
> Sow an act, you reap a habit:
> Sow a habit, you reap a character:
> Sow a character, you reap a destiny."

It is impossible to place too much stress on early training. The Catholics seem to understand this better than many others. They say, "Give me a child until he is seven years old; then take him where you will, and he will always be a Catholic." Many times we let our children go until they are about school age, and then think it time to begin religious training. But, alas, the best years are gone! If parents have been negligent so far, they should now begin to redeem the time. Set up your altars of prayer! Daily read God's Word. Get busy tearing up wrong habits in yourselves and your children; and put good ones in their stead, and God will bless you, and your children will rise up and call you blessed (Prov. 31: 28).

First Impressions.

BY AUGUST BECK.

My childhood days were spent in the country (Denmark). The green fields, the soft meadows, the valley with its creek and miniature waterfall, the waving oat fields, the very cabbage patches were beautiful and restful to the child mind. Before the snow had fairly left the underbrush in the woods, I learned to look for the "snowflower" (vintergjokken). Then the anemone, and a little later the violet, made their appearance, and so on, through the spring and summer. Gathering armfuls of flowers, I brought them to mother, who told me the name of each.

Oh! happy days, lived in the bosom of nature! It was here I received the first impressions of God and heaven. With eager trustfulness I drank it all in.

One day I was sent to the store, two miles away, to buy butter. A piece of money, wrapped in paper, was given me with the warning "not to lose it." But, in jumping in and out of the ditches at the roadside, I did lose it. I searched high and low, but in vain. Then I sat down to cry. But suddenly it came upon me that mother once said: "Whatever you ask God for, in Jesus' name, that he will give you, if it be for your good." So, drying my tears, I knelt and prayed: "Dear God, I lost my money and will surely be punished if I do not find it. Please help me to find it for Jesus' sake, for I do trust you."

No sooner had I said this than I saw the money right before me in the grass. Now, whether it so happened that I had not seen the money before, or whether God really caused it to be put there, I do not know, but at that time I firmly believed that the latter was the case, and I almost do so now, for God does love little children. Anyway, the spiritual faith, the soothing influence of my mother's spiritual nature, thus received in my tender years, had a lasting impression on me.

I can not feel too grateful to the dear brethren and sisters, here at the Brethren Sunday-school Extension, who labor so hard every year in order to send my children, and my neighbors' children, all around here, out into the country. It is a wonderful relief to them, to get away, if only for a few weeks, from the nerve-racking noise of the city, to breathe the life-giving fresh air and to receive, at first hand, the knowledge of God's greatness and love, through nature herself.

What We Are Doing With the Child.

THESE days there is a great deal of talk about what the child needs, and what he should have. One of the exchanges says there is danger of his getting what belongs to everybody else. The pertness, the disrespect, the nervousness, the constant demand for attention and entertainment is a marked feature of modern child life. Homes are regulated by what the child wants and the time of parents and older brothers and sisters depends upon the demands of the child. Obedience, respect for elders and comparative quiet are rarely known in homes today. "Children should be seen and not heard," is a forgotten proverb; the child that can answer back with a smart saying is patted on the back. The demand to be noticed seems to be inbred in the modern child. "If you don't like what is set before you at the table, you don't have to eat it," is now changed to the habit of catering especially to the appetite of the child which is always whimsical. They go to Sunday-school if they like; they attend church if they like; they get up in time for breakfast if they like; and they do not do much if they don't like.

What is the matter? Who is robbing the future man and woman of self-control and reverence and poise? Should the child be allowed to spend the evenings at moving picture shows and dime theaters when nature seems to have decreed that it is "sand man time"? The mother who dares to go against this trend, must deprive her child of much fun and frolic and be called an "old fogy." But what will that child's child be? Have we today no thought or responsibility for the future child? Are we bound to do things because others do them? It is the line of least resistance but it pays freakish dividends. No child has maturity sufficient, or sufficient judgment, to know what is best for it. The whims and fancies of rollicking child nature are not to be crushed, nor its fascinating imaginations turned into sober old women's sayings, but these passing evidences of childhood are poor stability for manhood and womanhood.

It is like some things that are written on our hearts and live for good or evil. We may pass into new experiences, choose other alliances, and think we have erased all the old record and put it forever out of our thought, but some enveloping mist of sorrow, some sharp frost of adversity, will bring us face to face with it again. The hard and bitter thoughts we once allowed to rule our lives, or, more blessedly, the dear old faith of other days from which in our self-sufficiency we may have turned away, comes back to us from out of our past.

☞ All business and communications intended for the paper should be addressed to the BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, ELGIN, ILL., and not to any individual connected with it.

Bro. C. S. Garber is engaged in a revival meeting at Mexico, Ind.

Bro. David M. Adams is changing his address from Scalp Level, Pa., to Cerro Gordo, Ill.

Bro. Galen B. Royer, after spending some weeks in the East, has returned to his desk.

Bro. J. W. Killian is booked for a series of meetings at Sunfield, Mich., beginning Dec. 2.

At Sunny Hill, Va., twelve applied for membership during a revival conducted by Bro. J. A. Dove.

The meetings at Hooversville, Pa., conducted by Bro. W. M. Howe, closed with five accessions.

Nine were brought into the fold during a series of meetings held by Bro. C. E. Eller at Antioch, Va.

The General Mission Board is to be with us next week, and a good deal of business awaits their attention.

The Sixtieth Anniversary number, to be published next week, takes the place of the usual Thanksgiving issue.

Ten were added to the Black River church, Ohio, as the fruits of a series of meetings held by Bro. J. W. Kitson.

This week Bro. C. P. Rowland, of Lanark, Ill., starts to Jennings, La., where he will engage in evangelistic work.

At the late Meadow Branch (Maryland) feast, we are told that more than 400 members surrounded the Lord's tables.

Bro. James Hardy, of Kansas City, Kans., changes his address from 340 Thorp Avenue to 302 South Baltimore Street.

Sixteen were added to the church at Pleasant Valley, Va., as the result of evangelistic efforts by Bro. W. K. Conner.

Bro. A. J. Culler, of New York, has located in Philadelphia, and may now be addressed at 2541 West Lehigh Avenue.

Bro. J. W. Lear, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., will soon change his place of residence to Decatur, same State, 530 Stuart Avenue.

Bro. John A. Robinson, now located at Denver, Colo., as pastor, should be addressed at 1109 South Washington Street.

Sixteen good gospel sermons were preached at Fairview, Pa., by Bro. S. I. Brumbaugh, and seventeen souls entered the fold.

It is suggested that if any of our members should be in possession of jewelry, it would be right and proper for them to drop it into the collection basket on Thanksgiving Day, and in this way get rid of the forbidden articles. These can then be sold and the proceeds turned over to the mission fund.

Bro. J. H. B. Williams, of Elgin, is to begin a series of meetings in the Victor church, Kans., on Sunday morning, Nov. 26.

As the fruits of the protracted meetings, held by Bro. C. S. Garber, in the Turkey Creek church, Ind., forty souls were born into the kingdom.

Bro. James A. Sell, of Pennsylvania, is engaged in a series of meetings in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and is likely to remain in the West for some months.

Brother and Sister J. M. Blough, after a pleasant furlough in the United States, will soon return to their work in India. They sail from New York Dec. 9.

The new meetinghouse in Williamsburg, Pa., is to be dedicated about the Holidays. Bro. I. N. H. Beahm is to deliver the address, and follow up the service with a series of meetings.

Bro. William Swinger recently delivered nineteen addresses in the Strait Creek church, Ohio. Four put on Christ in baptism, one was reclaimed and two are yet to be baptized.

Bro. A. F. Wine, of Paw Paw, Mich., has arranged to spend several months in the evangelistic field after Dec. 1, and would be pleased to communicate with those desiring his services.

The church dedication at Anderson, Ind., will be Dec. 3, at 10 A. M., instead of Dec. 2, as previously announced. The dedication will be followed by a love feast at five in the evening.

Writing concerning the doctrinal issue, Bro. J. W. Lear, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., says it is the best paper of its kind ever put out, and should be read by hundreds of people outside of the church.

The church at Warrensburg, Mo., is very much encouraged over a late series of meetings, conducted by Bro. E. G. Rodabaugh, resulting in nine putting on Christ in baptism. For one applicant baptism must be deferred.

Bro. G. E. Yoder writes that he is in Middle Maryland, at work in the Manor congregation, where there is a membership of about 250. He is very much impressed with the encouraging outlook in this part of the Brotherhood.

Though we gave ample opportunity for all corrections for the Almanac of 1912, to reach us by Nov. 1, yet here, near the middle of the month, they are still coming in. We fear that most of these late calls for corrections can not be made.

Next week we are to mail the Sixtieth Anniversary issue of the Messenger. In appearance and contents it is likely to excel the doctrinal number. Among other things of special importance, it is to tell the story of the publishing interests of the Brotherhood for sixty years.

Dec. 3 is the date announced for the dedication of the church at Slifer, Iowa, and Bro. A. P. Blough, of Waterloo, is to deliver the address for the occasion. Other elders are likely to be present, and an organization may be effected, thus adding one more church to the list for the State.

Bro. J. F. Appelman has been engaged by the General Mission Board to travel among the churches in behalf of missions. He is doing a splendid work. The need of imparting missionary information is so great that he will not be able, for the present, to give any time to evangelistic work.

Bro. J. A. Geiser, of Baltimore, Md., who in August buried his wife, writes us that another sad experience has come into his life. Nov. 6 his mother, Sister Ann Lavina Geiser, aged seventy-three, was laid away in her last earthly resting place. Under date of Nov. 9 he says: "I was up to see her on Sunday; spent the day with her, and had a sweet season of prayer before bidding her good-bye. On Sunday afternoon she crossed over. Her work is done,—well done."

In company with other members from Elgin, we had the pleasure of enjoying a very spiritual love feast at Batavia last Sunday evening. While the high winds and the low temperature rendered the weather conditions very unfavorable, still the spirit and uplifting influence of the feast were all that could have been desired.

Writing from Union Bridge, Md., Bro. W. I. T. Hoover says that everything at Blue Ridge College is moving along nicely, and that the outlook is encouraging. He further says that he has just returned from Dayton, Ohio, bringing with him his mother, who is to make her home in his family until after the next Annual Meeting.

Those wishing free copies of the doctrinal issue for distribution where they think the papers will do good, should let us have their orders without delay. Drop us a line, saying how many can be judiciously used, and they will be sent at once. There are no charges when the special issue is used as designated, and we are assured that the papers will be highly appreciated by those receiving them.

The Almanac for 1912 is now in the hands of the printers, and in due time will be mailed free to all of our regular subscribers. We believe that our patrons will find in it much that will interest them. The lists of Ministers, Elders and Pastors, District Mission Boards, Sunday-school Secretaries and Temperance Committees make the publication especially valuable.

It is difficult to conceive of a cold, indifferent church, where there are a full half dozen real live and energetic members to stir up the others and keep things moving. Each member who reads the Messenger should be one of these live members, and if he lives in a seemingly dead church, he should show by his works that he is not dead. Let each Messenger reader perform his part; then something is going to follow. We should like if the Lord could depend upon our readers as fully as Gideon could depend upon his 300 picked men. What say you, readers of the Messenger? Can the Lord depend on each of you faithfully to represent his interest in your locality? If he can not depend on you, pray, tell us on whom he can depend.

In one of the dying country churches the outlook became so hopeless that some of the members proposed that the meetinghouse be locked and all church services suspended. But a real earnest minister was located in the community, and he not only revived the drooping spirits of the members, but he called on every family within a radius of a few miles, got acquainted and invited them to attend church. Many came, and he gave all to understand that he was there to do good. An evangelist was invited in to hold a series of meetings; several were converted; the whole community was more or less affected; now it looks as though the once almost lifeless church is again to become a strong-working congregation. What was done in this neglected locality might be done in any other community where we have a weak congregation. We certainly ought to do what we can to put all of our weak churches squarely on their feet again.

A very nice thing happened in a Presbyterian Conference, not long since. A German minister, aged eighty-three, thought he should relinquish his pulpit, to make room for a younger man. But others insisted that the aged father's period of usfulness had not yet ended, so the venerable man consented to continue doing what he could to feed the flock. It was further announced that arrangements had been made to convey the devout man to church when the weather was favorable, and when he could not be there the pulpit would be filled by a theological student. There is something beautiful and touching about this, and if all devout and aged ministers could be treated with like consideration, old age, upon the part of ministers, might be looked forward to with some degree of pleasure. But to see earnest preachers, who have worked hard and long, set aside, simply because they have a number of years to their credit, is just a bit discouraging.

THE dedication of the new church at Akron, Ohio, announced for Dec. 3, is postponed, for the reason that the building will not be completed by that date.

The Missionary Visitor for November contains the quarterly Temperance Bulletin, edited by the General Temperance Committee. The matter is well chosen, and should do good. This issue of the Visitor should be widely circulated.

On page 729, this issue, under the heading, "An Interesting Scene in Florida," will be found a touching narrative, which does credit to our Brethren in the South during the Civil War. This leads us to say that we should like to have, for future use, carefully-prepared accounts of the experiences of our people during the war. There are those living who can tell things that would make interesting reading.

Among the Churches in Tennessee and North Carolina.

EMIGRATION usually follows parallels of latitude, hence the South has not had the generous inflow of immigration, enjoyed by the North and West. Many of our churches in the West were founded by colonies of our people moving out from the old homes, seeking new ones in the West and North. When Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa were settled, slavery in the South was a hindrance to our people going in that direction. The Church of the Brethren held from the beginning that human slavery is wrong, and that no one can be a member of the church and own slaves. Because of this, they were not so heartily welcomed in the South as in the North and West. This may account, in part, for the fact that not more of our churches are found in the extreme South. By the time the war closed and the troubled days of reconstruction ended, the tide was set so strongly westward that it was not easy to change.

Now the South is offering every possible inducement for settlers. Homeseekers' tickets are sold by all the railways, and newcomers are heartily welcomed. The South is prospering; land is advancing, although cheap yet, as compared with the West, and evidences of improvement and advancement are to be noted on every hand. The writer expresses the hope that more of our people will turn their faces southward and build up churches in this goodly land.

Our last letter was closed at Limestone, from whence we were taken to the New Hope church, a few miles away. The meetinghouse is built on one of the numerous hills or knobs that cannot be hid. It is sincerely hoped that the membership may so let their light shine that it can not be hid from the world. Brethren Marion and A. M. Laughrun, father and son, and Bro. John H. Hilbert, are the elders in charge of the church. Meetings were held morning and evening. The farmers, belated in sowing wheat by recent heavy rains, were very busy, and the attendance was small in the morning but large at night.

At the Pleasant Valley church Elders Christian H. Diehl and John C. Bashor are in charge. Bro. Bashor is a miller by occupation, and while with him I enjoyed very much to come in close touch with the past, when the mill of my father was my home. Here the meetings were well attended in the evening, and as at all the churches, the attention and apparent appreciation of the services were marked. One does not find more appreciative audiences anywhere.

North Carolina joins Tennessee on the east, and until recently formed part of the one State District. Now North and South Carolina form a new District. A strong desire led to a visit to the Brummet's Creek church, which was made in company with Eld. S. J. Bowman, of Knob Creek.

A two hours' ride by rail, through the mountain gorge along the Chuckey River, brought us to the way station within half a mile of the church. The District is mountainous, and the Brummet's Creek meetinghouse, like Jerusalem, is in a hill country. The most of the farms are on the hillsides and these are so steep that plows with reversible mould-boards are used, turning the furrows down hill. When the grain is ripened and harvested, it is loaded on sleds and drawn down to the little barns in the valley below.

The meetinghouse is located in a narrow valley, through which a mountain stream finds its devious way. A narrow roadway, scarcely wide enough to allow two teams to pass, takes up all the space between the steep hillside and the rippling water course. Three hundred yards from the opening of the valley stands the church. It is reached by crossing the creek on a foot-bridge, and is built against the hillside. It is beautiful for situation. A touch of frost had colored the leaves on the heavily-timbered mountains, and the hillsides reveled in the beauty of their rich coloring.

Three meetings were held. For the most part the people came on foot. The elder, M. M. Griffith, walked six miles to attend the last meeting. On Sunday afternoon the house was crowded and some were unable to get in. More attentive, appreciative and responsive audiences one seldom meets. The simple life is exemplified among the members. The old-fashioned log-house, "chunked and daubed," with great fire-places, carpetless and rugless floors, are in evidence at many places, but you will find in these homes as kind-hearted, generous, happy people as live anywhere. They live the simple life and live it consistently. Some of us insist on simplicity in dress and, at the same time, furnish our houses in the latest style, and indulge in the luxuries of life. We might, if we would, learn an important lesson from our North Carolina Brethren. Their wants do not outrun the necessities of life. The show and ostentation, so common in many places, is not found among them. They dispense a whole-hearted hospitality that is pleasant to enjoy. You are heartily welcome to their best, and the hospitality is all the more acceptable, because of the pleasure it affords them to entertain you. D. L. M.

"The Rebaptism at Ephesus."

IT is altogether proper that open questions before the Conference should be freely discussed through the MESSENGER; but it should be done, it is my judgment, after the manner of an independent investigation, and not in the form of personal replies. The personal element should be excluded. But the President of Lordsburg College, Cal., published in MESSENGER, Oct. 14, a reply to an article written by myself, in MESSENGER, Sept. 16, which it seems to me, calls for a few further remarks, and I submit the following:

For the most part, the President, though classing himself with those "who like to criticise," agrees with my position. That the twelve were baptized first by Apollos, that he, as an administrator of baptism, is not to be questioned, that they were baptized by trine immersion, that it was for the remission of sins, that they were rebaptized because they lacked the proper previous teaching and faith, he is willing to admit, though as to the mode, he finds my reasoning "not entirely compelling." These points cover the essential ground in the case, and my position is greatly strengthened, when it is acknowledged by one so competent to judge, even a critic, and one who "likes to criticise."

The twelve were rebaptized for want of proper previous teaching and faith. They had not been fully taught that the Holy Ghost had already come, to be received by believers, and that disciples should believe supremely on Jesus. Their lack, as it is developed by the record, lay in these two points. When this was made clear to them, they were rebaptized. In this point especially, the President "quite agrees." But the remarkable thing is, he differs from me, for the most part, in what I did not say at all, on ground that I did not discuss, not in the points I affirmed. The burden of his discussion is on the importance of the things the twelve lacked, their essentiality to baptism, while I affirmed the proposition that the twelve were wanting in right previous teaching and faith, that they were rebaptized because of this lack, and that the absence of the proper previous teaching and faith invalidated their baptism, attempting to show that baptism, though scriptural in mode and design and also in the administrator, is not to be accepted, when the candidate is in want of its scriptural prerequisites. The point is, that as important as baptism itself is, its scriptural prerequisites are still of more importance. And this applies in every case.

Of course, I fully agree with all that is said on the value of the things wanting in this case. The lack was great, it is true. This is emphasized and deplored by the President but no relief is given. The scriptural prerequisites to baptism are not defined.

The case of the twelve teaches beyond question that want of the proper previous teaching and faith to baptism invalidates it. This is its main teaching. It shows also the particular lack of the twelve. But it is not to be inferred that their lack covered the entire ground of essential previous teaching and faith. Inferentially, this is the President's teaching. But still he does not tell us what believing in Jesus and the Holy Spirit means as it relates to baptism. That's the vital point.

The Church of the Brethren has made one attempt after another to work out this matter and define the question. And after all this laborious effort, she decides that the confession of faith unto baptism should embrace the belief that Jesus is the Son of God and that he brought from heaven a saving Gospel; the renunciation of Satan, with all his pernicious ways, and all the sinful pleasures of the world; and to covenant with God, in Christ Jesus, to be faithful until death. Previous to this confession, the applicant is specially instructed in the doctrines of nonsecrecy, nonswearing, nonlitigation, nonresistance, nonconformity to the world in her follies and fashions, etc., etc. To these he must consent also.

Is this definition correct? If not, does it embrace too little or too much? H. C. E.

A Fine-Edged Conscience.

AT a late prayer meeting we had, as a subject, "A Fine-edged Conscience," and as only a few had given the subject but little and, perhaps, no thought, until the text, as found in 2 Cor. 1: 12, was read at the opening of the meeting, it gave room for some very interesting talks. The various interpretations and deductions, made by the different speakers, only show how easy it is for even good people to differ, not only on this but on many other subjects that pertain to our religious convictions.

The different kinds of consciences were portrayed to us, and there may be more than were given. In fact, the way some of us are in the habit of defining the Word, there may be about as many as there are minds to produce them.

We think we hear some one say: Do you look upon conscience as being a product of the mind? . Yes, if you please. If I had no mind or intelligence, I do not believe that I would have much or any conscience,—keen-edged or dull-edged.

THANKSGIVING APPEAL.

To Our Beloved Brotherhood:—

When God promises, he bestows lavishly. For the truth of this the present year is its own testimony. The earth has brought forth in abundance, in herb and vine and field. Wage between man and man has been liberal, and the opportunities for gain from every legitimate industry have been marvelous.

God speaks to men. To the innermost consciousness of our church life has the still small voice been heard. Souls have been brought into the fold, while many have experienced the deeper outpourings of his Spirit. Some have expressed their confidence in him by going to the waste places of the earth, either at home, into the cities or to foreign lands.

Likewise he has added responsibilities. He makes you responsible for the filling of his treasury, he makes us responsible for a large portion of the missionary enterprise of the church. Without each other, we can not accomplish the greatest good. Therefore as your servants, dependent upon your liberality, we ask you to remember our work on Thanksgiving Day.

Consider God's blessings; consider well his needs. Then, having considered both,—let your offerings be liberal for the work at hand. Make offerings payable to the General Mission Board, send them to us and receive our receipt. May the Lord bless you!

Most fraternally,
General Mission Board.
Elgin, Ill.

There are some who hang quite a heavy load on their conscience, as if, in the day of judgment, we would be held more responsible for being true to the promptings of our own conscience than to the truth or the Word of God,—just as if conscience were a true guide, independent of the truth. Or, in other words, some think that our conscience is a better interpreter, and gives us surer convictions and surer directions as to justifiable actions, than intelligence and good common sense. We seem to have a conscience,—it may be a queer one,—that never acts, or makes us feel, until our intelligence tells us that we have violated some law or principle of right, and the greater the violation in our estimation, the louder seems to be the call of warning.

Men often want to get rid of the thing that they think they ought to do or want to do, or the thing they think they ought not to do, and the more anxious they become to do or not to do the thing in question, the weaker grows their conscience call, until, finally, resistance ceases, and we take it for granted that we are right, or at least justifiable, and go ahead and do as we want to, and say, "We did it in all good conscience." How do we do this? We say, "By getting the assent of our conscience." No, we don't. We simply refuse to respond to our first convictions of right, and our feelings of wrong subside. It is not the approval of conscience, but our refusal to do what our intelligence said was right, which causes us to persist in trying to believe the other thing.

But what is it that gives the fine edge to our conscience? What is it that makes it sharp and responsive to the right, and quick and active in rejecting the wrong? The secret in getting and keeping a fine-edged conscience is immediately to respond to our convictions of right and duty, based on an intelligent knowledge of God's Word. A Christ-filled soul need not hesitate to follow his convictions of right, because the leading of the Spirit is always in the right direction. The Psalmist says: "He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name's sake," and this leading it is our privilege to have.

It seems to us that another way to have and keep a fine-edged conscience is for us always to be more conscious of what we are really doing. Are we as much concerned as we should be? How often do we hear people say: "I did not think"! People that do not think are always in danger of doing wrong, foolish and hurtful things. We remember, years ago, hearing of one of our elders, who, while stopping over night in a large city, as a matter of "pastime," and a bit of "don't think" curiosity, attended a near-by theater. "At first," he said, "it was real funny," but as the environments there were quite different from those to which he was accustomed in the old meetinghouse at home, as well as the class of people and their deportment, he began to think, and the more he thought the less at home he felt. The feeling that we sometimes call conscience began to assert itself, and it made him feel so bad that he decided the best thing for him to do was to leave the place, and he left.

But his "didn't think" was not yet atoned for, for his conscience acted too slowly to serve him at the opportune time. He suffered for his indiscretion, and could reinstate himself with his better self only after pledging himself to be more thoughtful in the future. And so we have a world of indiscretions committed, because we have not habituated ourselves to think as we should before we act or do.

Another thing that is helpful in keeping a fine-edged conscience, is to cultivate in our daily living the thought of continual Divine presence,—that Jesus Christ is our Daily Companion wherever we be, wherever we go. This he promises us, if we will have it. Always to have this feeling and consciousness, proves a great safeguard to our thoughts and our actions. There are many unworthy things that it is easy for us to avoid doing while in the presence of good people. And, again, there are a great many things, easy for us to do when in the company of bad people, from which we should rigidly abstain. How much easier it would be for us always to do the right and the good thing, independent of our physical surroundings, if we could always entertain the feeling that the Christ is with us! We sometimes say it,—and about half believe it,—but not quite strong enough to give us the fine-edged conscience that will always keep us in right places, help us to do the right thing and entertain the right thoughts, under such circumstances.

If some of our public men, who stand in high places, and are courting the favors of rich but characterless men, could entertain, in their minds and hearts, the abiding presence of the blessed Christ, they could never accept an invitation from the officials of a "Beer Congress," or aspire to a seat among the scornful. Think of intelligent and professedly Christian men taking with them their Christ and their religion to a great conference which has for its object and purpose the development and extension of a business that falls as a sin-blighting curse upon the homes of all classes of our people, bringing wives and mothers to poverty, wretchedness and shame, the children to rags, ignorance and disgrace, and husbands and fathers to a drunkard's grave and a drunkard's hereafter.

In connection with such pictures, we are made to think of those who have consciences "seared with a hot iron." They are past feeling, and dead to the tearful pleadings of suffering and praying women. Well, such men can have the satisfaction of knowing that they will not have the Christ with them, as the unseen Guest and Companion. But it will be well for them to remember, and occasionally say, "Thou, God, seest me," because our God will not overlook such soul-blighting scenes.

And as we thus think of others, it will be well for each one of us to call up our own life experiences and determine, as near as we can, the status of our own conscience. To what class do we belong? Are our consciences of the fine-edged class, the pure, the good, the void of offense; or the weak, dull and seared? May we all be able to say that it is our desire and prayer to have always a conscience void of offense.

Sunday-School Attendance.

An earnest Sunday-school superintendent wishes us to tell him how to get parents, especially members, and their children to attend Sunday-school. The man who can comply with the wishes of our correspondent, in this particular, might easily become immensely popular. All those interested in Sunday-school work are looking for the method that will get parents and children to attend Sunday-school. We shall not undertake to solve the problem, but will venture a few suggestions. In the first place it should be the settled policy of those in charge that the school is going to continue, whether the attendance be large or small. This being settled, let each one go about his work cheerfully. Should some of the officers become discouraged, let none of the scholars find it out. See that the accommodations for the school are as good as circumstances will permit. The room should be cheerful, well warmed in cool weather and properly ventilated at all times. While having everything pleasant and agreeable for the pupils, do not make the entertaining of those in attendance the chief concern. See to it that the school has something to offer men, women and children that is worthy their time and attention. Waste no time in lamenting over those who are absent. Do your best for the ones who are present; then they will tell others of the help they are receiving. Praise your school and your workers, but do not run down the school and its management. Remember that a dozen live people in a Sunday-school can do more to make it a success than a hundred half dead ones outside. Make the best of what you have, and then you will have something worth advertising. After making the school worthy the attention of people, go out after the parents and children. Talk in such a way as to win them, but do not drive them away. In fact, do your best; be faithful over the few things entrusted to you, and trust God for the rest.

Restoring to Membership.

An elder in the West says that some of our churches have different methods of reinstating expelled members who settle in their territory. Here is his question: "Members who are expelled, or who have withdrawn from the church, sometimes move off into other congregations, and live there. After a while they wish to be reinstated. Can it be done regularly, without their making satisfaction with and getting a certificate of membership from the congregation where they originally belonged?"

An expelled member should be restored by the consent of the congregation where he lost his membership. This may be done by that congregation granting him a letter, after matters have been adjusted, or by authorizing the congregation where he lives to restore him on such conditions as may be named, and deemed proper. But in no instance should an excommunicated member be restored to fellowship without an understanding with the congregation that relieved him of his membership. The same precaution should also be exercised when receiving members who have wandered away from the church. When an expelled member manifests a desire to return to the fold, he should be given all possible encouragement, and in the meantime the matter should without delay, be taken up with the congregation where he lost his membership, and whatever may be in the way of the return ought to be removed as speedily as possible. There may be instances of such long standing as to render it difficult to get into communication with those who know about the cause leading up to the loss of membership. In such instances it might be best not to insist too strongly on the rule referred to, the real purpose being to regain and save the lost. It will be well, always, to bear in mind, when dealing with members desiring to return to the fold, "that he who converteth a sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death, and hide a multitude of sins" (James 5: 20).

World-Wide Crimes.

The people of this world may be growing wiser, more civilized and even more cultured, but they certainly have not learned how to spend their money judiciously. Here are some figures worth noticing, taken from the Missionary Review of the World. The figures are for one year: For public education, $175,000,000; for woolen goods, $250,000,000; for boots and shoes, $300,000,000; for bread, $600,000,000, making a total of $1,360,000,000. The total amount for liquor, during the same period, is given as $1,400,000,000, or $40,000,000 more than for the greater part of the necessities of life. With these startling facts before us it really becomes a question in the minds of some well-informed thinkers as to whether the people of the world are growing better in the sight of God. True, life is safer than it was a few hundred years ago. Property may be better protected and there may be less persecution, while we know there is a decided improvement in all the leading governments of earth, yet there is an astonishing amount of crime, aside from that directly attributed to liquor. Governments, business circles and society are honeycombed with crime. In spite of the unceasing efforts to ferret out and punish criminals, they are multiplying on every hand, and their lawless acts can not be numbered. The millennium is not here by any means, and there is still plenty of work for those interested in purifying and elevating society.

Blessing Children.

No one should object to a devout minister offering a suitable prayer over a young babe, asking the Great Father to bless the child, and make of it a useful member for his kingdom, but when it comes to having a public, special meeting, in which parents are asked to present their child for a consecration service, with the understanding that they thereby are brought into a closer relationship with the church, one is made to think of the steps that paved the way to infant baptism. It may mean even a shorter cut to church membership than that devised and put into operation by the Catholics and the Greeks. True, Jesus blessed children in an incidental way, and made a lesson of the occasion, but for some reason it would appear that the apostles were never quite presumptuous enough to make the example prominent in their work among the churches. They preferred to preach the Gospel to whole households, and then baptized those capable of exercising faith and able to ask for the initiatory rite.

KINGDOM SONGS.

In all my work, as a teacher and director of music, I never used a book that was more successful than "Kingdom Songs." Here, at Pleasant Hill, Ohio, we have had two weeks of inspiring work in "Kingdom Songs," and I will be here for another week yet. I will go to the Bear Creek congregation, near Dayton, Ohio, Nov. 12, for a few weeks' work; then to the White church, near Colfax, Ind.; then to Dallas Center, Iowa, for work in and near there, for several churches of the Brethren.

I am very hopeful for the music of our churches and Sunday-schools, as well as other religious and spiritual meetings, with such a good book to meet the demands of our church. I hope that all churches will fall in line, so that we will have the same song books all over the Brotherhood. Then, by next Annual Conference, every brother and sister can bring "Kingdom Songs" for the song services. This is what I have been hoping and praying for. I am very thankful for the publication of "Kingdom Songs" by our Brethren Publishing House.

Flora, Ind. Joseph Studebaker.

PINE CREEK, INDIANA.

We had services each evening for one week prior to our communion, conducted by Eld. Jacob Hildebrand. Nine were made willing to accept Christ and were baptized. One of the last held Oct. 21, at Mexico Ford, was well attended. About 250 members communed. A spirit of deep reverence prevailed. The visiting ministers were Brethren Daniel Whitmer and son, Merl, of North Liberty, Ind., Bro. J. F. Appelman, of Plymouth, Ind., Bro. J. W. Grater, of South Bend, Ind., Bro. Irwin Weaver, of Bremen, Ind., Brethren Daniel Wysong and David Metzler, of Nappanee, Ind. The latter officiated.

We had the privilege of having with us, at this feast, our dear brother, Lloyd Steel, who has been confined for more than a year with tuberculosis. On Sunday morning we met again for services. About three hundred ate breakfast at the church, after which we had a special prayer service for our afflicted brother, Lloyd Steel, which was very encouraging to him. During the devotional services, our visiting ministers each gave interesting talks on the Sunday-school lesson.

On Sunday evening, Oct. 8, Eld. David Metzler began a series of meetings, which continued for over two weeks. He preached seventeen inspiring sermons. The best of interest was manifested at all the services. We were richly fed with spiritual food by our dear brother, who labored so earnestly for the salvation of souls. Wednesday forenoon, Oct. 25, eight more souls were added to the fold of Christ by baptism, making seventeen in all. Others are near the kingdom. The members are greatly encouraged. M. S. Morris.

SOUTHEASTERN DISTRICT OF KANSAS.

The District, Sunday-school, Ministerial, Temperance, Missionary, Elders' and Christian Workers' Meetings were held at Paint Creek church, Oct. 24, 25 and 26. The elders met at the home of Bro. Edw. Ruff on Monday evening, Oct. 23. Their work was completed in the second session. Nominations were presented to the District Meeting by them for the various offices in the District. Reports of committees, which were sent out by the Elders' Meeting of last year, were received and acted upon. Some ordinations were recommended and committees of elders were appointed to look after the work.

Oct. 24, at 9 A. M., a good tempering sermon was held, in which a number took part. Bro. W. H. Leaman had charge of this meeting. Our State is facing a crisis, and much depends upon the temperance workers of the State, during the next twelve months. May God help every one to do his duty.

At 1: 30 P. M. the Christian Workers' Meeting convened. Bro. J. S. Sherfy was moderator. Owing to other duties we were not permitted to be present, but were informed that this was an excellent meeting.

Oct. 25, at 9 A. M., we met for District Sunday-school Meeting. This proved to be a very enthusiastic gathering. The talks on the teacher-training work were especially pointed and helpful. We were glad for the presence and help of Bro. J. M. Mohler in this meeting. He also had a conference with the Sunday-school workers in the evening.

At 1: 30 P. M. the Ministerial Meeting was held. Bro. S. E. Lantz was moderator. Many fine thoughts were presented, which will be helpful to the ministry of our District.

At 8 P. M. we held our Missionary Meeting. A large crowd was present, and deep interest prevailed. A good collection was taken for District Mission work.

On Thursday, Oct. 26, at 8 A. M., the delegates met to organize the District Meeting. After the enrollment of the delegates, and prayer, Bro. J. S. Clark was elected Moderator, who proved to be a good presiding officer. Bro. F. F. Bowman had his first experience as Writing Clerk in this District, and did his work well. Every thing coming before the meeting was returned. Bro. J. S. Clark was elected a member of the Standing Committee for 1912. The District Meeting for 1912 will be held in the Fredonia church.

The members of the Paint Creek church have our sincere thanks for their hospitality and kindness. The meetings closed on Thursday evening with a sermon by Bro. J. S. Sherfy. Chas. A. Miller.

PING TING CHOU, CHINA.

We spent a short time during the hottest weather in a temple on the mountain side, where we received strength and inspiration for another year's work. Early in August we returned to the city, to find our neighbors eager for our return. The first few days we were very busy, entertaining callers who came to welcome us back. Seeing their pleasant, eager faces, we felt that the year's work for the Lord has not been in vain.

The boys' school and men's opium refuge are moving along nicely, with the blessings of the Lord. Brother and Sister Crumpacker, besides their many other duties, daily do the work of a doctor, administering relief to the many sick who come to them for help.

The church services are better attended, this year than ever before. The fear of the foreigner is dying away and we have friends everywhere. The women are even trusting themselves to us to break off opium,—the awful curse of the women as well as of the men. Perhaps half of the people of this city are slaves of this drug. The price of opium is so high and the Government so strict, that many are trying to break off.

First our landlady asked to come and live with us, and take our cure. Five others, seeing her courage, also asked to come, so this month we have three six women with us. They have had no serious sickenesss, only the usual pains, aches and cravings that attend such victims.

It is a great opportunity to have these women with us constantly for a month. During this time they learn much of the Gospel. They learn to pray and sing. They love to sing and have learned a number of hymns this month. It does one's soul good to hear these women singing the songs of Zion. Pray that they soon may no longer be called heathen. They are a bright, happy, loving happy group, spending most of their time in singing, laughing and talking. They are like children in most ways. They scarcely knew a written word when they came, but are willing and even eager to learn to read. Some women are past fifty years of age and have used opium most of their life. Some are learning to read quite rapidly and we trust that the start they are now receiving will soon enable them to read the Word of Life for themselves.

One woman began teaching last year, is now reading the Bible very nicely. So you see that the task of teaching these women to read the Bible for themselves is not a hopeless one, since in this case the student began to read the Bible in six months. She, however, is young. Older ones must take more time.

We daily pray and long for the souls of these people to be saved, but we must wait. They are like children learning a new lesson. May we,—their teachers,—have the wisdom and power to teach them this great salvation! We realize our great gospel trust, and long never to disappoint our Master. Emma Horning.

Shansi, China, Sept. 25.

SOUTHWESTERN KANSAS AND SOUTHERN COLORADO.

Our Ministerial and District Meetings convened in the Newton Mission church, Newton, Kans., Oct. 17 and 18. We were welcomed and well cared for by the good members and people of the town.

The Ministerial and District Meetings were preceded by an excellent Sunday-school Convention. The people began arriving on Saturday evening; so we had a sermon by Bro. E. M. Studebaker. He gave a splendid discourse from Philpp. 3: 13, 14.

We began each day by meeting for morning worship. On Sunday morning, after the regular Sunday-school, we listened to a strong discourse on the subject, "Home," by Eld. J. J. Yoder. The afternoon was spent very profitably, discussing Sunday-school topics. In the evening, after an interesting Christian Workers' Meeting, Bro. J. A. Clement, President of McPherson College, gave us one of his helpful and soul-stirring lectures on "Child Nature and Child Study."

Monday was a full day of enthusiastic discussions of Sunday-school and Christian Workers' Band topics. The volunteer band from our college gave a missionary program in the evening. Those on the program gave many helpful suggestions, which made us all feel the need of doing more for benighted souls. A letter from Bro. F. H. Crumpacker was read. This stirred many hearts. A collection of $88 was taken for the China work.

Tuesday morning the Ministerial Meeting convened, and elected Bro. M. J. Mishler as Moderator; Bro. David Hamm, Reading Clerk; Bro. M. S. Frantz, Writing Clerk. A splendid program had been outlined and was ably discussed by many present. We feel that greater work will be accomplished by our ministers and their congregations. In the evening we had a helpful and interesting Educational Meeting. Bro. Clement had charge. Greater interest was awakened between our schools and the churches. Some definite steps were also taken to endow our college.

Wednesday the regular District Meeting was held. The organization was effected by choosing Bro. H. Crist as Moderator; Bro. M. J. Mishler, Reading Clerk; the writer, Writing Clerk. All business was transacted with a feeling of brotherly love, and in a business manner. The various reports showed that our work is progressing nicely. Eld. M. Keller was chosen to represent us on the Standing Committee; Eld. M. J. Mishler, alternate. One query, petitioning Congress to permit the reading of the Bible in our public schools, was passed to General Conference. A collection of $28.81 was raised at this meeting for our District Mission work. We appointed a Temperance Committee, composed of Sisters Katie Yost and Blanche Frantz, and Bro. H. J. Harnly. Bro. A. J. Crumpacker was chosen as District Sunday-school Secretary. The Mothers and Daughters' Meeting was reported as excellent. We took definite steps to have a Fathers and Sons' Meeting next year. As there were no calls for the meeting, the coming year, the presiding officers are to decide as to a place for the meeting.

H. M. Brubaker, Writing Clerk.

Conway, Kans., Nov. 1.

MIDDLE MISSOURI.

At our late Ministerial Meeting the demands that the mission cause makes of our ministers were thought to be of importance, from the fact that the solution of most of all nations problems largely upon the ministers. In view of this fact, ministers have no time for the consideration of great financial propositions, but missions and kindred efforts must be their chief aim. The working out of this aim does not always lead across the waters but to the small fields close home.

There has been much said about young ministers moving out, and moving in, as if mission work depended upon the young only. Why could not some of the older ministers, who have accumulated enough wealth to keep them comfortable the rest of their days, and whose children are grown up, and have left the parental roof, move into declining churches where there are no ministers, and by their chaste conduct and godly walk, build up these broken-down altars, thereby contributing much more to the mission cause than can be done in any other way?

Some good teaching was done as to the minister's relation to the various peace movements of the present day. With Jesus as the "Prince of Peace," and the Gospel of Jesus Christ as a Gospel of Peace, the minister as an ambassador of Christ, and the Christian as the "light of the world," it is evident that peace movements are born from the teaching and examples of God's children. By virtue of his office, the minister should keep in advance of all peace movements and lead to higher ground than economic and moral benefits.

The minister's duty to the church is a question that is always vital to the best interests of the cause, but the temporal duty of the church, to the minister and his family is equally important. While the Scriptures teach both a free and a self-denying ministry, the ideal is a willing cooperation of laity and minister. This brings great blessings to all.

How grand when the minister can go and fill all calls made upon him, while the church is as diligently caring for the temporal needs of himself and his family! Many a blessing to both the minister and the laity is lost by a lack of coöperation in this work.

The question of "The Greatest Present Day Hindrances to the Evangelizing of Our District" brought out arguments, indicating that we are in the days of which Paul speaks in 2 Tim. 3. We have the secret order crave, and the strong, and excessive commercial activity, engulfing not only people of the world, but the very elect, if it were possible.

Young brethren should prepare for active work in the church. A neglect to call able workers to the work of the ministry indicates a lack on the part of those who are responsible. To each there is no stronger appeal to be made than responsibility. The individual is responsible for the development of his God-given powers, to the limit of his possibility, while the responsibility of the church lies in giving opportunity for the exercising of the talent of the individual, and the making possible of the development of his talent. Both will have to give an account to God for their neglect of known duty. James M. Mohler.

eral, there were a lot of prisoners in the camp, and among those prisoners were seven..that were given nothing but bread and water. Gen. Hill detailed me to see to the prisoners and to feed them. Then I saw that those seven did not have on the blue uniform and asked them why they were imprisoned. They promptly told me that they belonged to a body of nonresistants,—religious people,—and would not take up arms to kill their fellow-men,—and therefore they were penned up here until they would fight.

"I pitied them so greatly that I went to Gen. Hill's cook that night and told him to bake fourteen biscuits, cut them open, put a piece of meat in each one, and put them in my haversack. The next morning I went to those seven prisoners, and told them that I had a good breakfast for them. Then the spokesman said: 'Did Gen. Hill order you to bring them?' I said, 'No, but I pitied you, and here, take and eat them.' They said: "No, if we eat them, it will get you into trouble, and we would rather starve than get you into trouble.' So I went up to the general and told him what I had done, also telling them there was no use to have that kind of men penned up.

"The general then sent me to bring those prisoners up to his quarters, and when they got there he questioned them. They were frank and ready to explain their faith and practice. After Gen. Hill complimented them for quite a while, he turned to me, with instructions to take the good people down to the quartermaster and get them free transportation home.

"After the general had given them a hearty goodbye, I sent them home, rejoicing in their integrity, and never saw any other members of the Brethren church until last fall, when I met Bro. Cripe."

Then the speaker urged those people to put their confidence in us, for he had seen our Brethren tried when death stared them in the face.

When Bro. Sherfy was called upon to respond, he assured them that they should not be betrayed, and gave them to understand that we had church government and would see that we maintained the reputation those dear brethren had established for us in those hours of tribulation. Thus we spent the day, and in the evening left our pastor feeling quite happy.

We have prayer meetings around at the houses with an attendance of about forty-five, and splendid attention and interest. We expect to have regular meetings from now on, and we ask the united prayers of the faithful in behalf of this little band of members at Herndon, Fla. If the Lord will we expect to hold a love feast about the Holidays.

Herndon, Fla., Oct. 25.

Notes From Our Correspondents

As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country

CANADA.

Battle Creek—We met in council Nov. 4, with our elder in charge, preparatory to our love feast. On account of so many of our brethren being absent, the church decided to defer our love feast to a later date, to be announced on Nov. 19 or Dec. 3. We have preaching and Sunday-school each Lord's Day, and sing service each Sunday evening. Bro. Ira Kingdon Songs, and like the book very well. We contemplate holding a short meetings prior to our love feast. Should any of the Brethren pass through here, we should be pleased to have them stop with us.—Mrs. Maria L. Swihart, Kelvinhurst, Sask., Can., Nov. 6.

Fairview—Oct. 29 we held our Harvest Meeting. Our pastor, Bro. Bonebrake, delivered the sermon. An offering of $22 was given in behalf of our missionaries in China. During the past report six letters have been granted.—Jennie L. Heckman, Mutrie, Sask., Can., Nov. 4.

COLORADO.

Colorado City Mission.—On Sunday evening, Oct. 29, twenty-three members met at the home of Bro. M. E. Ulrich, where we enjoyed a communion service. Sister Ulrich was just recovering from a severe case of typhoid fever, and this was her first meeting with us for ten weeks. All who were present enjoyed the meeting very much. Bro. D. M. Root officiated. On Monday night, Oct. 30, we were happily surprised about twenty of our young friends came to our home, to bring us a donation shower for success in the field of labor. A pleasant evening was spent. When we had bidden them all good-bye, we were made glad hearts about the ears of extremely sweet voices sang, "God be with you till we meet again." Our hearts, though sad at the thought of parting, were gladdened by the thoughts of another song, "Some sweet day, when life is o'er, we shall meet again." In our two and a half years of residence and work with the people at Colorado City, there has not been the faintest sign of discord. Every one seemed filled with the spirit of service, as well as with the spirit of worship, and all has been well. Our future address will be Mr. Lawrence, Kan.—D. M. Root, Colorado City, Colo., Nov. 8.

Denver—Our hearts are overflowing with gratitude to the dear Father for all his kindness to us, in answer to our prayers. Bro. John Robinson has come among us as our pastor. Nov. 5 he gave us two excellent sermons, which were full of nourishing food for our hungry souls. During the morning hour he told us of the power of the Gospel, of which we like Paul, should never be ashamed. In the evening his subject was, "Helping Hands." Text, "Go thou and do likewise." Each one felt that there is something we can do to help the extension of God's kingdom. There is certainly a great work to be done in this great city, and we are interest in the prayers of all the faithful, that we may work with greater diligence and unrest God for the results.—Blanche A. Long, Arvada, Colo., Nov. 6.

Fruita—Our church met in council Oct. 6. Our elder, Bro. S. Shaw, presided. Brethren James Stouder and Jesse L. Keedy were elected delegates to District Meeting. One letter of membership was granted, and another letter of church favor received since our last report. Sister Effie Gnagey was elected Sunday-school superintendent, vice Bro. Stouder, of our young brethren and sisters have gone to other fields. Two young sisters, Florence Shaw and Bertha Stouder, have gone to are attending McPherson College. Sister Essie May Hiat is teaching in Kansas. Sister Margie High and Bro. Ernest are attending the Normal School at Greeley, Colo., and Bro. Samuel Horning is attending the Boulder University in Colorado. We certainly miss them, but we are glad to see them start to dispense with their genial associations. Bro. Nickey, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., paid us a short visit a few days ago and gave us a brief address on Sunday evening, which we all enjoyed very much. Bro. Nickey is starting his tent meeting in the Grand Valley congregation, Nov. 5 he gave us two interesting discourses. We also had a very interesting Sunday-school. Our "Reading" topic subject was, "Worth While Women."—Helen A. Waltz, Box 262, Fruita, Colo., Nov. 5.

Monte Vista—Our church met in regular council today with Eld. W. A. Ross presiding. We had one of the most glorious communion feasts it was ever my privilege to attend. Bro. James Swallow was elected to the ministry, and Bro. Andrew Swallow was elected to the office of deacon in the ministry. Both of them, with their wives, were duly installed. Brethren S. Z. Sharp and Salem Beery officiated, the latter from Buena Vista, Colo., who is pastor of the office. Our protracted meetings, in charge of Bro. A. C. Root, commence Nov. 12 and close Dec. 3. Bro. Root has been ordained to the office of the Ministerial Meeting, and the day following is the District Meeting.—Clara Clark, Mesa, Colo., Oct. 30.

IDAHO.

Naupus.—We met in council Nov. 3, with Bro. J. E. Neher, our elder, presiding. Since our last report a few letters have been granted and Bro. Steve received. We decided to be represented by letter at the Sunday-school Meeting held at Twin Creek, Ill., and to send Bro. Ross A. Miller to the S. A. C. The examination services will be on Sunday, Nov. 12.—Rose E. Bradley, Naupus, Idaho, Nov. 6.

Nesperce.—Our church enjoyed a real spiritual communion Nov. 5. Several members from the surrounding brethren surrounded the Lord's tables. Bro. B. J. Fike officiated. The next day Bro. Jesse Walker, of Winchester, Idaho, gave us two good discourses. Our church is in need of more active members, who are moving to California, among them one deacon. Dec. 2 we expect to be seeking new recruits.—Wm. H. Lichty, Nesperce, Idaho, Nov. 6.

ILLINOIS.

Allison Prairie.—At this writing I am engaged in a series of meetings at the Allison Prairie church, Lawrence Co., Ill. This is one among the oldest organizations in Southern Illinois, and is very numerous. Many of its members established by emigration. Having no resident pastor, largely militates against the work here, but the Lord is blessing his word and the people are well-to-do. I will close my work with this church on the 19th inst. Bro. Jesse Ellis, of Mt. Carmel, Wabash County, Illinois, is expected to be with us. Bro. Ellis has a very interesting talk on Sunday. Bro. Kreider preached in the evening. While we last report our dear sister has been reclaimed. Oct. 22 we organized a Christian Workers' Meeting at our East house, with Sister Bessie Hummel as president and Brother Ira Bell as secretary. Oct. 23 Bro. Lanzi Kreider gave us a lecture on Cuba.—Blanche Arnett, R. D. 2, Lynch Whitley Co., Ind.

Pippecanoe—Our church enjoyed a season of refreshing, Oct. 14 to 21, in which Bro. Jesse Ellis was with us to hold a series of meetings for us and continued three weeks. Two were added to the church by baptism, and others seem to be near the kingdom. We are so glad to have had these meetings, but there was no uncertain sound about his preaching. Oct. 4 we held our Love Feast. About one hundred sat at the tables. Ministers present from adjoining congregations were Brethren J. A. Miller, John Bowser, Reginald Sanger, and L. M. Neher. Bro. Neher officiated.—Josiah Garber, R. D. 3, Syracuse, Ind., Nov. 6.

Turkey Creek church never enjoyed such a rich feast as we have for the past four weeks. Bro. Garver was with us, and closed his meetings Sunday night, Nov. 5. We had a baptismal service the next morning, at which forty-four were led into the water. There are as many more that need to obey, too, will soon be in the fold. The crowds were so great that many could not be accommodated. The scenes were truly inspiring. Sister Tuttle assisted us in the song service. Bro. Garver went to Mexico to visit his son. Bro. Emerald opens our love feast. About three hundred communed, and not all could get to the tables. It was a rich feast. Forty-one out of the forty-four were at the first table. Bro. Garver officiated. Not only was our congregation made to rejoice, but adjoining congregations as well. Our membership number now 200.—Maple Grove and some from Union Center, Nov. 7 We have a members' meeting appointed for next Sunday. We have a number of people, so lideness will not creep in.—Mrs. H. L. Hartsough, Silver Lake, Ind., Nov. 8.

Upper Deer Creek.—Our church met in council Oct. 27, preparatory to our love feast held Nov. 2. Brethren Peter Houk, John Plora and Daniel Hoffman were present. Bro. Peter Houk officiated. The attention and order were very good. After the meeting Bro. Houk left for Mexico, to visit the Mexican Missions. During these meetings we were made to feel very much at home by Bro. Houk's family. Bro. Houk's son-in-law, Jacob Cripe, is conducting a series of meetings in the Pipe Creek church at present.—Minnie Hummert, Galveston, Ind., Nov. 5.

Upper Pipe Creek.—Our series of meetings, at the old church east of town, closed Sunday evening, Nov. 5. It was a faithfully for us, beginning on the evening of Oct. 20. As a result of the meetings, 15 were added to the church by baptism, others are strongly convicted, but could not fully surrender. Our love feast was one long to be remembered as it is sometimes, but we had a good spiritual feast. Bro. Hoover was quite sick and not able to attend all of the meetings. Bro. Padely was away, holding meetings, and therefore could not be with us. Bro. Martin was the only minister that could attend all the meetings. Nov. 7 Bro. Hoover was called to preach the funeral sermon of Sister Rebecca Mauck, of Springport. Bro. Hoover is not able to preach much at present, on account of his preaching Providences. This surely ought to be a mission field, for we have no members can not attend church anywhere. If we could have Bro. Early, or some one else, locate here, much good could be done. We have members there that would be willing to work if they had the encouragement. Now is the time to attend to this work.—Florida J. E. Green, Box 125, Middletown, Ind., Nov. 8.

IOWA.

Slifer.—Our churchhouse is now nearing completion. All who subscribed are requested to pay their pledges before dedication comes. Elders A. P. Blough and W. H. Lichty, of Waterloo, Iowa, with at least one of the Mission Board of the Northern District of Iowa, will be present Dec. 2 to organize the Silver church. Our dedication date is set for Dec. 3, with Eld. A. P. Blough to preach the dedicatory sermon. We are endeavoring to have everything in readiness, and will have an all-day service. Luncheon will be served at noon in the basement our Sunday-school will be reorganized at this time, and we expect to commence a series of meetings from this date. We are short of workers here, and any one desiring a place to put to use his spiritual and physical energies, will find an abundance of church work here. Any information desired will be cheerfully given by addressing the writer.—Jas. Q. Geaghour, Silver, Iowa, Nov. 8.

KANSAS.

Larned church enjoyed a love feast Nov. 4. Quite a large number of members and sisters communed. Bro. Wm. Hutchison and H. T. Brubaker were with us. Bro. Brubaker officiated. He also preached for us on Sunday morning and evening.—Miss Edna Cook, Larned, Kans., Nov. 6.

Morrison.—We had our love feast Nov. 4. Owing to the bad weather, the attendance was small, but the interest was good, and it was a spiritual feast indeed. Bro. Hylton closed a very successful series of meetings here. There were no accessions, but the members were greatly benefited.—D. E. Johnson, Abilene, Kans., Nov. 7.

Neosho.—This church had a love feast Nov. 4. Sixteen members communed. Our elder, Bro. J. S. Utz, was here with us and officiated. He remained with us for the Sunday morning service and gave us a good sermon. He also preached with us until Wednesday. He gave us some very good talks about the people in and around Neosho, and also about some of their customs, etc., which was enjoyed by all present. We have a well-organized Sunday-school, with a good-sized number of scholars. We have Christian Workers' Meeting every Sunday evening, followed by a short sermon. We have started a teacher-training class.—Lizzie Dollenbach, Beatie, Kans., Nov. 8.

MARYLAND.

Meadow Branch.—Our love feast, Nov. 4, was one of the best and largest attended in the history of the church here. There were more than 400 communicants. Bro. J. H. Moherman officiated. Seventeen ministers were present, five of whom are elders. Five sermons were held in the church on Saturday morning.—one in the Westminster house, and the other at Meadow Mount. In the latter, which is a union meeting-house, was filled to overflowing. One person, the head of a family, made the good choice. The messages were all timely, and many good impressions were made. The collection on behalf of the many visitors were much appreciated.—W. E. Roop, Westminster, Md., Nov. 7.

MICHIGAN.

Sugar Ridge.—Nov. 4 we enjoyed a pleasant love feast. About seventy-five members communed. No visiting ministers were present. Bro. David Neher and Eld. J. M. Lair, our home ministers, had the preaching. Bro. Lair officiated. We enjoyed an interesting Sunday-school with Sister Ella Snavely as superintendent. Three children's meetings a day are well attended. The collection amounted to $15.30. The new room and basement will be completed before cold weather. Everybody and enjoyed by all.—Mary E. Teeter, Scottville, Mich., Nov. 10.

MISSOURI.

Carthage.—We are at the beginning of what promises to be a most interesting series of meetings here. Bro. Wendell Buckley, of Mount Ida, Ill., arrived on Saturday and began a series of meetings on Sunday morning. Very good interest is already being manifested, and the prospects are bright for some fruitful and enjoyable series of meetings. The sermon last night, on "Fishing," was excellent. It was full of interest with the very pointed and scriptural exegesis, in explanation and application thereof. We hope much good from them. The meetings will probably terminate with a love feast on the 18th.—J. L. Switzer, Carthage, Mo., Nov. 8.

Farrar.—Our elder, Bro. E. F. Eby, came to us Nov. 3, accompanied by Bro. Lee Woodiel, of Austin, Ark., and held sixteen services for us, including the love feast, which was very council. Bro. Woodiel did the preaching, giving us four interesting and well-received sermons. Bro. Eby preached at the feast, which was an inspiration to the soul. There was a large attendance of both members and visitors. Three of them have been sent home ordinances observed before, and were greatly impressed. The lodges seem to keep many of the people away from accepting the truth. Pray for them. Bro. Parenberg, Mo., Nov. 11

Joplin.—Our church, of Nevada, will begin a series of meetings here after Nov. 25. We have decided to have our love feast here.—Mrs. Ida Thompson, Joplin, Mo., Nov. 8.

Mineral Creek.—Our church met in council Oct. 21, with our elder, Bro. James Mohler, presiding. The amount of business was quickly disposed of. The report of the annual visit was heard, and the members were found to be in love and union. We had a love feast, held by the ministry, and by all present. Bro. D. L. Mohler officiated. Dr. O. H. Yeoman was with us on Sunday, Oct. 29, and preached for us. We always enjoy his visits with us.—Zilpha Campbell, Leeton, Mo., Nov. 2.

Rockingham.—Our church met in council Nov. 4. New officers were elected as follows: Bro. S. G. Newham was chosen Sunday-school superintendent; Bro. S. Rockingham, secretary; Bro. Noah Rhoden, president of the Christian Workers' Meeting; Sister Ella Rockingham, corresponding secretary. Letters granted to Sister Ona Hogan and Bro. Iri Keim, who go to Bethany Academy during this winter.—Sister Ella M. Shirky, resigned the oversight of the church, on account of the infirmities of old age, which she regretted with some regrets. Eld. G. W. Rodabaugh was chosen as our elder in charge. Bro. Shirky has had charge of this church for nearly thirty years, and left the church in a flourishing condition. We are now in the midst of a series of meetings, conducted by Bro. R. C. Moore, and are hoping for good results.—Vera Rodabaugh, Stet, Mo., Nov. 7.

NEBRASKA.

South Bestrice.—Oct. 22 Bro. Geo. W. Gonhorn, of Clay City, Ind., was with us. He preached in the country church in the forenoon, and in the evening at the Holmesville church.—Lydia Dell, Beatrice, Nebr., Nov. 6.

NORTH DAKOTA.

James River.—Bro. Dierdorff came to us Oct. 29, and preached for us until Nov. 5. He delivered ten strong gospel sermons. We were all sorry to have him leave us. We have great reason to thank our Master for sending Bro. Jesse to us to have these meetings.—Ella Z. Row, Box 36, Brantford, N. Dak., Nov. 8.

Notice to the Churches of North Dakota, Eastern Montana and Western Canada.—All mission band pledges, due Dec. 1, for the support of Bro. Paul Mohler, and pledges given for Bro. Hilton's support, should be sent to J. M. Myers, Minot, N. Dak., as I am leaving the District, and he has been duly appointed.—J. J. Weimer, Sec.-Treas., Berthold, N. Dak., Nov. 7.

Pleasant Valley.—Our church met in regular business session Nov. 4. Eld. John McClane presided. Eld. Isaac Miller and wife were received by letter. Recently they moved to York from Zion, N. Dak. One letter was granted. Our Sunday-school superintendents were elected for nine places as follows: For the York church, Bro. Hill Stauffer; for the Hill church, Bro. Albert Johnson; for the Donner schoolhouse, Bro. W. W. Dorsey; for the Mount Zion church, Bro. Jesse Miller, held and Bro. Amos Blocher was chosen as our shepherd for the coming year.—Mrs. Ida B. Allen, York, N. Dak.

Surrey.—On Sunday morning, Nov. 5, Bro. D. T. Deardorff preached, and Bro. Jesse Ellis officiated. After the communion offering was taken. Bro. J. E. Joseph a collection was raised, and spring missionary collection was taken. The amount of the collection goes to the home mission fund, so we decided to send a collection to the Mill Stauffer church, to help work at that place is prospering under the efficient care of brother and Sister D. F. Wampler.—Maneva Lambert, Surrey, N. Dak., Nov. 7.

OHIO.

Akron.—On account of the building not being completed in time, the dedication of the new church in Akron will not take place on Dec. 3, as was announced. The date of which will be given through the Messenger.—Jennie M. Shriver, 897 Coburn Avenue, Akron, Ohio.

Black River.—Eld. J. W. Kitson, of Fort Wayne, Ind., began a series of meetings in this church Oct. 14 and closed Nov. 2. The meetings opened the Mill Stauffer church, preaching the searchlight of truth upon saint and sinner. As a result quite a number have decided to live the Christian life, and others are counting the cost. This church met in council Nov. 4, with Eld. J. M. Lyon presiding. Two letters were received by letter, and one letter was granted. We decided to hold a series of meetings in a large tent, if possible. Bro. Ira will be held on Thanksgiving Day of this year.—Enos D. Nolt, Lodi, Ohio, Nov. 7.

Blue Creek.—Bro. Lawrence Prowant was with us Nov. 5 and preached for us.—In the morning at the church, and in the evening at the home of Bro. Jacob Hoke. We expected on Sunday afternoon. This makes the second one since our last report.—Jennie Myers, Blue Creek, Ohio, Nov. 7.

Ft. McKinley.—Bro. David Hollinger, of Greenville, Ohio, closed one week's meeting with us on Oct. 29. The house was filled to capacity at his baptism. Much good seed has been sown, through Bro. Hollinger's earnestness, especially among the members. There is very good interest in a series of meetings, just preceding our series of meetings.—Jesse F. Coy, 320 West Third Street, Dayton, Ohio, Nov. 8.

Lorawie.—Our church met in council on Friday evening, Nov. 3, presided over by our elder, Eld. Jacob Hoke. Eld. Coppock, presided. A report of the annual visit, which was engaged in by Bro. Coppock, was heard, and found to be spiritual, was given. Everything was made in readiness for our love feast, Nov. 4. Brethren Coppock, Brumbaugh and Smith were with us. Brethren Coppock and Brumbaugh officiated. The number of members that surrounded the Lord's table was not as large as we had expected, but a good time was enjoyed.—On Sunday morning Bro. Coppock conducted the Sunday-school with a good, Bro. Brumbaugh preached the sermon, after which Bro. Coppock gave a talk. The collection on Sunday morning was for Sunday-school work. Bro. Ira, which will be sent to the Sunday-school Board, of which Bro. Trout is secretary. Bro. Porter, of Bradford, Ohio, who preached for us in the tent, came to us Sunday evening and very helpful sermons that are a great help to our small congregation.—Mrs. Ida Myers, Box 36, Lorawie, Ohio, Nov. 6.

Lower Stillwater.—Our council was the first ever held here in the evening, and was largely attended. Our recent love feast was also largely attended. Ministers were present from seven neighboring churches, which added much to the interest of the meeting. Eld. B. P. Sharp officiated. At our recent council we received by letter Brethren Jacob Lentz and Ira, 19-30; A. M., and every two weeks in the evening. This evening I have been appointed to go to Arlington church.—J. O. Garst, R. D. 6, Dayton, Ohio, Nov. 11.

Newton.—Our church met in council and our love feast, held Nov. 1, at the Sugar Grove house. Bro. S. A. Blessing, of West Milton, Ohio, and Eld. J. M. Lyon, of Lodi, Ohio, officiated. A precious spiritual feast was enjoyed by the majority of the members of our congregation. A number of visiting ministers were present. Bro. Joseph Hollinger, of Indiana, has been conducting a singing class at Pleasant Hill, for the past two weeks.—Ella Lentz, Pleasant Hill, Ohio, Nov. 6.

Oakland.—Our series of meetings began Oct. 3, and continued until Nov. 1. Very earnest and efficient work was done by Bro. John Fidler, of Ashland, Ohio, who preached the truth of this meeting, seventeen accepted Christ and were baptized, and one was reclaimed. The church has been greatly strengthened through the meeting, and many more of the members are waiting for a more convenient season. During these meetings Bro. Fidler was assisted by Brethren Joseph Hollinger, of the ministry, was, with his wife, duly installed into office. Eld. Hollinger officiated.—Mrs. Elizabeth Fidler, 1 Bradford, Ohio, Nov. 2.

Ross.—Bro. J. H. Honeyman, of Dayton, Ohio, commenced a series of meetings Oct. 21, and Oct. 28 we held our love feast. Thirty-four members communed. We were sadly disappointed that four elders failed to be present. Bro. Honeyman and visiting ministers were Brethren B. F. Honeyman, A. David Coate and F. P. Coate. Bro. B. F. Honeyman officiated. The meetings closed on Sunday night. Bro. Honeyman preached discourses every night. We had no accessions to the church, but there were no accessions to the church. Many were seriously impressed. Our Sunday-school is growing nicely.—Ella Frew, R. D. 1, Dayton, Ohio, the 20th of this month. Our next council will be held Jan. 6.—Katie Shellaberger, Mendon, Ohio, Nov. 7.

Strait Creek Valley church met in council Oct. 27, with Eld. William Hoover presiding. Quite a number of transactable business came before the meeting. Two letters were received. Our series of meetings began Nov. 1, with Bro. Jesse Swigart, of Trotwood, Ohio, did the preaching. He gave us thirteen inspiring sermons. Bro. Swigart was much helped in the singing by Bro. and Sister Joelle Shepherd, who accompanied Bro. Swigart. One Sunday, during their stay, Sister Kuns conducted an inspiring missionary service. Sister Shepherd, the accomplished leader in song, also did her part in the success of the meeting. Brother and Sister Shepherd left a fine record for work, and visiting in the homes of the people. As an immediate result of the meetings, five were baptized and one reclaimed. Two more await baptism. An applicant, previously reported, was baptized at the beginning of the meetings. One of these is a convert from a German Catholic. We now have upwards of forty members nicely clustered about the church. An enjoyable love feast was held at this place Oct. 28. Bro. R. C. Davidson officiated, assisted by Brethren William Minnich, Frank Custer and J. A. R. Conner. We had quite a few visitors from other points. The members at this place seem to have taken on new life, and are planning to erect a house.—B. Retty, Sinking Spring, Ohio, Nov. 6.

Tyrone.—Our church met in special council Oct. 31. Our elder, Bro. D. M. Garver, presided. Elders J. W. Beaghly and A. L. Kiplinger were present and helped in the work. Two letters were received. Our visiting brethren gave a good report as to the spiritual condition of the membership. Four of our members are sick. We adopted "Kingdom Songs" for our Sunday-school, and Christian Workers' Meeting. Nov. 4 we held our love feast. About 200 surrounded the Lord's tables. Among the number were about twenty who had never communed before. Visiting ministers present were Brethren J. C. Bright, D. S. Filbrun, Aaron Cay, Geo. Erbaugh, Samuel Hertzler, A. L. Hypes, S. A. Bilwakester and Jesse Brumbaugh. Bro. J. C. Bright officiated. On Sunday morning Sister Kathryn Cay very successfully conducted a children's meeting which about 200 were present. Afterwards Bro. J. C. Bright preached from Matthew 7:21. Tyrone.—Mrs. Ira Ake, Nov. 8.

West Dayton church met in council Nov. 2. Our elder, Bro. D. M. Garber, presided. We were added to our number by letter. Nov. 12 Bro. D. H. Keller, of Wenger, Va., will be with us a series of meetings for us. Our church decided to have a love feast in the near future.—Mrs. Minnie Murray, 2020 West Third Street, Dayton, Ohio, Nov. 8.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Big Swatara.—Nov. 2 and 3 this church enjoyed one of the most spiritual feasts in her history. Bro. H. K. Ober, of Elizabethtown, Pa., was with us in our series of meeting held at the Hoernerstown house, and delivered two telling sermons in the interest of the Brethren Home Association of Pennsylvania. His descriptions of present and past conditions were vivid and forcible, his language simple and logical, and his power of expression was pleasing. Bro. Ober is one of our best workers in Eastern Pennsylvania. He can adapt himself to meet all classes, and is used in our evening and Sunday-schools almost every Lord's Day of the entire year. He seldom takes any outside appointments. Our people are beginning to see their opportunity and are taking advantage of the same, and a growing interest is active in the cause of temperance than ever before. Our series of meetings at the Blue Creek house, Nov. 6 to 10, and second mountains or County, Nov. 11 to 19, also Eld. Miller's series at Mount Zion, will be held, conducted the services. There were no visible results, but good impressions were made.—Samuel M. Shaffer, Union Deposit, Pa., Nov. 6.

Fairview.—Bro. S. R. Brumbaugh came to this church Oct. 21, and preached sixteen sermons for us, to the upbuilding of the church and the salvation of souls. Seventeen were baptized on Christ in baptism. We had our love feast at the close of the series of meetings. Bro. Brumbaugh officiated. We expect to dedicate our new churchhouse in Williamsburg about the time of our next love feast. Bro. J. N. H. Beahm, of Virginia, is to do the preaching and help us to work among the people.—H. Sweigerer, Shellytown, Pa., Nov. 3.

Germantown.—Our council meeting and feast on Thursday evening, Nov. 11. Ministers present were Brethren D. W. Kurtz, C. F. McKee, and Eld. S. H. Miller. Brumbaugh and Brethren Bro. Culler officiated. On Sunday, Nov. 5, Brother and Sister J. M. Hoover, of Lititz, Pa., with us and gave an interesting and much-appreciated talk to the Sunday-school. Brother and Sister Hoover are to us on the mission work in India. At the close of the sermon a collection was taken amounting to $17.67. We can not all go to India, but we can all help those who do.—Mrs. Emma Swigart, 6011 North Fifteenth Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 12.

Germantown.—Our council meeting, Nov. 6, we closed a very interesting and successful revival meeting with our love feast. Eld. W. R. Deeter came and carried up great power for two weeks. Five were added to the fold. Bishop Galen B. Royer assigned his duties to Eld. Deeter, and very ably was he assisted.—S. P. Blough, Hooversville, Pa., Nov. 11.

Rainbo, Center Grove, Rural.—Bro. Elmer F. Nedrow, who is pastor of the church at Roaring Spring, Pa., has held the most excellent sermons after a two weeks' series of meetings at his County. The meetings close a three weeks' series, at which Bro. Nedrow officiated. Bro. Nedrow preached the Word with power, and the results are fruitful. Eight penitents were greatly built up. Many of them desired Bro. Nedrow to remain for another week, but a call from the Mission Board of Eastern Pennsylvania would not allow the pastor to remain for at least. Bro. Nedrow was elected to the ministry in this congregation a few years ago.—Mrs. Ida Dunsdorf, Jones Mills, Pa., Nov. 1.

Rocky Ridge.—Our love feast here Oct. 28, with a good attendance. Bro. M. J. Brougher, of Grousburg, Pa., officiated. We had a very interesting evening with the Word. Four were baptized and three await the rite. Bro. H. B. Ludwick, who is now engaged as pastor of this congregation some time ago, has been prevented from coming out, but is expected him now in a few weeks. We have been greatly encouraged in our Sunday-evening services this last year, as the attendance is larger, and better interest is shown than we have ever had before.—Mrs. Mary Hoover, Mount Pleasant Mills, Pa.

Martinsburg.—Bro. Reuben Shroyer began a series of meetings in the Martinsburg house, Nov. 5. He preached each evening and twice on Sunday, closing Nov. 5. He preached twenty-five sermons. Bro. Shroyer preached a sermon at the Old Folks' Home. There were no accessions, but the brethren were much encouraged and sinner.—J. G. Mock, R. D. 1, Martinsburg, Pa., Nov. 8.

Oley Valley Mission.—A two weeks' series of meetings was held at Oley, which closed Sunday evening, Nov. 5. Bro. Brown of the Church of the Brethren before Bro. D. W. Weaver and Bro. Clarence Cook, of the same denomination. The people were with people of many different denominations, never met with such a hearty welcome as they received this last year, so that though there were no accessions to the church, we feel that the seed was sown in vain. It is a promising field. With the splendid farming community and the class of people who some good Brethren families should not settle there and help build up the work.—Clarence Cook, 1844 North Fifth Street, Reading, Pa., Nov. 10.

Philadelphia (First Church of the Brethren, Dauphin Street above Broad Street).—Oct. 10 the teacher-training class, taught by our pastor, held their graduating exercises with six graduates. Dr. M. G. Brumbaugh gave the address, dwelling largely upon the duties of a successful teacher. This class contains the largest membership of any Sunday-school class has been organized, taught by Bro. Garman. Our pastor has been holding a series of meetings in the mission house. Last week unto "India Awakening," by Sherwood Eddy. These classes are very helpful and instructive. One church letter has been received and two have been granted, since our last report.—Mrs. Sallie B. Sewell, 1906 North Park Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 4.

Pleasant Hill.—Last evening we closed a two weeks' series of meetings at this place, conducted by Bro. J. M. Mohler, of Mechanicsburg, Pa. He labored earnestly, preaching twenty sermons for us. Many times the Word fell on its purity. Four resolved to make the good choice and were baptized.—Amanda K. Miller, R. D. 3, Mechanicsburg, Pa., Nov. 6.

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

SOUTHERN INDIANA.

The Sunday-school meeting of Southern Indiana convened Oct. 17 in the Ladoga church with good attendance.

The Sisters' Aid Society had the first period on program and its needs were thoroughly discussed. The burden of the speeches seemed to indicate that greater spirituality should prevail in the Aid Society meetings.

The second period was devoted to the Sunday-school. Theme: "The Bible." A lively discussion of various methods of study, the present lack of knowledge, and how to awaken an interest in it, rapidly filled the period. The main thought developed was, Be interested in the work yourself; then you can interest others.

"The Mission of the Sunday-school" was ably discussed by various speakers. All members working together for the greatest common good, will make a successful school.

The evening session was devoted to Christian Workers' Meeting, and the three chosen speakers gave interesting addresses on the work in the light of a peace society, temperance society and how to make it a spiritual success. Many good thoughts were developed. Consecration and perseverance were named as important factors. Each member should have a work to do and every one should work, work, work!

The Ministerial Meeting opened with a spirited discussion relating to ministers in their various degrees. Quite an interest was manifest,—each speaker more than filling his allotted time. It was brought out that ministers should harmoniously work together, submitting respectfully to each other as occasion demands. There should be more strength in God as to temporal needs, and a greater consecration to his cause.

The missionary meeting was a most interesting period. Bro. Appelman, as a visitor to this District, displayed maps, locating our missionaries, and delivered a strong appeal for missions. Among other speakers we had, as visitors, Brethren S. S. Blough, A. G. Crosswhite and Geo. L. Studebaker, each full of zeal for missions, and we were glad for their presence and inspiration.

A short period was given to a Temperance Meeting, in which the attitude of the church toward temperance alliances was discussed.

The evening session was devoted to an Educational Meeting, and a plea was made for a balanced education. Emphasis was placed upon the proper development of body, mind and spirit, to accomplish the greatest good. Some of the needs of our colleges were discussed, one of the greatest being greater liberality on the part of the members.

All the sessions were characterized by full houses and great interest. The best of attention prevailed throughout the meetings.

The District Meeting organized Oct. 19, with Bro. L. T. Holsinger, Moderator; Bro. J. W. Rarick, Reading Clerk; Bro. D. E. Bowman, Writing Clerk. All business was disposed of pleasantly and, we trust, profitably.

One paper goes to Annual Meeting. Bro. L. T. Holsinger represents this District on the Standing Committee. The next District Meeting will be held in the Missisinewa church.

On Sunday following the District Meeting, our love feast was observed, thus closing a most pleasant week's worl for Christ and the church. Mrs. Lula Goshorn.

Ladoga, Ind., Oct. 25.

MARKLE, INDIANA.

We held our love feast Oct. 29, beginning at 10 A. M. with preaching services. Not many attended the meeting in the forenoon, although it was a spiritual blessing to those who were present. We were blessed with a beautiful, sunshiny day. Three ministers, Brethren I. B. Wike and Grover L. Wine, both of Huntington, Ind., and Bro. Lewis Huffman, of Sugar Grove, Ind., were with us. They assisted our h me minister, Bro. D. B. Garber, in the meetings during the day. Bro. I. B. Wike preached the morning sermon for us, giving us spiritual food. After the sermon the services a good dinner was prepared, and all partook of it with grateful hearts.

At 2 P. M. Bro. Grover L. Wine preached for us. We were glad to have Bro. Wine and his wife with us, and listened attentively to his inspiring sermon. We were much impressed that, in order to the illness of his wife, Bro. Wine could not be with us for the Harvest Meeting, as he had intended. They have given up their intention of going to the foreign field at present, on account of Sister Wine's poor health. In his sermon he brought vividly to our minds the spiritual significance of the sacred emblems of our Savior's broken body and shed blood. With a few remarks from the other three brethren, our afternoon service closed.

At 6 P. M. our love feast service began, preceded by an examination service. About twenty-four young people humbly surrounded the Lord's tables, besides a goodly number of older brethren and sisters, and we enjoyed a spiritual feast. Brethren Grover L. Wine and Lewis Huffman officiated. As B. I. B. Wike had other appointments, he could not remain with us for the feast. Solemnity pervaded the meeting. Bro. David and Sister Pearl Brumbaugh led the song service throughout the day.

Bro. Wine will be in charge of the Huntington City church since they can not go to the foreign field at present. He and his wife could not remain with us for the Sunday services.

Our Sunday-school opened at 9: 30 A. M., after which Bro. Lewis Huffman preached one of his good sermons. His subject was, "Repentance." We always welcome Bro. Huffman whenever he returns to this church. The hearts of the people were greatly impressed by his spiritual admonitions. At the close of the meeting a number consented to come with the church, and requested baptism, which was administered at 2 P. M. On Sunday evening we held our Christian Workers' Meeting, after which Bro. D. B. Garber preached for us. His text was, "Little Things."

Oct. 31 our teachers' meeting was called, to reorganize our Sunday-school. The writer and her Sunday-school pupils organized their class Oct. 27. Officers were elected by ballot, resulting in Sisters Roxie Reynolds and Elsie Heaton as superintendents; Sister Ruth Ewart, secretary; Bro. Chas. Garber, treasurer. Committees were also appointed by the class. The class is composed of thirteen young ladies and gentlemen, ranging in age from fourteen to eighteen years. All of them are members of the Brethren church except three. The class meets once a month for a business meeting. Lillian Earhart.

Markle, Ind., Nov. 1.

ARKANSAS AND SOUTHEASTERN MISSOURI.

The District, Ministerial and Sunday-school Meetings of the First District of Arkansas and Southeastern Missouri were held in the Broadwater church, Mo.

Tuesday forenoon was devoted to the Sunday-school Meeting, and great interest was manifested in the topics discussed. The evening was devoted to the Ministerial Meeting. This also proved an interesting day. The topics were ably discussed and many good points were brought out by the speakers.

On Thursday the District Meeting convened, with the following organization: Bro. W. T. Price, Moderator; Bro. Lee Woodiel, Reading Clerk; Bro. H. I. Buechley, Writing Clerk. Considerable business came before the meeting, but all was disposed of in the best Christian spirit. No queries are sent to Annual Meeting. Bro. J. J. Lilly was appointed as delegate on the Standing Committee, with Bro. Chas. Wills as alternate.

The next meeting is to be held in the Austin church, Austin, Ark., Thursday before the first Sunday in November. In view of the unsettled condition these meetings are a rich feast to the soul.

Carlisle, Ark, Nov. 3. H. I. Buechley, Writing Clerk.

He united with the Church of the Brethren when he was quite young, and remained faithful until death. Physically he was never very strong, but was a worker in the church and Sunday-school. He will be missed in the church and in the community where he lived. His mother survives him. Services by Bro. W. N. Zimmerman, assisted by the writer. Text, Micah 6: 8.—C. G. Winey, R. D. 3, Thompsontown, Pa.

Maddingham, Levi, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Maddingham, died Sept. 6, 1911, of diphtheria. Memorial services were conducted Oct. 15 at the family residence by Bro. M. J. Weaver.—Mrs. Cora Kann, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Morton, Sister Rosannah, nee Knoyer, born in Maryland, May 7, 1836, died Oct. 27, 1911, at her home in Adams County, Iowa. Oct. 1, 1861, she was married to Silas Morton. To this union four children were born, three of whom attended the funeral. One daughter was in California at the time of her mother's death. Sister Morton united with the Church of the Brethren early in life, and lived a consistent life as long as her mental faculties served her. Some years ago her mind became deranged, and she became quite a charge, but was kindly cared for by her loving husband and her other kind and family. Services by the writer, assisted by Rev. A. Y. Cupp, an Evangelical minister, who was an old schoolmate.—J. W. Foltz, R. D. 3, Lenox, Iowa.

Noffsinger, Bro. Frank, born Nov. 10, 1853, in Defiance County, Ohio, died of heart trouble at his home in Defiance, Ohio, Oct. 29, 1911, aged 57 years, 11 months and 18 days. He was married to Ella Kneese April 3, 1877. To them were born five sons, who, with their mother, survive. He was a member of the Church of the Brethren for about twenty years, serving faithfully in the deacon's office for nineteen years. He was superintendent of the Old Folks and Orphans' Home at Fostoria, Ohio, for four years, resigning last April on account of the ill health of his wife. The church has lost a devoted member, and the family a kind husband and father. Services in the South Poplar Ridge church by Eld. John Flory. Text, 1 Peter 1: 24, 25. Interments in the Zanesville cemetery.—Sadie Noffsinger, Defiance, Ohio.

Overdeer, Bro. Henry, born in Williams County, Ohio, Jan. 29, 1839, died in Elkhart, Ind., Oct. 31, 1911, aged 72 years, 9 months and 2 days. Interment in the Northern cemetery. Services by the writer, assisted by Bro. P. Huffman.—H. M. Schwalm, Wakarusa, Ind.

Scruggs, Bro. Chas., born at Norwood, Va., March 28, 1853, died near the same place Oct. 17, 1911, of tuberculosis, aged 58 years, 6 months and 19 days. He united with the Church of the Brethren in 1906. Oct. 15 Eld. T. Digman and Bro. U. S. Campbell assisted him, and also held a communion service for him. On Tuesday following he died. He leaves a wife and one little child, also his parents, two brothers and five sisters. Services by Bro. U. S. Campbell. Interment in the family burying ground.—Maggie C. Scruggs, Rocky Mount, Va.

Shank, Eld. J. B., born in Rockingham Co., Va., Feb. 8, 1826, died at his residence near Notus, Idaho, Oct. 4, 1911, aged 85 years, 7 months and 26 days. Aug. 3, 1873, he was united in marriage to Sadie Zook, of Jackson County, Iowa. To this union were born three sons and four daughters. All of his children and his aged mother in law survive him. Brother Shank was blessed with early educational advantages, but in his early manhood he espoused the cause of our Master's banner and was soon afterward called to the ministry. He magnified his office by faithful labor for many years in the Missouri and North Dakota. During his sojourn of seven years in Idaho he was not so actively engaged in the ministry. Early in the morning of Oct. 4 he was taken with intense pain in the chest, which in an hour and a half found its way to the heart and ended his earthly career. He died of disease of the heart, causing great bodily suffering. Services by the writer. Text, 2 Kings 20: 1-3; 2 Tim. 4: 7, 8.—Wm. Hayette, Idaho.

Shank, Sister Catharine, died Oct. 24, 1911, in the bounds of the Beaver Creek congregation, Rockingham Co., Va., aged 87 years, 7 months and 21 days. She was the daughter of Bro. Abel Miller. Sister Frances Shank was a faithful active member of the church for many years. During her illness she was neglected. She is survived by three daughters and two stepbrothers. Services at Beaver Creek by Elders H. G. Miller and O. W. Wine.—Nannie J. Miller, Bridgewater, Va.

Shellenberger, Bro. Henry, born Aug. 29, 1838, at McAlisterville, Juniata Co., Pa., died of a complication of diseases, Oct. 17, 1911, at his home, 713 Sixth Avenue, Altoona, Pa. He spent the early years of his life at McAlisterville, and was married to Mary Groff, 1861. Martha E. Lawyer survives in the immediate family. Later he moved to Altoona, where he resided until his death. He was employed by the railroad company for 45 years. He was a member of the Church of the Brethren for about sixty years. About a year ago he was anointed, which renewed his spiritual strength very much. A few nights before his death, his son, Peter, gave him the full service of the communion. Nov. 5 services were held in the U. B. church in Richfield. Interment in the cemetery near by. Services by the writer, assisted by Bro. W. R. Zimmerman. Text, Isa. 38: 1.—C. G. Winey, R. D. 3, Thompsontown, Pa.

Shull, Susanna E., born Aug. 24, 1839, in New York State, died Oct. 30, 1911, at her home in Luray, Kans., aged 72 years, 2 months and 6 days. She moved with her husband and family to Osborne County, Kans., in the early seventies, and shared the hardships of frontier life. She was the mother of six sons and three daughters. Her husband and three sons preceded her in death. She and her husband united with the Church of the Brethren about twenty years ago, and she resided in the North Solomon congregation at the time of her death. Services by the undersigned, at the interment in the Potterville cemetery.—I. S. Lerew, Portis, Kans.

Sterling, Mrs. A. J., formerly of Pittsburgh, Pa., but residing for the greater part of his life in Pittsburgh, Pa., died Oct. 19, 1911, aged 59 years, 2 months and 25 days. The deceased was a sufferer from rheumatism for a number of years. Bro. Sterling expressed a desire to unite with the church some years ago, but because of his helpless condition he was not able to be baptized until Sept. 10, 1911. He is survived by his wife, two sons and two daughters. Services by Bro. J. M. Weaver, after which interment was made in the Fairview cemetery, Fayette County.—Mrs. Cora Kann, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Wenrs, Bro. Christian Isman, born in Schuylkill County, Pa., Sept. 15, 1836, died in Wakarusa, Ind., Oct. 25, 1911, aged 75 years, 1 month and 14 days. He was married to Martha Sugars. To this union were born six children. Four of them preceded him. He leaves his wife, two daughters, one sister and one brother. He was a member of the Church of the Brethren. Services by the writer, assisted by Bro. O. C. Harris.—H. M. Schwalm, Wakarusa, Ind.

THE LORD'S PRAYER and The Ten Commandments

A most appropriate and beautiful ornament for any home. The Lord's Prayer is printed inside an oval figure, and the Ten Commandments, each aptly illustrated, and artistically arranged around this figure, three at the top, three at the bottom and two on either side.

Each of the illustrations is an object lesson, and helps much to make the meaning clearer and more forceful. Especially will the picture appeal to children, to whom knowledge comes most rapidly through the eye-gate. As they read the words the pictures explain their meaning, and the impressions will be lasting.

The picture is not only beautiful, but useful as well. It is printed on heavy paper, in bright colors, beautifully blended. Size, 16x20 inches.

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER AND OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

For $1.85 we will send you the Messenger for one year and a copy of Our Saturday Night. This is only 35c for the book which contains 192 pages.

The Gospel Messenger

is a religious paper of superior merit. Our Saturday Night is a book that will interest and help you. The Messenger, being the official organ of the Church of the Brethren, is of special value to members of the church, though many not identified with our Brotherhood read it with interest and appreciation. The things of most vital interest to the church are communicated through the columns of this paper only. Its work is being appreciated more and more, as the increase of the list of subscribers indicates. The Messenger is indispensable as a religious educator and spiritual counselor. One brother says: "It has been a forerunner to conversion and church unity in city and rural districts."

Our Saturday Night

is a collection of the ripe fruit of a master mind. Following are a few phrases from those who have read the book: "Interesting and instructive." "Food for various moods." "Good reading and will do good." "Good from beginning to end." "I am charmed with it." "Replete with warnings, citations, examples and good counsel." What more need be said? You must read it to learn its real worth. Get it now. It is going rapidly.

But Do Not Forget

it is not for sale. A subscription to the Gospel Messenger is the only means of obtaining this charming little book.

The Messenger one year, $1.50; the book, 35 cents; both, $1.85.

The Olive Branch of Peace and Good Will to :: Men ::

By S. F. SANGER and D. HAYS

¶ The doctrine of nonresistance as taught and practiced by the Church of the Brethren has, at different times, brought her members face to face with severe trials and suffering, and even death. But with all that, it has also been instrumental in preserving that abiding faith in God, that feeling of brotherly love, that unyielding fidelity to the teaching of Christ's Gospel, which characterize the true followers of the Prince of Peace. Sustained by the deep convictions as to the right of it, the persecutions and suffering have been endured, and the doctrine remains in the church as one of the fundamentals of true Christianity.

¶ The above named book is a history of the trials and experiences of the Brethren during the War of the Rebellion, together with a brief record of the persecutions of the Brethren in Germany and the early years of the church in America.

¶ The object of the presentation of this history to the public is (1) that it may be a means of increasing the courage, strengthening the faith and deepening the convictions of the Brethren in relation to this doctrine, and (2) that our peace principles, and our relation to the government in maintaining these principles, may be better understood.

¶ In these days, when the subject of international peace is agitating the minds of men in high places in all civilized countries, a book of this kind is a timely one, and will be read with peculiar interest.

First Creek—Our love feast, Dec. 4, was well attended. Quite a number of spectators were present, but all observed the best of order. The quietness and solemnity of the occasion made it a very spiritual feast. Bro. Jesse Calvert served each evening from Oct. 31 until after the feast. One young woman gave her heart to the Lord through Christian baptism. Brethren Howard Kimmel and Blaine Miller, with their wives, were installed into the office of deacon on Sunday, Nov. 5. A normal-training class was organized last Sunday in our Sunday-school.—Ida S. Replogle, R. D. 1, Shiloh, Pa., Nov. 3.

Warrior Mark—At our love feast Bro. W. S. Long and wife, of Altoona, Pa., and Bro. H. B. Brumbaugh, of Huntingdon, Pa., were with us. Bro. Long preached, assisted by Bro. Brumbaugh. Our preparatory sermon was preached by Bro. Long. He gave us much good spiritual food. On Sunday morning we listened to a very impressive sermon, delivered by Bro. Long to a very attentive audience. Bro. Brumbaugh also spoke. He and Bro. Long both remained for us. Their labors of love among us were much appreciated.—Nancy Chronister, Warriors Mark, Pa., Nov. 6.

TENNESSEE.

Beaver Creek—The members of this church met Nov. 4 to renew a communion service. Brethren Hylton, Anderson, L. J. Whitson and H. F. Bailey gave us some excellent addresses. On Sunday Bro. J. Henry Peterson preached for us. Sunday-school Attendance. 724
"What Shall I Do to Be Saved?" We had a very large audience and attentive listeners.—Julia E. Peterson, Fountain City, Tenn., Nov. 10.

Jonesboro—We had preaching here on the 5th by Bro. Pritchett, from Knob Creek congregation. Bro. Pritchett is a rather small audience, owing to other appointments. Bro. Pritchett gave us a very interesting sermon. We are certainly glad to see the young brethren coming to the front, and think they should be encouraged along this line.—N. Z. Lanier, Jonesboro, Tenn., Nov. 7.

Knob Creek—Our church met in council Nov. 5, with Eld. J. F. Jones presiding. Brethren Wm. Hylton, J. C. Hylton and B. Sherry and A. E. Nead were with us; also Bro. D. L. Miller, Arrangements were made to hold a two-days' meeting, and hold a series of meetings soon, at the Hawthorne church, in this congregation. Sister May White was appointed to solicit and collect pledges for funds, to be used for missions in this District, according to a plan adopted by the District last meeting. One letter of membership was received and one granted. Bro. D. L. Miller preached for us at night; and on the following Sunday, instead of having the regular Sunday-school lesson, he addressed the Sunday-school on the subject of "Solomon's Temple." His talk was helpful and interesting. He then preached an impressive sermon on "Missions." In the evening he preached again to a large audience. The power of the Holy Spirit was present, and two dear sisters were made willing to accept Jesus as their Saviour. During Bro. Miller's stay he gave us ten sermons and Bible Land talks. We were very glad for the privilege of having Bro. Miller with us, and we feel that his visit with us has helped us strengthened. We are inspired to press on more earnestly in the grace of the Master.—Annie Clark, R. D. 3, Box 33, Johnson City, Tenn., Nov. 7.

Pleasant Hill—Bro. D. L. Miller came to this place Nov. 6. He gave us four soul-stirring lectures. The house would not accommodate the large crowds, at times, who came to hear him. He closed the lectures Nov. 8, and by the time the invitation hymn were shed when he bade the congregation good-bye, saying that he was "dying on borrowed time," and that he would never see them again this side of the home of eternal rest. The whole house was much strengthened, and we hope many come into our midst. We pray that God may spare him many days, and thereby make it possible for him to return to this great field.—Samuel H. Garst, Blountville, Tenn., Nov. 8.

TEXAS.

Portland (Texas).—This church met in a called council prior to the departure of Eld. Jacob Hoover, for his home from this little band of members. Again they are left without a resident elder or even without a minister. The members being few in number and in limited circumstances, do not feel able to give assistance to a minister at this time; and we feel that with the hard work it requires to carry on the work, we can not have the expenses in full. It means hard work to establish the cause at a new point, and get the people interested. Northern people are now beginning to settle there, which may soon open up more advantageous fields. Those who are situated so near the Bay, is a little damp for my husband's health, therefore we go to Southern Texas (to our son-in-law's daughter) for the winter.—Amanda Witmore, R. D. 2, Box 23, Centro, Cal., Nov. 10.

VIRGINIA.

Antioch—Oct. 24 Bro. C. E. Eller came to this place and began a series of meetings. He labored with us for about two weeks. The church received much strength spiritually, as the Word was preached with power. Nine were added to the church by baptism. Our love feast, held Nov. 4, was largely attended. Several ministers from adjoining congregations were present. The feast was a spiritual one. Bro. C. E. Eller officiated.—Martha Mitchell, Wirtz, Va., Nov. 8.

Bethel—Eld. T. Digman, of Nokesville, Va., came to our place Oct. 7, to finish the series of meetings, which Bro. I. N. H. Beahm started in July. He gave us ten doctrinal sermons and preached for us one week. He also visited some of the members. Oct. 14 we held our love feast. About thirty-two members surrounded the Lord's tables. Bro. U. S. Hylton officiated with us. One of our Sunday-school scholars was baptized. Others are counting the cost.—Maggie R. Cunningham, Box 16, Bluemont, Va., Nov. 6.

Buena Vista congregation met in council Oct. 13, with Eld. S. L. Flory presiding, assisted by our pastor, Eld. L. Alley. Much business came before the meeting, which was disposed of in the highest Christian spirit. Brethren S. L. Flory and Alley entered a house-to-house visit, which proved highly appreciated by the membership. As a result nearly all of the members attended the council. We feel that such visits should be encouraged in all congregations and that the visiting committee should have plenty of work to do in the community before the council. Our communion services were held Oct. 21, with about 100 communicants. Visiting ministers from Arnolds Valley and the Oronoco congregations were also with us. We feel much encouraged with the work done here, and pray that God may add his blessings.—W. H. Bowers, Buena Vista, Va., Nov. 2.

Dayton—Bro. M. J. Cline, of Dayton, Va., came to this place Oct. 8, and gave us a two weeks' series of meetings. We had very earnest preaching, and believers have been strengthened and encouraged in their work. Two came out on the Lord's side and we hope that many good impressions were made on others. Oct. 28 we held our love feast, at which about fifty-five members surrounded the Lord's tables and enjoyed a spiritual feast. Bro. A. Early officiated.—A. F. Scrogham, Basic City, Va., Nov. 6.

Green Mountain—Bro. J. B. Garber came to us Oct. 15 and preached for us until Nov. 1. Our meetings were well attended. Bro. Garber's sermons were very interesting and instructive. His labors with us were very much appreciated. He labored very earnestly, and the church has been built up spiritually.—L. Katie Ritchie, R. D. 6, Box 25, Harrisonburg, Va., Nov. 7.

Nokesville congregation met in quarterly council Nov. 4, Eld. J. A. Miller presiding. Two letters of membership were received and five were granted. The following were re-elected to their respective offices: Bro. G. W. Beahm, clerk; Bro. G. W. Hedrick, treasurer; Bro. J. W. Lee, superintendent of Sunday-school at the Valley church; Bro. W. L. Houchins, Sunday-school superintendent at Bethel; Sisters Jennie L. T. Flory, president of Christian Workers' Meeting at the Valley church; Bro. C. E. Eller, Sunday-school teacher at Hebron Seminary. —Barbara Miller, Nokesville, Va., Nov. 6.

Pleasant Valley—Bro. W. K. Conner, of Bridgewater, Va., began our series of meetings Oct. 15, closing Oct. 25. He preached twenty-five inspiring sermons, besides giving us a chalk talk and reading to us one night and a night. He also officiated at our communion, held Oct. 28. These meetings have been a feast of good things to us. Some immediate result of the meetings, sixteen were born into the kingdom of God.—Ruth W. Williams, Mount Sidney, Va., Nov. 7.

Red Oak Grove church met in council Nov. 4, at Stone Wall, one of our preaching places, Eld. J. A. Miller presiding. He and our elder, Bro. W. H. Naff, each gave us good talks on 2 Peter 1:5-8. Two letters were granted. We elected Bro. Naff janitor for another year. An offering of $4 was raised for the Bluefield Institute. Bro. H. B. Brumbaugh came to us in the evening. On Sunday Bro. W. H. Naff preached a most excellent sermon. We will have Thanksgiving services at the above-named church.—Ida Brown, R. D. 1, Box 41, Floyd, Va., Nov. 7.

Sunny Hill—Our congregation has just closed a very interesting series of meetings, conducted by Bro. J. A. Dove, of Cloverdale, Va. The church was much benefited and revived through the efforts of our brother. Twelve dear souls stood up for Christ. Every one seemed to enjoy Bro. Dove's association. We are sorry to see him leave. We held our love feast Oct. 21.—Marcella Elgin, Islamsville, Va., Nov. 8.

Winchester—Eld. Jacob Hoover, of Va., began a series of meetings for us, at Peach Grove, Oct. 8, and continued until the 16th, preaching in the evenings and on Sunday. He labored earnestly for the cause of Christ, and greatly strengthened the little band of workers at this place. He preached several doctrinal sermons which were much appreciated by the members.—Daisy A. Cool, 405 S. Market Street, Winchester, Va., Nov. 6.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Chestnut Grove—We have been blessed in regular council, with a large number of the members present. Our work resolved by the Spirit. We expect to repaint the church soon. On Thanksgiving Day we expect to have our love feast at Pleasant View, commencing at 3 P. M. We are now in the midst of a series of meetings at Pleasant View, one of our mission points, conducted by our home ministers.—Anna F. Sanger, Ridgeville, W. Va., Nov. 6.

Lime Rock—Oct. 18 Bro. John A. Arnold came to our place, two miles south of Hendricks, and preached three cheering sermons for us. Three young men surrendered to the Lord's love feast. Seventeen members surrounded the Lord's tables. We had a good meeting. Bro. Arnold preached sermon by Bro. Arnold on Sunday, he was taken to the train to depart for his home in Elgion, W. Va.—Henry Helsel, Hendricks, W. Va., Nov. 7.

Finger Posts on Life's Highway

Showing How to Succeed in Life

By JOHN T. DALE

A new book, full of pointers which point in the right direction. A book for the young, the middle aged and the old.

The purpose of the author, in gathering the material, during many years, was to assist those who are striving to gain character, intellectual power, business success, and merited esteem of their fellowmen. A wide range and varied experience he has been able to collect into this volume more than one hundred articles on that many different subjects, touching human life from almost every possible angle. It is not a novel nor a story, nor yet a long and dry treatise upon some abstract subject, but a collection of articles on everyday topics, written in language and style easy to be understood, making the points so clear that the way of a truly successful and happy life is more easily found. The book abounds in words of wisdom, caution and warning.

We have great hopes fer the sale of this book, knowing that it will appeal to all classes with equal force, and be instrumental accomplishing good wherever it goes. Should any of our readers be interested in taking an agency for it, write us at once. We can easily found a connection. The book contains 620 pages, bound in cloth, illustrated. Will be sent to any address, postpaid, for $1.50.

FIGHTING THE TRAFFIC IN YOUNG GIRLS

BY ERNEST A. BELL

DOUBTLESS the reading of this book will be a revelation to many. The fact that thousands of girls have been and are being sold and made slaves for immoral purposes is not as yet generally known. This vile traffic has been recently fully exposed. In this book the facts and horrors of it have been compiled. It tells also of the fight that is being waged against this iniquitous business. Many a young girl who has in times past disappeared never to return became the victim of such a make it their business to buy and sell innocent girls.

ARE YOU INTERESTED?

If you have boys and girls you want to know about the pitfalls that are set for them and be able to prevent their being entrapped. Everyone who is interested in the welfare of the rising generations should read this book. To be forewarned is to be forearmed. This book will do it. It also contains much helpful advice to fathers, mothers, sons and daughters.

The book contains over 500 pages, also 32 half-tone engravings, and can be had in either cloth binding, $1.50, or half morocco, $2.00.

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER

"SET FOR THE DEFENSE OF THE GOSPEL."—Phil. 1: 17.

Vol. 50. Elgin, Ill., November 25, 1911. No. 47.

THE SIXTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING INTERESTS

The Editors.

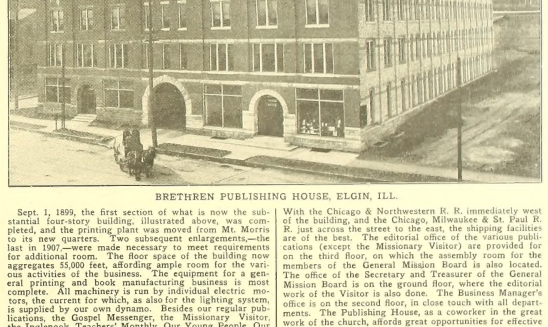
It will doubtless be a matter of interest to our readers to know something of the Brethren, who have served as editors of the different papers that preceded and led up to the Gospel Messenger, as well as those who have helped to make the Messenger what it is. What we shall say of the different editors must be brief, for there are a number of them, and a few may have a bare mention.

Eld. Henry Kurtz

Is entitled to first place. He was born in Germany in 1796 and received a very good education, having some knowledge of Hebrew and Greek, and, possibly, of Latin. When twenty-one years old he came to the United States, and two years later was licensed as a Lutheran minister. He had a varied experience in Pennsylvania and Ohio for about eight years, not being able to accept, in full, some of the doctrines of his church. Settling in Stark County, Ohio, he became acquainted with the Church of the Brethren, liked her teaching, applied for membership and was baptized in 1828, and called to the ministry in 1830. Six years later he went back to Germany, did considerable preaching, baptized a number, and returned to Ohio after a year. Three years later he settled in the Mill Creek church, Mahoning County. Here, in 1840, he was ordained, placed over the congregation, and remained in charge for thirty years.

In 1851 he began the publishing of the Gospel Visitor, the first regular church paper among the Brethren. Five years later he associated Bro. James Quinter with him on the editorial staff, and continued in the publishing interest until a few years before his death, which occurred Jan. 12, 1874, when he had reached the age of seventy-eight. For a number of years Bro. Kurtz was Clerk of the Annual Meeting, and took a very active part in the work of the church. In 1867 he published the Brethren's Encyclopedia, a book of 200 pages, and had bound up with the volume the writings of Alexander Mack, in German and English. He collected some important data regarding the early history of the Brethren, and at one time planned to prepare and publish a history of the church. While Bro. Kurtz's work, in the part he played as editor and publisher of the Gospel Visitor, might not be considered important, as we now record undertakings, still, what he did was far-reaching in its influence. He turned the first wheel that set in motion our publishing interest, and in this way made it possible for us to enter into every good work in which we are now engaged.

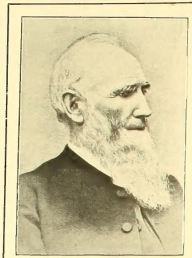
Eld. James Quinter.



Probably no man among us ever did more for the Church of the Brethren than did Bro. Quinter. He was well educated, a fine speaker, a good writer, refined in habits, and one of the most devout men we ever met. Bro. James Quinter was born near Philadelphia in 1816, and at an early age showed a decided taste for study, acquiring a good education principally by self-application, and devoted a number of years to teaching both in the common and high schools. When twenty-two years old he was called to the ministry, and in a short time became one of the most fluent, interesting and instructive preachers in the Brotherhood. In 1856 he was invited by Bro. Henry Kurtz, publisher of the Gospel Visitor, to become one of the editors of that publication. He entered upon his work with a zeal and intelligence that soon made the Visitor a paper of recognized influence among thinkers both in the church and out of it. This brought him in touch with the whole Brotherhood. For many years he was a member of the Standing Committee, and served as Writing Clerk for the Conference nearly a quarter of a century. Though one of the most quiet and peaceably-disposed men in the country, he was drawn into a number of public discussions with gifted men of other denominations. He thoroughly believed in the doctrines of the church, and ably stood in their defense. Two of his discussions were published. He wrote a book on "Trine Immersion" that will long remain a standard work among us. He served as the principal editor of the Gospel Visitor until it was consolidated with the Christian Family Companion, and in the different consolidations that followed he remained senior editor to the end of his noble and exemplary life. His death occurred on the Annual Meeting platform, at North Manchester in 1888. While kneeling and engaging in prayer, the call came and he died without a struggle. The transition from earth to heaven was almost like a translation. As long as history remains, Bro. Quinter will be regarded as one of the best, the most spiritual, and the most helpful men, with whom the Brethren church has been blessed.

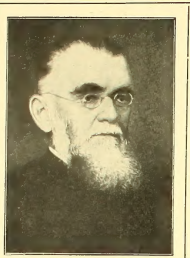
H. R. Holsinger,

Who was born at Morrison's Cove, Pa., in 1833, and united with the church in 1855, figured prominently in our church literature. As a printer he learned his trade in the office of the Gospel Visitor, when it was located at Poland, Ohio. In the spring of 1864 he began the publishing of the Christian Family Companion, the first religious weekly among us. It was made a free rostrum, and caused no small stir in the Brotherhood. Eld. Holsinger was a good editor, wrote well and vigorously, made his paper interesting, but he was not always prudent. In 1873 he sold the Companion to Bro. Quinter, and it was consolidated with the Gospel Visitor. Later he figured in other papers and, when the unfortunate separation took place, he not only went with the Progressive Brethren, but became, by virtue of his ability and experience, their logical leader. He never returned to the mother church, but some years before his death became very friendly towards the people from whom he had been separated, and took pleasure in complimenting us for much of our aggressive work. He had associated with him on the Companion J. W. Beer, a man of rare ability as a speaker and writer, who also served with Bro. James Quinter as assistant editor of the Companion and Visitor, and did some very scholarly and acceptable writing. His book, "The Jewish Passover and Lord's Supper," now out of print, was regarded as one of the most scholarly books put out by our people. He, too, went with the Progressive Brethren.

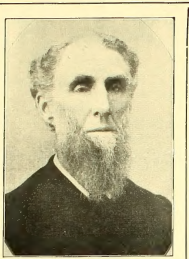


H. B. and J. B. Brumbaugh.

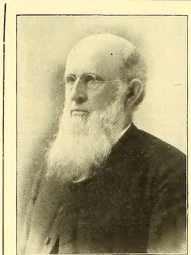
In 1870 Bro. H. B. Brumbaugh and his brother, J. B. Brumbaugh, came prominently before the Brotherhood as editors and publishers of The Pilgrim, the second weekly paper in the Fraternity. The former was born in Huntingdon County, Pa., in 1836, is still on the editorial staff of the Messenger, and has seen more years of continuous service, as an editor, than any man in the Brethren church. During all the changes made, in the consolidation of papers, he has remained one of the editors. Though he has been writing for over forty years, he still wields a vigorous and interesting pen, and has figured materially in our church literature. His "Church Manual" has been widely circulated, while his little book,



BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, ELGIN, ILL.



Sept. 1, 1899, the first section of what is now the substantial four-story building, illustrated above, was completed, and the printing plant was moved from Mt. Morris to its new quarters. Two subsequent enlargements,—the last in 1907,—were made necessary to meet requirements for additional room. The floor space of the building now aggregates 55,000 feet, affording ample room for the various activities of the business. The equipment for a general printing and book manufacturing business is most complete. All machinery is run by individual electric motors, the current for which, as also for the lighting system, is supplied by our own dynamo. Besides our regular publications, the Gospel Messenger, the Missionary Visitor, the Inglenook, Teachers' Monthly, Our Young People, Our Boys and Girls, and Children at Work, we also publish a full line of Sunday-school supplies. The location of the Publishing House, on the west side of Elgin, is ideal. With the Chicago & Northwestern R. R. immediately west of the building, and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R. just across the street to the east, the shipping facilities are of the best. The editorial office of the various publications (except the Missionary Visitor) are provided for on the third floor, on which the assembly room for the members of the General Mission Board is also located. The office of the Secretary and Treasurer of the General Mission Board is on the ground floor, where the editorial work of the Visitor is also done. The Business Manager's office is on the second floor, in close touch with all departments. The Publishing House, as a coworker in the great work of the church, affords great opportunities for effective gospel propagation by means of the printed page, but the church has not, as yet, made the fullest possible use of the facilities available.



James Quinter.

D. L. Miller.

H. B. Brumbaugh.

J. H. Moore.

"Onesimus," the child of his old age, as he calls it, is one of the most interesting books put out by the House. Bro. J. B. Brumbaugh also did good work on our church papers for a number of years, and after the consolidation served for a time as office editor on the Messenger. On another page he has a very interesting article regarding "The Early Days of the Pilgrim." The Brumbaugh brothers have all through life been active in educational work, and the founding of Juniata College must be largely ascribed to them.

M. M. Eshelman and J. T. Myers

Received special recognition as proprietors and editors of the Brethren at Work, started at Lanark, Ill., in 1876. They were both well educated, good writers, and did efficient work in the editorial department. After a few years Bro. Myers retired, but Bro. Eshelman continued with the paper as editor and proprietor until it was taken over by Brethren Joseph Amick and D. L. Miller. Bro. Eshelman was a clear-headed and logical thinker, and had a very forcible way of dealing with doctrinal and other live questions. He is the author of a few books and a number of tracts.

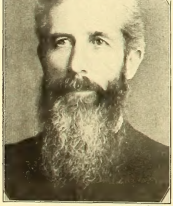
D. L. Miller.

No one among us has figured more largely in the publishing, educational and missionary interests than Bro. D. L. Miller, whose history dates from the year 1841, with Maryland as his native State. A few trips to the West, after he reached manhood, some years' experience in the school-room as teacher, and a few years in business, placed him in touch with educational and business circles. He was thirty-eight years old (1879) when he became Business Manager of Mount Morris College. Four years later he became half owner of the Brethren at Work, Bro. Joseph Amick owning the other half, and was a leading figure in bringing about the consolidation of the Primitive Christian in the East, and the Brethren at Work in the West. In 1885 he was chosen office editor of the consolidated paper, the Gospel Messenger, which position he held until 1891, when he became senior editor. He has served on the General Missionary Committee since 1884. For years he served as Secretary and Treasurer, and then became President of the Board, which position he still holds. He has traveled around the world more times than any man in the Brotherhood, and has visited Palestine a full half dozen times. He has done an immense amount of writing for our periodicals, to say nothing of the six large volumes of which he is the author. His call to the ministry was rather late in life, but he made a success of the work, and has probably preached in more States than any elder in the Fraternity. His experience on the Standing Committee, where he has served as Clerk and Moderator, along with other labors, has brought him in touch with nearly every phase of church work. His travels in many lands, and his varied experiences in commercial, educational and newspaper circles have enabled him to see and understand much of what there is in life.

Grant Mahan.

Among others who have served on the editorial staff, we mention Bro. Grant Mahan, now of Omaja, Cuba. He has a splendid education. For some years he was associate editor on the Messenger, and did much work on the Sunday-school publications of the House. He is known as a graceful writer, employs good English, and while with us was considered our literary critic. He had much to do in touching up the English of many of the books put out by the House. At present he is on the staff as corresponding editor.

H. C. Early.

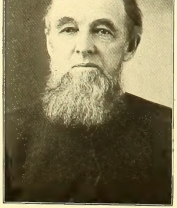


For several years Bro. H. C. Early, Vice-president of the General Mission Board, has been a corresponding editor on the Messenger staff, and has been doing some thoughtful and helpful writing. While active on the Board, taking a leading part in mission work, he finds time to serve on the General Educational Board, of which he is Chairman, and does a great deal of church work besides. He quite frequently represents his State District on the Standing Committee, and has repeatedly served as Moderator of the Conference. His home is in Rockingham County, Va. He has spent all his life on a farm, is a typical Virginian, a thorough-going business man, well informed, a clear thinker, and a fluent and forceful public speaker. We count him one of our valuable helpers and safe counselors.

L. A. Plate.

This article would not be complete without something about Bro. L. A. Plate, the present assistant editor of the Messenger. Born in Bremen, Germany, in 1855, he enjoyed the excellent educational advantages afforded in that city, and later on supplemented the same by an academic course at Zürich, Switzerland. In 1872 he reached the United States, found his way to Meyersdale, Pa.; became acquainted with the Brethren, and while in Somerset County identified himself with the church. Soon after this we find him, as a compositor, in the office of the Pilgrim at Huntingdon, Pa. In 1876 he became foreman in the printing department of the Brethren at Work, and with the exception of one year, has been in our office ever since, serving as foreman, proof-reader, manuscript reviser and literary critic. A few years ago he was elected assistant editor. He prepares the matter for the "Around the World" department on first page, and every part of the paper is affected, more or less, by his touch. He reads much, has a retentive memory, is at home in either the English or the German language, and it is rare, indeed, that an inaccuracy escapes his notice.

When we began this article it was our intention to give a carefully-prepared biographical sketch of all those connected editorially with the Gospel Messenger and its predecessors, but we soon found this to be impracticable. In fact, there are enough data, relating to those who have served on the editorial staff, to make a most entertaining little book. We trust, however, that what we have said will prove both interesting and instructive to our large list of readers.



As regards your Office Editor, let it suffice to say that a little over sixty-five years ago he made his appearance in Roanoke Co., Va., grew to manhood in the West, was educated principally out of school, and was called to the ministry when twenty-three years old. In 1876 he entered the editorial sanctum of the Brethren at Work, and from that time to this, with the exception of the few years spent in the South, has been engaged in editorial work. He has seen the paper grow from a few hundred copies until, considering the membership of the church of which it is the duly authorized organ, it enjoys the largest circulation of any strictly denominational journal in America. He has seen the Publishing House in the West grow from a dray load of material until it has become one of the largest and the best equipped religious printing establishments in the Mississippi Valley. For all this we certainly have many reasons to praise the Lord.

AROUND THE WORLD

Japanese Schoolboys on Peace.

To encourage friendly relations between Japan and America, "peace scholarships" have been established, by which five Japanese students, writing the best essays along the line of peace and a better international understanding, are to receive their respective share of $3,000. This money supports the five students during a course of study at the Mid-Pacific Institute at Honolulu. Mr. Theodore Richards, of Honolulu, editor of "The Friend," ably assisted by prominent men of Japan and the United States, has brought about this most desirable plan, which will do much to establish a better understanding between the respective nations. Too often we lose sight of the fact that a better acquaintance with each other disarms prejudice and ushers in the spirit of love that "thinketh no evil."

Germany's Hygienic Exhibition.

When the Psalmist, in the contemplation of the human organism, exclaimed, "I am fearfully and wonderfully made," he expressed a truth that is not always fully realized. If so, there would be a greater degree of care in making these bodies of ours worthy temples for the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. The great exhibition now being held at Dresden, Germany, aims to impress best methods of sanitation and the most approved means of preserving bodily health. The greatest efficiency of man,—physically, mentally, and spiritually,—largely hinges upon perfect bodily health. Whatever increases the general well-being of humanity will doubtless add to its real happiness and usefulness. Most of us have need of looking more fully into the merits of the "simple life" that fosters greater vigor of body, mind and spirit.

Yuan Shi-Kai's Opinion of Missions.

No man in China is attracting more attention, at present, than Yuan Shi-Kai, the man of the hour in the present crisis. During the Boxer movement he did much to protect foreigners from violence. Now, that he is the ruling power in the Empire, it is interesting to note his undisguised admiration of the missions within his jurisdiction. From his official letter to the missionaries we give the following short extract: "For many years you have been preaching in China, and always you have exhorted men to righteousness. Your character customs are good and right, and your converts may well observe them. You have observed Chinese law, and no one can accuse you of disloyalty." The Premier also assures the missionaries that the utmost care will be taken to insure their safety during the present troublous conditions.

Moslem Efforts in Russia.

In previous issues we have referred to the most remarkable zeal of Mohammedans in the propagation of their religion in Southern Asia and throughout Africa. Of late, it appears, they are seeking to gain a foothold in various parts of Russia, and already they claim that 40,000 secret converts to Mohammedanism have left the state church, and that many others are ready to follow. A printing establishment has been started at Kazan, and is publishing literature in large quantities, achieving most startling results. One is impressed with the fact how readily the sons of Islam are adapting themselves to modern conditions. They have learned the power of the printed page, and are not slow to avail themselves of its evident benefits. Undoubtedly there is much to be gained by the judicious distribution of appropriate tracts, should we, as a church, have not as yet made the fullest use of them.

A Commendable Move.

Recent reports from Berlin announce that the German Government is still continuing its negotiations with the British Cabinet, looking to an arrangement by which the growth of their respective navies may be checked by a mutual understanding to that end. Reason and good common sense would certainly counsel such a step. The important world capitals are realizing that the present rivalry can not safely continue much longer. All honor to Germany if, by the courage of her convictions, she opens negotiations for the effectual discontinuance of the naval-increase folly. If Great Britain and Germany can once agree to consider the problem fairly and squarely, the solution of the question will not be far off. Other nations will breathe a sigh of relief, and the millions who have long groaned under the heavy burden of taxation for military expansion, will not be slow to voice their hearty approval.

Italy's Perplexities in Africa.

Students of history remember that Napoleon, in his ill-fated Russian campaign, was fully able to conquer the Russian forces in his advance upon Moscow, only to be finally overcome by the rigors of the northern winters. Thus the Italian troops are finding the fine, all-penetrating sand of the desert a most formidable ally of their opponents. The finely-finished, modern rifles of the Italian forces are useless, unless securely wrapped, to prevent the sand from entering the delicate mechanism of the guns. The further progress of Italy, in the conquest of Tripoli, is seemingly attended by hindrances of no small moment. In the end the invaders are likely to pay dearly for their unwarranted act of international brigandage.

The Royal Visit to India.

With four war vessels as a convoy of honor, King George and Queen Mary of England are now on their way to India in one of the largest and finest vessels afloat. Strange as it may appear, the proposed coronation festivities at Delhi do not appeal to the simple tastes of King George. He merely goes as a matter of diplomacy. He is to impress the disaffected part of the population with the overwhelming power of Great Britain, to counteract, if possible, the growing opposition. Much of the "unrest," now pervading many parts of India, is said to be the direct result of the most admirable educational agencies and other measures, introduced by the British administration. The new India is alive to the demands of the hour, the spirit of progress is in the air, and wise and discreet management will be required to maintain British sovereignty.

The New World Power.

Whether the fact is admitted by all or not, unquestionably the religion of Jesus Christ is the dominant moral factor in the affairs that vitally affect humanity. Christianity alone has established the most powerful unwritten moral code that in the end sways the destinies of nations with a power far greater than armies or navies. The 21,307 missionaries, now laboring throughout the world, with 38,857 centers of gospel promulgation, are wielding an untold power on cultured and uncultured nations, living even the most barbarous into civilization. Where, in the reform of existing corruption, political power has labored in vain, and all uplifting influences of man's devising have proved fruitful, the power of Christianity has proved itself the solution of the most perplexing questions. It is "the life-giving stream," imparting vigor to all within its reach.

Boston's Private Theater.

Because of its supposed refinement and great intellectual superiority, Boston has often been called the "Athens of America." However much the city may be entitled to the vaunted claims, there does not seem to be a corresponding advance in morality among those who pose as the leaders of society. Latest reports announce that the "select few" of the wealthiest families are now erecting a private theater with the most luxurious appointments, and seating but the favored 130 persons. Only plays suppressed at other theaters are to be presented in this house, thus pandering to the degenerate taste of its very select clientage. Even the best productions of the average theater are not conducive to man's highest religious aspirations, but deliberately to stage the foulest and vilest is suicidal to the most vital interests of man's better nature. No one, as Christ assures us, "can gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles."

Europe Shaken by Earthquake.

On Thursday, Nov. 16, a widespread earthquake was experienced throughout central Europe, being especially noticeable in the Germany country along the Rhine and in parts of Switzerland. The shock was the most severe seismic disturbance in the Central Alps in fifty years. The historic castle of Hohenzollern, on the steep Zollerberg, near Hechingen, Prussia, was seriously damaged. This being the ancestral home of the imperial family of Germany, the circumstance has aroused considerable comment,—some of the more superstitious considering it an evil omen, betokening dire disaster for the present dynasty. While there was no serious loss of life at any point within the range of the fateful commotion, there was a wild panic nearly everywhere. Theaters in all the principal cities were vacated in the shortest possible time, and many persons who, at other times, were not religiously inclined, showed signs of being deeply affected, and offered earnest prayers. Face to face with the mighty forces of nature, man realizes his own insufficiency.

Stricken Russia.

Since our brief reference of last week, concerning famine conditions in Russia, additional information is being given, which makes the situation still more distressing. Eight million people are now in need of immediate relief, as more than twenty provinces are affected by the failure of crops. This announcement was made by Premier Kokovzoff in reply to urgent inquiries. At present the unfortunate sufferers are subsisting on roots and bark, gathered from the forests. Whether other nations will come to the relief of Russia, remains to be seen. The experience of the famine of 1891 was not an altogether fortunate one, so far as judicious distribution of relief funds by Russian officials was concerned. It is a well-known fact that a large part of the donations went into the pockets of thieving officials rather than to the support of the needy. Such a state of affairs is most deplorable. It prevents the adequate relief of a most distressing situation. Russia can not expect to elicit the well-meant charity of others, when there is an obvious misappropriation of the funds donated.

A Practical Reform Movement.

The Chinese Anti-Opium League is a reform association that believes in moving things and keeping to the fore front at all times. Recently they arranged for a wholesale destruction of a large lot of opium pipes, lamps, etc., at Tien Tsin. A big fire was kindled in the playground of the Nan-Kai school, and served as a practical object lesson, not only to the former slaves of opium, but to the large number of school-children who likely learned a lesson they shall never forget. While the flames were consuming the thousands of dollars' worth of opium appliances, the missionary workers made good use of the opportunity to speak a word in season. Passing through the crowd, they personally plead with all habitues of the drug, and were successful in securing pledges from a number of these people. As in every other good work, the missionary has been in the fore front of the battle against opium, and the struggle still bids fair to be a long and extended one. But the war against evil, however, the true soldier of Jesus Christ knows, is but the one thing,—to move forward at all hazards; there is no retreat for him.

Religious Decadence in Germany.

While the religious development of Germany has, in many ways, marked a decided progress during recent years, there is a most lamentable decay in the spiritual life of the common people,—the busy workers in shop and factory. The problem is confronting Catholics as well as Protestants,—chiefly, however, the last-named churches. Many of the people are entirely estranged from all religious influences. The ordinances and rites of the church have no attraction for them, and in consequence many of the ministers preach to practically empty houses. It appears that unfortunate industrial conditions imposing long hours of labor, with little relaxation, give scarcely any time for recreation except on Sunday. Thus it has come about that the house of the Lord is being utterly neglected by thousands who greatly love of pleasure to the utter desecration of the day. This, by the way, is characteristic not only of Germany, but also of hundreds of cities and towns in the United States. "The lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God," seek entertainment and amusement, at the expense of the most hallowed associations of the sanctuary.

Threatened Division of Persia.

Scarcely has one diplomatic difficulty,—such as the one between France and Germany over Morocco,—been successfully disposed of, until another darkens the political horizon. Persia, whose finances have been administered for some time by Mr. Morgan S. Schuster and several other competent Americans, is the most recent bone of contention. Great Britain and Russia for some time have cast longing eyes upon the country, simply awaiting the most favorable time to make the decisive move. Already a mutually agreeable division of the territory has been decided upon by the two nations. The trifling matter of getting the consent of the country most vitally concerned,—the ancient land of Persia,—is of small moment to the great and powerful rulers. They have the power to take what they please. Why not gratify their ambitions? That, apparently, is the world's reasoning at this time, and while a change for the better, in this respect, will not likely occur in the immediate future, there are brighter days in store for earth's nations, for the Revelator assures us that some day the "kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign forevermore!"

Thanksgiving and Thanksliving.

By J. O. Barnhart, Cisco, Ill.

Oh, we love the joyous springtime,
When the sun shines on the hills,
And when nature sends her children,
Out to play beside the rills,
And the happy birds are making
Field and wood with music ring,
When the winter days are over,
Oh, we love the time of spring.

THE SPRING-HOUSE, NEAR POLAND, OHIO.

Compared with the magnificent building on the first page, the spring-house pinnery of the early years of the Gospel Visitor seems very insignificant indeed. And yet, "Who hath despised the day of small things?" When, in 1851, Bro. Henry Kurtz decided upon the publication of the Gospel Visitor, he laid the foundation,—small though it was,—of the flourishing business enterprise now owned by the Church of the Brethren. Truly, he builded better than he knew. Added to the various difficulties of his undertaking were the indifference and even the opposition of many of his fellow-members. Under the circumstances his contemplated enterprise was not a "sailing to heaven on flowery beds of ease." The present-day perfection of printing appliances was undreamed of in his time. The trusty old Washington hand press, with its powerful lever, was a slow but sure method of printing the Visitor, but it required a vigorous application of muscular power. Today the outgrowth of the years of toil is seen in the better and larger facilities we now enjoy, and the toiler of the spring-house loft may well be counted among the benefactors of the race. (The building above shown, long since demolished, could only be reproduced from the recollections of those who saw it. It was located on the farm of Eld. Henry Kurtz, about five miles from Poland, Ohio.)

Oh, we love the days of summer,
When the breezes softly blow,
And the air is filled with fragrance,
When the flowers fairest grow,
And the bees their sweets are stealing,
While they hum their busy tune,
And the berries ripe are growing,
Oh, we love the time of June!

But the golden days of autumn
Are the brightest of the year,
When our barns are filled with plenty,
And our hearts are full of cheer;
When earth pours her fruits around us,
With a free and bounteous hand,
Then we thank our Heavenly Father,
For this free and happy land.

But, it is still far more blessed
E'en to give, than to receive,
And we bring a willing offering,
Just to show that we believe
And each day to those around us,
We some blessing will impart,
That we all may taste God's goodness,
And no one be sad of heart.

Yes, we love the spring so joyous,
And we love the summer time,
And our hearts leap up with gladness,
When we hear the Christmas chimes,
But of all the days that help us,
Most to feel the joy of living,
We will praise our Heavenly Father,
For this glad Day of Thanksgiving.

Condensed History of Our Papers.

BY J. S. FLORY.

The Gospel Visitor.

WHEN Bro. Henry Kurtz began publishing the Gospel Visitor in 1851, he did so with fear and trembling. Twice already he had asked permission of Annual Meeting to start a paper, but without receiving encouragement. The Conference of 1851, however, decided it would not "forbid" him to "go on with his paper for one year." The Conference of the next year expressed the "hope that those Brethren opposed to it would exercise forbearance and let it stand on its own merits." Evidently the paper was gaining favor, as the Annual Meeting a year later (1853) declared: "Inasmuch as the Gospel Visitor is a private undertaking of its editor, we unanimously conclude that this Meeting should not any further interfere with it."

This was, in effect, an endorsement of the paper, and it now grew rapidly in favor. In 1856 Bro. James Quinter became associate editor, and this connection further strengthened the paper in the estimation of the people. Meanwhile two of Elder Kurtz's sons, Brethren Henry J. and Jacob H., also became identified with the business. In 1864, after thirteen years of anxious labor to establish the paper, Elder Henry Kurtz retired from its active management and transferred his interests in it to his son, Henry, and Bro. James Quinter. Nine years later, in 1872, Bro. Quinter purchased Bro. Henry J. Kurtz's interest and became sole owner.

During these twenty-two years of the separate life of the Visitor it was published at several different places. Begun in the spring-house loft, on Elder Kurtz's farm, five miles from Poland, Ohio, its first six years were passed in these humble surroundings. In 1857 the office was moved to Columbiana, a town on the railroad. Nine years later, in 1866, the paper was moved to Covington, where it was edited and published for three years. In 1869 the publication office was changed to Dayton, but the editorial office remained at Covington until 1873.

The Gospel Visitor was published monthly at a dollar a year. It was printed in double column octavo pages and supplied with bordered cover. The numbers contained sixteen to thirty-two pages and later even more. After a year or two, the editor began to print a sort of supplement in German, under the separate title, Der Evangelische Besuch. This contained eight pages for each issue. After about two years this was discontinued. The magazine enjoyed a good circulation for that day. The articles, at first, were written largely by the editor. Others soon took an interest, however, and sent in contributions. These articles were not signed, but appeared over such fanciful designations as Cephas, Zelotes, etc.; and sometimes over the writer's initials. Among these latter, articles by Bro. Daniel P. Saylor and Bro. Abram H. Cassel are easy to recognize.

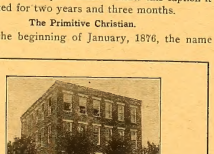
The Visitor steadily improved through the years, and won and held the esteem of a large part of the Brethren.

The Christian Family Companion.

For about a year, in the early history of the Visitor, Henry R. Holsinger served as an apprentice in the office, first on Elder Kurtz's farm and later at Columbiana. He tried to persuade the editor to change the paper to a weekly and admit him to the editorial staff. As it did not seem advisable to the editor to do this, the apprentice returned to his home and a few years later started the Christian Family Companion at Tyrone, Pa.

During the summer and fall of 1864 two sample issues were printed and distributed, and in January of the next year the paper began to appear as a regular weekly journal. It met with favor from the first and soon enjoyed a good circulation. It was printed in newspaper form, and on pages about twice the size of the Visitor.

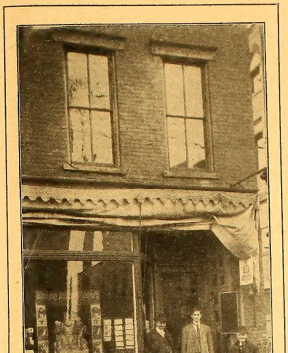
One feature of the Companion was unfortunate and gave rise to increasing dissatisfaction. This was the "Open Rostrum" in which men and things were freely discussed and criticised. There was little restriction upon the topics admitted for discussion and the spirit in which the discussions were carried on was often very unkind. Personalities were indulged in and matters harmful to the peace and harmony of the church were freely introduced. Some of these discussions were probably helpful to the church but the manner in which they were conducted could not but be harmful. Notwithstanding the feeling of unrest, that was constantly augmented by these discussions, the circulation of the paper grew, and in 1873 was going regularly to about five thousand subscribers.



First Consolidation.

At this time the Companion and the Visitor were patronized to a considerable extent by different persons, and the different spirit of the two papers was bringing about a constantly widening breach in the rank and file of the church. Happily this unfortunate situation was changed in 1873 by Bro. James Quinter purchasing both papers and consolidating them.

With this change of ownership came also a change of editorial policy. The "Open Rostrum" was discontinued and a conciliatory editorial policy was adopted. A change of location was also made. The consolidated paper was published at Meyersdale, Pa., to which place the Companion had been moved not long before. In the summer of 1873 Brother Quinter moved his family to this place, and on Oct. 1, of this year, the first number of the new paper was issued under the combined title, The Christian Family Companion and Gospel Visitor. Under this caption it was printed for two years and three months.



The Primitive Christian.

With the beginning of January, 1876, the name

THE HUNTINGDON OFFICE.

The above illustration shows the building in which after its earliest days at Marklesburg, Pa., the Pilgrim was published. Here, also, after its consolidation with the Christian Family Companion, the new paper, the Primitive Christian, was issued. When, in 1883, a further consolidation was effected,—this time with the Brethren at Work—the new organ appeared under the name of Gospel Messenger. (See Bro. J. B. Brumbaugh's article in another column.)

CHRISTIAN FAMILY COMPANION OFFICE.

After H. R. Holsinger moved the Companion from Tyrone City, Pa., to Meyersdale, he occupied the second floor and basement of the building shown above. When, later on, Bro. James Quinter purchased the printing plant and paper, he continued in the same building until the removal to Huntingdon.

was again changed. It was now called The Primitive Christian. The reason for this change was explained by the editor as follows: "The name being too long to be used conveniently and also too long to suit the form of our paper, we came to the conclusion, after considerable reflection, to adopt the name of 'Primitive Christian' as the name of our paper. . . . So the 'Primitive Christian' is, in no sense, a new paper, but a continuance of the Family Companion and Gospel Visitor."

Under its new name the paper continued for ten months. At the end of this time, in the latter part of October, 1876, it was moved from Meyersdale to Huntingdon, Pennsylvania, where it was printed for some years.

The Pilgrim.

The Christian Family Companion, started in 1864, had demonstrated the fact that the Brotherhood would support a weekly church paper. But the abuse of some of its privileges, especially the "Open Rostrum," prevented it from becoming a real leader of the most representative thought of the church. Accordingly in 1870, another paper came into being and made a claim for patronage. This was The Pilgrim. It was a small, eight-page sheet, edited and published by H. B. and J. B. Brumbaugh, at James Creek (also called Marklesburg), Pennsylvania. The subscription price was a dollar a year.

This new paper met with favor from the beginning. The second year it was doubled in size, and the subscription price raised to a dollar and a quarter. Indeed, it was changed in size and form several times after this, in its independent career of less than seven years. Each time it was enlarged and otherwise improved. In 1876 it was moved from James Creek to Huntingdon, where facilities for handling it were materially improved.

The paper stood for a progressive policy, but was conciliatory in tone, and continued to grow in favor and influence with our people.

Second Consolidation.

So, in 1876, we had two well-established weekly church papers. The Primitive Christian, owned and published by Bro. James Quinter at Meyersdale, Pa., and The Pilgrim, owned and published by Brumbaugh Brothers, at Huntingdon. During the summer of this year the proprietors of these two papers formed a plan to consolidate them. Accordingly, Oct. 31, appeared the first issue under the combined title of Primitive Christian and Pilgrim.

At first half of the paper was printed at Meyersdale; then sent to Huntingdon where the other side was printed. This, however, soon proved to be inconvenient and in a short time Brother Quinter moved his family to Huntingdon, where the paper was published by Quinter and Brumbaugh Brothers. Under this partnership the paper with its double title was printed until 1883.

The Brethren at Work.

This new candidate first appeared in the fall of 1876. It was an outgrowth of the Brethren's Messenger, started by Bro. J. T. Myers at Germantown, Pennsylvania, in January of this same year. The Messenger was a monthly paper, part English and part German. As the enterprise had not proved as successful in the East as was anticipated, it was decided to move it into the great and growing West.

In making this move, the plan of the paper was also changed. It was organized into two papers,—an English weekly, entitled The Brethren at Work, and a German monthly, entitled Der Brüderbote. The price of the weekly was $1.35, and of the monthly 75 cents per year. The German paper was, a little later, moved to Grundy Center, Iowa, where it was published until 1890.

The first issue of The Brethren at Work was printed at Lanark, Ill., and bore date of Sept. 1, 1876. Brethren J. H. Moore, J. T. Myers and M. M. Eshelman were the editors. The paper was of much the same size and form as the present "Our Young People." It was printed at Lanark until 1881, when it was moved to Mt. Morris. In 1882, Bro. Myers and Bro. Moore having retired from the enterprise, Bro. Eshelman sold a half-interest in it to Bro. Joseph Amick. A little later Bro. D. L. Miller purchased the other half-interest and these two brethren conducted the paper for a little more than a year, with Bro. J. H. Moore as managing editor.

Third Consolidation.

In June, 1883, the Brethren at Work, at Mt. Morris, Ill., and the Primitive Christian and Pilgrim, at Huntingdon, Pennsylvania, were consolidated under the title of the Gospel Messenger and printed at Mt. Morris. The men in control of the two papers,—D. L. Miller, Joseph Amick, James Quinter, H. B. and J. B. Brumbaugh,—continued to direct the destinies of the new paper.

At the start Bro. J. H. Moore was office editor of the consolidated paper, then Bro. J. B. Brumbaugh, and later Bro. D. L. Miller, who served until 1891, when he became editor. Then Bro. J. H. Moore, after an absence of seven years, resumed his place as office editor. Under the new arrangement, with Bro. Joseph Amick as Business Manager, the MESSENGER grew in circulation, and the business became quite prosperous. In 1897 the whole business, including the MESSENGER, Sunday-school papers, a book department, and general printing business, became the property of the Brotherhood, and is now managed by the General Mission Board, which elects the Business Manager and Editors. In the fall of 1899 the establishment was removed to Elgin, Ill., where the business has since been conducted. Bro. Joseph Amick having retired, Bro. R. E. Arnold was chosen Business Manager. At this time the Brethren Publishing House is one of the best-equipped printing establishments in the West, and in addition to printing our church literature, carries on a large printing and book business.

BRETHREN AT WORK OFFICE, LANARK, ILL.

The part shown between the black lines of the above picture indicates the building as it appeared when the Brethren at Work was started in 1876. The type equipment was that of the Brethren's Messenger, published up to that time at Germantown, Pa. A large cylinder press was added to the outfit, and in the absence of steam during nearly twelve months, was operated by hand power. Turning the large fly-wheel may have been good exercise, but the novelty soon wore off, and all concerned were glad when finally an engine furnished the needed power. The office remained at Lanark until the early part of 1881, when it was moved to Mt. Morris, Ill.

Some of the Contributors of Past Years.

BY JAS. A. SELL.

D. P. SAYLOR.—Of this well-known writer and speaker Bro. C. H. Balsbaugh once said that he was a modern Tishbite. He possessed peculiarities corresponding to those of the prophet Elijah. He had courage approximating audacity. He was a firm believer in the Church of the Brethren, and was always ready to resent any departure from its principles or even its peculiarities, regardless of the source whence they came. In presenting his arguments he used words of the battering ram variety. He not only sought to build up his own walls but also to tear down those of his opponent. His bold and defying way of writing and preaching on controverted subjects brought about frequent clashes, but he was always ready for his opponent with telling arguments, and really seemed to enjoy a discussion. In debate he gave no quarter, neither did he court sympathy. People who had to do with him, in these particulars, easily got a wrong impression of him. Socially, he was kind and gentle. Though he used sledge-hammer words to make his point in dispute, he cherished no ill feelings towards those from whom he differed. There was no guile in his head or malice in his heart. He was, no doubt, a greater preacher than a writer; but his clear head and clean and sincere heart made him a power in both. He stood among the foremost writers in the earlier days of our church literature, and did much towards making the various periodicals a success, and thus paved the way for the higher standard of merit that now characterizes our literature. He was a born leader in pioneer work, and seemed to live just at the right time. The close of his life was serene and peaceful, and we fondly cherish his memory as that of a great and good man.

C. H. BALSBAUGH.—When a young man, Bro. C. H. Balsbaugh made choice of the medical profession. He was educated in both the drug and anti-drug schools. But the Lord had another place for him. While in college he was taken violently ill and, while agonizing in the most excruciating pain, that at times seemed to swing back the gates of mortality, and release the soul, he then and there gave his heart wholly to the Lord. He continued to live, but never fully recovered his health, and was a sufferer all the rest of his days. Instead of pursuing his chosen profession, he devoted his head and heart, soul and body to literature. As he tasted the living Water of Life, he thirsted for more, and drank, and still more deeply drank, into the very wells of salvation, thus giving him a richness and fullness of grace and endowment of the Holy Spirit, possessed by few. Continually there flowed from his pen a stream of living water. He had such a masterly command of the English language that he made no mistakes. His elucidations of the Scriptures were incontrovertible. His style was lofty and sublime, and frequently poetical. When he employed his pen to explain and defend points of doctrine, his logic was faultless, his arguments strong, clear and convincing.

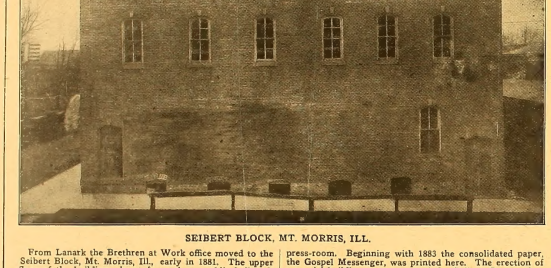
While he had many admirers in his day, yet he seemed to have been born at too early a period to be appreciated as he deserved. He led the advance corps of our literary men, and in his time scarcely had a peer. Truly, he was "made perfect through suffering."



MATTIE A. LEAR—Sister Lear came to the front as a brilliant star about fifty years before its time. She occupied the field almost alone as a sister contributor to our literature. Her chosen subjects were of the kind that require thought and research, and her treatment of them showed that she bestowed work upon them. They were ably treated in well-chosen language. Her productions breathed a spirit of deep piety. She had many admirers, not only because she was a sister writer, but on account of the instructiveness, purity, dignity and literary merit of her productions.

S. S. MOHLER.—For a time the name of Bro. S. S. Mohler stood out conspicuously, not only in our church paper but also in our tracts. He showed great ability as a reasoner. His effusions were mostly along that line. He dwelt largely on the argumentative. Martin McClure once said of him that he had the best views of church government, and the clearest head to defend them of any man in the whole Brotherhood. He was truly a good thinker, a strong and clear reasoner, and prepared a clean and almost faultless manuscript. His writing required careful and thoughtful reading. When he took a position and advocated it, he left but little to be said pro or con. His mantle truly fell upon his sons, as they contribute a liberal portion to our literature today.

B. F. MOOMAW.—It has been said that the environments of Bro. Moomaw, in early life, were those of human slavery. This led to a life of ease and luxury. Like Moses, when he came to years, he esteemed the reproach of Christ greater treasure than the wealth that slavery brought, and undismayed he united with the church. In his prime he was one of the "chief men among the brethren." In ability, as a preacher and writer, he stood in the front rank. His culture seemed to be rather liberal; so that he could write with ease and clearness. In fact, he had a fluency possessed by few. In writing he dwelt largely on a given line of argument, or in defending points of doctrine. While he was not defying, or did not court controversy, he never seemed to fear it, and was always ready to take care of his own cause. His good life and devotion to the church are worthy of honorable mention and imitation. For a time his sons were liberal and able contributors to our literature.

LAURA MILLER.—This writer did considerable writing in the earlier days of the Christian Family Companion. Her manuscript was faultlessly prepared, and her composition was highly-colored and showed considerable poetic taste and talent. Her name finally dropped from the roll. Perhaps she was called home.

"And what shall I more say? for the time would fail me to tell" of Brethren A. J. Correll, Leonard Furry, E. Umbaugh, Frederic Loehr, Asa Ward, Peter Nead, John Kline, R. H. Miller, S. T. Bosserman, and many others who did what they could in their day of disadvantages and slow developments to commit to us, as their posterity, our splendid and high-class

SEIBERT BLOCK, MT. MORRIS, ILL.

From Lanark the Brethren at Work office moved to the Seibert Block, Mt. Morris, Ill., early in 1881. The upper floor of the building,—heretofore a large public hall,—afforded ample quarters for composing room, mailing room, editorial offices, etc., while the basement served as a press-room. Beginning with 1883 the consolidated paper, the Gospel Messenger, was printed here. The erection of a special building on a corner of the College Campus furnished a new home for the growing business and this structure is well shown in the next illustration.

formulate my plans. When I was done, I found that the clock had already struck the hour of two and I had used fourteen pages of foolscap paper. My brother, H. B. Brumbaugh, lived on a farm, and I knew that he, too, had some inclinations toward the printing business, and it occurred to me that we together might go into the publishing business and start a religious paper. I sent my plans to him for approval, and shall never forget the anxiety with which I awaited his reply. It was only a few days until I got a letter from him, in which he approved of my ideas of our entering the publishing business and starting a religious paper.

This was in the fall of 1869, and by Jan. 1, 1870, the first number of the Pilgrim was printed, edited by H. B. and George Brumbaugh, and published by J. B. Brumbaugh and Company. The paper was printed in Huntingdon, and the finished copies sent out to Marklesburg Station, twelve miles distant. From there they were taken six miles into the country where my brother, H. B. Brumbaugh, lived. Here the papers were addressed, and then taken back to Marklesburg to be mailed. In a short time, however, my brother, H. B. Brumbaugh, left the farm and moved to Marklesburg. We purchased a second-hand press, type, and such other material as the publication of our paper demanded, and the Pilgrim became a weekly publication.

Although we received considerable encouragement from a number of our brethren, yet we did not have, by any means, smooth sailing. The first year's receipts came rather far from meeting the outlay, and it was either sink or swim. We concluded to swim. We went to work with a determination to win, and this we knew could only be done by hard work. The click of the old hand press was heard many times at the midnight hour, and anyone who knows anything about the hand press knows that it is slow and hard work to run one.

In a year or more we laid aside the hand press and procured a cylinder press,—one that we turned by hand. This was a great improvement on the old hand press, and yet it was hard work to turn it. In running both the hand and cylinder presses we took our turn with the printer, and we still have vivid recollections of the fact that we were extremely weary when, late at night, we would finish running the edition. Finally we procured an engine, and then we thought we had arrived at the acme of printing equipments. The men, women and children of the village were excited over the new appliance, and for some time we had more visitors on press day than were really convenient. Some of the nearest neighbors were a little suspicious, fearing that the boiler might "bust" and destroy their peaceful domains.

By this time things began to look a little better. Our subscription list was gradually growing, and by hard work and close economy we were beginning to come out whole financially at the end of the year. We now began to see that our location was not what it should be for the success of our business. Marklesburg was a little village, situated in the country, about a mile from the railroad station, and we came to realize that we could not build up the business we had in mind amid such surroundings and conditions. Consequently my brother secured lots in Huntingdon,— church paper, that has done so much to bring up the church out of the wilderness, and present it in a fairer light before the world.

In our day of greater educational advantages and literary culture, and more refining influences, let us not forget the debt of gratitude we owe to God, who gave us men and women who, actuated by a living faith in him, employed their pens to give what we today so richly enjoy. And let us not be content by merely making honorable mention of their names on this anniversary occasion, but let us work to have all of our people read our literature, handed down to us as a priceless legacy from our fathers and mothers in Israel.

Early Days of the Pilgrim.

BY J. B. BRUMBAUGH.

WHEN I was quite a young man, I had a desire to become a printer, but the way did not open for me to enter a printing office until I was past twenty-one years old. Then I found I was too old to make a successful compositor, and I almost despaired of entering the calling of my choice. But while I could not become a successful typesetter, I concluded I might still conduct a printing business, and the next question was how to embark in it. I studied over this matter for a month or more, and finally I concluded that if I could get a partner who had some ability as a writer, we might start a religious paper. This, I felt sure, would be in accord with my inclinations and would give me just the kind of work I wanted to do.

One evening, after office hours, I got to work to our county-town,—built an office and dwelling, and in January, 1874, we moved with our office and fixtures to Huntingdon. We found this a much better location. Our business grew, the Pilgrim grew in favor with our people, and our prospects of success continued to grow brighter. But those who are running the present publishing business can never know how hard it was to swim against the current in the publishing business of those days.

In October of 1876 we consolidated with the Primitive Christian, published by Bro. Quinter, at Meyersdale, Pa. From that time on we labored together harmoniously and successfully, until the church became the owner of the entire publishing business, which has now become a most important factor in our church work and of which we, as a church, may justly be proud.

The Influence of the Messenger.

BY EDWARD FRANTZ.

WHICH is the more powerful factor in the promulgation of truth,—pulpit or press? The more you think about both sides of the question, the clearer it will become to you that both sides should have the decision. Unquestionably the face-to-face appeal, the quiver of the human voice and the sparkle of the moistened eye can win a response from the listener that is quite beyond the power of mere paper and ink.

But think of the relative numbers that may be reached with the voice and with the pen,—of the tremendous economy of money, energy and time with which your thought may be sent to the four quarters of the earth through the medium of the press, as compared with the cost of speaking face to face with those same thousands, millions, of human beings. Remember, also, that in these days of increasing popular intelligence, the number constantly increases, of those who are influenced more by convincing the understanding than by impassioned appeal to the emotions.

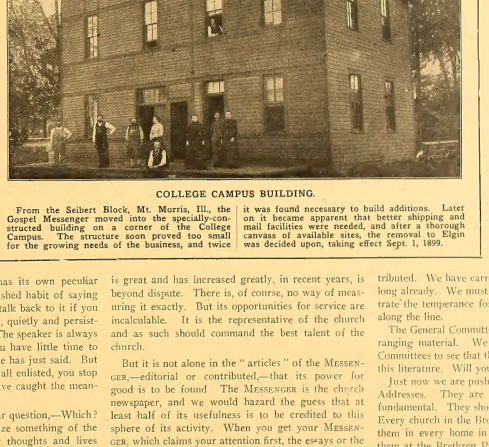
Then, too, the printed page has its own peculiar fascination. It has a well-established habit of saying just what it wants to. You can talk back to it if you like, but there it is, just the same, quietly and persistently repeating the same thing. The speaker is always hurrying on to the next, and you have little time to take in the full bearing of what he has just said. But as you read, if your interest is at all enlisted, you stop and go over it again until you have caught the meaning.

It is not necessary to answer our question,—Which? But it is important that we realize something of the tremendous power for moulding thoughts and lives that is wielded by a paper like the GOSPEL MESSENGER.

"Set for the defense of the Gospel," is the motto of the MESSENGER, and a noble motto it is. As the official organ of the Church of the Brethren it stands for the exposition and defense of the Gospel as that church understands it. Other religious journals may proclaim the Gospel too, in their way, but the MESSENGER properly should and does present the Gospel from the Church of the Brethren point of view. In this capacity its primary function is to set forth the doctrines of Christianity, emphasizing those which the church regards as needing particular emphasis, in the light of present-day conditions. And so, in editorials and contributed articles, doctrinal instruction is, and ought to be, a prominent feature.

But aside from this strictly didatic function of the paper, there is a larger class of closely-related matter which may be called inspirational, and this, again, may be subdivided. Some of it is given to urging and inspiring us to active work in the Master's vineyard, to missionary endeavor, or to renewed energy as preacher, teacher, or lay worker in the various forms of church activity. Other articles encourage us to meet bravely and in the Christian spirit the common tasks and problems of daily living, in the home, on the farm, in shop and school and everywhere. Some of them help to give us new heart when the cares and troubles, incident to actual life, discourage us. Others urge us to keep our hearts warm toward the church and toward God. The value of the MESSENGER, in this regard, is best known to those who are deprived of the ministrations of the church.

The influence of the paper in both didatic and inspirational lines is not limited to our own church membership. It is an effective evangelist in winning others to the love of God and fellowship with the church.



That the influence of the MESSENGER in these fields is great and has increased greatly, in recent years, is beyond dispute. There is, of course, no way of measuring it exactly. But its opportunities for service are incalculable. It is the representative of the church and as such should command the best talent of the church.

But it is not alone in the "articles" of the MESSENGER,—editorial or contributed,—that its power for good is to be found. The MESSENGER is the church newspaper, and we would hazard the guess that at least half of its usefulness is to be credited to this sphere of its activity. When you get your MESSENGER, which claims your attention first, the essays or the news? Isn't this about the order: News items from the editorial pages, correspondence from churches where you have lived, or where your friends live now; then the shorter editorial articles and essays, and lastly the more lengthy,—if you have time? Some will notice first the general world news on the first page. The aged reader will not be long in looking for a possible familiar name among those who have "fallen asleep," while the younger ones will have quickly glanced at the "matrimonial" list.

The thirst for news is natural and normal and, like most human impulses, simply needs to be directed, not repressed. Set before the mind information about things that are worth while, and interest will be aroused in that class of things. What you do not know about you will soon cease to care about. And our little prejudices and suspicions of one another exist mainly because we do not know each other well enough. Getting acquainted and keeping in touch with one another and with the work and workers in various parts of the church field, is the best means we have of keeping us united and in mutual sympathy and love. For this reason the news-gathering and news-distributing function of the MESSENGER is invaluable. Its power to make for church unity is immeasurable.

Will you not praise God, at this Thanksgiving time, for so mighty an agency for service in the Master's kingdom as is our MESSENGER? Thank him for the faithful workers who serve the church in this great field, and work and pray that the influence of our paper may abound yet more and more!

COLLEGE CAMPUS BUILDING.

From the Seibert Block, Mt. Morris, Ill., the Gospel Messenger moved into the specially-constructed building on a corner of the College Campus. The structure soon proved too small for the growing needs of the business, and twice it was found necessary to build additions. Later on it became apparent that better shipping and mail facilities were needed, and after a thorough canvass of available sites, the removal to Elgin was decided upon, taking effect Sept. 1, 1899.

To the District Temperance Committees.

BY J. W. LEAR.

Do you know that the liquor interests are organized and working unitedly for the destruction of everything good? The government, home and church are all suffering losses as a result of this miserable parasite. Every person in the land is, in some form, being affected by the business.

Do you know, again, that this brewing and distilling combine is no respector of persons? Your home is not sacred to this nefarious trust! His delight would be to cross your threshold, and pollute the most precious jewel you have. He, like a tiger, is crouching to spring upon your home to devour it.

Do you know, third, that we must educate the people; telling them who this monster is, what he does, and the extent of his operations? They should know how he works. Until we know, we are not likely to act. Until we realize our opportunities, we shall not feel our responsibilities.

Information must be distributed. We have carried on a Guerrilla warfare too long already. We must educate, organize and concentrate the temperance forces for a concerted action all along the line.

The General Committee has gone to the pains of arranging material. We must depend on the District Committees to see that the Local Committees distribute this literature. Will you do so?

Just now we are pushing the St. Joseph Conference Addresses. They are educational, inspirational and fundamental. They should be out upon their mission. Every church in the Brotherhood should be scattering them in every home in their vicinity. You can get them at the Brethren Publishing House for $2.25 per hundred. Tell the Local Committee about them, and get busy in scattering them. When they are gone we will have something good to follow.

Are you interested in this great and good cause? Tell us so by getting active at once. Don't delay! Call a meeting of your Committee and send information to every local committee in your District. Do it now! Strike at the opportune moment! Don't wait until the horse is stolen before you lock the barn! All together now, let us see what our heavenly Father can do through his children to overthrow this vile business!

EARTH'S sweetest pleasures, like its sweetest blossoms, wither when they are plucked.

Stand for the Right.

BY ELSIE K. SANGER.

OBSERVE Peter's reply to the question of the Sanhedrim, as he boldly tells them that Jesus of Nazareth, whom they crucified, is the one who healed the lame man and that their only hope for salvation is through this same Jesus, whom God had raised from the dead.

The simple boldness and fearlessness of Peter and John astonished these rulers. Though they had condemned Christ, a few weeks previous to this time, their feeble threats did not, in the least, frighten the apostles, for they knew they were on the side of right. After their release the two apostles joined their brethren, and prayed. What for? That their path might be smoother,—that they might be delivered from trials? No! They prayed for more boldness to speak the Word fearlessly, in the face of threatenings. That was the burden of their prayer. Oh, that we had more of that kind of faith in the world today!

Do we, amid persecutions, realize that one with God is a majority? Too often we seek to please man rather than God. We fear some one may speak against us. Jesus said, "If the world hates you, ye know that it hated me before it hated you."

It is easy enough to be a Christian on Sunday at church, but it is when we are tried during the week by Satan's cunning craftiness that we are apt to fall beneath the burden. If the way does, indeed, seem rough sometimes, we should not become discouraged, for perhaps the Lord wishes to bring about a special work we can not understand.

The believers in Stephen's time were persecuted, and thereby the Gospel was carried into many places where it had not yet been taught. "As for Saul, he made havoc of the church, entering into every house, and haling men and women committed them to prison. . Therefore they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word" (Acts 8: 3, 4).

"Judge not the Lord by feeble sense,
But trust him for his grace;
Behind a frowning providence
He hides a smiling face."

Perhaps the closer you try to live to God, the colder the world will seem to you. It may even scoff and scorn, but "if God be for us, who can be against us?"

"Stand for the right though falsehoods rail,
And proud lips coldly sneer,
A poisoned arrow cannot wound
A conscience pure and clear."

Persecutions, bravely borne, make us stronger.

A few trials borne here, for a few short years, in exchange for a crown and a mansion for eternity over there! "Be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord" (1 Cor. 15: 58).

Rocks and Apples.

BY JAMES M. NEFF.

THIS time I went for a load of apples. The road led up the north fork of the Tule River and a part of it was pretty steep. I did not feel that it was fair to the team that I should hurry, so it was high noon before I reached the orchard. I sat on the wagon seat and ate my lunch. Then I drove to the packing house, and after I had looked through the bins, and decided what varieties I would take, we backed the wagon under the shed to load.

I supposed the apples would be unceremoniously poured into the wagon, and that, by the time the horses had finished eating, I'd be off for home. But the good people were so very careful in assorting the apples, as to size and soundness, placing them one by one into my boxes and protecting them from every sharp corner, to prevent bruises, that the process involved much more time than I had calculated upon. We kept on, however, till my wagon box, with side boards on, was rounding full of big red apples.

This threw me late, and nightfall overtook me long before I reached home. On account of the condition of my health I avoided being out at night as much as possible, but this was one of the instances which illustrates the fact that what the habits of a teamster must be, cannot always be made to conform to what the habits of a sick man ought to be, and perhaps suggests that a sick man should not be a teamster.

On this trip I was particularly anxious to make the drive by daylight for the sake of the apples. I thought that by careful driving I could avoid many of the rocks in the road and thus get my fine fruit down with as few bruises as possible. But I saw that my plans had miscarried, and so I resigned myself to the situation; and as I went bumping and jolting down the road through the still moonlight, I began to reflect upon the universality of the principle then being illustrated in my experience. California is not the only place, thought I, where you must travel a rocky road if you would have the finest apples. Practically everywhere, and with everyone, the rule holds good that the best things in life are to be found only at the other end of a steep or rugged path. You got something for nothing, did you? And you think the thing you got is worth having? Look again and you will most likely discover that it isn't worth much more than it cost you. If it is, your case is altogether exceptional, and I suppose it takes an exception, now and then, to prove the rule. In nature everywhere the most precious things are hid away where they can only be had by the greatest toil and sacrifice. Let's either resign ourselves to a patient encounter with the rocks or decide to do without the apples.

Thanksgiving.

BY LEANDER SMITH.

THE act of giving thanks is right and proper, and a day for expressing our gratitude is fitting indeed. We are to "honor the Lord with our substance and the first fruits of all our increase." Right now is a good time to think it over, to cast up our accounts, and to see how much we owe the Lord. One-tenth is the Lord's. "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me in tithes and offerings" (Mal. 3: 8).

"Come, let us reason together saith the Lord" (Isa. 1: 18). Here is an appeal from man to man. Come, let us read together, and believe together, and receive the blessings together.

Let us remember that our Lord is not a beggar. "The cattle on a thousand hills are his." "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof." Then, what is our position before him? Are we beggars? Yes; he can speak into existence, for his own use, the wealth of earth's monarchs and the pennies of the poor, but this is not his way. This is not what he wants,—he wants us. He will not have money thrust at him. He wants the owners of the pennies and the owners of the wealth. He wants you; he wants me. Let us reverse the idea of paying (or the so-called giving). Suppose the Lord should say, "I do not want your offering that you have withheld so long; the books are closed; I can not receive it; the blessing is also cut off. I waited long and patiently for you to respond to my appeals. Now it is too late, too late!"

Could the foolish virgins have felt worse? You would hold in your own hands that of which you have robbed God,—condemned money. No one wants it. While we have privilege and opportunity, let us honor the Lord with the first fruits of all our increase, and pay the Lord what is his,—the tenth. Then we will be able to offer to the Lord a free-will offering. "Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly or of necessity: for God loveth a cheerful giver" (2 Cor. 9: 7).

A Thought on Baptism.

BY J. S. MASTERSON.

IF I become aware that I am in the wrong house, surely I must have come in through the wrong door. If, in searching, I find the right house, should I enter into that house by any other way than through the door? In Acts 19 we find that Paul found certain disciples that were not fully taught the requirements of the Gospel. They at once, on seeing their error, left their fold and were willing to enter in through the door into the right fold. "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber" (John 10: 1). Brethren, let us be consistent!

Not Routing Out.

BY F. F. DURR.

I WAS thinking there might be some of our ministers who are rusting out for the want of work, and that my experience might be helpful to some of them. When I lived in the George's Creek congregation, Pa., I felt that I could be more useful somewhere else. So we decided to make the fact known in the GOSPEL MESSENGER. One insertion brought twenty-one answers from thirteen States. We had our preference; God had his. The result is we are here, three thousand miles from home, and happy in the work. I am the only minister living, at this time, in the State of Arizona, with more square miles as my field of labor than in all Pennsylvania.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS' TOPIC

Incentives to Prayer.

Matt. 7: 7-11.

For Sunday Evening, December 3, 1911.

I. God Is Seeking Worshipers (John 4: 23).—Prayer is "good and acceptable in his sight" (1 Tim. 2: 1, 2).

II. Jesus Himself Was a Praying Man (Mark 1: 35; Luke 5: 16; 9: 29).

III. He Taught That It Was Our Duty to Pray (Matt. 6: 9-13; Luke 18: 1).

IV. The Apostles Exhort Us to Pray (Rom. 12: 12; Eph. 6: 18; Col. 4: 2).

V. The Many Promises That Prayer Will Be Answered (Matt. 7: 7-11; John 14: 13, 14; 16: 23, 24; 1 John 3: 22; Isa. 65: 24).

VI. Bible Examples of Being Alone with God in Prayer.—Isaac "in the field" (Gen. 24: 63); Daniel "in his house" (Dan. 6: 10); Hannah "spoke in her heart; only her lips moved" (1 Sam. 1: 13); Nathanael "under the fig tree" (John 1: 48); and Peter "on the housetop" (Acts 10: 9).

Prayer in This Meeting.—Pray with thanksgiving for the Bible and its instruction to us. Thank God for the power of prayer, and for the blessedness of communion with him. Pray for all the homes represented in the meeting, and for the homes of your community not represented. Ask the Lord to help both parents and children to a "closer walk with God."

PRAYER MEETING

Holding Ladders for Others.

Rom. 12: 10; 1 Cor. 10: 31-33.

For Week Beginning December 3, 1911.

1. True Helpfulness.—God's plans for mankind imply tender solicitude one for another. The pleasure of one should cheer the others. The knowledge of one should be enlightening the others. The burden of one should be eased by the others. Religious experiences should be a blessing not only to ourselves but a ladder by which they may rise to higher altitudes. Perhaps some one is ready now to climb the ladder to higher attainments, but is waiting for us to steady the ladder, lest he fall. By all means let us firmly hold ladders for others (Rom. 15: 1-3).

2. The Missionary Ladder.—He who goes into the deep abyss of heathen degradation, to save the lost ones there, must needs have some one to hold the ladder, so that the allotted work may be performed. He who goes down to rescue lost souls and he who is at the top, holding the ladder, are co-workers in the same common cause. Christians must be one or the other,—either rescuers or ladder-holders (Rom. 10: 13-15).

3. The Congregational Ladder.—As members of the one common family in Christ, we have wonderful opportunities to prosper the work of the Lord by our willingness to hold ladders. How blessed the thought that, as we hold a ladder for our brother, he, in turn, will be inspired to do likewise. As "workers together with God," we can do a great work (Eph. 4: 25, 31, 32).

4. The Ladder in the Home.—What remarkable opportunities there are, in the home, to be mutually helpful! Coöperation should be the watchword of all the members. Selfishness is dangerous,—a menace! It produces uncertainty in the mind of the one who is on the rounds of the ladder. Let us be watchful (Eph. 6: 4)!

HOME AND FAMILY

Thanksgiving.

Lord, what shall our Thanksgiving be,
This gray November of the year?
What'e'er our offering to thee,
Be it sincere!

No empty frankincense of praise,
No sounding words tricked out by art,
But just some homely, simple phrase
Straight from the heart!

No music of triumphant tone
In swelling octaves swept along:
But lifted to thine unseen throne
Some low, sweet song!

Through these all blessings bounteous,
All beauty and all bliss we share;
And that best grateful unto us
The boon of prayer.
—Clinton Scollard, in Sunday School Times.

The Absent One.

BY ELIZABETH D. ROSENBERGER.

Every one of the children dreaded that Thanksgiving Day. It had been the one holiday of the year especially dear to every member of the Layton family. The children claimed that it was better for them to remain at home with their own families on Christmas Day, but Thanksgiving Day found every child and grandchild in the old farmhouse. Father and mother expected them and usually they were all there. The house was open from cellar to garret, the dining-table was extended to its full length, so that all the little children could eat with their parents. But, first of all, those who came in time went to the old church in the country with father and mother, and met again all the old friends who had meant so much to them in bygone years. It was an occasion for acknowledging the good gifts of the Creator through field and forest and orchard.

This is what Thanksgiving had always meant to the Laytons, but this year the inevitable great change, which comes into every family, had come to them. Since they had met for their Thanksgiving reunion, the mother had been called to her heavenly home. All realized that home could never be the same again. Father had written to each one, asking them to come home on Thanksgiving, as usual. But there was not one of the children who did not dread the ordeal. It could never be the home-coming it used to be when mother was watching for them.

But when they reached the old home, father was looking for them, the house was warm and comfortable, the welcome such as father alone could give. There were no tears, for father was calm, asking about their affairs, interested in whatever interested them. The old dining-table was spread as usual and father took his place at the head of the table. The children and grandchildren were grouped around it. There was an expectant silence and then father's voice was heard pleading for God's blessing on all assembled there. It was not the few perfunctory sentences which so often constitute the "blessing" at meals, but a genuine, heartfelt little prayer, which took lodgment in the hearts of those sorrowing children. He thanked God for the food before them, for the harvest and summer rains. He praised the Lord for the dear wife and mother who had been with them, and for the children now surrounding the board. He asked that nothing might ever arise to cause dissension in this family. Then he thanked God for the gift of his dear Son, who had given him grace to trust, and to believe that the mother was only gone before, and that she wanted her loved ones to be happy today. His lips quivered slightly when he spoke of the meeting in heaven when, as one unbroken family, they should all be gathered home.

After the prayer, with smiling face, he began to help the little ones first, as was his custom. And some of those children who had felt as if they could not eat a mouthful on this occasion, listened and were comforted as father talked cheerfully of days gone by. Their hearts were hushed and stilled by the faith that could see beyond the valley of shadows into the loving understanding heart of God himself. There was no more dread, no more fear,—God was with them, an abiding presence.

There may be other homes where the silent one has entered and left bleeding hearts and broken lives to face this Thanksgiving Day as best they may. One is by your side who will never leave nor forsake you,—only God is equal to these dark hours. Thanksgiving Day should brighten and glow with a joy divine. All the love and happiness of the past is yours. Praise God for glad memories of those who have gone before. The saints of the fireside and the market place, with no old-time halo around their heads, simply do their daily tasks as God gives them strength and ability, but they leave a benediction and a force behind them on the earth when they go to heaven.

In this country of "magnificent distances," children leave the old home and go West or South, miles and miles away from the sheltering arms of the old home. As if it were a light matter, they decide to go somewhere else. Somewhere, either in city or country, they find a home, and then come years of separation, and loneliness for the parents in the old home. They miss their children cruelly. They hunger for a sight of the boy and girl they raised. With pathetic patience they read over the few letters received, and sometimes Thanksgiving Day brings with it pain and longing for children in a distant land.

Never let it be forgotten that it was amidst poverty, dangers and straitness, such as we can scarcely imagine in our favored day, that the first Thanksgiving Day was observed in the wilderness. Let us return thanks for the blessings that God has showered upon us. We should say with David, "Many, O Lord, my God, are thy wonderful works which thou hast done, and thy thoughts which are to usward; they can not be reckoned up in order unto thee; if I would declare and speak of them, they are more than can be numbered."

Give Thanks!

BY KATIE FLORY.

A few years ago a tramp was given something to eat at our table. I believe he was better than most tramps, for we shall not soon forget his attitude of devotion before eating his food. With bowed head and the quiet moving of his lips we could see that he remembered God, and was truly grateful for his food. He may have lacked in some things, but in this he was an example to many of us who have long been followers of Christ.

The Lord opens his hand and satisfies every living thing. He daily "loadeth us with blessings," and yet there are some who never say thanks for the things they must have and get every day from him. How hard-hearted and ungrateful we may easily grow, and think nothing of it!

We consider any one impolite toward us, when no expression of thanks or appreciation is given for the smallest favor shown. It seems little, but it means much. God is rich, and loves to give. He also loves to be regarded and thanked for his gifts. Let us be polite toward him, as well as toward each other! The Lord is slighted and grieved when we do not recognize his kindness and goodness. It is a sin to be ungrateful. The Word says that the spirit of unthankfulness shall prevail among men in the latter days, and this spirit is manifest now.

What would a father think of a child, after giving him a fortune, if the child would take it and never offer a word of thanks? God has given us all we have; he can take it away in a moment. Do we truly feel thankful toward him for his precious gifts? Our prayers ought to have fewer petitions, and more prayers of praise, thanks, and adoration. The prayers of Jesus, David and others are full of the spirit of praise. We should sing more songs of praise,—songs with the spirit of Thanksgiving and adoration,—for heaven is full of praise to Father and Son. All our service and worship should be characterized by the spirit of praise.

"In everything give thanks," is a plain command to each of us. "With thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God." "Magnify him with thanks." "Through him let us offer up a sacrifice of praise to God continually, that is, the fruit of our lips, which make confession to his name." "Enter into his gates with thanksgiving." "Sing unto the Lord with thanksgiving."

If we obey these commands, there will not be very much room left in our hearts for anything that is evil. How much better to sing than to whine and fret! How much better to praise God and our friends, than to murmur and find fault with them! We have much for which to thank the Lord, even though we may have a hard and bitter life to live. Let us thank him for our darkest day and the hardest of trials, for can we not see that then it was that God was really the nearest, and held us firmly and safely by his hand? He suffered us not to be overcome, and has given us the victory! Blessed be his name forever! Praise ye his name!

Mothers' and Daughters' Meeting.

BY LIZZIE NEHER FLORY.

One of the most interesting features of our District Meeting, this year, in the Southwestern District of Kansas and Southern Colorado, held at Newton, Kans., was the Mothers' and Daughters' Meeting.

We have been organized now four years, and each year our meeting becomes more interesting. We had engaged Dr. Heaton to address us. He being unable to be there, on account of other duties, we secured Dr. Clement. Dr. Ulrey also addressed us. In their addresses they treated questions that deeply concern the young woman, the wife and the mother.

After these addresses we held a "Round Table," discussing the following topics: "Woman's Work in the Home," "The Divine Heritage of Children," "Sunday in the Home," "The Value of the Story Hour," "The Habit of Worry: Can It Be Cured? If So, How?"

Our meeting was planned for a one and one-half hour session on Monday, immediately after dinner. All the speakers were so full of their subjects, however, that we did not get through in the allotted time, and our meeting was continued the next day at the same hour.

The men not wishing to be behind the times, in their knowledge of the vital problems of life, have organized and will have a "Fathers' and Sons' Program" next year.

Causes for Thanksgiving.

BY J. M. BLOUGH.

Let us all rejoice and give thanks.

1. Because there is peace and prosperity in the church at home and abroad.

2. Because the church desires to live according to the Scriptures and exemplify the simple life.

3. Because there is a growing interest in Bible study, manifesting itself in Bible Institutes and teacher-training.

4. Because our beloved Brotherhood is becoming a missionary church in truth.

5. Because sixteen missionaries are sent to foreign shores this year.

6. Because Districts, Sunday-schools and churches are glad to assume the support of these missionaries.

7. Because we have an efficient Mission Board and a good plan for mission work in the whole Brotherhood.

8. Because we have an excellent Publishing House and well-edited church papers.

9. Because we have good Sunday-schools, a live Sunday-school Board and excellent Sunday-school literature.

10. Because the children in our Sunday-schools and homes are being taught to be missionaries.

11. Because our colleges are doing creditable work and are well attended.

12. Because our evangelists are busy and doing effective work.

Moreover, let us all work and pray for still greater progress in every good cause!

BRO. D. L. MILLER, who is now with us, attending the meeting of the General Mission Board, spent last Lord's Day with the Brethren in Chicago. Next week we shall publish his closing articles regarding his visit among the churches in Tennessee and North Carolina.

THE church at Roaring Spring, Pa., has just enjoyed a precious season. Bro. J. H. Cassady devoted a few weeks to earnest and well-directed evangelistic work, and as the fruits of his efforts thirty-six put on Christ in baptism. Two await the rite, and four were restored to fellowship.

BRO. GEO. MISHLER devoted two weeks to evangelistic work in the Sappy Creek, Nebr., congregation, and eight were added to the church by confession and baptism.

As the fruits of a series of meetings held in the Bermudian house, Lower Canowago congregation, Pa., conducted by Bro. Adam Hollinger, fifteen were added to the church.

We have just learned, from the Minutes of the late District Meeting of Western Maryland, that Bro. I. W. Abernathy is to represent the District on the coming Standing Committee.

THE special Bible Term at North Manchester College opens Jan. 8, and will continue until the 20th. During the term Bro. H. C. Early is to deliver a number of doctrinal addresses.

BRO. PAUL MOHLER and family left New York for France last Saturday, their boat sailing at 9 A. M. Bro. Mohler takes charge of the Brethren Mission stations in France and Switzerland.

IN the Peter's Creek congregation, Va., Bro. I. N. H. Beahm delivered eighteen discourses, principally of a doctrinal nature, and had the pleasure of seeing six added to the church,—four by baptism and two restored.

WHILE at Des Moines, Iowa, Bro. John Heckman, of Polo, Ill., delivered twenty-four addresses. Five applied for membership. During the meetings 400 copies of the doctrinal issue of the MESSENGER were distributed.

WE appreciate all the college papers coming to our desk, but not one of them contains more interesting news than Manchester College Bulletin. The editor knows how to find and put in good form items of special interest.

BRO. C. E. WOLF, late of Denver, Colo., is now in the evangelistic field, and those desiring his services may address him at New Ulysses, Kans., R. D. 1. He writes that since going to a lower altitude his health has greatly improved.

BRO. GABRIEL KITTERMAN, the retired elder of the Prairie Creek church, Middletown, Ind., died Nov. 10, aged seventy-nine years. He is said to have been a faithful minister and gave special attention to the flock entrusted to his care.

WE call especial attention to the notice on page 760, this issue, regarding the Full Report of the Annual Meetings for 1872-1875. There are those who would like to have the report for these years, and we now give them a chance to secure a copy. If you wish the work, fill out the blank and send it to the House without delay.

WRITING from South Whitley, Ind., Bro. J. D. Mishler says: "A brother in our congregation sent the GOSPEL MESSENGER this year into the homes of three of his neighbors. Last Sunday we had the pleasure of receiving a young man from one of these homes into the church by baptism." He adds that he closed a series of meetings in the Solomon's Creek church, with fifteen conversions.

WHY could not each reader of the MESSENGER send the paper to a friend,—one not a member,—for one year? Just think of the good that might be accomplished in this way! Any one wishing to do this, assuring us that the paper goes into a home where there are no members, can have it for fifty cents. Here is an opportunity for several thousand people to do something that will be appreciated.

PARENTS can do nothing better for such of their children as are away from home, than to send them the GOSPEL MESSENGER. There are fathers and mothers who never fail to have the paper sent to a son or daughter who go out from the home. In this way they keep their loved ones in touch with the church and its work, and, should they not be members already, they may in due time be induced to enter the fold.

BRO. ANDREW HUTCHISON, who has arranged to spend the greater part of the winter on the Pacific Coast, recently held a series of meetings at Centralia, Wash., and five were added to the church.

A VERY spiritual love feast was held at Elgin last Saturday evening, with several in attendance from other localities. Bro. J. M. Blough officiated, and then preached for us on Sunday morning, and also on Sunday evening. He remained over Tuesday to attend the meeting of the General Mission Board. His sermons were very much appreciated.

BRO. CHAS. W. EISENBISE, writing from Kingsley, Iowa, says: "We are getting on nicely in our new home, and with our work. The members are much scattered, but they seem to be in earnest. I observe that pastoral letters help much under such conditions. I find the MESSENGER in most of the homes, and it will soon be in a number of others."

BRO. W. R. MILLER writes us that he has been having large and enthusiastic crowds at his illustrated lectures in and around Johnstown, Pa. He has been in that part of the State two weeks, and will remain two weeks longer; then he goes to Maryland several weeks, and returns to Pennsylvania early in January. He says that a number of weeks after that date have not yet been spoken for.

WE are just in receipt of information regarding the death of Bro. J. S. Mohler, which took place in Quinter, Kans., Nov. 1. In his day Bro. Mohler was one of our strong preachers and able writers. He not only did a good deal of preaching and other work for the church, but he wrote considerably for our publications, especially for the MESSENGER. He had a fine mind and a splendid constitution. It is said that he was never sick a day in his life until about two weeks before his death. Three weeks before his departure he delivered a strong address, clearly indicating that his mind was still active. When the call came for him to go hence, he had to his credit eighty busy years, the most of them having been spent in the service of his Master. A more extended notice of his life and labors will be published next week.

A FEW weeks ago there appeared, under the heading, "Oklahoma," an item of news from Tribbey, signed "William Troxel." We have since learned that the report was not written by Bro. Troxel. In fact, it is not in his handwriting. It was written by some one who meant deception, and signed the name of Bro. William Troxel to the communication. We are informed that there was no election for a minister, nor was Bro. D. E. Cripe chosen elder for the New Hope congregation. Bro. G. W. Landis is the elder in charge. We can not understand why any one should undertake to deceive our readers by giving out news that he knows to be incorrect. He should have known that the truth would come out, sooner or later, and that his scheme would be exposed. It is not often that we are misled in this manner. Our suspicion was aroused before the page containing the short report was made up, and its appearance, under the circumstances, was the result of an oversight.

THE time is here for our patrons to renew their subscriptions to the GOSPEL MESSENGER. We need not say anything special regarding the policy, purpose and future of the paper. These can be judged by the past. It is our constant aim to give our readers something better as the years go by, and we must leave them to decide as to whether we are doing this. We simply do our best all the time, and even the best that can be had is none too good for our people. We trust to have all of them renew for 1912. Our circulation for this year is larger than it was the year before, and we hope to have a like increase in the list for next year. The habit of delaying action in matters of this sort is not wise. Early renewals are not only more satisfactory to our patrons, but they prove more helpful to the Business Department. They enable the department to correct the list before the end of the year, and thus avoid the necessity of removing names. Our patrons will therefore confer a great favor on us by giving this matter their immediate attention.

Any one knowing of young people in Chicago, who might be reached by our people, will please send their names and street addresses to Sister Georgiana Hoke, 3435 Van Buren St., Chicago. Especially would she like to be informed of members' children who have located in the city. An effort will be made to have some one call on them and to get them interested in some of our services.

An earnest admirer of the Messenger, who seems not to be a member of the Church of the Brethren, makes this sensible suggestion: "I have read your paper for a long time, and it is the best religious weekly I ever saw. I feel a great interest in it and wish every family in the United States had it. This wish would be partly fulfilled if the readers made the best use of their old Messengers by giving them to their friends or placing them on a reading table. I would suggest that a good motto for the Messenger, placed in a conspicuous place, would be: 'Read me; think over me, and give me to some one else to read.'"

Bro. Emmanuel Hershey, of Greenville, Ohio, writes us that Nov. 14 he and his wife celebrated the sixty-seventh anniversary of their marriage. He pronounced it a day of rejoicing. They were married in Lancaster County, Pa., in 1844, and began housekeeping the next spring. In 1849 they moved to Ohio, settling near Greenville. The country was then almost a vast wilderness, and many hardships had to be endured by the early settlers. But he says the Lord has wonderfully blessed them. He is now ninety years old, and his wife eighty-six. In their old age they seem to be enjoying their Christian experience and are happy.

Our Sixtieth Anniversary.

This year is the sixtieth anniversary of the publishing interest of the Brotherhood. Sixty years ago, or in 1851, Bro. Henry Kurtz, of whom we have something to say elsewhere, began the publishing of the Gospel Visitor, the first religious periodical issued wholly in the interest of the teachings of the Church of the Brethren. His printing office, in the loft of a spring-house, on his farm near Poland, Ohio, was a small affair, but it was a beginning. The good work, once started, increased from year to year until it has reached its present marvelous proportions. The humble German editor, as he toiled from day to day, never dreamed that he was laying the foundation for such a wonderful development in the publishing business, and it was well that he could not look so far into the future, else he might have become almost bewildered.

It may be well for us, on this occasion, to pause and take a careful look over the field, and see what has come to pass. This is what we are doing in this special anniversary issue. The different writers have traced the history of our publishing interest from the little outfit in the farm spring-house to the splendidly-equipped building, known as the Brethren Publishing House. Something is said of the men who have figured in this work, as well as of the different papers that have been published. We have the past and the present contrasted, and are also told about some of the things that have taken place during these sixty eventful years.

In view of the great prosperity that has attended our work, and the many blessings that have come to the Church of the Brethren, as the fruits of the press, we thought it would be quite proper for our people this year to prepare themselves for a double thanksgiving. We can and should thank the Giver of all that is good for the bountiful crops with which the country has been favored. We should thank him for peace and general prosperity, as well as for the Christian religion, which has made our present civilization possible. Then we should also thank him for the Brethren Publishing House, and for the good which we know it is accomplishing. It is the property of the Brotherhood, and for this let every soul among us praise the Lord. It is a rare thing, indeed, for a religious body, of no greater numerical strength than ours, to own and control so large a publishing plant. May this approaching Thursday be a Thanksgiving Day long to be remembered,—a double Thanksgiving Day, so to speak.

A Striking Contrast.

The Gospel Visitor of 1851.—The Gospel Messenger of 1911. The Visitor As It was and the Messenger As It Is.

Sixty years ago, in a loft over an old spring-house, erected for farm dairying near Poland, Ohio, the Gospel Visitor was issued, the first paper of its kind published by our Brethren. It was a small, modest beginning but a beginning which made possible our present Publishing House, and the occasion for this contrast. The new paper did not receive a hearty welcome among our people. It was feared that it would not be for the best interests of the church. In his salutatory the Editor said: "A long time has elapsed, since we first sent out the queries, proposed in July, 1849, to the printer, and also his views on the subject of a publication of this kind. He wished to take the advice of his brethren, and the result of the consultation was that a majority of the churches heard from were in favor of the measure, or at least a trial, that a respectable number of subscribers,—more than three hundred,—and even payment for fifty copies had been sent in. Thus far we felt encouraged."

Before and after the Gospel Visitor was started the Annual Conference gave it the consideration. In 1851 it was decided not to "forbid Bro. Henry Kurtz to go on with his paper for one year." "We'll try it a year and if we don't like it, we'll stop it," was the only encouragement that our Brother Kurtz received from the Conference.. Two years later the Annual Meeting discussed the pro and con of the paper problem and said: "We unanimously conclude that this meeting should not further interfere with it." After the Conference the Editor wrote of the cloud that had hung over the Visitor and himself for some years, but now, he exclaimed, "Thanks be to God, the cloud has been lifted up. The Yearly Meeting has again declared that it is none of its business to interfere with the private affairs of members, and the Gospel Visitor may continue his course, if not in rejoicing, at least unmolested, yet with fear and trembling."

The beginning was full of discouragement. Dark clouds overshadowed the infant enterprise, and opposition threatened its overthrow. The struggle against great odds for existence and recognition was of a most strenuous character, but the Gospel Visitor prospered and gained in favor with God and men, and today we are enjoying the fruits of the labors of the men who labored and sacrificed much to give us the Gospel Messenger and our great Publishing House.

As It Was and As It Is.

1. Then our church paper was brought forth in fear and trembling, without encouragement and with many misgivings.

NOW it goes on its way, a Messenger of faith, hope and love, sent out in confidence and rejoicing.

2. Then, at best, it was but a half-feared, half-welcomed guest, and met with strong opposition in many places.

NOW it is heartily and cordially welcomed into the great majority of the homes of our Brotherhood.

3. Then its relationship to the church was one of mere sufferance and but little encouragement was given it.

NOW it is one of the most honored members of the family, has encouragement from every side and is loved and respected by all.

4. Then it was printed in an old spring-house loft, on a crude hand press, with an outfit not worth over three hundred dollars.

NOW its home is in an immense building and the Messenger and other papers are printed on great electric power presses in a plant which, including grounds, buildings, machinery, outfit and capital, approximates a value of a quarter million dollars.

5. Then it had a circulation barely reaching four hundred subscribers.

NOW it is practically up to the twenty-five thousand mark.

6. Then the twelve numbers issued each year had a total weight of ten ounces.

NOW the total weight for the fifty-two numbers for the year aggregates more than that many pounds.

7. Then it had eight thousand two hundred and fifty-six square inches of reading matter for the year.

NOW it contains one hundred and twenty-seven thousand square inches, or more than sixteen times as much.

8. Then it required, for the entire output of the year, not over three hundred pounds of paper.

NOW it takes over one hundred and twenty tons for the Messenger alone.

9. Then the volume of business transacted at the office amounted to about $500 for the year.

NOW it has reached the half million dollar mark.

10. Then one dollar a year was paid for the twelve numbers.

NOW one dollar and fifty cents pays the bill for the fifty-two issues of the year, with a hundred and fifty times more reading matter.

11. Then the profits arising from the business were infinitesimally small.

NOW, for the fourteen years since the church has owned the publishing interest, there has been a net profit of two hundred and twenty-four thousand dollars, or an average annual profit of about sixteen thousand dollars a year.

12. Then, and for the forty-six years following, the profits of the publishing business went to private individuals.

NOW it finds a place in the church treasury, and is used for missions and for the aid and support of aged and infirm missionaries and ministers.

13. Then we had very few among us who could prepare an article for the church paper.

NOW we have men and women by the hundred who stand well up in literature and some of them are equal to the best.

14. Then our German brother, Kurtz, was editor, office boy, stenographer, typesetter, proof-reader and pressman with, perhaps, a boy as a helper.

NOW we have a dozen or more men and women on our editorial staff, with stenographers and typewriters as general helpers.

15. Then the entire office force was but the Editor and his boy helper.

NOW during the busy season as many as one hundred and fifty persons are at work in the Brethren Publishing House.

Here we have the contrast. Here is the Gospel Visitor as it was and the Gospel Messenger as it is. And what a striking contrast! Surely God's blessing has attended this important part of our church work. And the outlook is hopeful. With a united church, with careful business management in the Publishing House, and with God's blessing over all, there is no reason why our publishing interest should not grow and prosper in the future as it has done in the past.

D. L. M.

What Has Happened During These Sixty Years.

Space forbids an attempt to mention all that has happened in the church during the last sixty years, since Bro. Kurtz began the publishing business among us. We shall confine ourselves, therefore, to the growth of membership, educational enterprise, enlargement of the Sunday-school work and the development of missions.

Growth of Membership.—From the year of 1708, at Schwarzenau, Germany, and a membership of eight souls, dates the present organization of the Church of the Brethren. The church, born in travail, began to grow at once. To flee persecution, in 1719, twenty families sailed for America. On Christmas Day, 1723, occurred the first baptism,—six candidates; the first love feast, with 23 communicants, and the organization of the first local church in America. Because of continued persecution, about fifty-nine families, comprising 126 members,—practically all that remained in Europe,—sought refuge in our land in 1729. With this body of members came Alexander Mack and his three sons. Now the church is,—with the exception of several mission points,—all in America.

The presence of Mack, with other leaders, and this large increase in membership, greatly inspired the church to further effort. For nearly a half a century one revival wave followed another, until the Revolutionary War came, which brought many hardships to the church, and retarded growth for the present. But there are no data at hand, giving the membership at this time, nor is the number given for 1851,—the date from which we are reckoning.

During the last years, the church has increased at the rate of about three per cent or more. This is on the basis that the membership is 100,000, that there have been between 6,000 and 7,000 baptized yearly, that one-half of this increase covers the losses by death and backsliding, leaving a net increase of 3,000 annually, or more.

Upon this hypothesis, it is easy to figure the exact number of the membership sixty years ago. Worked out by this rule, the membership then did not exceed 14,000. The increase, therefore, is 86,000, approximately.

The growth of a body, it seems to us, should increase with the increase in membership and the improvement of the means and facilities for work. The larger a body, the greater its moral influence, and the more easily it gains recognition. Add to these the multiplied agencies employed in Christian work today, and it is easy to see how our growth ought to be increased. But history shows that this is not always true. The Methodists, with a membership of 6,000,000 in the States, in a recent Conference mourned the fact that during the last year they had not held their own. And it is no doubt true that the Church of the Brethren, considering her present number and numerous agencies, does not grow as she did when she was smaller. This fact should appeal mightily to each member for a renewal of the zeal of the fathers.

Educational Enterprises.—Among the founders of the church and her leaders, both in Europe and America, there were educated men, some of them among the best scholars of their age. The beginning of the church was directed by men of education, representing the ripest religious thought of their day. To Christopher Sower, who came to this country in 1724, belongs the honor of transplanting German printing to America. He was the first man on this continent to print German books and to start a German newspaper, and, along with his son, Christopher the second, continued it for forty consecutive years. The influence of these two men, in laying the foundation of the American nation, can not be estimated.

Then there followed a period of decline in the interest of education. Many of the leaders, during this time, seeing the value of Christian education to the work of the church, made effort after effort to revive lost interest. But it did not take permanent form until 1874, when Bro. J. M. Zook opened the doors of what is now Juniata College, Huntingdon, Pa., with three students. It was a hard struggle. But after a few years of heroic effort, the school began to gain ground. The school spirit at once became contagious. One school after another was opened, and their multiplication continues down to the present. Now there are twelve schools and colleges in the States, owned and controlled by the Brethren. Two of them are doing Bible work almost exclusively. Nine of them are doing regular college work.

More than 2,000 students come under the tuition of these schools and colleges during the year, and during this time scores of them will finish their work in the several departments. From these the church chooses her workers, in the main, both for the home and foreign fields. Besides, many go out into the professions and business walks of life, and exercise there the influences of a Christian education.

The aggregate property value of the schools and colleges is in the neighborhood of a million dollars. This does not include endowments. The most of them have some endowment.

Sunday-school Work.—Bro. M. G. Brumbaugh states that it is almost certain that Sunday-schools, under the name of "Young People's Meetings," date back to the beginning of the Church of the Brethren. He adds further that in 1748, Ludwig Hœcker, who had been a member of the Brethren, was made schoolmaster of the Ephrata Society, and he at once organized a Sunday-school. So the Brethren may justly claim to be the founders of Sunday-schools. But, like the educational work, it waned, and sixty years ago there was but little Sunday-school work among us.

In 1838, the Conference decided that it was not advisable to take part in Sunday-schools. It was not until 1857,—six years after the revival of the publishing business among us,—that Conference decided favorably to Sunday-schools. Since then the idea has grown at a rapid rate until, today, practically all the congregations have Sunday schools. The sentiment has become so pronounced that a congregation without a Sunday-school becomes a matter of grave concern, even pity. The total attendance aggregates nearly 100,000. The Sunday-school membership is about equal to the church membership, which, while it is not what it ought to be, makes a fairly good showing.

The Publishing House has a regular Sunday-school department, with its Editor-in-chief and assistants. All grades of Sunday-school supplies are published in the form of quarterlies, Teachers' Monthly and papers. They are carefully edited, of high grade, and represent the best in their line.

The Sunday-school interests, along with the other great interests of the church, are recognized by the General Conference. The big Sunday-school of the whole year is on Conference Sunday morning. Besides this, these interests come in for special consideration in a program rendered during the days of the week. So it is clearly shown that the interests of the Sunday-school have secured a tremendous hold on the church.

Missions.—In 1858 a plan for mission work was submitted to the Conference for adoption. The plan was not adopted, but the subject was recommended as worthy of serious and prayerful consideration, and the Brotherhood was urged to give it such consideration. The question came up again next year, when a committee of six were appointed to draft a plan to be submitted to the next Conference. To the Conference of 1860 the plan was reported. Again the Conference did not adopt the report, but recommended the subject to favorable consideration.

Then the War of the Rebellion came on in 1861, and continued for four years, which brought many hardships upon the church, and interfered greatly with her work. Again, in 1867, two years after the war closed, the Conference was asked to adopt a plan of missions, but with the same result as in the previous years. Interest was now growing keener, so the matter came up again the next year, when the report, made to the Conference of 1860, was adopted. This was the first action of Conference in adopting a plan. But the plan did not provide for the appointment of a Mission Board.

In 1880, twelve years later, a plan was adopted, providing for general missions. Under the provisions of this plan, a board was appointed, styled "The Domestic and Foreign Missionary Board." This plan was superseded in 1884 by our present plan, operated by the General Mission Board.

When Bro. James Quinter, the treasurer of the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Board, made his final report to Conference, 1884, it was shown that he had received for all purposes during the four years $7,065.71. A balance of $315.80 was in the treasury. Total receipts, the next year, under the present plan, including a Danish building fund of $400, were $3,807.37. Total expenditures, $3,552.09. In the twenty-seven years, since the present plan has been in operation, the receipts have increased from this amount to $76,159.17. The Endowment has reached $621,239. Total assets of the Mission Board, $708,614.

Missions are now maintained in Denmark and Sweden, France, Italy, India and China. The number of American missionaries in these fields is fifty, when they are all at their post of duty. Besides the foreign work, the Board assisted eighteen State Districts at home last year, to the amount of $10,590.

April 1, 1851, in a loft over an old spring-house, near Poland, Ohio, with a publishing outfit worth probably $300, Eld. Henry Kurtz issued the first number of the Gospel Visitor. This humble beginning, under God's blessing, has grown into the splendid Brethren Publishing House, Elgin, Ill., worth $260,000. The revival of the publishing business marks an epoch in the history of the Church of the Brethren and, following this, there has been the most rapid growth and expansion of all her great interests.

Love and Obedience.

JESUS, in John 14: 23, says: "If a man love me, he will keep my words." Then, in the next verse, he adds: "He that loveth me not keepeth not my sayings." From this we may learn that love invariably leads to obedience. The soldier who loves his captain will obey orders and the man who loves his country will cheerfully obey its laws. This is the well-known principle which the Master taught, a principle that is as true today as it was when it was impressed on the minds of his chosen and faithful disciples. To love him meant the keeping of his words, and the world over, the people who loved Jesus, as he intended they should, will do what he has required of them. They will study his teachings, so as to fully understand what he has enjoined upon his followers, and having learned their duty they will cheerfully perform it.

But, on the other hand, the man who is lacking in this love will make no effort to obey his commandments. This principle is just as true as the other principle. If it be a fact that the man who loves the Master will do what the Master in his Word requires, it is also equally true that the man who refuses to conform to these teachings does not love the Master. There is no evading this conclusion. One who neglects command after command may say that he loves his Master, but his conduct contradicts him at every turn. So long as he refuses to live up to the requirements of the Word of God, he has no way under the sun to prove that he really loves the Lord. The principles laid down by Jesus, in the verses cited, are the test principles of true discipleship. The man who loves obeys, and the one who does not obey does not love. Love and obedience go together, and the only way for one to prove that he really loves his Master, is to demonstrate it by the life he lives.

Who Should Lead Out?

We receive a number of letters about stirring up the indifferent churches and inactive members. On this subject we have a few suggestions. We would urge those, who feel that something should be done, to go to work and arouse those who are indifferent. They need not spend time talking about the lack of interest in the church. That is a waste of time and results in no permanent good in the end. It is like the man who lies in bed late in the morning, when so much is to be done, wondering why no one is astir. He should get up, arouse the rest and get things to moving. This is what we would suggest for the indifferent churches. Some one must work up sentiment, and have people to see and feel the necessity of doing something. Those who see the importance of aggressive work should lead out, or get somebody else to lead out. Merely to worry and do a little talking because somebody else fails to do what ought to be done, means just that much more delay. The importance of leading out in this, that and the other good work should be discussed in council meeting, should be preached from the pulpit and urged on every hand. But somebody must take the first step, and that somebody should be the man or the woman who feels the importance of aggressive measures.

The Duty of Messenger Readers.

A CORRESPONDENT, who lives in a congregation of 200 members, says that he was simply surprised when he saw the postmaster open the bundle containing the MESSENGERS taken by those composing the congregation. There were only about twenty copies, where there should have been about four times as many. He thinks that this accounts for the lack of interest upon the part of the members as a body. Now we are wondering why the twenty, who get the paper, do not make it amazingly interesting for those who do not. They might urge the church to appoint a live MESSENGER agent, with instructions to call on every family where there are members, and urge them to take the paper. Our idea is to stir up the whole Brotherhood through those who take the MESSENGER and read it. If we can make live wires of these, then the way is open for aggressive work.

LODGING COMMITTEE NOTICE.

The Lodging Committee for Annual Meeting of 1912, to be held at York, Pa., has organized and held several meetings, to arrange for the lodging and the securing of homes for all those who intend to come to the meeting. We are arranging to lodge quite a number in rooms and tents on the grounds. We expect, by the beginning of the year, to be able to report the amount of rooms we will have; also the size of same. Those who desire to lodge in private families, can all be accommodated. Our city is built up to the grounds, with many beautiful homes. It is the aim of the committee to see that every one is well taken care of. Address all communications pertaining to lodging to the writer. C. G. Trimmer, Chairman.

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL EXTENSION KINDERGARTEN.

Sister Hintz may well be called, "The Founder of the Sunday-school Extension Kindergarten." She taught in vacation school for four years, and has also been superintendent of the primary class for four years. Two years ago Sister Hintz first thought of starting a kindergarten. One of the main objects was to get a foothold on the homes of the neighborhood. Ten little souls were enrolled. The good work was started in the old "Ogden Mission," but had to be abandoned owing to the lack of room and material. Then Sister Hintz took a year's training in a kindergarten school, where she later taught for six months.

Thus, still better qualified, she again began a kindergarten at the Sunday-school Extension. The start was made with eight children. Now the number has grown to eighteen and could be doubled, were there sufficient accommodations. The room best suited for this purpose is, as yet, unfloored and unplastered, owing to lack of funds. In the meanwhile many little ones are clamoring for admittance. Many tired mothers are anxiously awaiting the time when they will be able to get a few hours' relief, knowing that meanwhile their loved ones are being benefited. The kindergarten in the Sunday-school Extension has already, in various ways, proved a real blessing in the Douglas Park neighborhood, and it is appreciated by all. The fee is seventy-five cents a month. A. Beck.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 25.

ROARING SPRING, PA.

Our church at this place recently passed through a season of spiritual refreshing. Eld. J. H. Cassady, of Johnstown, Pa., began a series of meetings Oct. 15. At 7: 30 P. M. the main auditorium of the church was filled with anxious listeners. Each evening brought new souls seeking for the truth, until the house was crowded to its utmost capacity. The meetings grew in interest for three weeks, until twenty-seven repentant ones were received into the church by baptism, and four reclaimed.

Nov. 5 we held our love feast, Eld. Cassady officiating. Other elders and ministers present were: Eld. David Sell, our presiding elder, Eld. D. B. Maddocks, and Bro. R. D. Murphy, who is now at Juniata College. Among the 180 members who surrounded the Lord's tables were some families who had never before communed together. The greatest of reverence was manifested by members of other denominations.

The prospects for the meetings during the following week were such that the elders and Bro. Cassady thought best not to close the meetings, and the fourth week was the climax of our efforts, for one soul for each day of the week took the stand for the right, making a total of thirty-eight who accepted Christ. Each of them still await the rite of baptism. Nov. 12 our meetings closed. On that day Bro. Cassady gave us a sermon on each of the two prevalent evils of the day,—"Fashion's Follies" and "The American Outlaw—the Saloon."

This church, though young in its work as an organized body, and not without its shadows, has almost doubled her membership in one year's time. We praise God for the faithful elders who have come to us, as a flock without a shepherd, during the past year, and have aided in the work. Thus we have been kept together, so as to be refreshed by this series of meetings, and to enjoy many rich spiritual blessings. We trust that the precious faith and principles of the church may continue to draw many into the fold.

We are now anxiously looking forward to the coming of Bro. R. D. Murphy for the next few Sabbaths. He has promised to preach for us at least several weeks, on Sunday morning and evening. Bro. Abram Replogle recently filled the position acceptably. His messages were both practical and concise. He is conducting a midweek prayer meeting each Wednesday evening. This meeting also fills the place of a Sunday-school teachers' meeting, having the Sunday-school lesson as its theme. Sister Clara Replogle is our Sunday-school superintendent; Bro. Oscar Stuckey is the agent for our church literature. We trust that our church may grow, not only in number, but in grace and in the power of the Spirit.

Roaring Spring, Pa., Nov. 13. Elizabeth Barnett.

FROM EASTERN PENNSYLVANIA MISSION BOARD.

The Board held its regular meeting in connection with the Ministerial and Sunday-school Meeting at East Petersburg, Pa. The report of the work in the Oley Valley, east of Reading, shows a growing interest. This is a locality where the Brethren, as a church, are not known. Bro. D. W. Weaver and wife have been working there for some time, having but recently closed a series of meetings at Amityville, Pa.

About April 1, 1911, Bro. Nathan Martin and wife are expected to take up the work at Shamokin, Pa. Bro. William Frets has the work in hand at Alderson, Luzerne County.

The Board appointed a committee to complete arrangements to open a mission point in Tompkins County, New York, on the west side of Lake Cayuga. Bro. E. F. Nedrow and wife are expected to locate in that part of the State. To open up the work there, several of the Board had visited the place. The object in view is to locate a colony there. The country there seems quite favorable for agriculture and fruit raising, being especially well adapted for apple growing. Those wanting to purchase good land at a low figure, with the view of helping to establish a church in a new field, should not fail to look over this part of the State. Ithaca is the Lehigh Valley Railroad, north of Ithaca, N. Y. Any information desired, regarding the place, will be given by addressing the undersigned,—Secretary of Eastern Pennsylvania Mission Board.

Neffsville, Pa., Nov. 11. I. W. Taylor.

TO THE CHURCHES COMPOSING THE MIDDLE DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA.

The writer recently visited the Old Folks' Home at Martinsburg, Pa., and found there in that place fourteen inmates. Everything is in as good a shape as could be expected, under existing circumstances. While the amount, apportioned to each congregation, will meet the running expenses of the Home by rigid economy, the trustees are handicapped in keeping up repairs and making needed improvements.

I therefore suggest that all the churches make up a donation of non-perishable provisions, such as flour, dried fruit, potatoes, canned fruit, or anything else as can be readily shipped. All that is needed in our churches is simply to make it known, and appoint a committee to receive and forward such gifts as the members and their neighbors may have to give. The offerings from each one may be small, but when brought to the Home, the culinary department will be swelled to overflowing.

While thus giving will be a pleasure to the brethren and sisters, it is easy to see what a relief it will be to the trustees, and the money, thus saved, can be applied to improvements, or to liquidating the indebtedness still resting on the Home.

While the trustees have not requested this, I know that they will approve of it. The elders who have charge of the churches are kindly asked to be the movers in this good work. I would prefer to visit the elders or write private letters, but at present it can not be done. May it suffice to make the request through our beloved Messenger. Jas. A. Sell.

Hollidaysburg, Pa., Nov. 6.

ON THE FRONTIER.

We just closed an interesting series of meetings on the frontier of Northern Michigan, in Ogemaw County, fifty miles north of Bay City. There were no accessions to the church, but the meetings were much enjoyed by the faithful little band of members. They were organized into a working congregation last spring. There are about fifty members there now, and still others are moving in. They have two faithful leaders in Eld. J. P. Bowman, formerly of Tennessee, and Bro. J. S. Culver, formerly a minister in the second degree, from Southern Ohio. These ministers, with their families, and other members, are making many sacrifices to "hold up the candle of the Lord" in this ripe harvest field, that will mean much for the glory of God and the spread of the Gospel.

The people came to the meetings mostly on foot or else on big wagons, drawn by three horses. This is necessary because of the mud. Even then the progress was slow indeed. The horses had to rest half a dozen times to the mile. But still the people came and listened intently to the Word preached. All seemed to rejoice, and to hope that the good seed would yet bring a rich harvest of good.

One thing is sure about the future of this place,—it is a goodly land of promise. The soil is fertile and the land lies just right for natural drainage, while the prices are within the reach of the poor. Best of all, the Brethren are already beginning the necessary arrangements for a new churchhouse.

Now, while our brethren are seeking new homes in pioneer fields, why not spend a few dollars to investigate the merits of this great land of promise? B. F. Petry.

YOKOHAMA, JAPAN, TO KOBE.

The "Minnesota" sailed into the harbor of Yokohama early in the morning of Oct. 4, and was to proceed the next day at 10 A. M. We had no passage engaged from Kobe to Tien Tsin, China, and since the boats were all small, we thought it important to secure cabins, rather than wait a week or more for a boat at Kobe. So we hastened ashore and were able, after several hours, to engage cabins on the Nippon Yusen Kaisha line of steamers by making a deposit of Yen 100,—$50. As it rained all day on Wednesday, the boat's cargo of flour for Yokohama could not be unloaded, and so the sailing date was postponed one day.

That same night sixty-eight firemen deserted the "Minnesota." There had been trouble on the way from Seattle, in which several firemen had been severely injured. The particulars of the case none of us could ascertain, but the firemen evidently had their case to the Chinese Consul at Yokohama, and refused to return to work unless a certain officer of the ship be dismissed. At any rate, the date for sailing was postponed from day to day, and no one seemed to know how soon the "Minnesota" would be able to sail. Many passengers were not even allowed to go ashore, except at their own risk, for it was thought the boat might go at any time, should the trouble be settled.

Our boat was to sail from Kobe Oct. 12, and Oct. 10 still found us in the harbor at Yokohama with no promise for sailing within the next twenty-four hours, after which it would be impossible to get to Kobe in time. Thus it was that we decided to take the train for Kobe at the last moment, a ride of seventeen hours, while the boat required thirty-six. Should we miss the boat at Kobe, our deposit of $50 would be forfeited.

Things do not move as fast in Japan as in America, so it took several hours to get our baggage ashore, to pass the custom house, and to have everything sent to the railway station. Though we left the "Minnesota" in the morning, it was 4: 29 in the afternoon before we could get a through train to Kobe. We determined to go second-class, with room or by some package with him. And since all had to sleep in the car, the Japanese men know, in a special way, how to keep enough for themselves, to sleep rather comfortably. So, when we tried to find a place for Emma Horning to lie down on the seats, in a rather comfortable way, we had some difficulty. It is needless to say that we older ones simply sat in the seats and got what sleep we could. It was amusing to us to see the natives doubling up in their own fashion to make themselves exceedingly cozy it. Then, too, to help matters, some one of them would awake once in awhile to smoke a cigarette. The Japanese are inveterate smokers, and yet there are no smoking cars for their special accommodation, so we all got more than we wanted.

We considered it rather unfortunate that we had to make most of the trip at night, when there was so much beautiful scenery along the way. We had several hours of daylight, so we made the best of the situation. Farming is done on the intensive scale, if, indeed, it can be called farming. Very small fields of rice and millet were seen in the valleys on every hand. Around the fields are small embankments, the sheet of which are used to feed the silk worm. The native houses, with so many windows and thatched roofs, looked like play-houses rather than houses in which men really live. The hills looked beautiful with their green grass and foliage. They are terraced to form small fields. It was a beautiful sight.

We passed within a few miles of Japan's mountain,—Fujiyama. We had sighted it several times before leaving the "Minnesota," but were not permitted to see it now, though it was near. In all our visit in Japan we were impressed with the small scale on which practically everything is done. Even the railway cars are small. When noting the size of the baggage car, we calculated that the baggage of our party would fill one.

At any rate, that which seemed an inconvenience to us proved to be a blessing in the end. The "Minnesota" had caused us to miss the boat with which we had hoped to make close connection at Kobe, and yet the next boat meant a matter of six or seven days. To run up a hotel bill for so long a time was not the most pleasant thing to think about While the delay of the "Minneso-ta" detained us at Yokohama, it gave us both board and lodging free of charge until the time of sailing from Kobe, which we are to do today, Oct. 12 Even the wrath of men is made to praise God. B. F. Heckman.

Notes From Our Correspondents

As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country.

CALIFORNIA.

Live Oak.—Our love feast was the first ever held at Live Oak and well attended. Forty-two members communed. Bro. Rose Overholtzer officiated. Eleven visiting brethren and sisters were present from adjoining churches. Bro. Whitmer preached from Los Angeles in the A. M. and Bro. Miller at 7:30 P. M. One was baptized since our last report, and one was reclaimed. Our members need ammunition in the form of ammunition, and one a minister. The church elected Brethren Hiram Hylton and Albert Yeates to the deacon's office.—P. S. Hartman, Live Oak, Cal., Nov. 13.

Los Angeles.—Last Sunday evening Sister Hettie Stouffer, late of Los Angeles, Cal., gave us a thrilling talk on her experiences in the Land of Mosh. Not long since Bro. Pfoe, of Los Angeles, died out in Japan. Last week we sent a contribution of $35 to Bro. J. M. Neff, Springville, Cal. We have a good, strong Bible Department in our college here this year. Some thirty students are enrolled—Grace H. Miller, Lordsburg, Cal., Nov. 13.

Oak Grove.—Our love feast passed off pleasantly. Several ministers and members, from adjoining congregations were present. Their help and presence were greatly appreciated. We expect to hold a Bible term during the Holiday season.—Jennie Overholtzer, Easton, Cal., Nov. 12.

Santa Ana.—Our love feast will long be remembered because of the many good things given us by the visiting brethren and sisters. Eld. S. G. Lehmer officiated. On Sunday, at 11 A. M., Bro. Stephen Stouffer, formerly a missionary of the Berean Bible School, at Los Angeles, Cal., addressed us on the subject of Missionary Endeavor. At 7:30 P. M. Sister Mae, who has such a zeal for the Chinese Mission, spoke to us about some of the work in China; also about the need of more workers to go to China. At the close of her talk $12.80 was lifted for the starting of a Chinese Mission in Los Angeles. At 11 A. M. Bro. B. F. Masterson, of Long Beach, Cal., addressed us. Our church-house was full, and their talks were splendid and uplifting. It having been announced that Sister Stouffer would give us a lecture on her experiences in the land of Mosh, at 6:30 P. M. the house was filled to overflowing. After fifteen minutes' song service, Sister Stouffer lectured for one hour. After talk was over, a collection for Elder Bro. Pugh, 606 East First Street, Santa Ana, Cal., Nov. 13.

Santee Mission is still progressing. We have preaching every Sunday by our union Brethren and a Sunday-school of ninety, uses the Brethren's literature. Nov. 7 this part of San Diego county voted dry; so we are in a prohibition belt. Expect to organize in the near future. We have fifteen members, one elder and one deacon. Some are not members as yet, but we have some prejudice to contend with. Pray for us at Santee.—E. W. Pratt, Box 52, Santee, Cal., Nov. 12.

IDAHO.

Payette Valley.—Since our last report an aged sister has been received by baptism. We held our council Nov. 8. Considerable business came before the meeting. Reports were received, and five were granted. Church officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: Eld. J. H. Hamilton, elder in charge; Bro. J. C. Himsler, treasurer; Bro. T. J. Beckwith, reelected trustee; Sister Hamilton, reelected secretary-treasurer. Our Christian Workers' Meeting was also reorganized; Bro. Albert Michael, elected superintendent; Sister, secretary-treasurer. We are now in the midst of a series of meetings with Eld. Lundahl, assisted by Bro. Hamilton. Nov. 19 is the date set for Eld. J. C. Neher, of Nampa, Idaho, to begin a series of meetings in the Payette house. Bro. Gorham is laboring earnestly and giving us some very impressive sermons.—S. J. Kennpp, Payette, Idaho, Nov. 12.

ILLINOIS.

Big Creek.—Oct. 28 Eld. W. E. West, accompanied by his wife and parents, of Ankeny, Iowa, began a series of meetings, closing the 11th. We had 17 services. There were three out on the Lord's side. Nov. 1 our elder, Bro. D. J. Blickenstaff, of Polo, Ill., came to our help. On the evening of the 4th we held our love feast. About thirty communicants communed. Some were present from adjoining churches. Bro. W. E. West officiated.—J. M. Forney, Mechanicsburg, Ill., Nov. 13.

Ozaw.—Our series of meetings, conducted by Bro. John W. Burton, closed Nov. 25, having been in session four weeks. Our love feast was held the last Saturday evening of the meeting. A number were present from adjoining congregations churches. Bro. Burton officiated. Just prior to the examination services Bro. Noah Buckingham, with his wife, was installed into the deacon's office. Sunday-school officers for Bro. Royer, of Mount Morris, held meetings for one week at the Cremshaw church. Our church has been favored with many rich blessings during the past two months, and should now be able for much greater service.—Mary Myers, Ozawkie, Jefferson, Ill., Nov. 17.

Pleasant Hill.—The members of this congregation met at Girard, Ill., Nov. 8, at 7 P. M., for our regular council. Much business was transacted. Our Sunday-school officers were chosen, with Bro. Elmer A. Gibson as superintendent; Russel Philburn, secretary; Sister Elma Brubaker, superintendent of the primary department. Treasurer's report for the past week reported that they had purchased a building site, and that the church was erecting the edifice on the same during the spring. Our Sunday-school has decided to support a foreign missionary. We will hold our love feast Nov. 18, at 7 P. M., at the Girard house.—Mamie Gibson, Girard, Ill., Nov. 13.

Spring Run.—We met in council Nov. 11. Our elder not being present, Bro. D. J. Blickenstaff filled his place. Bro. J. H. Baker was with us for our council. Bro. Urias Blough was advanced to the eldership. Bro. Hahn asked the Spring Run church to release him from his ministerial duties. His request was granted, and Bro. Urias Blough was chosen. We feel encouraged in our work, here in the field. Our prospects grow brighter for the future.—Amanda Schisler, Ellisville, Ill., Nov. 15.

INDIANA.

Et Biver.—We have decided to hold our love feast Dec. 2, at 2 P. M. This service will be at the beginning of a series of meetings, to be conducted by Bro. G. A. Snider, of Lima, Ohio.—Mary P. Miller, North Manchester, Ind., Nov. 13.

Lower Deer Creek.—Bro. J. F. Appelman closed a very interesting series of meetings at our church on Sunday evening. Sister Appelman was also with us for a few days. Her help and her presence in the meetings was much appreciated. At the beginning of the meetings Bro. Appelman gave us some very interesting lectures on India and China, showing by maps the large area in darkness, compared with the small area that the missionaries were able to cover. Two souls came out for Jesus. We held our love feast Oct. 29, which was well attended.—Cecile Hall, Camden, Ind., Nov. 12.

Middletown.—Today is the time for our regular services at the church east of town, but as it is so stormy and snowing the writer was not able to attend. We did not get our new song books in time for the beginning of our series of meetings, but in time for our regular services and prayer meetings. Ministers who attended our love feast were Brethren Early, Norris, Shepherd, L. L. Teeter and L. W. Teeter. Bro. Early officiated. We are looking forward for a good spiritual series of meetings.—Mildred Bowman, R. 2, D. Green, Box 125, Middletown, Ind., Nov. 18.

Ogans Creek church met in council on Saturday afternoon Nov. 11, with our elder, Bro. Swihart, presiding. One letter was granted. We reorganized our Sunday-school, with Sister Hattie Swihart, superintendent; Bessie Hall, secretary. Bro. William Werking is our church clerk and treasurer; Sister Lucinda Swihart, assistant. Sister Lottie Hoover, missionary solicitor. We decided to make needed improvements on our church-house.—Bessie Hall, R. 3, North Manchester, Ind., Nov. 13.

Pleasant View.—In regular council Nov. 11. Our elder, William H. Shidler, presided. It was decided to have a Thanksgiving meeting. We elected Bro. John Coenower, as our Sunday-school superintendent, and Sister Burkett as our assistant for the coming year.—Mrs. W. H. Shidler, Ocean-ville, Ind., Nov. 13.

Pine Creek.—Our church met in council Nov. 11, at the Blissville house. Our elder, Bro. Daniel Wysong, presided. Eld. W. R. Deeter, of Milford, Ind., Eld. Henry Wysong, of Graves-ton, Ind., and Eld. Daniel Wysong, of Pierceton, Ind., were present. Bro. Daniel Wysong was retained as our elder for another year. Four letters of membership were granted. Sunday-school officers were elected for the ensuing year, with Bro. Arthur Miller as superintendent. We decided to have our council meeting every month instead of every nine weeks. Our next council will be held Dec. 16, at the Center house. Thanksgiving services will be held one hour per day other houses. We will have our Thanksgiving meeting at the Blissville house.—Mrs. Ida Hire, East house.—M. S. Morris, R. D. 1, Walkerton, Ind., Nov. 13.

Prairie Creek.—Our church met in council Nov. 9. After the business was transacted Eld. Jacob Studebaker was appointed to ordain an assistant elder. As Eld. J. D. Mishler was not present, Eld. Studebaker ordained Bro. Jacob Hoover and H. L. Hatcher. The writer was unanimously elected by the church.—Daniel Hoover, Bluffton, Ind., Nov. 13.

South Bend (First Church of the Brethren).—We met in special council Nov. 13, to prepare for our love feast, to be held on Thanksgiving evening. Some matters of the Sunday-school recently been received into the church by baptism. Our Sunday-school is progressing nicely. Bro. Ira Hoff has been elected organization of a men's Bible class, with Bro. E. C. Miller as teacher.—Mrs. Ira Hoff, 1121 Portage Ave., Nov. 13.

Walnut Level.—Our church met in council Nov. 16, with Bro. D. B. Sell presiding. Bro. Jesse Ellis, of Portland, Ind., and Bro. Levi Huffman, of Prairie Creek, Ind., present. The business was transacted satisfactorily.—Malinda S. Studebaker, R. D. 2, Box 49, Bluffton, Ind., Nov. 18.

IOWA

Albia.—Eld Abraham Wolf, of Udell, Iowa, was with us on Sunday and preached two splendid sermons for us. Both services were well attended. Several persons were here that had moved to other parts. We had a good Sunday-school. Our Sunday-school was well attended. Twenty-two were present last Sunday. Collection, $1.04; cold day.—Samuel Miller, 29 Tenth Avenue, West, Albia, Iowa, Nov. 13.

Des Moines.—The closing services of our revival, conducted by Bro. John Heckman, were held Nov. 12. The last day was an unusually stormy day. Bro. Heckman preached in our tent in the morning. At 2 P. M. he spoke in Swedish, Iowa, and the home ministers. Bro. Heckman preached twenty-four sermons in the tent and in the city. We are conducting one noon-day shop meeting and several cottage prayer services. Our tent is now open for meetings every daytime. The sermon work was of a very helpful and inspiring character, and directed, very often, to the members rather than to the unsaved. We feel that much good has been done in the way of deepening of our own spiritual lives, and in the setting of a higher standard of living before us. The tent meetings have been worth while. We rejoice that five young people made the good fight of faith and confessed Christ. Two were baptized, and united "Boys' Messenger Service" distributed over 400 copies of the Messenger. Our Sunday-school Messenger last week—Virgil C. Pinnell, 1643 Lyon St., Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 18.

Panora.—A young brother was baptized yesterday. Two more of our young people will be baptized next week, the writer at Bethany Bible School, and later several more young people are expected.—Ezra Flory, Panora, Iowa, Nov. 18. W. W. Wise, a member of our District Mission Board, will commence a series of meetings in the Panora house Dec. 3. We are hoping and praying for good results from all these efforts.—J. D. Hoffaker, Panora, Iowa, Nov. 13.

Prairie City.—Our church received a visit from Bro. I. W. Brubaker and wife, of Grundy Center, Iowa. It seemed good to meet them. Their visit was a source of much cheer and praise, and to see Bro. Brubaker in his accustomed place. Oct. 29 he gave us a talk which was enjoyed by all present. Three discourses during the week, which were rich in spiritual food. Nov. 1, Bro. Brubaker spoke to a good sermon on Sunday forenoon. Bro. Amos Moomaw gave a good talk in the evening on practical and free applications, with now and then a good illustration. Sunday-school lesson.—Jennie Alexander, R. D. 2, Monroe, Iowa, Nov. 8.

KANSAS.

Belleville.—We have enjoyed another love feast held Nov. 11. Our elder, Bro. E. D. Steward, officiated. Although the evening was very cold and stormy, a large number met to partake and to serve. Sister Steward's cake was enjoyed by all present. Three discourses during the week, which were rich in spiritual food. Nov. 12, Bro. Ross Stutsman gave a good sermon on Sunday forenoon. Bro. Amos Moomaw gave a good talk in the evening on practical and free applications, with now and then a good illustration. Sunday-school lesson.—Jennie Alexander, R. D. 2, Monroe, Iowa, Nov. 8.

MISSOURI.

Belleville.—We have enjoyed another love feast held Nov. 11. Our elder, Bro. E. D. Steward, officiated. Although the evening was very cold and stormy, a large number met to partake and to serve. Sister Steward's cake was enjoyed by all present. Three discourses during the week, which were rich in spiritual food. Nov. 12, Bro. Ross Stutsman gave a good sermon on Sunday forenoon. Bro. Amos Moomaw gave a good talk in the evening on practical and free applications, with now and then a good illustration. Sunday-school lesson.—Jennie Alexander, R. D. 2, Monroe, Iowa, Nov. 8.

Conway Springs.—Bro. James Hardy, of Kansas City, Kans., closed a three weeks' series of meetings here last night. The inclemency of the weather hindered the meetings somewhat. There were no accessions, but we had good meetings. Bro. Hardy will be with us for a few days next month. We held our love feast Nov. 4, which was highly spiritual. About 125 members communed. Eld. J. H. Moore was present and elect officers for the coming year. Bro. A. J. Smith was chosen as our elder. Bro. William E. Trexel was chosen Sunday-school superintendent; Bro. J. M. Troxel, president of Christian Workers' Meeting; Bro. J. J. Bowser, Messenger correspondent. Bro. J. J. Bowser, Messenger correspondent. Cora Pruntz are the members of our Orphanage Board.—J. J. Bowser, Conway Springs, Kans., Nov. 13.

Kansas City.—Nov. 5 we commenced a series of meetings at our mission church. The attendance and interest were very good. Thus far three have been baptized, and others are to be received by the same rite. We expect to hold our spiritual love feast, with about fifty communicants. We had with us Eld. Moses Hardy and Bro. James Hardy. Our prospects for the upbuilding of a strong church in this locality are good. The time set for a new organization is Dec. 18, when we expect our Mission Board to be with us. We have an excellent body of working members, but we also have a dark side to our work. In our twenty-one years' experience, in our city, there is more want for bread, clothing and fuel, and a greater number are sick, who need medicine, than ever before. Many are thankful to have merely bread enough, and water to drink.—I. H. Crist, 12 North Perree St., Kansas City, Kans., Nov. 17.

Lawrence church met in council Nov. 10. Our elder, Bro. H. L. Brammell, presided. Considerable business came before the meeting. Since our last report one member has been received by letter. The dedicatory sermon will be preached Dec. 10, to be followed by a series of meetings, lasting at least two weeks, closing with a love feast. Sister Mary Brubaker, Leonard Root, and his wife have been located here to take charge of the work. We hope for at least one more. There is a mission point. We are praying for an ingathering at this church.—Mrs. J. A. Root, 1326 Ohio, Lawrence, Kans., Nov. 15.

Masterson.—We met in council Nov. 13, at 7 P. M. The church visit was reported and all the members were found in peace. Three letters were read and granted. Our series of meetings will begin Jan. 16; our evangelist, Bible normal, Jan. 8. We are having splendid Christian Workers' Meetings each Sunday afternoon. We have prayer-meetings each Wednesday evening. The Junior Band recently gave an auction, conducted by Sister Ida Gauss, for the benefit of their parents. A temperance band of little boys, has been organized, which no doubt will do much good in Jesus' name.—Sarah Witmore Harnly, McPherson, Kans., Nov. 16.

Morrill.—Our love feast will be held at this place Dec. 16, at 6 P. M. Eld. S. E. Thompson will be with us to begin a series of meetings at Morrill Dec. 7.—B. B. Smith, Morrill, Kans., Nov. 17.

Ozawkie.—Bro. N. F. Brubaker, of Fruita, Colo., came to us Oct. 21 and commenced a series of meetings, continuing until Nov. 5. He labored earnestly and preached the Word with power. The church was strengthened and built up in the fellowship, and others almost persuaded. Our love feast was held Nov. 4, Bro. Brubaker officiating, assisted by Eld. A. J. Wine, of Wichita, Kans. Sunday, Nov. 5, we met in council with our elder, Bro. A. J. Root, presiding.—H. L. Brammell, Ozawkie, Jefferson, Kans., Nov. 13.

Peabody.—Our church met in council Nov. 4. Eld. J. J. Yoder presided. Considerable business was transacted. Church officers were elected for the coming year.—Alice Depler, Peabody, Kans., Nov. 13.

Quinter.—Our church held a love feast Nov. 4, at the close of a week's revival, conducted by our elder, Bro. D. A. Crist, assisted also at times by Brethren Hoover and Wolfe. Although the result of the meetings one was baptized. Since our last report one was received by letter. We have a mission point with two appointments in our congregation. The members are greatly strengthened. Our next love feast will be held Dec. 16.—Mrs. Ida Quinter, Kans., Nov. 13.

Wade Branch church met in council Nov. 11. Our elder, Bro. D. A. Crist, presided. One letter of membership was read. We reelected Sunday-school officers for the next quarter, with Bro. Frank Bowman superintendent and his wife secretary. A church clerk and correspondent was elected. Brethren D. A. Crist and Frank Bowman were elected as delegates to committee.—Jessy Beaghly, R. D. 1, Paola, Kans., Nov. 15.

Wichita.—Commencing Nov. 5, Eld. A. J. Wine began a series of meetings for us. He labored very earnestly for a week and a half. Owing to bad weather conditions, much of the time, attendance was poor, and results not what we had hoped for. The members feel strengthened, and we pray the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers. Bro. Wine sang most of the meetings Bro. E. E. John, of McPherson, Kans., was with us and gave some inspiring talk.—Ira Sherfy, R. D. 1, Neal, Kans., Nov. 13.

MARYLAND.

Denton.—We closed a successful series of meetings at this place Nov. 12, conducted by Bro. A. P. Snader. Twenty-one came out on the Lord's side, and the church was greatly strengthened by Bro. Snader's earnest labors here. Baptismal services were conducted on Sunday morning, prior to our communion in the afternoon. Bro. Snader's sermons were unsurpassable, we had a very spiritual feast. About 140 communicants. Brethren Wolfe, Hollinger and Brothers were with Brethren A. P. Snader, Samuel Utz, U. P. Englar, E. F. Clark and L. E. Hollinger. Bro. Snader will be with us for the council Nov. 3, with Eld. G. S. Raigh presiding. Considerable business came before the meeting. Sunday-school elections, also February, amounted to $124.64. Bro. C. P. Holsinger was elected Sunday-school superintendent, and Bro. Samuel Utz, secretary. Bro. Utz, Christian Workers' Meeting. —Edna P. Pentz, Tucktoe, Md., Nov. 15.

MISSOURI.

Cabool.—We met in called council Nov. 4, at the Cabool house, preparatory to our communion services, Nov. 18. The report of the annual visit was read and accepted. Bro. Hall's services as leader, owing to labor for the church. Plans were discussed how to get negligent members to attend church services. Eld. Hall was elected to fill the vacancy caused by Hall, and two daughters. Bro. S. E. Thompson, of Lincoln, Nebraska, began a series of meetings Nov. 5, which continued two weeks, with one applicant for baptism. His preaching was well received by the people. Brethren Bright and Williams with meetings at the Greenwood house.—Mabel Gitt, Cabool, Mo., Nov. 13.

Centerview.—Our church enjoyed a very spiritual communion service Oct. 21. Eld. Jesse Mohler and others, of Warrensburg, Missouri, were with us. We had a week of interesting series of meetings, conducted by Bro. Geo. D. Kung, who labored earnestly and faithfully. He preached the Word with power each evening, and sinners were made to tremble. The best of interest was manifested and several requests were given in unusually large attendance. Bro. Jesse Wagoner, of Red Cloud, Nebr., was with us the last week of our meetings and conducted the singing. Bro. Wagoner's daughter, Sister Elda Gauss, Centerview, Mo., Nov. 12.

Fairview church met in council Nov. 11. Our elder, Bro. J. B. Hylton, presided. A collection of $12 was taken for mission work. Bro. Hylton was appointed to solicit.—Maggie Hylton, R. D. 1, Macomb, Mo., Nov. 13.

Poplar.—Our church met in council Nov. 11, in order to call one of our brethren to the ministry. Bro. W. P. Burress was elected, and he is endeavoring faithfully to do the work imposed upon him. Bro. A. J. Wine was elected elder. Bro. J. Snider, of Nevada, Mo., will begin a series of meetings at the Poplar house Dec. 2. Our love feast will be held Dec. 9. We feel encouraged and desire the prayers of all loyal children.—Mrs. Elizabeth Hylton, 1 Cleo Avenue, Joplin, Mo., Nov. 7.

South St. Joseph Mission.—Our love feast, held Nov. 11, was a rich spiritual feast, despite the severe blizzard, which kept many away. Bro. E. N. Huffman, of the South church, officiated. Bro. Huffman's following sermon was well received by letter, one of them being a deacon. Our little band was much encouraged and made to realize more than that our prayers have at last been answered, and we have funds sufficient to liquidate our church debt. Quite a burden has been lifted. Our offerings can now be used in relieving distress and suffering, so common in all city missions.—J. S. Kline, 2319 St. Joseph Ave., St. Joseph, Mo., Nov. 13.

South St. Joseph Mission.—After a brief absence, we are again in the work. Bro. Ira Hoff, of South Bend, Ind., arrived here from Brumbaugh, N. Dak., Nov. 11, and found the members as well as usual, and glad to see us back. We decided to conduct the Sunday morning service, and at 8 P. M. gave a lecture on "How the Liquor Traffic Affects the Laboring Class." At the close of the services one was restored. We are now entering the two Sundays—one at the church, and one in Hyde Park, where a suitable building has been secured. Last Lord's Day we had an attendance of forty-five; collection, seventy-nine cents. Bro. Andy Fuller is our superintendent of this school, and Bro. Claude Carpenter is superintendent of the Sunday-school at the church. Our mission territory was affected by the floods of last month, and many of our brethren and their families had to be moved to higher ground, after losing much of their furniture, clothing and food. We can use a great deal of second-hand clothing supplies for the relief of our poor.—E. N. Huffman, 502 Kentucky St., St. Joseph, Mo., Nov. 15.

To the Sunday-schools of Middle Missouri.—Our District Sunday-school Meeting and Bible Institute will be held in the Mineral Creek church on Saturday, Dec. 9, and Sunday, 10. We have arranged for Bro. J. B. Trout to conduct the Institute work. Each school is requested to be represented at the meeting by one or more delegates. The program will appear later.—Executive Committee, Jay C. Flory, V. Knox, Adrian, Mo., Nov. 13.

Warrensburg.—We have recently enjoyed such a blessing as we have not had since the beginning of organized work in the Northwest. Three weeks ago a dear sister, who had never been satisfied with her confession and baptism, requested a made application for membership in the Brethren church, and was baptized a few days before her happy departure to a better world. Oct. 22 Eld. E. G. Rodabaugh, of Stet, Mo., began a series of meetings, in which he was assisted by several well-directed sermons. His work was careful, inspiring to the members, and searching to the unsaved. Nine of our Sunday-school scholars accepted the invitation. Seven were duly baptized Nov. 4, just prior to our love feast, at which fifty-five members feasted. Bro. Rodabaugh preached the last service, which was greatly enjoyed. Nov. 5 our brother closed his work and went on to preform other appointments with progress. We appreciated each service given us, and the church rejoiced in the privilege of being in the gospel harvest field. In addition to those baptized, one dear soul, a grandmother, made application, which was accepted. An hour after the application, she sustained an injury from a runaway and the baptism for several months. She and the church rejoice that she has the good choice while in her strength.—Jesse D. Mohler, Warrensburg, Mo., Nov. 8.

NEBRASKA.

Glenrock.—Our church met in council Nov. 4. Our elder, Bro. W. W. Blough, of Falls City, Nebr., presided. One letter was granted and four accepted. As officers for the coming year we elected Bro. C. S. Roop, clerk, and another brother, treasurer. Our correspondent was reelected. As we are few in number and our field is large and needs attention, it was decided to hold our councils twice a year, the last Sunday of March and September. We quote from the letter of our aged sister, "Grandma Culp" (wife of our former elder, Bro. A. B. Culp), in remembrance of the brethren and sisters. She is suffering very much with stomach trouble.—D. Belle Dickerson, R. D. 1, Auburn, Nebr., Nov. 14.

Lincoln.—Our last report we received two young people,—man and wife,—into the church by baptism, and lost one by death. Bro. Smith is in his usual health and strength. Our pastor is gone at present, but will soon be home. Our regular appointments have been filled by local help and visiting elders.—W. H. North Twenty-third Street, Lincoln, Nebr., Nov. 8.

Notice to Churches in Northern Nebraska.—The committee to secure workers for the District Bible Institutes wish to hear from all churches that desire to have an Institute. Churches will take precedence in the time that they report. Reports should be prompt.—J. S. Sabel, Clerk of Committee, 1846 South Seventeenth Street, Lincoln, Nebr., Nov. 13.

NEW MEXICO.

Miami.—The meetings, conducted by Bro Levi Snell, closed on Sunday evening, Nov. 5, with the reception of members by one sheaf. Inclement weather, a part of the time, caused the meetings to be small in attendance, but an interesting meeting and feel that we have all been made stronger.—Mollie Toolinger, Miami, N. Mex., Nov. 13.

OHIO.

Blanchard.—Our series of revival meetings closed Oct. 29. Bro. J. L. Guthrie conducted the services. Four were baptized during the meetings. Our love feast was held Oct. 21. Brethren N. J. Cool and J. L. Guthrie were with us. Bro. Guthrie officiated.—L. J. Hoffman, Dupont, Ohio, Nov. 11.

Covington.—Re-enrolment day dawned bright and clear. The teachers had told their classes, that a new enrolment would be taken and urged each one to be in his place. To the joy of all, the attendance reached the climax on this Sunday. As the opening hour came, every seat was filled and during the Sunday-school was crowded to its utmost capacity. Each teacher went over his class record, and in addition, used also the lesson the enrollment was given. Including the cradle roll and our home department, our enrollment is 300 in the Sunday-school. Most of these remained for the preaching service. Our young people seem to enjoy the sermon as much as the Bible-school lesson. We have had good Sunday-school evening services before. We praise the Lord for his blessings. On Sunday evening the audience filled the house and the Sunday-school room, while Bro. Flory preached the truth as it is in Jesus. Some of the sermon sentences would sink deep into one and three came forward. Four have been baptized since our last report. Many more are seriously thinking over their soul's salvation.—Elizabeth D. Rosenberger, Covington, Ohio, Nov. 14.

Donnels Creek.—Bro. J. A. R. Couser, of Southern Ohio, who is conducting singing classes at the New Carlisle and country churches, preached at the county house on the evening of Nov. 12. Bro. L. A. Bookwalter, of Trotwood, Ohio, preached a temperance sermon in the Christian Church on the evening of the same day. A love feast was held at the Sunday-school room Nov. 18. Elders L. R. Peifer and David Leatherman had charge of the meeting.—Elsie Winget, R. D. 1, Box 173, Springfield, Ohio, Nov. 13.

Green Spring.—Our church met in council Nov. 11. Our elder, Bro. E. Shepfer, presided. Considerable business was transacted. Bro. L. J. Miller was elected superintendent for the Green Grove Sunday-school. Sister Mary Miller was chosen a member on the Christian Worker committee; Sister Mary E. Miller, sub-agent for the Orphans' Home; Bro. G. W. Bock, Messenger agent.—Mrs. J. H. Painter, Old Fort, Ohio, Nov. 14.

Greenwood.—Oct. 28 Bro. William Bisler, of East Akron, Ohio, began a series of meetings at this place, continuing till the next Lord's day, Nov. 5. Nov. 11 we held our council with our elder, Bro. E. Shepfer, presided, assisted by Bro. Bixler. Bro. Frank Hoffman was elected to the ministry. Bro. Bixler and Perry Cooperider and Thomas Aldridge were elected to the deacon's office. The following Sunday we had our annual love feast. While there were no accessions, during the meetings, the church feels greatly encouraged.—Max Hartsough, Glenford, Ohio, Nov. 14.

Palestine church met in council Oct. 28, prior to our love feast. Bro. J. C. Bright presided. Two letters of membership were granted. Bro. Bright remained with us, and preached on Sunday morning. At the close of the service, 4. About 144 members surrounded the Lord's tables. Bro. A. S. Hoff officiated. Other visiting brethren present were Brethren Nathan Groff, E. Noffsinger, David Hollinger and Moses Hollinger. On Sunday morning Bro. Neher gave a talk to the children, which was followed by a temperance talk by Bro. B. F. Sharp. A collection of $8.68 was taken for the temperance cause.—Ella Hollinger, R. D. 3, Greenville, Ohio, Nov. 12.

Upper Twin.—Oct. 14 and 15 we held our love feast at the Wheatville house, which was well attended. On the evening of the 15th our series of meetings commenced, and closed Oct. 29. Bro. Jesse Ebey, of Eaton, did the meetings, and much interest was manifested. Sinners were warned to flee the wrath to come, and the saints were greatly built up in the inner man. Nov. 5 we had our council meeting.—Della Deaton, R. D. 16, Schilling, Ohio, Nov. 14.

OKLAHOMA.

Monitor.—Our love feast was held Oct. 21. Bro. Joseph Glick officiated. About seventy members surrounded the Lord's tables. It was a blessed season. Two have been baptized since was large, and very good order prevailed. Bro. Joseph Glick presided over us on Sunday.—Mrs. Cora Ayres, R. D. 2, Nash, Okla., Nov. 10.

OREGON

Mohawk Valley.—Our elder, Bro. H. H. Keim, of Newberg, Oregon, came to us Nov. 1, and remained with us till the evening of Nov. 2 we held a council meeting, for the purpose of preparing for our love feast. Bro. Keim gave counsel to and visit to the members, after which we made arrangements for the feast. Nov. 3 we enjoyed a good spiritual feast, with Bro. Keim officiating. We had a large crowd of spectators, with quite a number and visitors. We expect some to join in with us in the near future. Bro. Keim is doing a good work in this church. He was with us from Nov. 1 to 5, and preached with good success for us. Our church house has been repainted. Bro. Henry Royer has been appointed as our church solicitor. Bro. Keim is expected to be with us for a series of meetings in the new year. Our council will be held Jan. 5. Bro. Keim will remain with us until then.—Sarah Bricker, Mabel, Oregon, Nov. 9.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Fairview.—Our love feast, held Nov. 6 and 7, was well attended, considering the heavy rainfall. Our elder, Bro. William Gilbert, presided. Bro. Jacob Metz, of the Little Swatara church, officiated. A number of ministers from the surrounding congregations were present. Prior to our love feast, one soul was baptized. Nov. 5 Bro. Gilbert visited the home of a sister, who could not be present at our love feast. Services will be held on Thanksgiving day.—Mrs. Ella Hollinger, Fairview, Pa., Nov. 10.

Riverside.—Our church is located in Somerset County, Pa., Nov. 7, the temperance people gained a decisive victory. Owing to the fact that the liquor and temperance man who is opposed to the liquor business from beginning to end, a majority of 11,712 voters placed themselves on record as favoring prohibition.—Mrs. Emma Bloom, R. D. 2, Meyersdale, Pa., Nov. 10.

Indian Creek.—Bro. J. H. Longenecker, "of Palmyra, Pa., opened a series of meetings Oct. 21. He preached every evening for two weeks. He was with us from the start to the close of service and Sunday-school. Our love feast was held Nov. 4. We met at 1:30 p. m. Bro. Longenecker and his wife and two were baptized. We had an enjoyable feast. Brethren Crumbaker, Boor, Bottet and Smith were with us from adjoining churches. Nov. 5 Bro. J. H. Longenecker left for his home. The evening our meetings closed with a crowded house.—Hannah M. Shisler, Palmyra, Pa., Nov. 10.

Little Swatara.—Our church held a local Sunday-school meeting Oct. 29. The following program was given by the town church. The following program was rendered, with Eld. Jacob Hertzler presiding: Address of Welcome, by our elder, Bro. E. M. Wenger; "What Constitutes a Model Sunday-school?" by Brethren H. C. Ziegler and H. M. Frantz; "How Can We Have an Interesting Sunday-school?" by Brethren A. L. Light and J. W. Myer; "What Can Be Done to Increase the Home Department?" by Brethren J. W. Myer and sisters of our church. Some of the visiting brethren and sisters were present. Our correspondent was Bro. Jacob W. Meyer, Jr., of Elizabethtown, Pa., who gave us also an interesting address. Sunday-school was held Nov. 5 at Myerstown, Pa., Nov. 10.

Lower Cumberland.—Our two weeks' series of meetings, at the Bermudian house, closed on Sunday evening, with a good-sized audience, considering the weather conditions. Bro. Adam Gallinger, of Mechanicsburg, Pa., conducted the meetings. As an immediate result of the meetings, fifteen were added to the church by baptism, and others by restoration, and others to come. The attendance and order were good, and splendid interest was manifested. Our congregation was strengthened spiritually. Bro. Samuel Hertzler, of Elizabethtown, Pa., will begin a two weeks' series of meetings at the Welgamuth church Nov. 18. Our next council will be held at the same house, Dec. 16.—G. W. Hartzler, Dover, Pa., Nov. 14.

Mechanicsburg.—Our love feast (reported in previous issue).—On Friday evening, Nov. 3, we had with us our missionaries from India, Brethren Enoch Eby and Sister Eby. To meet with our missionaries gives us new inspiration. Bro. Blough's sermon was very instructive and interesting, and we still hold our love feast on Thanksgiving Day, at 7:30 P. M., sharp.—Sarah E. Schell, 1906 North Park Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 11.

Philadelphia (First Church of the Brethren, Dauphin Street above Broad).—We hold our love feast Nov. 18. Ministers present were J. T. Myers, W. I. Beck, J. M. Blough, M. C. Swigart, J. Wesley Myers, and Elder Wolfe. Nov. 12 Bro. J. M. Blough officiated, assisted by Brethren J. T. Myers, W. I. Beck and J. Wesley Myers. Nov. 13 Bro. J. M. Blough gave a good missionary sermon on Sunday evening, which inspired us with a greater love for our missionaries, and greater zeal in the work. At the close of the service a liberal free-will collection was taken.—Mrs. Sallie B. Schnel, 1906 North Park Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 11.

West Johnstown.—On the evening of Nov. 2 Eld. Galen B. Royer, Secretary of the Church Missionary Board, of Elgin, Ill., and gave us an interesting talk on our India and China mission fields and their present needs and the need of the medical missionaries. Nov. 5 Elder W. R. Miller preached an excellent sermon in Roxbury on the theme, "The Church the Light of the World." On the following week we had a series of lectures in the Pleasant Hill church. Nov. 12 he preached in the forenoon, and in the evening he gave a lecture on his many experiences with Bedouin robbers, and their miraculous escapes. Nov. 13 he preached in the forenoon, and in the evening Roaring Spring Pa., where he conducted a month's revival meeting. Brethren, pray for us and for the evangelist, that he may begin a protracted effort in our Morrellville house.—Jerome E. Blough, R. D. 5, Johnstown, Pa., Nov. 13.

TENNESSEE.

Mountain Valley.—The Ministerial Meeting of the District of Tennessee, which convenes every fifth Sunday, was held at this place Oct. 27 and 28. On account of previous rains, which delayed the people in their seeding, there were but few members present, and consequently but few of the visiting ministers. The topics before the meeting were well discussed. We also had three meetings at night, which were well attended. Our young minister, Bro. R. B. Pritchett, gave us two most interesting talks.—W. H. Wine, Ballegton, Tenn., Nov. 14.

VIRGINIA.

Fairview.—One of our home ministers, Bro. W. C. Hoover, held a series of meetings at Fairview. The attendance and interest were good. Two Sunday-school boys were baptized, and are now busy workers in the vineyard of the Lord.—Catherine R. Kline, West Alexandria, Va., Nov. 13.

Mount Joy (Bethel house).—Bro. S. C. Thompson, of Oakvale, W. Va., came to us Oct. 27 and remained with us until Nov. 5. He preached with power. Seven were baptized. We came out for Christ. Bro. C. D. Reed baptized seven on Sunday and one was received by statement. Bro. Reed is doing the rite of baptism. Five of these baptized were Sunday-school scholars. The members are much encouraged and built up.—J. W. Fansler, R. D. 1, Eagle Rock, Va., Nov. 10.

Oak Hill.—We held our love feast Oct. 28, with about fifty members surrounding the Lord's tables. Bro. Geo. A. Phillips, of Wayne County, commenced protracted meetings at Oak Hill Oct. 24, closing Nov. 5. His presence was missed for at our love feast. Brethren D. Boo, Phillips officiated. At our love feast Brethren Wolfe Ritchie, Walter Ritchie, Harvey N. Dak, and our elder, Bro. John M. Claushan. We were much pleased that Bro. Phillips could be with us.—Jacob M. Pauley, Seven Fountains, Va., Nov. 15.

Salem.—Our church held our love feast Nov. 4. We had a pleasant and spiritual feast. Brethren Samuel Crumpacker and Emery Crumpacker were with us. Bro. Samuel Crumpacker officiated, and also preached an interesting sermon on Sunday.—Jennie Saunders, Goodview, Va., Nov. 10.

WASHINGTON.

Coutralia.—Oct. 14 our church met in special council. Bro. C. L. Myers was ordained to the eldership, and he and his wife were duly installed. Elder Silvercruys was reinstated in the ordination service. Oct. 23 Eld. Andrew Hutchison began a series of soul-inspiring meetings, which have been born into the kingdom, all of them heads of families except one. Since our last communion services, with Bro. Secrist officiating. Since our last report two have been received by letter, and one letter was granted.—Anna Myers, Centralia, Wash., Nov. 13.

Wenatchee.—Oct. 28 an all-day service was held at the church schoolhouse, in the Wenatchee Valley. Seven points in the forenoon a special harvest sermon was delivered by Eld. J. J. Fillhart, of Mount Vernon Bro. C. N. Hutchison gave a missionary sermon. A collection of $7.28 was sent to Bethany Bible School. Nov. 12 a special temperance program, consisting of appropriate recitations and songs, was rendered by the Sand Hill Sunday-school, carrying out the suggestions made by District Meeting for a unified effort in the temperance cause. The program was followed with a temperance address by Bro. Hutchison. The collection of $7.99 was taken, which will be used in the Washington District temperance work.—Minnie Sollers, R. D. 4, Wenatchee, Wash., Nov. 12.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Mathias.—Bro. I. N. H. Beahm, of Nokesville, Va., gave us a week's series of meetings. He denounced sin and wickedness, and upheld righteousness. Christian living with much earnest power, and plead for a deeper spirituality. His appeals to the unsaved were forceful and pointed, and many will be lead to leave for home when the interest was the keenest, and when the power was the most apparent. Five were added by baptism and three reclaimed. Eld. Beahm has left behind him a high Christian living.—L. D. Caldwell, Mathias, W. Va., Nov. 12.

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches"

SAND RIDGE, OHIO.

Our revival services, conducted by Bro. A. C. Wright, closed with remarkable interest. Three were born into the kingdom by baptism. One expressed his willingness to return again to the fold, to be reinstated at once. The meetings were a success. The Lord has wonderfully blessed this church, as well as the community at large, through the consecrated efforts of our dear brother. The friends and brethren, who have been here for a long time, tell us that we had the largest, most orderly and most attentive audience the Brethren have had for fifteen years.

Yesterday, at 10 A. M., the funeral service of a young man was conducted by the writer, and at 2 P. M. we went to the place prepared for baptism, where the three before mentioned,—a young wife and two young men,—were born into the kingdom. At 4 P. M. we went to the church for the introductory service to our love feast,—the first at this place for two or three years.

The Sand Ridge church is the remains of what was once one of the best of Ohio's pioneer churches. The membership is small, and the interest was almost dead, to the extent that the members were thinking of locking up the house and quitting. The appointments had been filled every two weeks by ministers from adjoining congregations, by the aid of the Mission Board.

I began my labors, as pastor of this church, in September of this year, and took up my permanent abode in their midst Oct. 14, the day before our revival began. I have spent all my time, since then, in assisting Bro. Wright. Together we visited nearly every home within a radius of several miles of the church, getting acquainted, inviting them to the meetings, doing personal work, and distributing tracts. The Lord has blessed us abundantly in our work. We feel that there are many who are near the kingdom, and we regretted that Bro. Wright could not remain for another week. We need an interest in the prayers of our dear brethren and sisters, so that we may be the means of bringing more souls into the kingdom, thus maintaining the interest that has been created.

We are now preparing for a singing school, to begin as soon as we can secure an instructor. We find, in our house-to-house visiting, that about eighty per cent of the families we visited are not members of any church, although there are about a dozen congregations within a radius of six miles. Truly, the fields are white, and the harvest is great! Everywhere we went we were received with the greatest respect, and the people are usually frank and courteous. They are easy to approach and willing to talk along religious lines. O how I wish we could, in some way, remove the barriers before it is too late! I feel that this community needs a pastor who can give the work his entire time and attention. I truly hope that the way will be opened, so that I can.

Joel A. Vancil.

Hamler, Ohio, Nov. 7.

WAYNE, COLORADO.

Last Wednesday evening we arrived home from Haxtum, Colo., where we held a two weeks' series of meetings. While the weather was very inclement most of the time, still the interest was splendid. The meetings closed with a full house, and increased interest. Two dear souls have been baptized, and others are near the kingdom. One dear aged grandmother, who used to sit during the meetings with tears rolling down over her cheeks, told us afterward that she could scarcely wait until the invitation was given. Only for the fact that she is merely a visitor there, and going where there are none of our congregation, she would have united with our people. While laboring with the members there, we were made to feel that "truly the harvest is great, but the laborers few."

Bro. Joel Kinzie is their only minister, who, with the increasing years and his daily cares, feels that the responsibility is greater than he can successfully carry out. Bro. Kinzie, and all the rest of the members, are anxious to help some good, strong, energetic young minister who is willing to go and live among them, and preach the Gospel for them. We believe that there is a great opportunity there for the Brethren to build up a good, strong church, if some one could be induced to go there and locate on a part of his time to the work.

We gathered, from the sentiments expressed, that the members would be willing to help, in a material way, any one who would like to take this field. While it is a field that would require much work, we believe it would result in much good.

The Brethren there are located in a fine, level country, where good land can be bought from $10 to $40 per acre, depending upon improvements and distance from the railroad. The nucleus of the church is only a few miles from the railroad, and a good trading point on a branch of the C., B. & Q. R. R., between Sterling, Colo., and Holdredge, Nebr.

The members are very anxious for some minister to come among them and help build up the work. When we think that the value of a soul is incomprehensible, and that there are many who, by proper efforts, would soon be in the kingdom, it would seem there ought to be a man for the place somewhere, especially since we have so many talented young men, who are anxious to secure for themselves cheap homes. Land, desirable in location and quality, may be bought there very reasonably and on easy terms.

While we are praying that the Lord will send more laborers into his field, we trust that some one may take note of this little missive, and become sufficiently interested to write to Bro. Joel Kinzie, Bro. Banford or Bro. H. J. Fuller, all of Haxtum, Colo.

J. C. Groff.

CEMENTED TOGETHER.

Recently the writer helped a good farmer in the building of a cave—an underground room for canned fruit, milk, etc. Cave building, like nearly everything else, in these modern times, has undergone changes. Where they once used lime and sand for making mortar,—the filling between the stones in the walls,—now cement and sand are used. Cement is a bit more expensive than lime, but far greater adhesive power is claimed for it.

That farmer believes in building well, so he provided good stones for the walls and good cement for mortar. I must add sand. The mason did his work well. A splendid building was the result. Each rock was firmly cemented to its neighbor rocks. The cement, into which each rock was laid, itself hardening into rock, brought about the desired result—the unity of masonry. In fact, we might say that the work of cementing was so complete that the whole structure became one solid rock of masonry—a structure so rigid that few buildings can be found more substantial or stronger.

As I watched rock after rock take its proper place in that strong building, there to remain as long as time lasts, perhaps, I was made to think of God's church, which is built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, with Jesus Christ as the chief corner stone. This building is so strongly built,—so completely cemented together,—that the "gates of hell" can not prevail against it.

I was made to think of Eph. 2: 22, where we read: "Ye are built together for a habitation of God through the Spirit." As children of God we are each a part (a stone) in that building. We are builded together,—we are cemented together. At least, God so intended it to be. I think Eph. 4: 3, that the cementing power,—the refining power, intended to cement us together into one indestructible structure,—is the Holy Spirit.

We are often exhorted to dwell together in love. That is right and proper. But, somehow, perhaps because of different dispositions, non-sociability, etc., we can not expect love to flow as freely and bind as closely as it should, unless it is for a higher type than many of us seem to possess. It must be divine, "the love of God shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Spirit," or it has no real cementing power.

The farmer mentioned above would say: "Make the mortar rich, boys. Put in plenty of cement." Love may be the mortar, the life of the church, but what is needed is richer mortar,—made rich by the cementing of the Holy Spirit. When I see division and wrangling in any congregation, I yearn to see a new baptism of the Holy Ghost there. Then division can not exist.

I praise God that the cementing power of the Holy Spirit is manifest among us to such an extent that division is rendered almost impossible. As a church we may have many differences of opinions, but no storm of dissension threatens our unity so long as the unity of the Holy Spirit prevails, as it seems to be at present. May we still be even more strongly united, so that, like one impregnable rock, we may withstand the storms and tempests, both within and without!

Frick, Elizabeth, died near Lebanon, Lebanon Co., Pa., June 21, 1841, died at his home at Fryntown, Berks Co., Pa., Oct. 21, 1911, aged 42 years and 4 months. His death was due to Bright's disease of the kidneys. He married Miss Sallie Kline about two years ago. He united with the Church of the Brethren about one year ago, and was a faithful member until death. Services at Kloppa union church, by Brethren Jacob Fisher and Eld. C. L. Baker. Text, John 14: 1-3. Interment in the adjoining cemetery.—Henry M. Frantz, R. D. 5, Myerstown, Pa.

Gettle, Sister Susan, wife of Bro. Peter Gettle, died at the home of Brother and Sister Henry Peiffer at Mt. Zion, Lebanon Co., Pa., Oct. 26, 1911, aged 83 years, 2 months and 24 days. This union was blessed with eight children. Four daughters and a brother of the deceased are members of the Brethren for about seventy years. She united with the church when she was young, and lived a faithful and consistent Christian life until death. For many years past she was unable to herself attend the church in the deacon's office. At this time she was a member of the Bethel congregation. Little Swatara church. Services at the Meyers meetinghouse, by the home ministers. Interment in Bethel cemetery, at the Union house. Text, Luke 14: 13.—Henry M. Frantz, Myerstown, Pa.

Gum, Eva, daughter of Peter and Susannah Holm, born Oct. 25, 1838, died suddenly from heart failure while returning home from a visit on Sunday, Nov. 5, 1911. Oct. 4, 1860, she was united in marriage to Andrew Gum. He survives. Hillsdale, Mich., from Hespeler, Ont., Dec. 24, 1882. He united with the Church of the Brethren in 1884, in which he is survived by his son and two daughters. He was an active Christian and a successful business man, and was greatly respected in the community. Being unable to secure a Brethren minister, services were held in the Methodist church. Interment in the Methodist cemetery at Lum, Mich., Rev. A. J. Culler, of Wyckliffe, Mich., officiated.—Percy D. Worgess, Kings Mills, Mich.

Huffman, Sister Rebecca, died of consumption, in the bounds of the Linville Creek congregation, Rockingham Co., Va., aged 21 years, 6 months and 4 days. Services by Brethren Amos Swartzbaugh, Jacob Swartzbaugh and Milton Forney. She was a member of the Church of the Brethren for a number of years.—A. S. Forney, R. D. 8, Lancaster, Pa.

Joseph, Bro. Jacob, died of the infirmities of old age at his home in York, New Salem, York Co., Pa., Oct. 6, 1911, aged 87 years, 3 months and 21 days. About five and one-half years ago he was confined to what was thought to be his deathbed. Realizing that his time was at hand, he sent for Bro. C. L. Baker to baptize him. His family, who all belonged to the Reformed church, thought immersion was not practicable at the time, on account of his feeble and spiritual condition, and do, which was not, however, the way Bro. Baker understood the mode of baptism. He was not baptized at that time. Knowing that the Lord would bless every true effort of an honest heart, Bro. Baker anointed and administered to him the fall of the same year, with the assistance of a nurse, he was able to attend the love-feast appointment about thirteen miles, to Beaver Creek, where Bro. Baker resided. From that time he was able to be about until a few weeks before his death. He was buried at the Wolf Reformed church, near York, Pa. Services by Eld. C. L. Baker, assisted by Rev. Shelheimer, a Reformed preacher of York.—Nellie I. Baker, R. D. 2, East Berlin, Pa.

Keefer, Sister Mary A., nee Barnhizer, born in Washington County, Maryland, July 17, 1836, died at Lincoln, Nebr., Oct. 21, 1911, aged 75 years, 2 months and 12 days. She moved with her parents to Fayette County, Ill., when a little girl. She was married to Moses Keefer in August, 1855. To this union were born eleven children, all but two moved with her husband to Cass County, Nebr., where they resided until 1902, when they moved to Lincoln. She is survived by her husband and seven children. She united with the Church of the Brethren at the age of twenty years and lived a noble Christian life. She was ever ready and willing to further the interests of the church in which she served so faithfully. She was a loving mother and a kind neighbor, always ready to help those in need, ere before herself. She bore her last sickness with Christian patience. Although she was long confined to her bed, she was seldom confined to her bed. She was at Sunday-school and church two days before she died. She had her memory verse, and read without glasses.—Caroline Brown, Lincoln, Nebr.

Koch, Bro. Saffuel, born in Lehigh County, Pa., Feb. 15, 1835, died Nov. 7, 1911, aged 76 years, 8 months and 22 days. In 1836 he moved with his parents to Wayne County, Ohio, and settled near Wooster. In 1857 he was united in marriage to Barbara Wineland. In 1854 they moved to Defiance County, where they resided on a farm. From there they moved to Williams County and located at their present home. To this union were born four sons and five daughters. His wife and three daughters preceded him in death. Three sons, two daughters and one brother survive. In 1877 he and his wife united with the Church of the Brethren, remaining faithful to the end. Bro. Koch was a kind and loving father, a faithful church member and a good neighbor. Services at the home and church by Eld. Lily, of the U. B. church, in the Lick Creek churchhouse, near Bryan, Williams Co., Ohio.—G. W. Sellers, Bryan, Ohio.

Walker, Bro. Frank, born in Jonesville, Ohio, Oct. 10, 1851, died Oct. 31, aged 60 years and 11 days. He came with his parents to Delaware County, Ind., when he was eight years old. He was united in marriage to Lizzie Rarick, daughter of Bro. John A. Rarick. To this union were born three sons and two daughters, all of whom are members of the Church of the Brethren, one daughter. He united with the church in falling health from kidney trouble. Thinking that a change of climate might be beneficial to him, he, with his companion, left their home in Shideler, Ind., Oct. 15, to spend the winter in Southern California. They arrived at Los Angeles the following Thursday, and were met by their son, Ralph, who had been in California for some years. On arriving he was very sick, and was taken to the hotel, where he died on Saturday morning. His remains were brought back by his wife and son to their home in Shideler, Ind. Services in the M. E. church by the writer, assisted by Eld. A. C. Young. He leaves a sorrowing wife, three sons, one daughter, three brothers and two sisters. He was a dutiful husband, a kind and helpful father, and an obliging neighbor. He greatly desired to remain with his family, but made a struggle for life. Interment in the Union Grove cemetery.—Geo. L. Studebaker, North Manchester, Ind.

Wentz, Bro. John Henry, born in Bradford County, Pa., March 19, 1839, died of leakage of the heart, in the bounds of the Albright congregation, Roaring Spring, Pa., Oct. 31, 1911, aged 72 years, 7 months and 9 days. He was a consistent member of the Church of the Brethren for fifty years. He was married to Sister Elizabeth Holsinger, who preceded him. Bro. Wentz was left an orphan boy when quite young. His father, Jacob Wentz, served as a soldier in the Union Army, was taken prisoner, and died at Harrisburg while on his way home. Bro. Wentz worked his way through the world as a poor boy. When he had grown to manhood he became a very useful man in the community where he lived, and in the church where he worshipped. He leaves an aged mother, three sons, four daughters and three sisters. Services in the Albright church by Eld. P. C. Direly, of Claysburg, Pa. Text, Heb. 13: 14. Interment in the cemetery nearby, besides his beloved wife.—Annie L. Direly, Claysburg, Pa.

Wiley, Sister Anna, died of paralysis, at her home in East Berlin, Pa., Oct. 2, 1911, aged 71 years, 5 months and 26 days. She was a devoted Christian and a kind mother. Her husband, Bro. M. B. Wiley, died 4 years ago. She leaves a family of one son and eight daughters. All save one are members of the Church of the Brethren. Interment by the side of her husband in the Mummert graveyard. Services by Elders C. L. Baker and C. C. Brown.—Nellie I. Baker, R. D. 2, East Berlin, Pa.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

BY J. H. MOORE

IN THE INTRODUCTION TO THIS BOOK THE AUTHOR SAYS

"The chapters composing this little volume were written at different times during a period of over twenty-five years of active editorial life." Some of them were composed on the spur of the moment, and thus are the best, having been run from a sudden inspiration and not made through long and forced effort.

EACH CHAPTER IS A POINTED LESSON

on some moral or religious topic, vividly illustrated by actual experiences from the author's life. Those who have read some or all of the chapters, which appeared from time to time in the various publications with which the author was connected, say that they are the cream of his writings along these lines. Everyone should read this book in order to have impressed upon the mind the valuable truths contained therein.

THE ONLY WAY IN WHICH THE BOOK CAN BE OBTAINED

is in connection with a subscription to the "Gospel Messenger." Subscribers who renew will get the book for 35c extra. The Gospel Messenger and book only $1.85.

This is a Great Bargain. Don't Miss It.

TOLD AT TWILIGHT; OR BIBLE STORIES THAT NEVER GROW OLD. 30c

Is a book that is written for the little ones, and in such an attractive and interesting manner that they can't help but want you to read and reread it again for them. The author, Ella Kenesaw Seegmiller, has represented Aunt Dorothy as gathering the little children around her in the evenings and telling those old stories in such a way that it is bound to create a desire in the children for more. The book is beautifully illustrated.

TEACHING AND TEACHERS. By H. Clay Trumbull. $1.25

Among the many books that have been written on the Sunday-school teacher's work there is not another one whose author's fitness for the task was superior, if equal to, that of Dr. Trumbull. An unusual feature of the treatment of the subject is its completeness in a very systematic order; with the avoidance of the mechanical forms which are adapted to the ordinary Sunday-school teacher's comprehension, while the whole structure is based on philosophical principles. The book is in two parts. In Part 1, the author treats the Sunday-school Teacher's Teaching work in its various phases, and in Part 2, the Sunday-school Teacher's Other Work than Teaching is discussed under several heads. A valuable book for a Sunday-school worker's library. 390 pages, bound in cloth.

TWO CENTURIES OF THE CHURCH OF THE BRETHREN, OR BEGINNINGS OF THE BROTHERHOOD. Artistic cloth, $1.50; Half Leather, Gilt top. $2.50

This book contains the twenty-four addresses delivered at the Bicentennial Conference, Des Moines, Iowa, June, 1908.

The first edition was soon exhausted and the second edition is in great demand.

This new edition is printed on thin paper, making a volume about two-thirds the size of the former edition. Typographical errors have been corrected and the binding improved. Large clear type, 400 pages.

The book is embellished with Twenty-five Full-page Halftone and Marvure Effect Portraits. These illustrations consist for the most part of portraits of the speakers who delivered the Bicentennial Addresses at the Des Moines annual Conference. The frontispiece presents a splendid likeness of the Founder of Brethren, the Reverend Alexander Mack, Sr.

The book is a fitting souvenir of the Bicentennial Year and should be found in every Brethren Home.

WINSOME WOMANHOOD. By Margaret E. Sangster. $1.20; gift edition, $2.50

"A group of short essays of skill under four parts. The first depicts the relations of the girl outside life of a young woman from fifteen years of age up to her wedding day.

The whole book is morally sound and thoroughly wholesome. The girl who reads it will be awakened to many of the minor details of life which engrossingly and keenly may have caused her to ponder."

NEW SELECT SPEAKER, THE. 90c

A peerless collection of readings and recitations from authors of undoubted excellence, suitable for public and private entertainment, and especially adapted for use in public schools, including selections for the little folks.

Pathetic, humorous, pathetic, religious, temperance, narrative, descriptive, heroic and dramatic dialogues, etc.

Superbly illustrated with fine engravings and poses, made especially for this work.

SUNDAY HALF-HOURS WITH GREAT PREACHERS. By Rev. Jesse Lyman Hurlbut, D. D. $1.50

How would you like to have fifty-two of the greatest preachers of the world for the past 1,700 years come before you one at a time for fifty-two consecutive Sundays — every Sunday for a full year—and each one preach to you the eloquent sermon which each one has famous for and by which he is best known? Such a treat is the "Sunday Half Hours with Great Preachers" will have to whoever will turn upon him. In the nearest possible manner, this intimidating, prodigious and benefit-bringing book selected the fifty-two most famous preachers of all ages, both from the Catholic and the leading Protestant churches, and has given a sketch from the life of each one. Fifty-two men who lived their hundred and fifty years for Christ, down to and including John Bunyan, John Wesley, Whitefield, Henry Ward Beecher, William Ellery Channing, and other greatest preachers of the world. It contains 681 large pages, bound in elegant cloth.

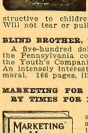
BISHOP AND THE BOOGERMAN, THE. $1.00 By Joel Chandler Harris.

One of the last stories from the pen of Uncle Remus. It is intended for the young in heart of all ages, and deals with a little Truly-girl who grew up; her Mysterious Companion; her crabbed uncle; the Whish-Whish woods; a very Civil Engineer, and Mr. Billy Sanders, the sage of Shady Dale.

BIRDS AND ANIMALS; OR CHILD'S NATURAL HISTORY. 60c

Wild animals of the tropics, and polar regions, beautiful birds, embracing their habits, modes of life and their peculiarities. It abounds in the most interesting accounts by travelers, described in the thrilling experiences with wild beasts of the jungle and plain. Attractively illustrated bound in elegant new litho-cloth, brilliantly illuminated cover in gold and rich colors.

BIBLE ALPHABET AND STORY BOOK. 30c



With each letter of the alphabet is given a Bible picture and some Bible scene, together with appropriate verse and Bible reference. About one-half of the book is taken up with other Bible stories and illustrations, each one opening the story occupies the whole page and a full-page picture has been given. The illustrations are large and the reading matter is printed in distinct type as well as in-

PRISONS AND PRAYER. By Elisabeth R. Whitaker. $1.00

An account of nearly twenty-two years of Gospel Work, seeking the lost, in prisons, reformatories, stockades, rescue homes, saloons and dives, and on the streets, railway trains, etc.

The book abounds in heart-moving incidents related by the author and letters written by reformed criminals, which will do much to strengthen the weak points in the hearts of the readers.

All these things are revealed to go to show that to every human heart, be it ever so full of sin, there is still a spark of the good spirit, waiting to be kindled into a flame by the touch of sympathy and love. Many who read this book will be astonished at the condition of affairs in many of the prisons of our own country. Furthermore they will be moved to greater sympathy for the unfortunate and more of a desire to lend a helping hand. 634 pages, bound in cloth. Illustrated.

PROBLEMS OF PULPIT AND PLATFORM. By D. D. Culler. 70c

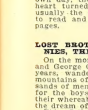
CHARLIE NEWCOMER. By W. B. Stover. 31c

Five editions of this little volume have been printed. It is an inspiration to any child and will lead many of them to think of serving the Lord while young. Boys and girls enjoy reading it, and we do not know of a book which we can more safely put in circulation for it, or which may do only a good influence over those who read it. It is the story of the life of a boy of our own day, though perhaps of a boy whose heart turned to the Lord earlier than is usually the case. Give it to the children to read and you will do them good. 63 pages.



LOST BROTHERS OF THE ALLEGHANIES, THE. By James A. Bell. 10c

On the morning of April 15th, Joseph and George Cox, aged respectively 5 and 7 years, wandered away from their home in the mountains of western Pennsylvania. Hundreds of men, women and children searched for the boys, until on the fourteenth day their wheereabouts was made known through the devotion of Jacob Dibert.

Elder Sell, who conducted memorial services on the fiftieth Anniversary of the occasion, tells the story in all its details. The illustrations consist of five portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Cox, Jacob Dibert, Harrison Wysong and Elder Sell.

A sad but true story of life in the mountains. Intensely interesting and instructive.

Mr. Waterman writes in a style peculiar to himself and very winning. As siddights to the character of the author, there appear on the margins of the pages 474 brief quotations of thoughts from the writings of the most prominent teachers and philosophers of all times. The book is of interest not to the girl alone. The girl's mother will find it well worth reading, and her brothers—well, he might even be curious to know, and profit by the "Friendly thoughts" here published for the special benefit of the girl. 158 pages. Cloth.

GIST OF THE LESSON, THE. By R. A. Torrey. 25c

For the busy teacher. To be carried in one's pocket. Every statement is approved, accurate, to the point, when calling, between business engagements, anywhere, everywhere.

Great in its fullness and compactness. As Marion Lawrance says, "Boiled down and pressed, skimmed, strained, it is more nourishing, helpful."

To those who have possessed and used former issues (and all of these will need no commendation, for they are known well by them), but would prefer to have in what is necessary to the understanding of the lesson and its spiritual teachings."

MINISTERIAL PROBLEM, THE. By Galen B. Royer. 5c; five copies, 10c; fifty copies, 75c

NELSON'S AMERICAN STANDARD REVISED BIBLES.

The American Standard Revised translation is more intelligible than any other version, because it substitutes modern equivalents for obsolete words. None of the old version ordinarily misunderstood or misapplied by others now—and better.

The spelling is in harmony with existing orthography.

The punctuation is greatly improved.

The grammar is in close conformity with present usage.

Most important of all, The American Standard Revised Bible gives the exact meaning of the original rather than any other version.

The Sunday School Times says it is "the standard revision of the Bible for the English-speaking world."

Jabesh-gilead, who had stolen them from the street of Beth-shan, and came to Jabesh, and burnt them there. 13 And they took the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathan his son, and gathered the bones of them that were hanged, 14 and buried the bones of Saul and Jonathan his son in the country of Benjamin in Zelah, in the sepulchre of Kish his father: and they performed all that the king commanded. And after that God was entreated for the land.

15 And there was yet war again between the Philistines and Israel; and David went down, and his servants with him, and fought against the Philistines: and David waxed faint. 16 And Ishbi-benob, which was of the sons of the giant, the weight of whose spear was three hundred shekels of brass in weight, and who was girded with a new sword, thought to smite David. 17 But Abishai the son of Zeruiah succoured him, and smote the Philistine, and killed him. Then the men of David sware unto him, saying, Thou shalt go no more out with us to battle, that thou quench not the light of Israel.

18 And it came to pass after this, that there was again a battle with the Philistines at Gob: then Sibbechai the Hushathite slew Saph, which was of the sons of the giant. 19 And there was again a battle in Gob with the Philistines, where Elhanan the son of Jaare-oregim a Bethlehemite slew the brother of Goliath the Gittite, the staff of whose spear was like a weaver's beam. 20 And there was yet a battle in Gath, where was a man of great stature, that had on every hand six fingers, and on every foot six toes, four and twenty in number; and he also was born to the giant. 21 And when he defied Israel, Jonathan the son of Shimea David's brother slew him. 22 These four were born to the giant in Gath, and fell by the hand of David, and by the hand of his servants.

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER

"SET FOR THE DEFENSE OF THE GOSPEL."—Phil. 1: 17.

Vol. 50. (Old Series Vol. 60.) Elgin, Ill., December 2, 1911. No. 48.

AROUND THE WORLD

Are We Really in Earnest?

Whatever may eventually be done with the excellent Arbitration Treaties proposed by President Taft, will largely depend upon the people of the United States, and their insistence to urge the immediate ratification of these valuable measures upon the Senate. To claim to be a people favoring peace and arbitration, and then neglect to lend every aid and assistance to the consummation of a plan so eminently promising, would be deplorable indeed. Even the Socialists in Berlin, numbering 200,000, have voiced their hearty approval of this and all other measures that will help to do away with war. The present occasion is an excellent time for each congregation to put itself on record for peace and all lawful means to that end.

Efficient Work Needed.

The "Child Welfare Committee" of the United States has been doing much valuable pioneer work in paving the way for effective reform work among children. Astonishing, indeed, is the fact brought out by the Society, that at least 8,000 children and young people between the ages of five and eighteen are not attending Sunday-school. In eight of the Western States two-thirds of the children are total strangers to Sunday-school influences. New England has more than 800,000 children as yet unreached, while New York State reports 2,200,000. The colored children of the nation furnish an army of 3,000,000 outside of Sunschool influences. These figures are alarming indeed. To the indirect church workers everywhere comes the urgent message: "Why stand ye all the day idle?"

Milwaukee Brewer Leaves $4,000,000.

The will of August Uihlein, a wealthy Milwaukee brewer, recently deceased, leaves $4,000,000 to his children. Unimportant as the statement may seem at first sight, there is a most significant lesson in the fact mentioned. To the heirs of the wealthy brewer the munificent inheritance means a life of ease and pleasure, but as we look at the other side of the picture and trace the millions of dollars, amassed by the brewer, to the many homes that were made but the poorer by the hundreds upon hundreds of nickels spent for beer, we see naught but wretchedness and gaunt poverty. It is the price that was multiplied thousands of homes be wrecked, and happiness destroyed, in order that the brewer may amass his millions? Is it not worth while to think about it ere from all this? Then act as you would pray!

He Refused a Pardon.

In the Pennsylvania State Penitentiary there is a convict,—Paul Graynor,—thirty-seven years of age, sentenced to a forty-year term for murder, who recently refused a pardon. He declares that, in the consciousness of a renewed life, he can do more good in prison than out of it, and he proposes to finish the twenty-five years, still remaining of his sentence. Graynor, by his life and actions, shows the genuineness of his Christian profession, and wields a marvelous influence for good among the most hardened prisoners. Already a number of convicts have been brought to a knowledge of the truth, and are living demonstrations of the transforming power of the Word. If an humble convict can do so effective a work for the Lord, how much more should each one of us be able to accomplish, enjoying as we do the blessings of liberty and untold opportunities? "What manner of persons ought we to be, in all holy conversation and godliness?"

Youthful Delinquency.

Recent investigations of the causes that lie at the root of most juvenile misdemeanors, brought out some striking facts. The judges, before whom youthful miscreants have been brought, have noticed that for the last few years most of these offenders were not, as was supposed, graduates of the slums, but sons of respectable and hard-working parents. One of the judges talked with the parents of many of the boys, and learned that while practically all of the young men enjoyed good school privileges, "very few ever worked steadily at any occupation." Few of them ever undertook to learn a trade. After due consideration the same judge gave utterance to a thought that every parent might well consider, and profit accordingly: "Parents have become accustomed to living beyond their means, and the ease and plenty, to which their sons have become accustomed, have encouraged them to expect a continuance of such pleasant surroundings as a matter of course. Young men, brought up too comfortably, dislike to engage in manual labor. Our schools do not place enough emphasis on the child's responsibility to God." In summing up the chief causes of the appalling increase of crime among young men, the same judge cited the follow: "A lack of religious and moral instruction in the schools, bad associations on the streets at night, and vicious and debasing shows." Thus it is readily seen that the modern boy is very much like those in Paul's day, who needed careful bringing up "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord," to be an honor to the family and state.

Lodges Cause Divorce.

The National Christian Association, whose headquarters are in Chicago, is well known to our readers as a relentless foe of secret orders, fully endorsing the teaching of the Church of the Brethren on this important subject. At a recent convention of the Association the following resolution was unanimously passed: "We are convinced that no family can exist as God intended, when husband or wife is compelled to withhold secrets from the other. The alarming number of divorces finds a fruitful cause in the iniquitous lodge system." Doubtless there is abundant reason to voice the statement just quoted. Whatever institution erects a barrier between husband and wife,—admitting the one and refusing entrance to the other,—is diametrically opposed to gospel principles, and hence an unfit abode for those who claim to be followers of the Blessed Master.

Japan's Warfare Against Vice.

For years licensed vice has been flaunting as a legally authorized institution in Japan,—to the shame and righteous indignation of the moral and decent part of the citizens. Count Okuma, a mighty leader in the present reform work, recently called attention to the fact that while "Japanese boys and girls are taught in public schools to cultivate all virtues and qualities, necessary to make them strong, there is constantly before their eyes an example of shameful immorality in the licensed houses of ill-repute." The best elements of the nation are now rallying for a determined campaign against the blackest and foulest defilement of Japan's social life, and hope to succeed by persistent and continued efforts. Contrary to the often-expressed idea in America,—that the "social evil" can not be driven out and that, at best, it can only be kept under close control,—these Japanese reformers propose to demonstrate that vice can be effectively checked.

Our Costly Expansion.

Since the signing of the Treaty of Paris, the Philippines have cost the United States, for military expenses alone, $167,000,000, according to official figures of the War Department. These figures, formidable as they are, do not include all the funds spent in behalf of the islands, to say nothing of the many lives ruthlessly sacrificed to our love of expansion. And while the possession of the Philippines has made of us a world power, and we have spent unlimited amounts of money on army and navy, we are now told that our large and costly fleet of war vessels so recently and proudly exhibited on the Hudson, is totally inadequate, and that both army and navy are shorthanded as to officers and men. It is the world's doctrine that a nation, be it ever so prosperous as to its industries, sound as to morals, and vigorous as to its intellect, must try to be equal to, or excel all others, as to military equipment, or be antiquated. Will we ever arise to safer, saner views, such as befit a so-called Christian nation?

Sunday Visiting.

While there may be various kinds of Sunday visiting,—some to profit and some quite the opposite,—we notice that the "Lutheran Standard" comes out in language that can not be misunderstood on the modern problems a phase of Sunday visiting altogether too prevalent: "People who visit others on the Sabbath and thereby deter them from attending the services in the Lord's house are robbers. They steal away from those, for whom they profess friendship, one of the most precious possessions which they have. What right have you to encroach upon the devotional hours of a family,—hours which are all too few and far between? What excuse can you render to God for inducing others to neglect His Word and the services of his sanctuary?" These words are worth thinking about. Many have, perhaps thoughtlessly, been guilty of the very offense alluded to in the above. If so, there is need of renewed consecration,—of no longer neglecting "the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is."

Mohammedans Greatly Aroused.

From Morocco in the East to the most remote portions of Asia, Italy's aggression has produced profound indignation in the Mohammedan world. Everywhere the question is asked: "What are the Powers doing to check Italy in her high-handed designs?" Moslems can not reconcile the exalted claims of Christian altruism with the utterly selfish interpretation given by Italy in her present campaign of spoliation. To appreciate the seriousness of the situation it must be remembered that the Mohammedan world has a population of over 220,000,000 souls, of whom 160,000,000 are in Asia, 59,000,000 in Africa, and 3,500,000 in Europe. About 160,000,000 are under Christian rule, 15,000,000 under Turkish control, 22,000,000 under other Moslem rulers, and 24,000,000 under other non-Christian sway. If these formidable forces are driven to a final struggle, none could foretell the awful results. Sad, indeed, if Italy's ill-advised act should inflame the Mohammedans to a so-called "Holy War," with its nameless horrors and atrocities.

Negro Ratio Decreasing.

Recent Census figures, showing the relative rate of increase among whites and blacks, are of significant social and political meaning. The present percentage of the negro element in our population is 10.7. The white race is 88.9 per cent of the whole. Thirty years ago the figures stood 13.1 and 86.5, indicating that a gradual but steady change is now taking place. During the last decade the white population increased .22 per cent, while the black element showed but a gain of 11.3. Thus the increase of the white race,—due in part to immigration,—is nearly double that of the black population. The large infant mortality among the blacks, especially in the South, is a leading cause of the disparity between the rates of increase. Government officials, familiar with the situation, are recommending better and more adequate instruction of the negro mothers in the care of their children, and a diffusion of better knowledge in general. This advice, by the way, is equally applicable to all mankind. "With all thy getting," says Solomon, "get understanding."

Its Price Is Far Above Rubies.

Infidels may sneer at the real value of the Bible, but the fact remains that humanity at large still persists in attaching a greater valuation to the Sacred Volume than to any other book. At a recent sale of the "Huth" library at Sotheby's, near London, England, a "Mazarin" Bible was offered for sale, and brought the astonishingly large price of $50,000. It is a well-preserved copy of the earliest edition of the Bible, printed by Gutenberg at Mainz in 1450-55,—probably the first book printed with movable types. It is known as a "Mazarin" Bible because the first known copy of this edition was discovered in the Mazarin library in Paris, in 1760. And though but few of us may be able to possess a Bible of so great an antiquarian value, we can all be happy in the thought that, by the God-given genius of man, even the poorest can now have a complete copy of the Blessed Word at his disposal. To the believer whose "life is hid with Christ in God," the Bible is a treasure untold, compared with which earth's richest possessions sink into insignificance.

Christian Influences in China.

Now, since the attention of all the world is centered upon the solution of the grave problems gradually being worked out by the contending elements in China, it is interesting to note in what way Christianity has been leavening the whole lump. It is needless to say that the missionaries have in no way incited the people to the present revolutionary activity, nor have they sanctioned the unmentionable atrocities that have been perpetrated by both parties to the conflict. They have, however, done their very best to teach and instruct the people in better ways of thinking and doing, and it is this salutary instruction that has largely mitigated much of the horror and cruelty, usually characteristic of Chinese warfare. The present Provisional President, Sun Yat Sen, is a pupil of a London Missionary Society worker, and his four sons are now attending the Anglo-Chinese College at Tien Tsin. Two of the foremost revolutionists,—Sun Yat Sen and Wong Chong, were educated in mission schools, and are very friendly to missionary movements. It would seem that this "sowing beside all waters," in years gone by, has raised up scores of staunch supporters and defenders of missions, that will do much to insure at least comparative safety to all foreign missionaries during the present struggle.

Thanksgiving.

BY B. F. M. SOURS.

Over the days with their shine and shade,
Over the blossoms and over the storms,
Over the courage and over the fears,
The joy and the wild alarms;
Over the harvests of golden grain,
Over red apples that came again,
Over the wild winds when work was done,
Over the autumn leaves, frost begun,
God is King.

"Praise ye the Lord!" for the golden year;
"Praise ye the Lord!" for its light and cheer;
"Praise ye the Lord!" for his storms to bless,
And for his gentleness!
Over the acres the zephyrs played,
Over the clover the bird-songs strayed,
Over the mists was the heaven above,
Over the world was the God of Love,
Over all.

Over my heart is the watch-care given,
Over my need is the wealth of heaven,
Over my shadows the sun will shine,
The light of Love Divine.
He is the theme of my daily praise,
He is my song in the passing days,
Him I will trust till the shadows die,
His will I be, 'neath the changing sky,—
God is good!

Over my ears do the echoes float,
Over the world—hist!—the distant note!—
Over our dreams come the angels' songs—
"All praise to him belongs!"
After the burdens of toil and care,
After the sunsets, with glory there
Seem of the heaven of love to ring,
After the bird with weary wing
Has ceased to sing;

After the acres of life are tilled,
After life's garners all are filled,
After the weariness of toil
Has brought its full recoil;
Then on strong wings to soar the sky,
Upward to mansions of rest on high,
Cleaving the heights to eternal day!—
O it is Thanksgiving!—far away
Echoes call!

Over the Thanksgiving songs of men,
Higher than praises of poet's pen,
Fuller of joy and of love's surprise
Before the ravished eyes,
Praises shall ever and ever be
Thanksgiving songs for eternity!
Thanksgiving Day is a day of days,
Jesus has wrought all our hearts of praise
By his blood.

Jesus, thou Lamb of God, once slain,
Come to the world in thy power again,
Honor and glory be to thee—
Eternal majesty!
"Worthy the Lamb!" is our song of praise;
Thanksgiving Day is a day of days!
Sing the deep depths of hearts, moved by love,
Praise to the Father in heaven above—
God is Love!

The Church.

BY NETTIE C. WEYBRIGHT.

In Four Parts.—Part One.—Christ, the Center.

WITHOUT Jesus Christ, what would history be? He is the central figure since its beginning. History itself could not be explained without him, nor is he the central figure alone, but the source itself, of very history. All the greatest, the far-reaching changes in the world are due to his life and influence. He came as the Redeemer of fallen humanity. From all ages,—from the beginning,—it was in the mind of the Eternal God to save his people through the death of his dear Son. For thousands of years this fact lay as a secret in the mind of God. It was veiled, but, as Paul says in his letter to the Ephesians (3: 4, 5, 6), the mystery of Christ in other generations was not made known unto the sons of men as it hath now been revealed unto his holy apostles and prophets in the Spirit; to wit, that the Gentiles are fellow-beings and fellow-members of the body, and fellow-partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus through the Gospel. Thus the veil is now removed. "God arranged all the ages and dispensations in and for Jesus Christ, his Son, as the life-giving head of the creation, in whom, like a center of unity, the heavens and the earth, the visible and invisible, the mortal and immortal, should find their happiness, their strength and their fellowship with God."

In God's eternal plan for the salvation of his people, he has ordained many dispensations, through which, in the different ages of the world, men might leave the life of sin, and see God.

1. In the early years of the race, we have the Patriarchal Age, in which the patriarchs, the fathers, mighty men of God, with their prophets, priests and kings, tried to lead the people back to God.

2. The covenant God made with Abraham is the beginning of the Abrahamic dispensation, in which God selects, from the nations of the earth, one godly man who is to be the head of the Jews, a mighty nation, through whom the earth shall be blessed, and God's name glorified. As the centuries passed by, the Jews were more fully enlightened, the promises made them were more specific, the rite of circumcision was given them that they might thus be separated from those ungodly nations with whom they were constantly surrounded.

3. In the person of the infant Moses, God purposed to bring about a third glorious dispensation in the history of his people. The Jews were constituted a kingdom, and the God of Abraham was their God. He had given them the code of laws by which their national life was to be directed. The thread that constantly ran through it all, however, was Christ, the Messiah, toward whom each promise, each institution, each epoch in their national life ever pointed. By faith they looked into the vague, far-distant future and saw the coming of the Savior. Their laws gradually unfold the purposes of God. They are being constantly led by the law, their schoolmaster, to Christ, their Savior. They were in a state of preparation, they were learning the doctrine of sin and condemnation to prepare them for the preaching of the coming doctrine of grace and salvation. In the administration of the functions of their then existing institutions, the plan of redemption was constantly being outlined, with Christ as Prophet, Priest and King. They looked forward to the person, Christ, as we, in the new dispensation, look back to him.

The time was fast approaching when the limitations of the people of God were not to be confined to a single nation, but were to be expanded among all the nations of the earth, although the Jews, proud of their ancestry, centered in the noble, faithful Abraham, satisfied in their being the children of Abraham, however vile their sinful lives proved their hearts to be. Exultant in their keeping of the law, they considered themselves secure within the ark of circumcision in which they hedged themselves from the Gentiles. They waited long and patiently for the coming of the long-promised Messiah, yet, when he did come, Satan had so securely blinded their eyes that they rejected him, and killed him, and yet they hopelessly look for another. But, rejected by his own, God had prepared for him other peoples, whom he would cause to receive him, and be witnesses for him, glorifying the Creator through the Son.

The great problem of history centers here. Until now the Jews were the center of God's grace. The Gentiles were excluded. The Jews were God's own, his elect, his chosen from all the nations and kingdoms of earth. They were growing selfish, resting secure in their exclusion from outlying nations. They looked on the Gentiles as outcasts and idolaters, with whom they were to have no intercourse (Acts 10: 28). The chasm was stronger than caste. The touch of the Gentile was defiling, his food an abomination, and his religion blasphemy. There was a pronounced, fierce enmity between them.

But we, the Gentiles, who, before Christ's appearance, were the outcasts, the "dogs" (Matt. 15: 27), need to be especially grateful that, through Christ, we have now been admitted into the love and grace of our God. We must remember that originally the promises were not for us, that, according to Eph. 2: 12-15, 18, we "were at that time separate from Christ, alienated from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of the promise, having no hope, and without God in the world. But now in Christ Jesus ye, that once were far off, are made nigh in the blood of Christ. For he is our peace, who made both one, and brake down the middle wall of partition, having abolished in his flesh the enmity, even the law of commandments contained in ordinances: that he might create in himself of the two one new man, so making peace; for through him we both have our access in one Spirit unto the Father." The great cause of this enmity was the law of commandments contained in ordinances "being only (with meats and drinks and divers washings) carnal ordinances, imposed until a time of reformation" (Heb. 9: 10). Jesus then removed the cause of this enmity "by abolishing the exclusive and temporary ordinances" of the Jews. By becoming the great sacrifice for all sin himself, he made an end of all sin and sacrificial offerings, thus placing Jew and Gentile on one common plane.

The movement of uniting Jew and Gentile in one common, complete body, began with God, originated in the mind of the Eternal. No other power could have solved the problem of union of people so separate, so distinct, so decidedly opposed to each other, and in so short a time. It required the wisdom and overruling providence of Omniscient God.

Thus ended the Old Dispensation of shadowy types and ordinances and the New Dispensation of liberty and life was ushered in. Thus "the Lord Jesus, the Son of God, has abolished the enmity between Jew and Gentile by removing its cause, the Jewish ritual; and this he has done through the human nature which he assumed, in which we see the perfect holiness which the law commanded, the vindication of violated justice to which all the offerings pointed, and the resurrection of the body and eternal life, which formed the hope of mankind from the beginning of the world." And all this that he might create the two into one new man in himself, so making peace.

In one body, by the cross, both are reconciled to God. Thus the door of divine mercy is opened to the whole human race. Israel had lost her power. Her national supremacy was ended. There must be a new body formed, to have new power and new supremacy. There must be a new channel of God's grace, a broader, world-including circle, excluding no one who wills to come and accept offered grace. As one united body that would serve the purpose now necessary, Christ instituted his church, for the glory of his name, and the honor of his Father who sent him.

The Blood.

BY J. EDWIN JONES.

"Without the shedding of blood, there is no remission" (Heb. 9: 22).

To many, the cleansing power of the blood of Christ is a mystery so apparently inexplicable as to defy investigation or explanation. But as God does not do things arbitrarily, there must be reasons for the blood sacrifices of the Scriptures. That it is the fiat of God should be sufficient reason for accepting the truth of the statement. It is within the province of him who has authority to name conditions. This principle is illustrated over and over in our experiences in the world.

When Adam sinned, he forfeited life—perfect life. God, the Father, Son and Holy Spirit had so pronounced it at creation. To restore man to this perfect state, is the object of God's effort from the first. The promise of redemption came, together with the penalty for sin. The first blood shed, typifying Christ's blood, was shed to "cover" the consequence of their sin. And every sacrifice onward, until Christ's sacrifice of himself, was a shadow of that "passover sacrifice for us," "covering" the sins of the people. That those sacrifices were to be "without blemish," would keep in mind not alone the perfect life, forfeited by Adam's sin, but also the sacrifice of Christ's perfect life to cover the transgression, and "at-one" God and the transgressor.

"The value of life is the measure of the value of the blood," for the Scriptures say, "The blood is the life"

(Lev. 17: 14). This fact gives to Christ's blood its inconceivable value, for who may estimate the value of his life (Philpp. 2: 6-11)? Equal with God—himself God—he empties himself and gave his perfect life a substitute for the life forfeited by Adam.

Blood, in the Scriptures, is a common term expressive of life. Those who crucified our Lord said, "His blood be on us, and on our children." That is to say, "We make ourselves responsible for the death of this man. If any importance attaches to his life, we will make it good." And when this awful statement was brought home to them by the Holy Spirit in the early preaching of the apostles after Pentecost, the people urged, "You intend to bring this man's blood upon us." That is, "You are trying to make us bear the consequences of this man's death," a thing whose awful import the preaching and the demonstration of the Holy Spirit through the apostles was making very real to them.

The covenants were sealed or ratified by blood,—blood of perfect beasts,—which gave the covenants power because the life of perfect beasts showed or typified the perfect life of Christ, whose sacrifice should make effectual the New Covenant,—the mature and better covenant that should obtain until the end of the age. "God . . . hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son" (Heb. 1: 2). "God was in Christ Jesus, reconciling the world unto himself" (2 Cor. 5: 19). Now this New Covenant, that is, the expression of the terms upon which reconciliation may be effected, was sealed or ratified or made effectual by the blood of Christ (Heb. 10: 29). This scripture, together with Heb. 13: 20, makes clear the fact that back of the New Covenant,—alone giving it force and power,—is the blood of Christ. And this blood, as we have seen, representing Christ's life, is equivalent to the life or power of God himself. This is clearly shown as in Heb. 13: 20, where we are told that Christ was raised "by the blood of an eternal covenant," while numerous other scriptures say, "God raised him from the dead." Jesus himself said of his life, "I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again."

We conclude, therefore, that the power of God was in the blood of Christ; and that the "blood" of Christ is used in scripture to designate his life. And as the "Word became flesh and dwelt among us," the life of Christ is an active expression of God's Word. Now, the Scriptures say, "The blood of Jesus Christ, his Son, cleanseth from all sin;" also, "Sanctify them through thy truth; thy word is truth," and "Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth."

Thus we see that, as inseparable as the blood is from the natural life, so inseparable is the blood of Christ from his Word. As the blood was the life of his natural body, and of all living flesh, so his Word is the life of every Spirit-begotten being. And so, remission of sins, through his blood, and power through the blood, become full of meaning to us when we give it the proper significance in connection with his Word, which is the expression of his life, made effective through his death and resurrection.

This truth is aptly illustrated by the passover incident. The perfect lamb being separated and at the proper time slain, the blood was put on the door-post and lintels. Scripture says that this blood, so applied, became a token to Israel. A token is a sign between the parties of an agreement. This blood was a token to Israel, assuring them of God's protection because they listened to him. It was also a token to the destroying angel of the same truth. "Christ, our passover, was sacrificed for us." And when we, accepting the free gift of his atoning sacrifice, "purify our souls in obeying the truth," the blood or seal of an eternal covenant, even the blood of Christ, "cleanseth us from sin" and becomes the "token" of our assurance.

The promise of God became effective to Israel when they applied the blood. The blood was the "token" that they had heard his word to obey it. When we hear the word of Christ to us and accept the New Covenant by obeying its demands, the blood of Christ becomes our assurance or "token" that God will not fail in his part of the Covenant. But without that willing submission to its terms, the power of the blood of the covenant is of no avail to us.

May the power of the blood of Christ become a living factor in our lives; a token of our cheerful and trusting obedience to every known wish of our Lord.

"What Is the Matter With Our Churches?"

BY WILLIAM L. JUDY.

THERE is nothing so easy, in all this world, as to see the faults of others, at the same time overlooking our own, or obstinately refusing to see them. I well remember an elderly lady in a country district who criticised the city churches. She claimed they were doing a very wrong thing by closing during the summer on account of the unsuitable weather. Yet the church of which she was a member closed its Sunday-school during the winter for the same reason,—the unsuitable weather. The logic of the one was no better than the other.

Too prone, indeed, is the country church to criticise the city church. Of course, the latter has its faults, but the former has plenty of them also. I believe that my experience will fully bear me out on this last assertion. A little better understanding of each other's problems would be mutually beneficial, and people would find themselves nearer an answer to the question, "What is the matter with our churches?"

The city churches are sometimes said to be too "high-toned," and that the ordinary person is not welcome. Only a few days ago I was speaking to a minister who holds an important charge in one of the large eastern cities. It so happened that we were discussing this criticism. He told me of an experience of his, the previous summer. Donning a cheap suit of clothes, very plain and ordinary, he visited unrecognized an even dozen of churches in the city. In all but one he was warmly welcomed and in each of the eleven one or more persons introduced themselves and asked him to come again.

I have gone into scores of our own churches,—a stranger come to worship. In most instances I would have left it just as much a stranger, and I waited for an introduction. At the close of the service there was seldom a cordial handshake or a friendly question. The congregation usually divided into groups. After a short chat the people passed out, unmindful of any strangers who might have chanced to attend. Of course, it was entirely unintentional, for at heart our people are generous and hospitable, almost to a fault.

I remember one Brethren church to which the above could not apply. Whoever entered that church was always glad to return. It is about this wide-awake church that I should like to tell you. They had organized a "lookout" committee whose special work was to welcome every stranger. More than that. The church was the only one in a community in which lived many members of other denominations. These the Lookout Committee made a special effort to bring to the services,—people who otherwise would have lost interest in all church work.

In this church, displayed on the wall, was the committee's working motto: "To the stranger. In Christ's name we greet you today, and assure you a cordial welcome. If you are a resident of this community, we would be glad to have you make this your church." I can not forbear mentioning another reading on the wall,—it was so appropriate for every house of God, "Whosoever thou art that entrest this church, remember it is the house of God; be reverent, be silent, be thoughtful; and leave it not without a prayer to God, for thyself, for those who minister and those who worship here."

I must commend this active church for another thing. It realized that its young people were deserting the ranks. Fathers and mothers were loyal church workers but the children, especially the boys, as they grew up, lost interest and usually dropped out entirely. It was only another case of neglecting the social side of rural life. To young people this is a vital matter; their natures crave sociability.

How was the problem solved? A Christian Workers' Society was organized. It was known as the "Church of Tomorrow." There were the usual weekly religious meetings, but something in addition. During the week nights the Society would meet for such functions as literary programs, song service, or purely social activities. In short, it supplied that great need in every country district—opportunity to develop the social side of one's nature. They turned country life from its customary dullness into an attractive community.

I must mention one more phase of the work of these same young people. Some of their number had gone to the city. There, unacquainted, unrestrained by home influences, they went the common course,—the church was forgotten. But even this problem was solved. When any one decided to try city life, one or more of the others would write to an acquaintance in the city, asking that he meet the young person and take an interest in his welfare. Better still, if a Brethren church was there, the minister wrote to his fellow-minister, asking him to be sure to "look up" the young man and keep him in the church.

What better work could be done! In every large city there are thousands upon thousands of young people who are literally "heart sick." Away from home restraints, preferring the glare of the lights to the quiet of the country, unknown, unfriended they soon join the crowd and strike the pace,—lost to the church, fallen prey to drink, to gambling, and to bad women. If only there were some one to take an interest in their welfare, some one to speak the kind word now and then, some one to cheer them when they become discouraged, as they surely will be, how different life would be for them! It is the feeling that one has no true friends, none who are interested in him, none to encourage him and make life worth the living, that usually drives the young man first to drink, then to all the alluring ways of gilded vice, and at times to the grave of the drunkard or the suicide.

But this Brethren church, nestled among the hills of Southwestern Pennsylvania, did and still is solving the problem of its young people. It has cared for the social side of rural life. Within its doors the stranger is ever welcome. Instead of lack of interest and decreasing membership, this country church has awakened to a full realization of its duties and possibilities, and has found part of the answer to the question, "What is the matter with our churches?"

The Two Missions of the Church.

BY D. E. CRIPE.

IN studying the life of Christ, one is impressed with the fact that so much of his time and labor were given to doing good to the unfortunate. While the higher, seemingly the more important, part of his mission was teaching the plan of salvation, yet he was continually going about doing good, doing good in a material way to those who needed help.

Healing a sick man who later may again become the victim of disease, opening blind eyes that must soon again be closed in death, holding in his arms and blessing a few children who will soon grow out of childhood, feeding the hungry with bread that can satisfy for only a day, raising the dead to life, to a life that can last only a few years at best: all this seems very small work to the Lord of life and glory, especially when he had such a short time on earth, and had so many things to teach. It is little wonder that sometimes his disciples remonstrated with him for taking time to do these little temporal things.

However, in later years, when his disciples had time to contemplate and understand the complete and perfect life of their wonderful Master, they saw the importance of what had seemed to them the little things. In the narratives of the four evangelists they place the same importance on his deeds of mercy as they do on his parables and his words of wisdom. This cannot be entirely accounted for by the fact that it required the evidence of his miracles to prove his divinity, for they bring forth the truth that every miracle was, directly or indirectly, an act of mercy.

The early church, led by the Spirit-filled apostles, was faithfully patterned after the incomparable life of Christ. While preaching, the Gospel was first and foremost in their minds, the little deeds of mercy were never neglected, the duty of attending to them having been so indelibly stamped upon them by their Master's example. On their way to prayer, Peter and John lingered long enough to heal a lame man. Peter, called to preach a funeral that would have given him a splendid opportunity to impress the beauty of a devoted, self-denying life, and urge the sinner to repentance, passed it all by and called back to a useful, needed life the lamented Dorcas; Paul, a captive, shipwrecked, enduring hardships, laboring under anxiety for the churches, feeling the responsibility of carrying the Gospel to a great city under unfavorable circumstances, took more time to heal the sick than to preach the Gospel to the barbarians of Melita. There was a time when the apostles felt that it was not meet they should neglect the preaching of the Word to serve tables, and look after the needs of the widows and orphans, yet they suffered not this work to be neglected, for they appointed the most energetic and spiritual men in the church to attend to it.

Of the very few things the apostles asked of Paul when he was admitted to the work was, "that he should remember the poor," and this he says he was "forward to do." His later life proved the truth of this, for no matter how busy he was preaching the Gospel to the heathen, he did not neglect teaching the importance of contributing to the relief of the poor at Jerusalem. The "good works," so frequently and earnestly taught by the apostles, consisted largely, if not entirely, in relieving the distress of those who were less fortunate. James sums it up most forcefully of all, giving as the first of the two unfailing evidences of pure and undefiled religion, the deed of mercy of "visiting the fatherless and widows in their affliction."

The church, in the time of the apostles, clearly recognized her double mission, so plainly taught in the life of Jesus,—that of preaching the Word and of relieving the distressed. To these two missions she bent all her powers, and in this way changed the world. In no after-ages has the church been purer, and never can she be purer, more vital in spiritual strength, nor more successful, than she was in the time of the apostles. In just so far as the church neglects or overlooks either of these two great missions, will she be crippled in her aggressive power, and fail in the work intended for her to accomplish.

Times and conditions have changed, and the church has, to a great extent, lost the power of healing the sick and of performing miracles. But the power of visiting and comforting the sick is with us yet; the poor we have with us yet and we can do them good when we will; the affliction of the fatherless and widows does not change, and ministering to their needs is as much an evidence of "pure and undefiled religion before God and the Father" as it was in the time of the apostles.

The first mission of the church is to preach the Word and make converts; to fill them with that charity which brought the Son of God to earth, which gives them such a love for humanity that they are willing to sacrifice for the good of others, without which, Paul says, they are sounding brass and tinkling cymbal. The second mission is for these converts,—which means the church,—to do good to those around them. If the convert does no more good to those in need and distress than he did when he was away from Christ, in what respect is the world made better by his conversion? If the church is not more concerned about the suffering and the poor and the fatherless and widows than the world, in what respect is she a benefit to the world?

Where Are Our Children?

BY A. G. CROSSWHITE.

THANK the Lord, that a part of them are in the Church of the Brethren and are happy in the Savior's love,—some of them, yes, very many of them,—but there are others whose names are on the church-record for whom our prayers constantly go up to our Father's throne, for they have never yet known the perfect peace and happiness which result from a full surrender, unconditional and complete.

The term duty should enter sparingly into the Christian's vocabulary. Consecration embraces that only in an elemental sense, its strongest adjunct being the silent influence of the one who does much but says little.

INACTIVITY is the greatest bane to society or religious progress with which we have to do; and, while the church is hunting for an antidote, either Satan or some worldly church organization will find use for the talent which we ought to be using. The young mind is as active as the young body and these forces must, in some way, be conserved to God's glory.

Young people want to do something, and will do it well with half the practice of older heads, for their opportunities for learning how have been greater.

The Sunday-school and Christian Workers' Meetings were organized mainly to meet that demand, but have our young people had a fair showing? Along these lines of church activity they should have a big half of the work; and where they know that they will have a reasonable share of the work, they will prepare for it and do their part creditably.

Another way to develop this talent is to maintain an "evergreen" prayer meeting and encourage each member to exercise in some way. The weekly teachers' meeting is an indispensable aid to Sunday-school teaching; and no school is complete without it. The teacher-training class comes in for its share of credit in the making of the teacher. It is just as necessary to train teachers in general and specific methods as it is to encourage special training in other lines, where only temporal things are involved. Ah, indeed, is it not of infinitely more value where the immortal soul is at stake?

Are we consistent in our argument that we used to get along without these "new things," when, in every other thing of a temporal nature we seek the "specialist" and the most improved methods that art and skill can produce?

Still farther along the lines of progress, our Brethren in Annual Conference, last spring, prayerfully urged the organization of Mission Study Classes, or some organized method of presenting the needs of the mission fields to our people. Are we respecting this decision as we do others?

Another phase of our church work, which has received the hearty support of our General Conference is the Temperance work. In this our very best workers will be found in the ranks of our young people. Place them on permanent and temporary committees and see how they will push this great work which has only required a consecrated leader to show how our great Brotherhood stands on this question.

We might further call attention to the recommendation of our General Sunday-school Committee, in establishing a system of class organization. Wherever this has been tried it has proven most effectual, whether used in connection with the Graded System or without it. It beautifully develops the social side of the students' life and, at the same time, calls out individuality and personal responsibility. In fine, it makes each one feel as though he or she is "a part of the concern."

A little office will stimulate young people to work (in fact, it is not wholly despised by older people). It can be arranged that each member of the class will have some official duty to perform. The following may constitute the organization: President, Vice-president, Secretary, Treasurer, Program Committee, Visiting Committee, Finance Committee and Critic. The teacher, if tactful, can so arrange the work of the various officers and committees that there will be no conflict with the general work of the school, and much more will be accomplished by this means.

But some one may conclude that this is too much "machinery." It is not half the machinery that young people are capable of operating, and when they are denied this spiritual activity, they seek employment in the "devil's workshop," and are soon far beyond our knowledge and control.

Here comes up another objection from quite a different quarter, and it is necessary to stop long enough to answer it. Here it is: "We have few or no young people in our church and can have nothing more than regular preaching and Sunday-school."

It is a thousand wonders you have that much, and you never will have anything more unless you wake up! What will you do when the old ones are all gone? Get busy and do something.

Nine chances out of ten there are plenty of young people in your community, and it is still more likely that other denominations are using talent that you might have developed years ago. Some of them are your children and grandchildren!

Now, what you were expecting from the announcement of the subject, heading this article, has been apprehended at the beginning, and the answer is given in the discussion of the topic. You, doubtless, wondered what would be said about the children that were out of the church, some of whom are hardened sinners and others loyal to some other faith. They are largely where they are today from the very cause that many are cold, indifferent and disloyal to the vows which they made when uniting with our own beloved church, INACTIVITY.

Brethren and sisters, do we live the life we profess? Do we speak well of the church and its work? Do we get our children to understand that the principles of our church government are absolutely safe, and founded upon the Holy Scriptures? If so, the problem is solved and some day the family will all be together.

Our Ocean Voyage.

BY ANNA M. HUTCHISON.

IN Seattle, Sept. 18, our party of thirteen, with a large company of brethren and sisters, made our way toward the Great Northern Docks. Imagine our feelings as we first caught sight of the large and beautiful Minnesota, which was to be our ocean home for nearly three weeks.

Arriving at the wharf, all went on deck where, in a short season of earnest prayer, we committed our all to him who rules both sea and land. Then, after singing, "Blest Be the Tie that Binds," our friends went ashore to await the sailing of the vessel.

Finally the whistle blew, and the great ship began to move. Then, amidst farewells and waving of handkerchiefs, we passed out of sight. God only knew what the future held in store for us, but a consciousness of being on the King's business, gave us the assurance that all would be well, and so we were happy.

One scene, as we passed out of sight, is vividly stamped on memory's page. In the midst of the crowd, moving down the wharf to wave a last farewell, could be seen the gray heads of two fathers in the church. The one is Eld. D. L. Miller, whose long life of faithful service has meant so much to the Brotherhood, the other was my dear uncle, Andrew Hutchison, whose devotion in the Master's vineyard has been an inspiration to lead me where I am today. God reward them according to their works and help us to follow in their footsteps.

Having passed from all view of friends and homeland, we sought our cabins, and what a comfort to read the many "sailing" letters from beloved friends!

Soon we had passed safely out of Puget Sound into the surging waters of the Great Pacific, and as we moved onward our hearts throbbed with a new emotion, beholding the mighty powers of the great deep. How keen, in those hours, became the consciousness of our own weakness and insignificance! And how our sense of God's power and greatness was strengthened! How wonderful the Being that could set bounds to such a sea, and could say to the rolling billows, "Peace, be still." How sweet, at that moment, to trust all to him and know that it would be well! As the great ship bore us still farther onward, how interesting to watch the changing waves, now calm and peaceful; again rolling and tossing in fury, with their white caps dashing their spray into a thousand sparkling diamonds, which, beneath the magic rays of the sun, reflected the colors of the rainbow.

In the twilight we loved to linger on deck, curtained in by the blue canopy of heaven with its numberless stars twinkling at us, and the moon looking down upon us as it stretched forth its silvery pathway across the great deep. During such moments God seemed preciously near, and our emotions were stirred with a keen appreciation of the wonderful privleges we were then enjoying.

During all our voyage across the Pacific we saw no other ocean vessel. There was naught but the vast expanse of water, save, occasionally, a flying fish or seagull or else a great whale spouting in the deep.

At last, on the eve of Oct. 3, we caught the faint glimmer of a lighthouse in the distance, and we knew we were nearing the shores of Japan. On the morning of the 4th the beautiful land of the Sunrise Kingdom lay in full view before us, while in the distance towered the sacred mountain Fujiyama. God had, indeed, been very good to us. The consciousness of his presence and protection had been continually with us, and now he had brought us safely to land;—a land most interesting in its quaintness and novelty.

After a delay of six days in Yokohama we went on to Kobe where, on the 11th, we boarded the Sagami Maru, bound for Tien Tsin. Here, on the evening of Oct. 18, we at last arrived safely,—a happy party on the shores of the Celestial Kingdom. Here, God permitting, we hope to spend the rest of our days in service for him.

The Parable of the Talents Applied to Sunday-school Attendance.

BY E. R. MILLER,
President of Rockingham County, Va., Sunday-school Association.

IN GOSPEL MESSENGER of Nov. 18, page 734, I notice that a superintendent desires to know how to secure better attendance at our Sunday-schools, and he especially desires to know how to secure attendance upon the part of parents who are members of the church.

This is a very important question, and a very timely one. Taking the country over, it is estimated that only about one church member out of five attends Sunday-school. It seems to me that the Parable of the Talents might well be applied here.

It was on a Tuesday afternoon, about April 4, A. D. 30, on the slopes of the Mount of Olives, overlooking Jerusalem, the "City of the Great King," and the Temple in all of its glory, that the Master sat teaching his disciples. He said to them, "For the kingdom of heaven is as a man traveling into a far country, who called his own servants, and delivered unto them his goods. And unto one he gave five talents, to another two, and to another one; to every one according to his several ability; and straightway took his journey" (Matt. 25: 14-30).

You are familiar with the story. The one who received five talents went and traded, and gained other five talents. Likewise he that received two; he also gained other two; but he that received one went and digged into the earth and hid his lord's money.

Two of these servants were rewarded by being promoted from the position of servant to that of ruler,—not because of the talents gained, but because of faithfulness in the management of that which had been entrusted to them. But how about the other fellow who hid his lord's money? The Master calls him "wicked and slothful," and directs that he be cast into outer darkness amid "weeping and gnashing of teeth."

Now this parable is unlike that of the "unjust steward" of Luke 16: 1, for here there is no wasting of another's goods. It is also unlike that of the "Prodigal Son" of Luke 15: 13, for here there is no wandering from the Father's house, or riotous living. It is unlike that of the "Unmerciful Servant" of Matt. 18: 25, for here there is no indifference to suffering humanity. It is unlike that of the "Evil Servant" of Matt. 24: 49, for here there is neither cruelty nor oppression of his fellow-men.

What, then, is the lesson that our Lord intends to teach by this parable? There seems to have been no bargain,—no promise made on the part of the servant who received but the one talent. There was no contract entered into. I think this is the lesson,—that the nonuse of our talents or opportunities is a sin, just as truly as misuse. Neglect is as flagrant as disobedience.

Not many of us would misuse an opportunity perhaps, but how many of us are guilty of nonuse of opportunity? Not many of us would willingly disobey a commandment, yet we neglect the assembling of ourselves together, especially in Sunday-school work. Most of us like to be associated with great men and great enterprises. "The things we do, make or unmake us. Whoever links himself with a great enterprise, begins to grow toward its greatness." This is just as true of the Sunday-school superintendent, teacher or scholar.

The Sunday-school is the greatest force for righteousness in America today, yet thousands of professing Christians neglect the opportunity of identifying themselves with it.

The Sunday-school teacher has his problems, but the superintendent has greater ones; and the greatest of these is irregular attendance.

Some one has said that the sin of indifference is the curse of the Christian church. This may be true of adults, but it should not be true of the children. If it is true, it is somebody's fault. The fault may lie in the home, or in the Sunday-school itself. If in the home, it may be due to parental training, or lack of it. If in the Sunday-school, it may be due to a number of causes: (1) The superintendent may not be alive to the work. (2) The teacher may be too abstract in his teachings, uninteresting, or of the "hobby-riding" kind. The teacher, like the preacher, should steer clear of "hobbies." (3) Lack of opportunity for social culture.

The school should not be made a mere social attraction, but the wise use of the social side of the Sunday-school has unlimited opportunities for good. If you know your scholars on Sunday, you must recognize them during the week in their working clothes. This is especially true of boys. One teacher won a class of boys by taking walks with them. Be interested in the things that appeal to children. Find the point of contact. Meet them on common ground.

Many other things might be named, but we should use every legitimate means to interest the boys and girls that come to our Sunday-schools. I am inclined to think that the greatest reason for a lack of interest in our Sunday-schools is to be found in the home. If fathers and mothers were faithful in the training of the children given to them, both by precept and example, I believe we would have to enlarge our churches and Sunday-school rooms many times. Faithfulness should be the slogan of every parent, every church member, every Christian. A great change was wrought in Peter by faithfulness. He was changed from "Simon the Impulsive," to "Peter the Rock." He was transformed from one who denied his Lord three times to one who spent the rest of his life in proclaiming his Gospel, and at last died a martyr like his Master.

The Home Department, under a wise superintendent, will do much toward securing the coöperation of parents and older people. This department will work well both in the city and country.

The cradle roll is the hope of the future Sunday-school. The Sunday-school should touch the life of every individual from the cradle to the grave. It is the Sunday-school that is the hope of the future church.

There is one statement in the article, above referred to, that I do not think the writer means us to take too literally. He says: "Waste no time in lamenting over those who are absent. Do your best for those who are present." The latter part of that statement I most heartily endorse. We should do our very best for those who are present. But how about the absent ones? It is the hundredth sheep that we want to bring back to the fold. He may wander away himself, and lead others away with him. We want them safe in the fold with the "nigety and nine." By all means, never neglect the absent ones! A post card from the teacher to the absent ones has its value, but it is not as good as a letter. Better than all is a personal invitation to the absent ones, if it is possible to visit them during the week. Some classes have a committee to look after the absent ones. If you will excuse a personal reference, I will here speak of a class of twenty-nine college girls. As the secretary calls the roll, and there is one absent, I call for a volunteer to speak to that one during the week, and tell her that she was missed, and to invite her back next Sunday. Upon one occasion a young lady was absent two consecutive Sundays. On Saturday evening before the next Sunday I went to the telephone and called up Miss S., and told her that she had been absent two Sundays, and I desired to know if she had been ill. The next morning Miss S. was in Sunday-school with a prepared lesson.

Most of us are one-talented men and women, but that can not hinder us from making a success of life. We may not hear God's "Well done," but we should expect to hear him say, "Well tried," or, "Well attempted."

Divine Peace.

BY GERTRUDE HOFF.

"Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid."

THESE were the words spoken by our Savior to his disciples, while yet on earth. What comforting words! What a happy thought to know that the peace which was given to them there, is ours today!

How often our hearts are burdened and troubled with cruel waves of trials, sorrows and temptations! So often, when the storms are raging, on this great ocean of life, our frail bark is tossed to and fro, and it seems as if the angry waves would surely dash us against the rocks. The nights are dark and dreary, and we wander about, seeking for a safe refuge, but the rising billows rush around us until we are almost overwhelmed. We are lost and know not the way. Our hearts are sick with fear and anguish and trembling. We feel the roaring, swelling tide rush over us as, in our imagination we see our bark wrecked, and tossed, piece by piece, upon the rocky shores.

How often, again, when we are troubled and our sorrows seem to be crushing us, we weep, feeling as if we were alone and had no one to go to for relief, and no one to comfort us. Then, wafted on the summer breezes, we seem to hear the comforting words, "Peace be unto you." We look up and, in our imagination, we can see a vision. We see Jesus before us with bleeding hands and feet and a pierced side, and we see him stretch forth his hands as if in a blessing, and again we hear the sweet voice saying, "Peace be unto you. I will never forsake thee! Dear child, when weary, remember I have promised never to leave thee alone."

Ah, what a rich blessing! Surely no earthly friend could ever give us so much joy and comfort. The storm is over, the rolling billows are calmed and our bark, which seemed so near being crushed a few moments ago, is now steady and firm. How easy it is for us to sing, "Glory be to God" for such a wonderful Comforter. Many times did our blessed Savior appear to his disciples and comfort them with those soothing words, "Peace be unto you."

How endearing were the words our Savior spoke to his disciples just before his crucifixion! They were comforted and why should not we be comforted, and be ready to love and obey him? He said, "Behold the hour cometh, yea, is now come, that ye shall be scattered, every man to his own, and shall leave me alone; and yet I am not alone, because my Father is with me. These things I have spoken unto you that in me ye might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation; but be of good cheer: I have overcome the world."

We can not be lonely when we have Jesus and his Father with us, and we can always have them if we so desire. It surely is poor thankfulness to our Heavenly Father and his Son, Christ Jesus, to turn from them to our earthly neighbors and friends who are filled too much with selfishness to give such joy and peace to others. The peace they give is not eternal and does not satisfy our hungering souls. Oh, how much happier we would be, if, when our hearts are troubled and fearful, and our wavering bark seems almost crushed by the raging storms of life, we would turn from our earthly friends to our Heavenly Father!

See the beautiful vision of our resurrected Redeemer as he stands, his face glowing with a radiant smile and his eyes shining with unfathomed love, while he extends his arms toward us and we feel the blessing of Divine Peace when we hear the beautiful words, so softly and gently spoken, "Peace, I leave with you; my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid."

THE ROUND TABLE

Evening.

Birthday Reverie of a Veteran.

BY J. D. HAUGHTELIN.

WHEN the rising sun shines on the dew-decked grass, flowers and shrubbery, sparkling in all their brilliance, the morning is beautiful, but oh, how ephemeral! Our pathway across the dewy lawn is marked by the destruction of those same beautiful gems. In a little time the same sun that caused the dewdrops to sparkle in all their beauty, also causes them to pass away altogether.

"At evening time it shall be light" (Zech. 14: 7). Authors, poets, painters have vied with each other in their efforts to portray the grandeur of a glorious sunset. It paints the landscape,—plains, forests, mountains,—in ever-changing, most glorious colors. Unlike the sparkling morning dew, the scene can not be effaced or tarnished by the touch or tread of man.

Our very footprints, whether they be in golden sands, or the pure, green sward, or even in the mire, are made beautiful by the variety of shadow and light, cast thereon, by the sinking sun of the evening.

So it is in life. In the innocency and purity of childhood everything is bedecked with the pure dews of heaven, sparkling in brilliant hues to gladden the pure child-heart, that has never known sin. But soon, ah, so soon, the fierce trials and temptations of maturer years dispel those beautiful, sparkling gems.

While in this life, we pass through privations, bereavements and sorrows. The fierce struggles and conquests of an active, useful life make us weary indeed. How consoling to know that "at evening time it shall be light!"

Standing at the seventy-sixth milestone of my life's journey, it is a delight to count my blessings. I enjoy good eyesight, hearing, and digestion. I delight in the blessing of a comfortable little home, with its hallowed and sacred associations. The fellowship of the saints, and the blessings of the public sanctuary cheer my declining days. Surely, it is a glorious evening! The sun is fast sinking in the western sky, gilding not only the firmament and clouds with golden tinges, but all around us,—even the path down into the valley. The prosperity and advancement of the church, both locally and at large, increase the light at evening.

Comparatively few that were members of the Church of the Brethren, when I united with it, over sixty years ago, are now living. Perhaps Jehovah has some unfinished work for me to do. If so, God help me to do it acceptably, even though it be only to "let my light shine," and thus help others.

Ministerial Students.

BY LEANDER SMITH.

DURING the last decade much has been said and written concerning the scarcity of ministers. As it appears to us, this scarcity is not due to the lack of men, but to the want of men who are called and qualified for the work. We believe that it is safe to say that there are enough ministers in the Church of the Brethren to supply every church in the Brotherhood. It must be remembered that a number of our ministers are not engaged in the work of the ministry, and that others seem to make the ministry a side issue only.

While much has been done to raise the educational standard of the ministry, but little time has been given to the problem of studying how to get our ministers animated with a zeal for the work. It is a well-known fact that a large per cent of college students of other denominations fail to give themselves to the work of the ministry. Many of this number are educated at the expense of the church, and represent a real loss to the denomination.

How, then, are we to know whether one has "gifts" to teach or preach until he has been called to exercise his gifts? Surely, every student for the ministry should possess the Scriptural qualifications, nor should he be allowed to enter as a student for the ministry without having given proof of his fitness for the high office. It is better that a man preach with a call and without an education, than with an education and without a call.

Let us see to it that only God-called men enter our ministry, and that every God-called man be fully prepared for the great work. If we were more careful about electing men to the ministry, we would have more active ministers. I believe it would be a good thing for all overseers to instruct their members before an election, and lay the qualifications, given by Paul in 1 Tim. 3, before them. This should be done in the spirit of prayer (Acts 1: 24), "And they prayed and said, Thou, Lord, which knowest the hearts of all men, shew whether of these two thou hast chosen."

The man who possesses the scriptural qualifications is, we believe, the God-called man, and will make a success of the work. If the minister is not careful, the members will be indifferent and the work will degenerate.

Thanksgiving.

BY J. D. BLOCHER.

WHILE a spirit of thanksgiving is devotional in much of its make-up, yet a mere lip service is not thanksgiving nor devotional. All devotional service should ring out in fervency,—an element necessary in any and all heart service. We should praise God for all his benefits and loving-kindness to the children of men.

Thanksgiving most naturally springs from a saved soul. Yet many would-be-saved men and women do not proclaim praise and thanksgiving in word and deed. It is a question whether real praise and thanksgiving can come from an unregenerate heart. It is the regenerate heart only that is moved to real action in proclaiming God's goodness. From the very nature of the word, thanksgiving does not stop with the audible tongue service, else any one could please God in this way.

From Psa. 26: 7 we learn that there must be a preparation of the heart first. This heart preparation does not alone affect the tongue. It affects the whole being. If our whole being is prompted to action, it does not seek expression to God alone, but must reach out to our fellow-creatures as well. This being the case, our purses as well as our hearts will demonstrate the praise of God. Praise and thanksgiving are the avenues through which they make known our Christianity. It is our proclamation of the Christ-life in this sinful age.

Another national Thanksgiving Day calls for a season of grateful meditation, to review and celebrate our material progress and tranquility, and to give appropriate expression of our practical sympathy to needy men. Upheavals, slaughters and massacres have not touched our shores. For this we should praise God, and implore him to continue his watchful eye over us. To prove our worthiness before him, we should remember our needy fellowmen at home and abroad, spiritually and temporally. If we have no need of a national Thanksgiving at this time, we never will have. We, as individuals, should enter heart and soul into this service to Almighty God for his care over us, praying that our nation may more and more influence the world for peace.

The Soul's Value.

BY IDA HELM.

WITH earthly measure we can not estimate the value of one soul, for it is worth more than the whole world. "For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul" (Mark 8: 36, 37)?

If we could fully realize the meaning of eternity, the happiness of the righteous and the agony of the lost, we would know something of the value of a soul, and the saving of souls would be the burden of every heart. We would not idle any of our time, but we would be about our Father's business every day and every minute. The day of life is fast speeding away, and the night of death is coming, when we must leave our work in this world forever. Whether it be well done, or whether we have slighted our work, and wasted our time, we must go hence. Then, what difference will it make whether we have gained the riches of this world,—our uppermost thought then will be: "Is my soul washed in the blood of the Lamb? Have I a clear title to a home in the sky?" We do not know what moment death will come.

"Death enters and there's no defense,
His time there's none can tell:
He'll in a moment call thee hence,
To heaven or down to hell."

CHRISTIAN WORKERS' TOPIC

Meditation Upon God's Word.

Psa. 19: 7-11.

For Sunday Evening, December 10, 1911.

Devout meditation upon God's Word is all-important to soul-health. If God's Word is learned and cherished and obeyed, it will

I. Guide (Psa. 73: 24; 119: 105).

II. Cleanse and sanctify (John 15: 3; 17: 17; 1 Pet. 1: 22).

III. Nourish (1 Pet. 2: 1-3; John 6: 55, 63).

IV. Build up (Acts 20: 28; 2 Pet. 1: 5-7).

V. Equip (Eph. 6: 17; Heb. 4: 12).

VI. Cause rejoicing (Jer. 15: 16; Job 23: 12; Psa. 119: 72, 127).

VII. And bring comfort (Rom. 15: 4; Psa. 119: 50, 81).

Note.—(1) God's Word is not a dead letter. It is "quick (living, life-giving) and powerful." It has power to convert the soul and to sanctify it (Rom. 1: 16; 1 Cor. 1: 18). (2) God's Word is a guide to heaven only as it is believed and obeyed. No sailor gets any good out of his compass, if he either refuses to look at it, or refuses to steer the course it indicates when he does look at it (3) Pray with real desire for a clearer understanding of the Word, and for a closer and more trustful obedience to the truth it reveals.

Song.—"Precious Bible, what a treasure."

Rising Above Discouragements.

2 Cor. 4: 7-18.

For Week Beginning December 10, 1911.

1. The Troubles That Beset Us.—We are not told in the Sacred Record that no discouragements shall darken our pathway in the Christian life. "Man is born unto trouble as the sparks fly upward." Sin has its inevitable consequences, and we cannot escape them. In our Christian service we must expect to meet disappointments,—keen and piercing. It is for us to put our hand in God's hand, and go right ahead! Sow the seed and let God look after the harvest (Psa. 126: 5, 6).

2. Great Consolations to the Believer.—Our excellency is of God. With his light within us, we need not fear the darkness. With the Divine illumination in our heart, "the path of the just will be as the shining light that shineth more and more unto the perfect day." Would you like more discouragement? Be a reflection of Christ's blessed light, and show its glorious radiance to others (Prov. 4: 18; Matt. 5: 14-16).

3. God's Treasure in Earthly Vessels.—There he has placed it "that the exceeding greatness of the power may be of God and not from ourselves." As vessels to hold God's treasure, we are but "earthen" ones, of little merit, with no good thing of which we may boast. But with Christ shining into our hearts, we have rare excellence indeed. By his grace the old earthen vessel is chosen as the medium through which the treasure is to be passed along (Philpp. 2: 14, 15).

4. Compensations for All Disappointments.—The believer is not to toil in vain. "Our light affliction" will some day bring about "an eternal weight of glory." The glorious reward is sure to be ours. We need but do our duty, leaving all results with the Lord (Col. 3: 23, 24).

HOME AND FAMILY

If Every Face Were Just Like Ours.

BY D. MANCY QUELLHORST.

If every face we looked upon,
And every hand we clasped,
Were just like ours, life's work would be
A disappointing task.

If any way we turned, we saw
A figure like our own,
And every action, word, or deed,
Were ours, and ours alone.

If every day were just the same,
From morning until night,
With nothing new to cheer us on,
Or keep our faces bright.

What if 'twere sunshine all the day,
With ne'er a cloud in sight,
Or what, if naught but clouds o'erspread
Our sky with blackest night?

The plainest face, the roughest hand,
We'd greet with pure delight,
And each new day, with rain or shine,
And each new starlit night,—

Would be a heaven of happiness,
For which our hearts would swell
With gratitude to God above,
Who doeth all things well.

Now, since he kindly gives each face,
Its own peculiar smile,
Each hand we clasp, each form we see,
New love our hearts to fill,—

We'll praise his name, who planned that each
Should different charms possess,
And covet those whose power may win
Some soul to righteousness!

The Mother on the Church Steps.

BY AUGUST BECK.

A SHORT time ago when the Christian Workers at the Chicago Sunday-school Extension began to gather on Sunday night, a young woman, with a baby in her arms, sat huddled up on the church steps. As soon as the door swung open, she entered and took a seat. During the sermon which followed, the baby commenced to cry, whereupon a sister led the mother down into the basement. Here she sat, nice and warm, till the end of the service.

A brother who had noticed the woman, and had seen, by her despairing eyes, that she was in trouble, spoke to the sister about it. Both then went down to the basement to see what could be done for the young woman.

It was the old, old story. She, as a young girl, had given her love, life and welfare into the hands of a man without God in his heart. No sooner were they married than he started to abuse her, got drunk and made her go to work. Two children were born. A boy, five years old, is now cared for by a Catholic institution. (Here lies the real strength of Catholicism. They provide for the fatherless, motherless, and those who are without proper protection at home.) The baby she took with her wherever she went to scrub or wash.

That particular day her husband got drunk as usual, came home, flew into a rage because the tea was cold, grabbed a broom-handle and dealt her a savage blow. Her side swelled and she at times had trouble in breathing. "I was never struck before," she moaned over and over again. After the blow she fled from the house, as she was, her baby wrapped in a small quilt. She walked a long way to reach this neighborhood, where she had relatives living. But, picture her dilemma, when she found that they had moved, and no one knew where. Heart-sore, sick and weary she tottered on with her baby.

At Douglas Park some one, noting her distress, directed her to the Sunday-school Extension at California Avenue. "Go there," she was told, "those people will help you."

Thus it came about that we found her on our church steps. The sister and the brother inquired if she was in need of anything. "No," she said, "I have all I need, and tomorrow I must wash for one of my customers. If I only could get to Taylor Street, where I have friends, I would be all right for tonight, but I did not get a chance to take money with me to pay my car fare." So the brother carried the baby for her, and saw her safely on board a car, bound for Taylor Street.

On the way thither the poor woman said: "That was such a nice, clean church and such wholesome-looking people! What church is it?"

She was told, "It is the Church of the Brethren."

Then she asked, "And what do they believe?"

"They believe in the Bible. They believe every word, from cover to cover, and try, by God's help, to live up to it."

"Yes, yes, I see that," she said. Then, continuing, she said: "I was brought up well,—straight as straight can be,—but since I married I have been driven from pillar to post. My clothes are of the poorest,—all thin calico. I had a jacket, but my husband tore that to bits yesterday. Whenever I have a few cents saved, he takes them and spends them for drink."

How many thousands of poor women there are, in the same plight, right here in Chicago! It behooves us, as God's children, to be up and doing, to fight sin and Satan with all our might and main, through the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ.

The Difference Between Two Mothers.

BY MINNIE F. BRIGHT.

IT was a Sunday evening, when we were far out on the Pacific. For days there had been cloudy weather and much of the time a rough sea and dark nights. That day had been most delightful, however, and for the first time, of all the evenings, could the moon be seen, with now and then a cloud flitting past it. It seemed to us it never had shone quite so beautiful before, yet we knew it was all the brighter simply because it had been so long since it had a chance to show forth its radiance. Little Roscoe, aged six, had just been attired with fresh, clean clothing for the remainder of the evening, and from his room walked to the end of the hallway, where was a porthole. He stopped in front of the window, which had iron bars fastened over it and, looking out, discovered the moon shining in all its beauty in the heavens above us. He drew as closely as possible to the window, and it seemed he tried to get between the bars to get a better view of that evening picture,—the moon shining upon the waters without.

Just then his mother, a tired little woman, who had been chafing under the discomforts of a rough sea, appeared in search of him. Upon seeing his mother, his little soul burst out in delight and his dark eyes sparkled as he exclaimed, "Oh, mama; come and see the moon!"

"I want you to come away there," she said commandingly.

"Oh, mama, just come and see the moon," he again pleaded.

"I want you to come right away there," she said more commandingly.

The bright eyes and face now bore a shadow. He dropped his head and began slowly moving toward his mother, and in a subdued tone said, "But, mama, you ought to see the moon." "You just stay away there," I heard her say and he was led to another part of the boat.

It was on another Sunday evening, and the day had been most beautiful. Rainy and cloudy weather had been prevailing for several days and this Lord's Day was especially enjoyed by all. The soft summer breezes and the scent of flowers made the evening most charming and the moon was coming up clear and beautiful, shedding its mellow light upon the earth. Little Harry, aged six, stood at the garden gate, in childish fashion peering into the distance above him, gazing at the moon in all her splendor. He, too, had on his "best clothes" and thoughtlessly and child-like, was rubbing himself back and forth against the gate, but the only thought he had now was about the "pretty moon."

The mother was coming in from some of her evening chores, fatigued with the care of her fretful babe and the entertaining of friends during the day, but when little Harry saw his mother coming he exclaimed with delight, "Oh, mama, just see the moon!" "Yes, dear, isn't it beautiful this evening? I am glad my little son has been watching it. I would have you always remember that God made the moon to give us light when it is dark, and whenever we see the beautiful moon we should think of God as being very kind to give us such a lamp to light up the dark earth. Come now, let us go into the house and mama will put you to bed."

Little Harry jumped down and ran into the house, his little heart so light and happy. And why? Because mother had stopped a few minutes and enjoyed his pleasure with him.

How many times we brush our little ones aside when they beg of us to share a joy with them, forgetting that we, too, have passed through their little world of joys and sorrows, and longed, at times, for companionship ourselves, but are now in a sphere beyond them. How much closer the children would grow to mother if she would spend more of her moments with them as they grow up before her, and, too, how the confidences of the child could be kept!

How often are children unjustly pushed aside to satisfy our own desires and pleasure! We never stop to consider that they have rights which deserve our consideration. Oh, the many hungering little hearts that want mother to share their joys, and yet she is so heedless.

When the first mother's son grows to manhood and she feels that he neglects her, and does not confide in her as she would desire, she has forgotten that she herself neglected to be a companion in early childhood, when he begged it of her; so he gradually seeks his companionship elsewhere.

If only motherhood, with all its blessings and joys, might be more awake to these calls of our little ones!

A Lost Boy.

BY LIZZIE HILARY.

A FEW days ago the news was flashed over the wires that a boy was lost. Soon everybody responded to the call, to hunt the boy that was lost. Autos, buggies and horsemen were all on the go, until the boy was found. He had been sent to town on an errand only a mile and a half away. When he started from home he took the wrong road, and, being of a somewhat nervous disposition, he became confused, and thus walked on and suffered. He did not ask any one for anything, and no one knew he was in need. He wandered around for two days and nights, but during the last night he perished, not having any nourishment nor sufficient clothing to keep him warm. Thus he was found dead in a field, about ten miles from his home.

This is a sad story, but there is a still sadder one to tell. How many boys and girls, near our doors, are lost in sin? Can we not reach forth our hands and save them before they are eternally lost?

SISTERS' AID SOCIETIES

MOUNT CARROLL, ILL.—Our Sisters' Aid Society was organized Nov. 2, 1911. The following officers were elected: Sister Henry Schroeple, president; Sister Alice Drapier, secretary-treasurer; Sister Alice Garber, superintendent. We had eight members present. We expect to meet every Thursday afternoon. A collection of $1.78 was lifted to start the work.—Mrs. Alice Drapier, Sec. Mount Carroll, Ill., Nov. 4.

GIRARD, ILL.—Our Dorcas Aid Society met Nov. 16. After prayer service, conducted by Sister Ollie Smeltzer, the report of the work was read. Twenty-five meetings were held during the year, with an average attendance of eleven. We donated cash to the Kansas City Mission, $16; clothing to the St. Joseph Mission, valued at $11.05; clothing to the Chicago Mission, valued at $10.40; clothing to the Kansas City Mission, valued at $42.10; cash and clothing donated to the needy at home, not enumerated. The following officers were elected for the coming year: Sister Susie Otewalt, president; Sister Mary Riffey, vice-president; Sister Mary Amos, treasurer; the writer, secretary.—Lizzie Stowe, Girard, Ill., Nov. 20.

☞All business and communications intended for the paper should be addressed to the BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, ELGIN, ILL., and not to any individual connected with it.

BRO. J. L. GUTHRIE, of Ohio, has arranged to spend the winter at Fruitdale, Ala.

BRO. S. G. LEHMER, of Los Angeles, is engaged in a series of meetings at Stonyford, Cal.

OUR correspondent for Brothers Valley, Pa., reports four baptized and one reclaimed.

ON Saturday of last week Bro. S. S. Fouts and wife, of Salem, Ill., called at the MESSENGER sanctum.

WITH a view of getting the paper mailed before Thanksgiving we go to press with this issue several hours earlier than usual.

TEN persons were recently added to the Beaver Creek church, Va., where Bro. J. S. Showalter conducted a series of meetings.

DURING a late series of meetings within the bounds of the Falling Spring congregation, Pa., five were buried with Christ in baptism.

A REVIVAL meeting at Stonertown church, Pa., lasting two weeks and conducted by the pastor, Bro. H. B. Heisey, closed with eight accessions.

BRO. T. A. ROBINSON finishes his labors this week in the Boise Valley congregation, Idaho, and then goes to Nampa for a three-weeks' meeting.

THE new churchhouse at Fostoria, Ohio, is about completed, and will be dedicated Dec. 17, Bro. D. M. Garver delivering the address for the occasion.

SOME Thanksgiving matter, for which no space could be arranged for last week, will be found in this issue, and we feel sure that it will be appreciated.

THE membership of the Franklin church, Iowa, has been increased by four,—three baptized, and one awaiting the rite. One was restored to fellowship.

BRO. D. M. ADAMS, of Scalp Level, Pa., has accepted a call from the church at Cerro Gordo, Ill., and will enter upon his duties as pastor the first of January.

A SPLENDID revival was held in the Kaskaskia church, Ill., conducted by Brother and Sister Chas. Walter. Eleven accepted Christ and were baptized, and three were reclaimed.

THIS coming Saturday, Dec. 9, Bro. J. M. Blough and wife leave New York for India. They have arranged to stop off at Joppa, and spend a few weeks in Palestine, visiting several points of interest. They may, until date of sailing, be addressed at the Brooklyn Mission, N. Y.

WE have just learned of the death of Bro. Jeremiah Gump, of Churubusco, Ind., said to be the oldest elder in Northern Indiana. He was not only a devout man in his family and neighborhood, but was looked upon as a faithful and consecrated preacher of the Gospel. A very interesting account of his life and labors will appear in our issue of next week.

BRO. D. L. MILLER and wife are now on their way to California, where they are to remain until March, visiting a number of churches. In the spring they return by way of McPherson, Kans., hoping to reach their home at Mount Morris by the first of April.

BRO. JOHN R. SNYDER, of Findlay, Ohio, one of our regular contributors, called on us a few days ago. He spent some time in the composing room when the House was located at Mount Morris. Later he became a newspaper correspondent, but is now serving as private secretary and press correspondent for Dr. French E. Oliver, lecturer and evangelist.

SISTER GRACE GNAGY, who has been engaged in mission work at Pittsburgh, Pa., Minneapolis, Minn., and other points, and does some very acceptable writing for our columns, now and then, spent last Lord's Day at Elgin, and called at the MESSENGER sanctum on Monday. She is now in Bethany Bible School, making further preparation for her work at mission posts.

AN earnest correspondent thinks that we have too little reference to the Scriptures, and too much of the sensational, in some of our local temperance meetings. He may possibly be correct. At least it will not be amiss, for those who make our programs for these meetings, to think about the importance of magnifying the Word of God as much as possible, in all of our services.

WRITING from Trotwood, Ohio, Bro. D. M. Garver says: "We are pleased to report growth in every department of our church work at this place." Accompanying his letter is a fine photo card of a group, in front of the church, consisting of about 300, mostly young people and children. With such a group of promising people the outlook for a good work should be encouraging.

BRO. DAVID B. CRIPE, late of Dunlap, Kans., died at Newville, N. Dak., Oct. 24. He is said to have been a faithful elder, a man of great faith and fervent in prayer. As a minister he served the church a number of years, and though a great sufferer during his recent illness, he bore it all without a murmur, and died quietly, being conscious to the last. He had seventy-eight years to his credit, having been a member of the church sixty years.

BRO. H. J. BERKEY, who resides at Harrisburg, Ill., says that he is living isolated, and that, so far as he knows, no other members reside in his part of the State. He is a firm believer in the anointing and has this to say, concerning its benefits: "I have been sorely afflicted for two years. I received the anointing one year ago, after all the doctors had given up my case. But the Lord raised me up, and is now healing my body. Through all my affliction the MESSENGER has brought me much consolation and spiritual strength. Blessed be the name of the Lord."

LAST spring some of the fine-spirited women of California set on foot a movement to unite the women of America to memorialize Congress for a peace statute, to be erected at the entrance of the Panama Canal. The idea appeals to the peace-loving people all over the country, and especially the women. The suggestion is a good one, for if there is to be a statue of any kind, at the entrance of the canal, it should be one in the interest of peace. But what would be the consistency of a peace statue, when Congress proposes to spend millions of dollars to erect fortifications and supply them with the best known equipments for war? If the proposed statue is to be erected, there should be no need of fortifications, and if the fortifications are to be constructed as planned, then no good can come from spending money for a peace statue. We should think it more advisable to convince the United States Senate of the importance of ratifying the fine peace treaties, pending between our government and some of the leading nations. But we are glad for the part the women of this country are taking in the interest of universal peace. It simply means that, when the women in all the States get the ballot, there are going to be some marked changes respecting war, and they are just waiting for an opportunity to demonstrate it.

A FEW months ago a notice appeared in our columns of some isolated members, living either in Northwestern Iowa, or Northeastern Nebraska, who would be pleased to have members, passing through their country, visit them. The parties interested will please write Bro. Chas. W. Eisenbise, Kingsley, Iowa. He is giving special attention to isolated members.

THERE are fifty-three Sundays this year, and the report is going the rounds of the press that a like occurrence will not happen for over one hundred years, when, in fact, there will be more than a dozen years containing fifty-three Sundays during the present century. We had such a year in 1905, another in 1899, and also one of fifty-three Sundays in 1893. During the century there will be a number of years having fifty-three Saturdays, and this means that the patrons of the MESSENGER are to have fifty-three papers for these years.

EVERY week we have been returning obituary or marriage notices because of the omission of an essential date, etc. This requires not only time but also considerable postage and, more than all else, the delay causes dissatisfaction to our patrons. If our writers will use a little more care in the preparation of their notices, there will be no delay in their publication, and they will be correct in every detail. Hereafter we shall feel at liberty to publish all notices according to the information furnished us, leaving the responsibility with the sender of the notice.

WE are asked for an expression regarding the advisability of members reading radical socialistic papers. Reference is had to the class of papers that denounce government, oppose the Christian religion, and hold up to scorn public men entitled to at least a measure of respect. We believe it bad policy for members to spend their time reading papers of any class that denounce law, civil authority, religion or anything else that is for the improvement of the race. There are papers of this sort, and they represent various political parties,—socialists as well as others. For our reading we should select the best we have along religious, educational and other necessary lines, but avoid that which is sensational, abusive and degrading. Especially should all demoralizing literature be kept out of families. A newspaper coming into the family should be of the highest possible type. Even the best to be had, in these days of corruption and demoralization, can never be too good for a Christian family. The selection of cheap journals is frequently a most wretched piece of economy. It may save a dollar or two, but it often exposes the different members of the family to evils that are of the most dangerous character. Our people can never exercise too great care in the selection of papers that come into their homes, and this, too, regardless of party lines.

Making Money.

WE would not think of asking our people to make less money than is falling to their lot. We should rather have them to secure more, if they can do it honestly in the sight of God and men, but we would urge them to make a better use of their money. There is nothing wrong about a man acquiring many thousands of dollars, if he does it according to the Golden Rule; but it is in the use he makes of his possessions that sin may enter in. We need men who are in good circumstances, and, other things being equal, they are a help to the church. The church needs their money and their influence. If they are the right kind of men, she can make good use of their business talents. We rather prefer to encourage men to acquire property and secure homes, as well as an ample income. We like to hear of members making money in an honest way, but such men should learn to give as they are prospered. There is no reason why a man should acquire thousands upon thousands of dollars and keep it until he is too old to see after his wealth. He ought to divide up with the Lord, and use some of his property, as well as his ability, to acquire means in the interest of some good work. He should remember the mission cause, charitable institutions and our schools. What we are here saying should apply to men of moderate means, as well as to those of larger holdings, and what is suggested in regard to acquiring wealth and making a proper use of it, is a matter of no small consideration. Men who have the ability of gathering wealth, should also have the ability of making a wise use of their means, and for any neglect of duty in this particular they must render an account at the judgment bar of God. Even if there were no hereafter in the matter, the good of humanity should prompt them to do much more than most of them are doing.

The Mission Board.

While in Elgin, last week, the General Mission Board held three day sessions, and one night session. All the members were present, with Bro. D. L. Miller presiding most of the time. In his absence Bro. H. C. Early, vice-chairman, presided.

Very little strictly new business was presented for consideration, but several phases of old business needed attention. The work of the Board is becoming large, and it is no small matter to provide for the present needs, in view of future developments, and to keep everything running smoothly. The work in our foreign mission fields was started without any experience and with little system, but time has demonstrated the value of both. At this meeting some very complete application blanks were perfected, for prospective missionaries to fill out and sign. One of the blanks,—and by the way, an important one,—relates to the religious belief and convictions of missionaries. It is important that all workers on the foreign fields be thoroughly rooted and grounded in the doctrines of the church they represent.

While the Board is considering the advisability of opening up work in Cuba, nothing has yet been matured. It is realized that a great southern field is spread out before us, but it can not be entered without preparation. It is not deemed sufficient to send a man into a new field and run the risk of him working up the interest. The conditions must be understood before the work is undertaken.

Appropriations were made for a few bungalows in India, and the work of building must continue until all of our foreign workers are well housed. This is a costly proposition, where so many stations have to be provided for, but it is one of the things that dare not be neglected. If we would get the best out of our missionaries, we must see that they are well fed, well clothed and well sheltered.

The provisions for furlough need regular attention. Several of the workers in India are to return home during the next twelve months. After a period of hard work in a hot and unhealthy climate, missionaries are granted a rest of one year in their homeland. The sea voyage and several months among friends gives them new life, as well as added inspiration. Most of them, however, do not rest much while on a furlough. They visit churches and work up missionary sentiment in various localities. Some of them, however, feel the need of more Biblical training, and while at home, from time to time, may be expected to spend at least a few months in some good Bible school, or Bible Department. It seems to us that this is a splendid plan.

The necessity of medical missionaries in our foreign fields becomes more apparent as the years go by, and the Board has several making the necessary preparation. It requires years of hard work in good medical schools to fit men and women for medical duties, and that is why this part of our work in foreign fields may seem to move slowly. Inside of another year the Board will probably be able to send out several well-equipped doctors. However, more ought to be making preparations, for they will be needed.

So far nothing definite can be done regarding the Jerusalem mission. The work in Denmark and Sweden is moving along as usual, with Bro. J. F. Graybill in general charge. Bro. Paul Mohler will soon be looking after the mission in France and Switzerland.

The rebellion in China renders the situation there uncertain for the present. From what can be learned our missionaries must remain at Tien Tsin, on the coast, where they will enjoy needed protection, until order can be fully restored, so no further steps could be taken regarding the work in the Celestial Empire.

A number of loans were made for building meeting-houses, and several thousand dollars appropriated for work in State Districts, principally in the West. Five hundred dollars was allowed the District Board of Tennessee, for work in this large territory, containing a population of 8,000,000 souls. It is the purpose of this Board to open up some work among the colored people, and this is something that the General Board is anxious to have done.

The Board seemed pleased with the outlook for the several publications of the House. Some helpful suggestions were made and some movements were set on foot with a view of doing more for the Sunday-school interest. We can mention these things in a general way only, for the reason that the details have not yet been worked out.

Among the Churches in East Tennessee and North Carolina.

The Knob Creek church, midway between Jonesboro and Johnson City, Elders S. J. and D. F. Bowman in charge, was the first organized church of the Brethren in Tennessee. Eld. Samuel Garber, of Virginia, came to the State about the year 1800, labored in Word and doctrine and organized the church. In those days meetings were held in the houses of the members, and church buildings were not numerous among our people. The membership was limited. At the first love feast, held in the State, only five communicants were present. From this nucleus grew the State Districts of Tennessee and North and South Carolina.

In 1834 our first meetinghouse was built in the State, known as the Knob Creek house. It was built of hewn logs, "chunked and daubed," as were most of the houses in those days. In size it was thirty-six by fifty feet, with a kitchen sixteen by eighteen, used to prepare for love feasts. Later a lean-to shed, open at side and ends was constructed for the accommodation of the first Annual Meeting held in Tennessee, Sept. 4, 1846. It was a special Conference and is noted because of a deliverance made on the slavery question. A brother had been expelled for selling slaves and wanted to be received into fellowship. Answer, "Such a brother cannot be reinstated until he has used every exertion in his power to liberate them, and make full satisfaction to the church."

The old house was torn down in 1905 and replaced by a large and well-constructed, modern building. It should have been preserved for the good accomplished in it and especially for the witness of the church against slavery here promulgated and as a reminder how we have changed as to church buildings. It is a long look from the old log meetinghouses of the fathers,—slab benches without backs, eight by ten window-lights, tallow-dips for lighting, built at a nominal cost of not over a hundred dollars, outside of the labor, most of which was donated,—to our best houses of worship today. These cost from ten to twenty-five thousand dollars, finished in polished hard wood, large windows with colored or stained glass, the best of modern seats, the building heated with a furnace, lighted with electricity, cushions if you want them, and every possible convenience. It is not wrong to have the very best for God's service. Surely, we ought to give him as good as we use for ourselves, but there is imminent danger of going to extremes, both in our houses of worship and in our homes.

Several most enjoyable days were spent with the members of the Knob Creek church. The evening meetings were well attended, the interest good, and it is hoped that lasting impressions were made. At the closing meeting three precious souls gave themselves to Christ. It was urged by the brethren that the meetings should continue, but appointments already made prevented a longer stay.

It was our privilege to meet with the District Mission Board of Tennessee. Included in its territory are four States and part of a fifth,—Tennessee, Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi, and part of Virginia. The territory has an area of two hundred thousand square miles, with a population of over eight million souls. The Board has recently inaugurated a new plan for raising money for mission work, and it is sincerely hoped it will result in increased funds, so that the work may not be hindered. The South offers a wide open, fruitful field for mission work,—a field that we have been too slow to occupy. More attention should be given to it in the future than in the past. The Board is made up of men of matured judgment and earnest in their desire to advance the cause of Christ. The writer fully believes that these brethren will do their best to care for the large field placed in their charge by the church of the Living God. We ought to have organized congregations all over the South and, under God's blessing, we will have them in the years to come, if energy and proper methods are used.

The next stopping place was at Bristol, where our Annual Conference was held in 1905. The memory of that good meeting is still vivid among the people of Bristol, and they would like another of the same kind.

Pleasant View church is ten miles southwest of Bristol, and here four meetings were held. Brethren John H. Garst and Noah Sherfy are the elders in charge. The house was not large enough to hold all the people the last evening. We had a very pleasant stay with these kind-hearted, generous members, and shall not soon forget it. In the Pleasant Hill church lived Elder John A. Bowman, a man of marked ability and one of nature's own orators. He was an able and powerful preacher and often lifted his voice against slavery and the Civil War. He was shot down at his own home by a Confederate soldier and then struck on his temple with the butt of the gun, and thus put to death. He was, in the manner of his death, the John Kline of Tennessee.

The time taken for the visit to the South was all too short. There are twenty-one churches in the District and then there are the churches of North and South Carolina. All should have been visited. It would have been a real pleasure to have spent six instead of one month with them. The brethren were overkind. If a well beloved father had returned to his home after years of absence, a warmer or more generous welcome could not have been accorded. God bless our beloved Southern Brethren.

P. S.—In the first letter of this series reference was made to the arrest and fine of Elder Samuel Garber for preaching against slavery. His text on that occasion was Isaiah 58: 6, "Is not this the fast that I have chosen? to loose the bands of wickedness, to undo the heavy burdens, and to let the oppressed go free, and that ye break every yoke?" The text was handed to him by a man not a member of the church, with request that he preach from it. Afterward this same man was Bro. Garber's prosecutor. He had laid a trap for him, with the result as already given.

John the Baptist.

His Call.—His Mission.—His Work.

Or late our mind has been called to the subject as never before, and because of this we have been giving it some careful study and close attention,—not in reference to what others may have thought and said, but what the Scriptures say, and from this standpoint we want it read and considered. There are some things about which we can not agree on assumed grounds, but when our deductions deal with the salvation of souls, or with doctrines on which salvation may depend, we should keep within the bounds of plain scriptural teachings. It always has been our purpose, if not always our practice, when writing on religious subjects, to go for information to the Bible first and see what it says about it, and if we can get there what we desire, we need go no farther.

His Call.—As to his call there need be no mistake. He "was sent from God." So John says. His coming was revealed to God's prophets centuries prior to his coming (Mal. 3: 1; Isa. 40). He was called of God as a messenger to announce the coming of Jesus Christ. "Behold, I send my messenger and he shall prepare the way before me." His call was of God, and his sending for a very special purpose. So, then, there can be no question as to his authority for doing the work that was entrusted to him. God prepared him, —told him what to do, and how to do it. He did it, and his mission was ended.

His Mission.—As we said, his mission was a very special one,—different from anything that was ever committed, as a charge or work, to man before. It was a new step in the development of God's plans in the restoration of God's fallen creatures. Matthew says: "For this is he that was spoken of by the prophet Esaias, saying, The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight." Mark records the same prophecy, which speaks of preparing the way for the coming of Christ. Luke also refers to the same prophecy, as setting forth, in a general way, the mission of John the Baptist. John, the evangelist, quotes him as saying, "I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness. Make straight the way of the Lord, as said the prophet Esaias." It would seem that these prophecies, as given by Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, set forth very plainly the mission or the object and purpose for which John the Baptist was sent. And this brings us to our third point.

His Work,—What He Did, and How He Did It.—He was to prepare the way of the Lord, and make his paths straight. First we note he did it by preparing men, and men only. So we have reasons to conclude, that in all this preparation we have not a single woman named or suggested. Why this was we shall not attempt to explain, unless it was to show that the preparation to be made for the advent of the King to come was out of the ordinary, and the material to be prepared was to be somewhat in coördination with the thing to be brought about and established. The thing to be done was not to be an end, but a means to an end—the establishing of a new kingdom.

His Work,—What Was It, What Did He Do?—His work was that of enlisting men of whom a kingdom was to be formed, of which Christ was to be the Head or King. Not, as some think, to receive him upon his advent into the world, but after he had righteously gained the position by complying with the Father's will, and sealed his kingship with his own blood. In calling these men, Mark tells us that he preached to them the "baptism of repentance for the remission of sins." "And there went out to him all the land of Judea and they of Jerusalem, and were all baptized of him in the River of Jordan, confessing their sins," thus showing that John understood his work and did it as the Father had directed him.

But some may ask: "How were they baptized?" We do not know beyond what the Scriptures say. Mark and Luke both say they were all baptized of John in the River Jordan. But you ask: Into what name, or names, were they baptized? The narrative does not say anything about being baptized into names. They were baptized on confession of their sins.

There are two things that we venture as an opinion. First, they were not baptized in the name of Christ, because, according to John's own teachings, he had not yet come as one in whose name they could be baptized. Neither was he, as yet, baptized himself. John tells them, when baptizing them: "I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance, but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am not worthy to bear: he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire." It is not at all reasonable that he would baptize them into the name of a man who, he told them, had not yet come, and whose true mission and purpose they could not comprehend or understand.

And, second, we do not believe that he baptized in the name of the Holy Ghost, as it was promised them that they should receive this baptism further on by Jesus Christ himself. I (John) indeed baptize you with water, but he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost. There could be no significance in baptizing them into the name of the Holy Ghost before the time had come for them to receive it. And as the sacred writers say nothing about John baptizing in any name, we should be satisfied with what he himself said about it.—a "baptism of repentance for the remission of sins."

Was John's baptism a Christian baptism? Well, it was a baptism ordained of God. It was accepted and sanctioned by Christ and, as far as we know, was practiced by his disciples up to the time of his crucifixion, or to the time that he was fully authorized to introduce his own form of baptism, when he could say: "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

As Christ received his baptism from John, we have good reasons to believe that the disciples received their baptism from John, as we are not told anywhere that they ever received any other baptism, except that of the Holy Ghost on the day of Pentecost. Though we believe that John's baptism became obsolete at the introduction of Christian baptism, yet it is probable that it may have been practiced by some of his disciples, even after the day of Pentecost. But we have no information anywhere that such authority was delegated to his disciples by God or the Baptist. Neither have we any evidence anywhere that the gift of the Holy Ghost was given or promised in connection with baptism prior to the day of Pentecost. On that day the promise made to John's disciples was fulfilled, and from that time onward, all those who were baptized had the promise, and received the Holy Ghost. True, it is said by some that Apollos, one of John's converts, baptized twelve at Ephesus, and they had to be rebaptized. But Apollos baptized those twelve? My Bible does not say so. It does say that he was mighty in the Scriptures, fervent in spirit, and spoke and taught the things of the Lord, knowing only the baptism of John. It is scarcely thinkable that a man, mighty in the Scriptures, fervent in spirit, and taught diligently the things of the Lord, and having received the baptism of John, could be stupid enough to baptize others as erroneously as were the twelve named, especially when we consider that about a year before this Aquila and Priscilla expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly, and that, too, without rebaptizing him; because if he had done such baptizing, he needed rebaptism as much as the twelve.

Again; we have reason to believe that an earnest and godly man would not pretend to administer John's baptism at so late a date, because, according to Bible chronology, this baptizing must have been done some twenty years after Christ's baptism was introduced and John's had become obsolete.

In conclusion, John was a man sent from God. Though not himself baptized, he was commissioned to administer a baptism of repentance for the remission of sins. Christ was baptized by him, therefore he was baptized by an unbaptized administrator, yet sanctioned of God through the Holy Ghost.

And as the originators of the Brethren church, in its present form, were baptized by an unbaptized administrator, we are forced to the conclusion that any other party of men and women, under similar circumstances, legally and righteously, can do the same thing. And if this is so,—and we can not say no,—what can we say against accepting into our communion those who have been baptized (immersed) in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, by an administrator who not only believed in Jesus Christ, God and the Holy Spirit, but also accepts all the fundamental principles of the Gospel, as do we?

Brethren, before God and in the light of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, we should be sincere and true, because to him we must answer for what we say and do.

A Look from Without.

THE MESSENGER is read and appreciated by a surprisingly large number of earnest men and women who affiliate with other churches. Some of them write us occasionally, and they unite in pronouncing the paper clean, clear, and true to the principles for which it stands. Here is a letter that we are permitted to publish. It is from the pastor of the M. E. church at McCune, Kans.:

"These lines may be a surprise to you, but a surprise is all right, if it be the right kind. Through the kindness of the Brethren I came in possession of the Messenger, and have been reading it with interest for the last three years. You are clear in your statements, and fair to all who wish to use your columns. It is a wonder to me that the Brethren have not done more for the world at large by sending out their literature. I consider their mission helps and the Messenger the very embodiment of neatness. Their doctrine has been a surprise to me, especially along the line of the teaching of the Holy Spirit. He is exalted; he is recognized as a Leader; he is not an influence, but a person of intelligence. Your stand upon the Sabbath question is not at all uncertain. You speak out upon this question, laying bare all the evils which come from a desecration of the day. Then you are not modest about the evils of the picture shows which, to my mind, are the devil's cheap traps to catch our boys and girls. What will the end be? We need to lift up our voice like a trumpet and cry out mightily to our God. And then I am so surprised at your mission work, how nicely you are doing things along these lines. I have come in contact with Bro. Frank Crumpacker, one of your missionaries, in a former charge which I was serving. He is a young man of great promise. While I affiliate with the great Methodist Episcopal church, I do not fail to see what you are doing. Allow me to say that the 'Dunkard Brethren,' through the columns of the Messenger and the teachings of God's Word, are helping the world to Christ. And while your church was a stranger to me until a few years ago, I see you have your place. You stand for some of the great principles of Christ's Gospel. Your attitude of opposition to warfare is commendable. May the God of all grace lead and illuminate your mind, proving to those who read your paper a continual blessing—C. E. West."

Fanatical Leaders.

FOR some years our readers have been hearing of the society in the East, known as the "Holy Ghost and Us," with Mr. Sanford as head. It would seem that some time ago Mr. Sanford took a select portion of the society for a voyage on the ocean, under the pretext of doing missionary work. The yacht Coronet, employed for the purpose, remained at sea for months, and the time was spent as directed by the leader, who claims the special guidance of the Holy Ghost in all his undertakings. When the vessel finally returned to Portland, Me., Sanford was arrested and arraigned before United States Commissioner Bradley, charged with violating statutes intended to govern those who have charge of vessels on the high seas. It would appear that several persons died from neglect, and for such carelessness there are heavy fines. It is said that some intelligent and sincere ladies have been caught in his toils, and possibly they have been led to see the evil fruits of following a fanatical leader. The society will soon go the way of all other life societies. For years we have been keeping an eye on the movements of religious fanatics, and notice that each one has to run its course before it comes to naught. Each one claims to be guided by the Spirit, but it can be seen that money, some self-glorification and self-gratification too often figure in the movements. When will people cease following blind leaders?

Street Fairs.

A READER of the MESSENGER wishes to know whether it should be considered consistent for members to attend the street fairs that are becoming so common in many parts of the country. We know little about these fairs, save what we hear and read, but from what we can learn in this way, they would seem to be splendid places for members of the Church of the Brethren to stay away from. Most of them have proved a disgrace to the towns in which they were held. In fact, some cities will not permit street fairs under any circumstances. Some of the more devout members of other churches could not be induced to attend a street fair, and if the righteousness of our own people, regarding matters of this sort, does not exceed the righteousness of those who make no efforts to obey the whole Gospel, there is certainly little excuse for our existence as a religious body. We would that all of our people were strong enough, spiritually, to avoid places that are wholly unbecoming the profession we make.

Calling for the Anointing.

JAMES says: "Is any sick among you? let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord" (Jas. 5: 14). It is all right to send for the doctor when one is sick, and it is even proper to employ a nurse if the occasion requires it, but there is too little calling for the elders and the anointing. The Lord intended the anointing for the sick, and they should be encouraged to avail themselves of its promised benefits. It might be well for our ministers to preach a sermon on the subject in each congregation before the close of the year.

MADDEN VIEW, IDAHO.

This congregation has decided to build a church in Bowmont, Idaho. The members of the building committee are Brethren C. A. Williams, E. M. Wine and J. W. Blickenstaff. They are now soliciting, and expect to let up the building in the next few months. This church was originally a part of the Nampa congregation. In May, 1910, the church was organized. Since then they have had no churchhouse to hold services in, so schoolhouse. Our love feasts have been held in private dwellings. Our territory is squth of Nampa. There is not an organized church of any kind save ours, that I know of, in a radius of ten or fifteen miles. Here is a large territory and it is new. The Boise-Payette Reclamation District opens this territory, and the ditches are now being constructed on the last division. There is a large acreage of State land yet unsold. This land is being disposed of from time to time to the highest bidder, on terms of ten to eighteen years' time at 6% on the unpaid payments. Then, too, there is a large acreage of homestead land, which has been filed on by many. Claimants will relinquish for a very reasonable figure. There is an opportunity for many of our Brethren to secure a home. We greatly need another preacher. There is room here for several. We now have two places needing weekly preaching, and only one minister. Will not some good minister come?

Bowmont, Idaho, Nov. 10. C. A. Williams.

MANCHESTER COLLEGE, INDIANA.

These are busy days at Manchester College. Already ten weeks of the fall term have passed and the students are beginning to think of examination, and then, too, of Thanksgiving Day beyond. The student body, this year, is made up of a very fine class of young men and women. They are a hopeful, busy, and energetic body of students, and a very large per cent of them are Christians. The spiritual atmosphere is very acceptable, which proves that the aim is not wholly to gain knowledge, but a thorough preparation for life.

Bro. Winger takes up the position of president as one who, feeling the heavy responsibility, is determined to magnify his office. He is well fitted for the position. A splendid corps of efficient teachers are standing loyally by him, both in teaching and in discipline.

The different departments of the school are well represented. Of the one hundred and fifty-nine students enrolled, thirty-five are taking work in the College department. The Music department is doing very acceptable work under Mrs. Stahley, the new director.

It is the policy of the school to encourage Bible training, and the different classes in the Bible department are doing good work. Thirty students are enrolled for Bible work. During the winter term a class in teacher-training will be organized, to recite daily. This class will complete the course during the term, so as to receive the State diploma. This will give opportunity for Sunday-school teachers to prepare for more efficient service.

In the short time that the writer has been connected with Manchester College, his former conviction has been strengthened, that, under the present management, it is a safe and a worthy institution of the Church of the Brethren. Parents may send their children with the assurance that the best will be done for them. We desire the encouragement and prayers of those interested in Christian education. S. S. Blough.

THE MOUNT MORRIS COLLEGE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The relation of Mount Morris College to missionary activity in the Church of the Brethren needs little comment. The service of the workers whom she has inspired and prepared, is speaking eloquently for her godly influence in the homeland and on foreign shores. Mount Morris College is a mother of missionaries.

True missionary spirit organizes itself for systematic and effective effort. Loose arrangement is gradually displaced by definite organization. Missionary sentiment at Mount Morris was on the increase from the days of Wilbur Stover until, with the appearance of A. W. Ross and his untiring, energetic interest, the Mount Morris College Missionary Society was permanently established. This was in 1901. The aim of the Society, from the first, was to foster greater activity in mission work, and to support one or more workers on the field. Among the names attached to the constitution are J. G. Royer, Galen B. Royer, A. W. Ross, D. J. Lichty, Nora Arnold and Mrs. D. L. Miller. The worker, called to missionary appointment soon after the organization, was Bro. D. J. Lichty, who has been rendering efficient service in India for a number of years. It is largely due to the inspiration of this society that the Mount Morris Sunday-school is supporting Sister Sadie Miller in India.

The working body of the Society resides at Mt. Morris and vicinity, but its contributing number is more widely scattered. Additions to its membership are made each year from the student body, and others, who become interested. The payment of twenty-five dollars in cash makes one a life member. A fee of one dollar is necessary to become a member, and the annual payment of this sum retains membership. A missionary program is rendered publicly each month, at which time missionary information and inspiration are imparted. Plans are being made to place special emphasis on the China field in the December meeting. The present executive committee consists of J. Hugh Heckman, Mrs. M. M. Sherrick, Alma Wise, and J. P. Holsinger.

Many former live-wire members are thinking that we ought soon to be ready to send out another worker. "We ought to average," says Bro. M. W. Emmert, "one missionary at least every ten years." But the present task is, amply to support Bro. Lichty, who is already in the field. To this the Society is obligated and every member who has ever signed the constitution bears a share of this obligation. Quite a few have pledged themselves to pay a stipulated sum annually, for a period of years. Some of these have become delinquent, and others can not even be located. When the notices, sent by our efficient treasurer, do not bring responses, he and the Society find themselves financially embarrassed. We ought to be independent of the General Mission Board. Should any of those, referred to above, read this, we trust they will be sufficiently reminded of their pledges to act. Make all remittances to the treasurer, J. P. Holsinger, Mt. Morris, Ill.

We are planning to use our Messenger, Visitor, and circulars more, in keeping the membership posted as to the general activity of the Society. The organization has an opportunity still farther to glorify God, and this opportunity is not fully grasped until we have done all that we can do. The service is his and we serve through love of it. J. Hugh Heckman.

WAYSIDE NOTES.

Oct. 27 we left home to visit some of the churches of our District in the interest of Mission Work cause, reaching Burr Oak on the evening of the 28th, just in time to enjoy the love feast and the services the next day.

This church is presided over by Eld. T. E. George, who is doing a good work. While here we met the committee appointed to formulate a plan for the raising of funds to carry on the mission work of our District.

Our next stop was in the Pleasant View church, Phillips County, where we met at the home of Bro. J. J. Ernst, in special council on the 30th inst. Bro. A. J. Culler came and proceeded to ordain Bro. Ernst to the eldership. This was the church home of the writer for several years, during the nineties; and here we had the pleasure of baptizing fifty-five souls. Bro. Ernst is the only minister there. He has the love and respect of the entire community. The few members left are so scattered that the work is not prospering as he desires it should. We had one preaching service here, and one near Long Island, where two members live.

Our next stop was at Lovewell, Kans., with the members of the White Rock church, where we enjoyed the love feast Nov. 4, and meetings the next day. This church is under the leadership of Eld. S. L. Myers. He is assisted in the ministry by his son, Earl, and Eld. Jacob Sloniker. We were very favorably impressed here by the active part the young members are taking in the various lines of church work, and we think that the church has prospects for a bright future.

Oct. 9 we reached the North Solomon church at Portis, Kans. We were met at Bellaire by Bro. Phil Breon, and taken to his home. We found the Brethren engaged in revival meetings, conducted by the home ministers. We were joined here on the 11th by Eld. T. E. George, and at 2 P. M. we met in church council. The members were consulted in regard to two of their members being advanced to the eldership. At 6 P. M. we enjoyed a very spiritual love feast. The following morning after children's meeting, Brethren John Wagoner and J. E. Small were installed and received into their office, together with their companions. The installation services were very solemn and impressive.

This church is under the care of Eld. I. S. Lerew, who is past seventy, yet active and zealous in the Master's cause. He is assisted in the ministry by Brethren J. R. Garber and J. E. Small. It was in this congregation the writer attended a love feast in a tent, at the home of Bro. G. L. Ackley, in the fall of 1882. The most of those present at that meeting have gone from labor to reward.

We had the pleasure of meeting our aged brother, Lewis Lerew, and his faithful companion, who were some of the pioneer members of this church. This aged brother, on account of age and affliction, is not active in the ministry, his great delight is to talk about the church and her welfare. He, like many others, is only waiting for the call to come home.

We left Bro. T. E. George to continue the meetings. While on this trip, we were impressed, more than ever, with the need of a better distribution of the ministerial force of the Church of the Brethren, and with that end in view the writer is looking forward to a change of locations, where our services are needed. We left the Brethren at Portis on the morning of the 14th, and arrived home on the evening of the same day. J. W. Jarboe.

Quinter, Kans., Nov. 15.

PAYETTE, IDAHO.

The semiannual convention of the Church of the Brethren of Southern Idaho met at Twin Falls, Nov. 11 and 12, in accordance with the program recently published in the Messenger. While the weather was somewhat inclement, and the attendance not so large, yet the ardor of those present was not lessened. All seemed to feel a sense of responsibility for this great work; hence the splendid meeting which we enjoyed.

We feel that no greater work can be undertaken for the Lord, than that of teaching his Word in the Sunday-school. We believe that practically all of the many phases of Sunday-school work were considered at this convention. It was brought out that Sunday-school work, properly conducted, is closely connected with the home life, and with every effort intended for the betterment of mankind. The Sunday-school has made such wonderful strides during the last decade, that we can scarcely comprehend its magnitude. If, however, the Holy Spirit leads us, there is no limit to the work that can be done in the name of Christ.

In the "round table" discussion the detail work of the Sunday-school was taken up and very carefully considered. This discussion brought forth the importance of little things as aids to this great part of church activity. In the consideration of "The Elementary Department" it was shown that here great care must be exercised,—this being the formative period of child life. If the needful instruction is not looked after, at that stage, the work of leading souls to Christ is much more apt to be successful when the proper time arrives.

"The Mission of the Sunday-school" was studied, and found to be the greatest non-convertable in its finished result, being second only to the work that Christ himself came to accomplish.

The next subject, "More Consecrated Service," brought out the great need of the present age. It behooves us, as believing children, to draw close to God, and to consecrate our life, and all that we possess, to him.

"The Book We Study and Teach" was discussed and described. Where can we find words to express what it means to us?

Some of those present were strangers to most of the Twin Falls Brethren, but all were made to feel that they were members of one common family, when among those of like precious faith. We feel to commend the spirit manifested by all throughout the work of the convention.

R. D. I, Payette, Idaho, Nov. 16. J. C. Himler, Sec.

ELDER J. S. MOHLER.

It is with a mingled emotion of sadness and joy that I try to give a brief sketch of the life and death of our beloved elder, a friend I feel sad to lose the fellowship and association of such a strong and spiritual man, but rejoice that he has gone to a glorious reward.

Bro. Mohler was born near Covington, Ohio, May 30, 1831, died at his home in Quinter, Kans., Nov. 1, 1911, aged eighty years, five months and one day. He was the third son of Eld. Samuel Mohler, grew to manhood in the vicinity of Covington, and was married to Mary H. Risser (daughter of Eld. Joseph Risser) Nov. 11, 1852. The next year he and his companion united with the Church of the Brethren.

They moved to Knobnoster, Mo., in December, 1869. The next year they moved to Henry County. Here he was elected to the ministry in the spring of 1871. His work here was such as all frontier ministers have to endure. He had to travel long distances to meet appointments, cross swollen streams, etc., but he seldom disappointed an audience. He was advanced to the eldership soon after his election to the ministry. Largely through his efforts, the Deep Water church was organized. He moved to Brown County, Kans., in March, 1886.

He was at one time elder of the following churches: Morrill-North Morrill, and Rock Creek, Kans., Beatrice, Nebr., Bethel, Mo., and others of which the writer has no definite knowledge.

From Sabetha, Kans., he moved to Quinter, Kans., in the fall of 1908, where a son and a daughter reside. He was the father of ten children, two of whom died in infancy. One daughter died five years ago. Seven children and his aged companion survive him. He was never sick a day in his life until about two weeks prior to his death. Owing to the infirmities of age and his Godgiven powers, he was a man of bright intellect, great mental power and strong, spiritual development. His seat in church was never vacant. Three weeks before his death he preached a powerful sermon, especially to the young people.

He was the author of a valuable little book, called "The Resurrection." He was also the author of hymn No. 582 in the Brethren Hymnal. In Kansas and even beyond his name was somewhat noted as a poet. The Quinter church feels the loss of this good old soldier of the cross most keenly. Services by the Brethren. Text, 2 Tim. 4: 6-8. The schools of Quinter were dismissed on account of the funeral, in honor to Bro. Miller. In spite of the inclemency of the weather, a large audience paid their last tribute of respect to our brother.

Though ne'er again we see his face,
May we, like him, run the race
E'er pressing onward in the race.

D. A. Crist.

Quinter, Kans.

Notes From Our Correspondents

As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country

CALIFORNIA.

Patterson.—Our church enjoyed a good sermon Nov. 5, delivered by Bro. S. F. Sanger, of Empire, Cal. We are glad that Bro. Adams and family, of Bay Point, have located with us. This increases our number to seven more members. Brethren, if any of you are going to change location, where you can secure a good home, come and visit us at Patterson, as we need your help and presence in the Master's cause. Any correspondence will be cheerfully answered.—O. S. Gilbert, Patterson, Cal., Nov. 8.

Patterson.—Our elder, Bro. J. W. Deardorff, preached for us Nov. 12, morning and evening, to good-sized audiences, considering our small church. The Sunday-school was growing along when the rainy season could use several good soldiers for Christ, as the field is large but the laborers are few. Come and help us. We are up to a strong church and the people are coming this way, please arrange to stop over with us. We would be glad to entertain you and help you in any way we can.—O. S. Gilbert, Patterson, Cal., Nov. 20.

Pomona.—Our church has been enjoying a rich feast. Oct. 25 and 26 the Ministerial and District Meeting convened here. On the evening of the 24th Bro. and Sister Martin, of Long Beach, Cal., began a series of meetings, closing Nov. 15. God's Word was proclaimed with power. Nine have been baptized, and one awaits the rite of baptism. The last one feast was held Nov. 12. About 160 surrounded the Lord's tables. Bro. Martin officiated. Since our last report, a letter was received by letter, and one letter was granted.—Clara B. Wolf, 310 Kingsley Avenue, Pomona, Cal., Nov. 16.

Marin.—For the past ten days our congregation and the neighboring Santa Clara City have been enjoying a series of stereopticon Bible Land lectures by Bro. E. M. Wolfe. The attendance to which the speaker clung tenaciously, throughout the entire series of lectures, is a witness to the hungering after truth of God and every word of it is true. The lectures were a great help to Bible study, the strengthening of the faith in the members, and the awakening of a keen interest to outsiders in the Christian religion. The last two lectures will follow the lectures with a series of meetings.—Emma Saylor, Marin, Cal.

South Los Angeles.—On Sunday evening we closed a very interesting and instructive revival meeting, conducted by Bro. S. G. Gyger, of Bro. Dimas, Cal., Nov. 15. Meetings were carried fully with us for two weeks. Several are seriously impressed, and we hope they will soon unite with the church.—Mrs. Ida M. Custer, 1236 East Forty-sixth Street, Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 15.

COLORADO.

Denver.—Through the efforts of the Mission Board of Northwestern Kansas and Northern Nebraska, Bro. Ira Hoover is to take charge of the work at Denver until Sept. 1, 1921. The Brethren here at Denver have a mid-city arranged, commodious house of worship, and a well-united corps of workers. Surely, those who donated to the building of a church here should feel well repaid for their sacrifice. Many members and almost thirty members and friends came to our house with well-filled baskets for the week-day dinner. The baskets were completed, the drawing room table was filled to an unwonted extent. The church in council has decided to call a series of to hold a series of meetings beginning Jan. 7, and to continue indefinitely.—Mrs. Ida Robinson, 1109 South Washington St., Denver, Colo., Nov. 18.

IDAHO

Nampa.—Our church held a love feast Nov. 18. Our elder, Bro. J. C. Neher, officiated. About 100 surrounded the Lord's table. The services were enjoyed by all. Many of the members of the neighboring churches were present.—Rose E. Bradley, Nampa, Idaho, Nov. 21.

Twin Falls.—Our seventh semiannual State Sunday-school Convention of the Church of the Brethren was held Nov. 10, 11 and 12. The program was carried out with much interest and enthusiasm, and the appeal came to all Sunday-school workers to consecrate themselves more completely to the work. The plain truth of the Word of God needs to be taught in fais day and hour, when so many are neglecting the commandments of the Lord. On the evening of the 12th we held our love feast. Ministers present from a distance were Brethren S. P. Fercho, H. L. Eby and Isaac Bowman. Seven were initiated. Our series of meetings began on the evening of the 11th, conducted by Bro. L. H. Eby, of Nampa, assisted by Fahrney, 761 Second Avenue, N., Twin Falls, Idaho, Nov. 20.

ILLINOIS.

Allison Prairie (Illinois).—We held our love feast Nov. 11. Forty members surrounded the Lord's tables. Bro. M. Flory officiated. Many brethren and sisters were present from adjoining congregations. The ministers present were Brethren M. Flory, of Girard, Ill., Bro. S. W. Garber, of Decatur, Ill., and Bro. J. C. Swigart, of Palestine, Ill. We had a few weeks' revival meetings and preached some very inspiring sermons, and we were "organized for Christian Workers." Workers are to render a special "Thanksgiving" program next Sunday evening, Nov. 28.—Florida Moore Goff, R. D. 5, Virginia, Ind., Nov. 23.

Astoria church has enjoyed a rich feast of refreshing from the Lord for the past two weeks. Bro. D. L. Mohler, of Fulton, Mo., began a series of meetings Nov. 4, closing Nov. 19. One new member, as well as her Savior, was received and baptized by impressed.—Fay A. Rohrbaugh, R. D. 2, Box 43, Browning, Ill., Nov. 22.

Big Creek.—Nov. 12 we closed a two weeks' series of meetings at Big Creek, Parkersburg, Ill., with three baptized. There are not many members at Parkersburg, but they are faithful. Seven brethren and sisters attended every service, and one brother, ninety years old, missed only three services. This is better than some of our younger brethren do. My mother, Sister Hoover, and my wife, were with me during the meetings. May the Lord bless the isolated churches.—W. E. West, Ankeny, Iowa, Nov. 22.

Hurricane Creek.—Our church met in council Nov. 18, with our elder, Bro. J. W. Lear, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., presiding. Our elder preached three very interesting sermons, to good-sized audiences.—Oscar B. Redenbo, Pleasant Mound, Ill., Nov. 20.

West Otter.—Our autumn revival was conducted by Eld. M. Flory, of Girard, Ill. Considering our number, the attendance was good. There were no accessions, but much good seed was sown. Our council was held Nov. 18. The Sunday-school was reorganized by selecting the same officers as heretofore. Bro. W. M. Gibson is now agent for our church literature.—C. G. Shull, Virden, Ill., Nov. 20.

INDIANA.

Arcadia church held a council Oct. 26, prior to our love feast. Eld. Nathaniel Cripe had charge of the meeting. After all business was disposed of we had a short social talk on "Plainness and Sociability." Our love feast was held Oct. 28. Bro. Isaac Bowman had charge of the services. Several from adjoining congregations surrounded the Lord's table with us. Brethren Bowman and Cripe preached during the evening of Oct. 29, and preached sixteen sermons for us. He set forth the doctrine of the Brethren very forcibly. The church was much benefited spiritually. On account of the busy season, the meetings were not so well attended as usual.—Mary P. Hamilton, R. R. 3, Arcadia, Ind., Nov. 1.

Camden.—Our church met in council Nov. 18. Our elder, Bro. D. M. Keyser, presided. Brethren Bowman and Cripe came and preached on Sunday morning and evening. We have preaching every Sunday, and a Christian Workers' Meeting every Sunday evening. We expect Bro. D. L. Mohler, of Leeton, Mo., to commence Bible meetings for us Dec. 25.—Eva Whitacre, R. D. 1, Peru, Ind., Nov. 20.

Mettie Creek.—Bro. L. T. Holsinger commenced a series of meetings at the White Branch house, Oct. 21. He preached seventeen inspiring sermons. Much good seed was sown.—Chas. W. Hartzler, Bunker Hill, Ind., Nov. 20.

North Manchester.—Oct. 28 Bro. G. A. Snider, of Lima, Ohio, came to assist us in our meetings. He preached until he was forced to quit entirely for almost three weeks. Three were added to the church by baptism. Owing to the busy season and inclement weather, the attendance was not large, and not as good as we had hoped for, yet we feel sure that good has been accomplished. Our council was held Nov. 18.—Mrs. Edith Miller, R. D. 5, North Manchester, Ind., Nov. 19.

Roanoke church held her council Nov. 4, after a series of meetings Nov. 29, conducted by Eld. Geo. L. Studebaker, of North Manchester, Ind. The interest was good. Seven were added to the seventeen by baptism. The church was greatly strengthened by the good seed sown. Bro. Studebaker does not miss to deliver the Gospel message in a forceful, earnest and prayerfully—Emma Winger, R. D. 19, Marion, Ind., Nov. 20.

Wakarusa.—Nov. 14 we had a very interesting talk by Sister L. Steele was with us and gave us several good talks on Sunday-school work, and many helpful suggestions. Other topics were discussed by our local speakers. We held our council Nov. 18. Our elder, Bro. M. M. Sniadower, presided. One letter of membership was granted. Bro. S. J. Burger expects to be with us in a series of meetings, at the Nappanee house, during the first part of December.—Bertha A. Moyer, Wakarusa, Ind., Nov. 20.

IOWA.

Franklin.—Our series of meetings, conducted by Eld. J. D. Brower, of Lenox, Iowa, commenced Oct. 21 and closed Nov. 19. Four were received by baptism. The church was revived, owing to inclement weather. Three were added to our number by baptism, one by letter, and one by relief. Much good was restored to fellowship during these meetings. Our love feast passed off very pleasantly Nov. 13. Bro. Brower and Eld. Udell, Iowa, who officiated, was the only visiting minister present. At our council Nov. 3 Brother B. T. Sears was elected to the deacon office, and his wife duly installed, Bro. Brower officiating.—Jemima Wob, R. D. 4, Leon, Iowa, Nov. 22.

Sheldon.—The interest in church work is increasing here. We have decided to have a Bible study class in connection with the coming winter. The attendance at our Christian Workers' Meetings is gradually increasing. Our prayer-meeting is also well up. We will open a country Bible verse. Our Sunday-school is supporting a native missionary in India for one year. Bro. D. Wolfe, of Lanark, Ill., was with us Nov. 7 and 8, where they will attend Bethany Bible School.—Mrs. J. W. Kennedy, Sheldon, Iowa, Nov. 29.

KANSAS.

Abilene.—We held our love feast in the Navarre house Oct. 31. Our elder, Bro. Jacob Wise, presided. The service was duly communed. A number could not get to the table for the want of room. Bro. Wise was called to the home of Sister Ida Hoover, wife of Brother and Sister Humbarger, as Sister Humbarger could not get to the church on account of a broken leg. On Sunday evening, Oct. 29, Bro. A. C. Daggett began preaching for us at Navarre. The interest increased unto the end, closing on Sunday evening, Nov. 14. Bro. Daggett preached. Three souls decided for Christ and were baptized. Bro. Daggett's utmost labors were appreciated by the members.—Mrs. Lizzie Navarre, Kans., Nov. 23.

Independence.—A series of meetings lasted three weeks, conducted by Eld. C. A. Miller. Bro. Miller preached twenty-four inspiring sermons. Much good was restored to church fellowship. One sister was baptized. (She is one of the mothers who took one of the orphan babies.) We are glad for the good meetings and feel the good influence of the work for the church. Our love feast was held Nov. 11. Eld. Andrew Peterson, of Lenox, Iowa, officiated, assisted by Bro. Button. Forty-five surrounded the Lord's tables. Dinner was served on the church lawn. Sunday-school Nov. 14 at Liberty, where a few of our members live.—Pella Carson, R. No. 3, Box 34, Independence, Kans., Nov. 20.

Osage.—Our church is feeling the loss of the help of our elder, Bro. W. H. Leaman, who is afflicted with what the doctors pronounce creeping paralysis. He is now in a hospital. He was anointed this afternoon. Elders A. Neher and H. Schleicher officiating. We are praying for his recovery in course of time. There will be services held at the church on Thanksgiving Day.—Mrs. Ida Hoffman, Osage, Kans., Nov. 22.

Sabetha.—We are in the midst of a series of meetings that is being conducted by Eld. George Manon, of Gypsum City, Kans. Nov. 14 we had an interesting meeting. Both lines were well attended. Eld. Manon officiated. Next day, after the eleven o'clock service, the ordinance was called upon to elect one of her brethren to the ministry. Bro. Roy Kistner was chosen, and installed by Brethren Manon, Wolfe, Hoffman, Davis and Manon.—Norman R. Fike, Sabetha, Kans., Nov. 19.

MARYLAND.

Hagerstown.—The meetings are very interesting. Many seem to be impressed. Two were baptized on Saturday evening,—a mother of a large family, and another, a young man, a member of the Lutheran church. Our love feast was held Lo. Thanksgiving Day, at 4: 30 P. M.—W. S. Reichard, Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 22.

Ladiesburg.—Last Sunday evening we closed a two weeks' series of meetings at Bush Creek, which were well and largely attended. Three applicants are awaiting baptism.—T. S. Fike, Ladiesburg, Md., Nov. 18.

Manor.—We have just closed a two weeks' series of meetings, conducted by Bro. G. E. Yoder, of Elk Lick, Pa. He labored earnestly and prayerfully, and the members received much spiritual strength. Two came out on the Lord's side and are on the way to the baptismal. Others are near the kingdom.—M. Portia Rowland, Fairplay, Md., Nov. 21.

MICHIGAN.

Lake View.—Bro. Samuel Leckrone commenced preaching for us Oct. 29, and continued the meetings until Nov. 8. Bro. Leckrone labored earnestly during these meetings for the upbuilding of Christ's kingdom.—Ida Hall, Lake Brethren, Mich., Nov. 16

Prescott.—A year ago I moved to this country. Wife and I were the only members of the Brethren here. June 24 we organized with about fifty members. Others have been added since, by letter and baptism. We are planning to build a church-house in the near future. At present we are holding meetings in a schoolhouse. Sometimes it is crowded for the want of room. Most of the members here are in limited circumstances, and building will go slow. Those here at home will do well to investigate this country and get a good home. Land is cheap, and produces well. Stock-raising, fruit-raising and cattle do exceedingly well. There are a number of small lakes, with plenty of fish. Fur-bearing hunter's there is a good deal of all kinds, and once in a while a deer. I am no land agent and have no right to sell, but I will do all I can to help good brethren to a good home. I will answer all letters, providing a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed.—W. F. Mason, R. D. 2, Prescott, Mich., Nov. 19.

Saginaw.—We held our love feast Oct. 28 and 29. Ministers present were Eld. Wm. Hutchison, of Vail, Ind., Nov. 1, and Bro. David Baker, Eld. Killian officiated. Thirty-five members surrounded the communion-tables with us and conducted a series of meetings, which closed Nov. 12. The church was made to realize that our sins were extreme to the cold, and six five others decided to unite with the church.—Bertha Albaugh, Bannister, Mich., Nov. 16.

Zion.—Eld. W. P. Petry, of Eaton, Ohio, came to this place Oct. 27, to assist in a two weeks' series of meetings. Bro. Petry gave us an interesting and instructive introductory talk to the children. The interest and attendance was very good throughout the meetings. Two were received by letter, which kept many away. We think the outlook for the Zion church is promising. Bro. Petry's plain manner of preaching, especially the doctrinal sermons, was very much appreciated. Six members were called in special council, Eld. J. P. Bowman presiding. Arrangements for further improvement of church building were continued.—Ruth Bischer, R. D. 2, Prescott, Mich., Nov. 18.

MISSOURI.

Bethel.—Our church met in council Nov. 18. Our elder, Bro. G. W. Hoffman, presided. Our series of Bible Institutes was quickly disposed of. Officers were elected as follows: Sunday-school superintendent, Bro. J. W. Hoffman; assistant, Bro. J. H. Crist, clerk. Letters were granted to Brother and Sister Will Hoffman and Rebecca Steckle. Our love feast, held a few weeks ago, was very much enjoyed.—Bertha S. R. Shirky and G. W. Ellenberger officiated. Our next council will be held Saturday before Christmas.—Mrs. Ida Cox, Nov. 20.

Carthage.—Our splendid series of meetings was a glorious refreshing to the members and to many of the world, which we also much enjoyed. The audience was very orderly and quiet. Though our meetings were held in the middle of the week, when all the other churches of Carthage were united in holding a series of much-advertised "union services" every night, yet a steady attendance was maintained. Bro. Hoff officiated at the Brethren church, until, at the close, the house was crowded to overflowing every night. Many remarked that this season of spiritual upbuilding must close so soon. Bro. Buckles' visit to Carthage will be known as a time of spinning to work in the hearts of the people, but sickness in his family made it impossible for him to remain with us longer. Eager attention was given to the Word as it was preached in demonstration of the Spirit and power. We feel that a number were on the verge of the kingdom. We are expecting two of our promising young members.—Brethren Albert Overand J. W. Kinsey, to be baptized by the deacons here. They with their wives, were duly installed. Our faithful old sister-deacon, Mrs. Mary Hoffman, was also installed as Jasper, Mo., together with Bro. A. J. Peebler and family, of Aurora, Bro. Sunderland and others, were with us at the love feast. We had a blessed time. Many felt the real presence and fellowship.—J. L. Switzer, Carthage, Mo., Nov. 20.

Cooksington.—Our series of meetings, conducted by Bro. E. P. Sherfy, closed Nov. 19, with good interest. We are now looking forward to the coming of Bro. Murray Hutchison, to be conducted by Bro. R. H. Nicodemus, of Bethany Bible School, Dec. 23 to 31. Bro. Hutchison is a student in the Bethany Bible School, and Rockingham churches. Other persons of this District or adjoining Districts are cordially invited to attend, and will be entertained. Dec. 23, at the home of Nornberne, by notifying Bro. Oscar Early. Tuition and entertainment will be free.—Mrs. Ethel Nornberne, R. No. 1, Box 1.

Shelby County church and Sunday-school are wide-awake. Eld. Jacob Wise, of Abilene, Kans., visited us Nov. 6, a man and wife were baptized, which made our hearts glad.—Mary Stephen, Cherry Box, Mo., Nov. 22.

Rhoads.—Our series of meetings, held in council Nov. 18. Bro. Leander Smith presided. One letter was granted. Bro. J. D. Upton was elected as our church-clerk, and Sister Nellie Early was chosen church clerk and treasurer; the writer, correspondent. Bro. J. T. Lawson was elected to attend the District Meeting, superintendent of the Sunday-school; Sister Annie Argabright, secretary. We are in the midst of a series of meetings. Interest is developing. One young brother came out on the Lord's side. Bro. Smith will labor with us until after the holidays.—Mrs. Ida Cox, Carthage, Mo., Nov. 20.—Bro. Mc, where he will hold a two weeks' series of meetings, closing with a love feast.—Mrs. Ida Hoffman, Osage, Kans., Nov. 22.

South St. Joseph Mission met in council Nov. 16, with Eld. J. S. Kline in charge. Several vacancies were filled, on account of removals and deaths. Two letters of membership were granted, and one was received. We decided to hold a series of meetings sometime about Jan. 1, provided some one can be secured to conduct them. We have an unusual visit, it was decided to defer our love feast until about the time of our series of meetings. Our mission, being in charge of Sister Huffman, meets every Wednesday afternoon. They are in a prosperous condition, with on hand, such as, tidy comforts, making garments, etc.—E. N. Huffman, 502 Kentucky Street, St. Joseph, Mo., Nov. 24.

MONTANA.

Medicine Lake.—Bro. A. M. Sharp, of Egeland, N. Dak, while on a visit to his daughter, preached for us Nov. 12, and came in the evening and baptized one. Thanks to him. We are always glad to have visiting ministers call and preach for us. We are having new weather at District, with only a slight amount of snow. In my correspondence of Oct. 23 it should read that our love feast was held Oct. 23, instead of our love feast. Our collection was $34.01, instead of $34.01, as I stated in my last. Katie E. Bess, Enterprise, Mont., Nov. 22.

NEBRASKA

Cambridge.—The mission work in our District at the various points is progressing nicely. Aggressive workers are scattered all over the District, and arrangements will be made for our District Secretary, Bro. M. R. Weaver, to visit all the local congregations in the District, presenting to them the great needs in the various mission points. This we feel, will greatly encourage every member in performing their duty in the Master's cause.—Lucinda Switzer, Assistant Secretary, Cambridge, Nebr., Nov. 22.

Kearney.—Brethren Jarboe and wife, of Red Cloud, Nebr., began a series of meetings in this church. Bro. Jarboe preached sixteen spiritual sermons. Sister Jarboe directed in the song service. Three young souls were buried with Christ in baptism. Members of other denominations attending some of our services, pronounced them to be the best they ever attended in Kentucky. Nov. 14 we started a new work. Our brethren and sisters are very much encouraged.—Martha E. May, R. D. 1, Kearney, Nebr., Nov. 20.

Sappy Creek.—Bro. Geo. Mishler, of Cambridge, Nebr., closed a successful two weeks' series of meetings here on Sunday evening. He gave us eight, good, old-time revival sermons. Eight were received by baptism, Bro. Mishler left here on Sunday evening for another field of labor.—Sister L. J. Chapman, Edison, Nebr., Nov. 12

NORTH CAROLINA.

Spray.—Bro. Rhyne Flora and wife, of Franklin County, Va., came to us Nov. 3 and began a series of meetings. Bro. S. M. Hackney came to us from Callaway County, Va., came Nov. 13, and continued in services with us until the night of Nov. 19. The meetings closed with a love feast at this place. Our small house could not accommodate the crowd. There were twenty-six at the tables. As an immediate result of the meetings there were four applicants, seven baptized and one awaiting the rite.—J. R. Perdue, R. D. 2, Box 15, Leaksville, N. C., Nov. 22.

NORTH DAKOTA

Cando.—Since my last report, a small love feast was held, on the evening of Nov. 5, at the home of Bro. Ely, the residence of old and infirm members that did not get to the Zion feast. Bro. Ely has set in. A number of North Dakota Brethren and friends are soon going to Cuba,—some to locate there, others to see the country.—M. P. Lichty, Zion, N. Dak., Nov. 18.

OHIO.

Ash Grove.—Nov. 4 Bro. Jacob Heistand, of Walkerton, Ind., commenced a series of meetings, which he continued until Nov. 19. He preached effective, convicting sermons. He labored earnestly while with us. The meetings closed with a well-filled house, and good interest. Two were added while visiting us, and a fellow Christ in baptism. Our church is much persuaded, but put it off for a more convenient season.—P. F. Cordier, R. D. 5, Celina, Ohio, Nov. 21.

Danville.—Bro. G. S. Straubaugh held a series of meetings at the Pike Run church, commencing on the evening of Nov. 12. He preached sixteen very impressive sermons. Five made application for membership. Good seed was sown.—Elizabeth Daugherty, Danville, Ohio, Nov. 20.

Dayton.—Our protracted effort is now in progress in the West Dayton church, Ohio. The attendance and interest are increasing. Eld. D. H. Keller, of Chicago, has charge of the meetings. His able and impressive sermons are much and well appreciated by all. The meetings are to continue till Thanksgiving day.—S. E. Kilborn, Dayton, Ohio, Nov. 21.

Dickey.—Our series of meetings at this place, conducted by Bro. H. C. Early, closed Nov. 19. Bro. Early is a forceful speaker and a defender of his subject. He preached very few confessions. Much stormy weather interfered somewhat with the attendance part of the time. Bro. Sanford Wagoner and Bro. Early asked everybody in the audience, who did not belong to any church, to stand. Only five persons stood up. Saturday evening, Nov. 18, we enjoyed a very spiritual love feast. Our Aid Society is doing good work. We are now under the W. D. Keller, of Washington, D. C., to begin his pastorate at this place.—Ida Reim, Dickey, Ohio, Nov. 26.

Fostoria.—Our much-needed new church house is about completed, and will be ready to be dedicated Dec. 17. The dedicatory address will be delivered by Bro. H. C. Garver, of Bucwood, Ohio.—Leah B. Wright, Fostoria, Ohio, Nov. 21.

Lima.—Since the first of good sleighing, Bro. Reuben Shroyer began his series of meetings at the morning services. Bro. C. A. Lehman, who had been with us for some time previous, was installed. The church held an election for a deacon, resulting in Bro. Jesse Miller being chosen. The meeting in the evening was conducted by Bro. Jesse Shroyer officiating.—S. P. Early, 764 West High St., Lima, Ohio, Nov. 21.

Notice.—The Sunday-school Institute for the Southern District of Ohio will be held in the auditorium of Trotwood, and in the bounds of the Upper Stillwater church. Brethren I. B. Trout and P. B. Fitzwater will have charge of the lectures. Everybody is especially invited to come and spend a day meeting. Those desiring lodging will please address the writer, giving number and names of persons desiring to be lodged.—John M. Stover, Bradford, Ohio, Dec. 25.

Richland.—We have just closed a very interesting and profitable series of services, conducted by Bro. D. G. Berkebile. The church was much strengthened and built up. Several will be Christ in baptism. Others were almost persuaded. Our council was held Nov. 11, when Brethren A. A. and B. F. Pifer were installed into the office of deacons. Bro. Berkebile was invited to Bro. Walter Keller to hold a series of services for us in November, 1912.—Ira D. Long, R. D. 1, Mansfield, Ohio, Nov. 17.

Rush Creek.—We have realized that some are willing to come out from the world and work for the blessed Master. Nov. 19 our church was blessed by baptism. Bro. D. M. Garber administered the rite.—Noah B. Mowery, Bremen, Ohio, Nov. 20.

Salem church met in council Nov. 16, with Eld. William Minnich presiding. Bro. J. O. Garst, of Dayton, Ohio, was with us. Two members were received by letter. Two letters of membership were granted. Brethren D. R. Rinehart and Noah Bollenbaugh were chosen as Sunday-school superintendents for one year. Our series of meetings will begin Nov. 25. Bro. Michael Horning, of Illinois, will assist in the meetings.—Josephine Folkerth, Union, Ohio, Nov. 19.

Sidney.—Our new meeting-house has been held in our city for some time, conducted by Dr. Oliver. He surely condemned the wickedness of the day, and we have had a good deal of good. Some decided to unite with our church, but needed to be taught the way of the Lord more perfectly. According to the above statements, Bro. Cassandra Hoffman, of West Alexandria, Ohio, came to us Nov. 5. He preached thirteen soul-stirring sermons. Three came forward and hearts to the Lord through Christian baptism, and several renewed their covenant with Christ. The last meeting with our Sunday-school was 191; collection, $5.66. In the evening of the same day a social and council meeting was also attended, both by our own members and those from adjoining congregations, for which we feel very thankful. Quite a number of strangers were present that day. A spirit of order prevailed. The quietness and solemnity of the occasion made it a very spiritual feast. One letter was read from a church and joined another, thinking she was getting nearer the Scriptures, but she was not in the right church yet.—Mrs. J. M. Brenneman, Park St., Sidney, Ohio, Nov. 22.

Silver Creek church met in council, Nov. 11, with Bro. J. W. Keiser, presided. Considerable business came before the meeting. The following brethren were reelected to their offices: Bro. Henry Long, Sr., clerk; Elmwood Hoover, church treasurer; Bro. Frank Throne, trustee. We expect Bro. D. D. Hostetler to do the communion at our series of meetings, 23, at the Walnut Grove house. Bro. William Bixler is to conduct the Sunday-school meetings at the Walnut Grove to commence sometime in January, 1912.—Mrs. Ottie Fisher, Pioneer, Ohio, Nov. 14.

Springfield.—Bro. D. R. McFadden came here Oct. 29, and remained with us until the evening of Nov. 15. He preached twenty gospel sermons. His earnest, forceful way of presenting the truth set people to thinking, and as a result of his labors we have since received by baptism. Others are impressed with the need of living the better life, but so far are not willing to surrender all to Jesus. Taken as a whole, the effort was well attended. Bro. McFadden spoke in the forenoon. In the afternoon Eld. Noah Longanecker preached the examination sermon. In the evening about 175 members surrounded the Lord's table. Ministers and other members from adjoining churches enjoyed the services with us, many remaining for the Sunday service. We met in council Nov. 18. Eld. James Murray was with us, and had charge of the meeting. Four letters of membership were granted. Sunday-schools at both houses were reorganized for the winter season. A committee was appointed to arrange for a series of meetings, to be held at the Reed house. An offering was taken for the Bethany Bible School. Other matters of business were attended to.—Alice C. Musser, Jeffrey, Ohio, Nov. 21.

OKLAHOMA.

Elk City.—Nov. 19 wife and I spent Sunday with the Brethren's Sunday-school. A good interest was being shown. We found seven earnest members gladly awaiting the filling of our appointment. Bro. Wm. Hoffman, of Iowa, a brother preach for over one year, but we are glad indeed that we found him awake in the Master's work. We only gave them three meetings, during which three professed faith in Christ as the Lord's side and were baptized. More are near the kingdom. They are needing a minister very much. Where will you? Will respond to the call? They are now twenty-five miles from the railroad. Will be glad to meet anyone at the railroad close by, soon. Land is still cheap,—from ten to twenty-five dollars per acre. Any who are interested will please address W. N. Bowman, R. D. 1, Cheyenne, Okla., and do not forget to enclose a stamp.—E. J. Smith, Elk City, Okla., Nov. 28.

Sandstone.—The Mission Board desires the different congregations to organize as much as possible, and, the ensuing year, when they make their selection for a minister to conduct a series of meetings, to correspond with them, and so, will please write to the writer, giving the date they wish the meetings to begin. Particulars will then be given.—I. H. Miller, Nash, Okla., Nov. 17.

OREGON.

Portland.—Eld. Andrew Hutchison came to us Nov. 7 and preached one week,—since which time he has been very much appreciated. Last evening, at our regular services, a lady came forward and made the confession, coming to preach for twenty-five years. She will be baptized on Wednesday evening of this week. Brethren Hutchison and Brother J. C. Garland and John Mallott, of the Pleasant Ridge church, who assisted at the Sellwood, have also appreciated the visits of other members of the Pleasant Ridge church. Bro. Hall preached the Word in its purity, and his words of helpfulness will not soon be forgotten.—Mrs. Elizabeth A. D. Miller, of Curryville, Pa., again resumed his music class at the Amanda Hall, Nov. 14. At the close of the session in Buck Valley. He entertains the lessons, from evening to evening, between the ages of the people and the classes, the different lines of church work, and in usefulness and influence in their community, for which we are glad.—John Bennett, Athens, Ohio, Nov. 16.

Bellwood.—Our church met in council Nov. 11, with Eld. J. B. Miller presiding. Bro. Jesse Miller was chosen as clerk, and Brethren Bell, trustee; Bro C. S. Crawford, correspondent. Bro. D. Maddocks held one week's series of meetings. Four were received by baptism, and one by letter. Seven were added. All was well attended. About ninety persons partook of the communion. We are thankful for the visit of the above-mentioned Brethren Berry, Maddocks, and our elder, Bro. J. B. Miller, who with us. At the close of the love feast Sunday morning, as an offering was being taken for Bro. Maddocks, for his earnest labors among us, the brother announced that the services were a donation to the church, and he therefore requested the congregation to accept it as such.—C. S. Crawford, Bellwood, Pa., Nov. 18.

Brothers Valley.—On the evening of Oct. 28 Bro. Geo. W. Lanich, of Meyersdale, Pa., commenced a series of meetings at the Rayman churchhouse, and continued dividing the Word of God correctly, as reported by two weekly issues of the meeting Nov. 12. Four were added to the church by baptism and one reclaimed. At the close of the meeting Bro. Lanich, a stranger, but he preached the Word with simplicity and power, and we were much built up by his labors with us. Nov. 5 Bro. Lanich and the writer was with the Lord's Supper in. teresting talk at the Pike house, on "The Needs of the Foreign Mission Field." Bro. Lanich was present at the Sunday-school on the evening of Sept. 24 the commencement exercises of the Bro. Lanich's meetings, and the Bro. Lanich's class was held at the Pike house. There were fourteen graduates. Bro. D. M. Garber, of Lanista, College preached for us on Saturday and Sunday evenings of Sept. 30 and Oct. 1. The second class is now taking the teacher-training work, and most of those will be ready for the next Sunday-school Institute, according to arrangements, Bro. W. R. Miller will be with us Dec. 1-3. Brother Jesse Miller, of Meyersdale, Pa., will be interesting meetings on Sept. 30 and Oct. 1.—J. C. Reiman, Berlin, Pa., Nov. 21.

Chambersburg.—Our series of meetings commenced Nov. 4, and continued two weeks, conducted by Bro. Levi S. Mohler, of Elizabethtown, Pa., assisted by Bro. Price, with a love feast Nov. 19. Eleven ministers were present. Bro. Levi S. Mohler preached for us fifteen sermons, all interesting, with very much interest.—Binin Bear, Center St., Chambersburg, Pa., Nov. 21.

Cherry Lane.—Bro. D. K. Clapper, of Myersdale, Pa., began a series of meetings in the church on Nov. 4, and delivered fourteen inspiring sermons. Good attention and interest were manifested throughout the meetings. Six were received into the church by baptism. We feel that his stay with us has been a very profitable one.—Aaron Sollenberger, Clearville, Pa., Nov. 21.

Ephrata.—We had our love feast Oct. 28. It was a blessed feast. On Nov. 4 we commenced a series of meetings. The series of meetings, which was to begin Nov. 12, with Bro. E. S. Young, of Lititz, Pa., assisting, commenced Nov. 11

Under Chicago Extension the July Visitor shows in Building Fund, $94.55. By mistake this was credited to the Sunday-school Extension so $95.55. Also in same reports the General Mission Board is credited forward as $1,521.50 it should be $172.06. Accounts are therefore in this report changed accordingly.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord"

Allen, Mrs. Mary, born in North Ireland March 21, 1833, died at her home near Bustle, Pa., Nov. 12, 1911, aged 78 years, 8 months and 12 days. She is survived by seven and two daughters. Two sons and one daughter died in childhood. Her husband preceded her fourteen years ago. Service by the writer. Text, 1 Cor. 15. Interment by the side of her husband, in the family cemetery on the farm.—J. C. Funderburg, Eustis, Lake Co., Fla.

Jenkins, Sister Blanche, born in Russellville, Ind., June 17, 1894, died after a few days of intense suffering, caused by peritonitis, at the home of Samuel Bowman, Russellville, Ind., Sept. 17, 1911, aged 17 years, 3 months and 13 days. At an early age she was placed in an Orphan's Home, and from which early age she was placed in an Orphan's Home, and from which fact her parentage and home connections were completely lost sight of, with the exception of one sister. Only a few weeks before her death they were her nearest relatives, but sisters providentially brought together. Friend and Sister Bock gave her a pleasant home. Her untimely death cast a deep gloom over her late home, the church and the community, for she was a leader both in the church and social circles. Services by the writer, at the Howard church, under whose efforts she had been brought into church fellowship.—A. G. Crosswhite, Flora, Ind.

Johnson, Bro. Jacob M., born near Johnson's Cross Roads, Fayette Co., Pa., Jan. 27, 1848, died of acute indigestion Nov. 11, 1911, in the bounds of the Georges Creek congregation, Uniontown, Pa., aged 63 years, 9 months and 14 days. He was married to Amanda M. Shoemaker, of Armstrong County, Pa., in 1878. To this union were born five daughters and three sons. He leaves a sorrowing wife, three daughters and three sons. Two daughters preceded him in death. He will be greatly missed at all our church services, for his seat was never vacant when it was possible for him to be there. Services at the home by Eld. Jasper Barnthouse, assisted by Rev. Dyoll Belote. Interment in the Oak Grove cemetery.—Mary C. Barnthouse, 8 West Craig Street, Uniontown, Pa.

Kitterman, Bro. Gabriel, son of Solomon and Louisa Shuker Kitterman, born in Floyd County, Va., July 28, 1834, died at the home of his son, in the bounds of the Prairie Creek congregation, Blackford Co., Ind., Nov. 6, 1911, aged 77 years, 3 months and 11 days. At the age of six years he came with his parents to Wayne County, Ind., where he grew to manhood. He was married to Eliza Crowell March 30, 1854. To this union one son was born, who died in infancy. The mother died Sept. 14, 1855. Afterward he was married to Sarah Williams Sept. 23, 1858. To this union five children were born. The eldest one died at the age of twelve years. He came to Blackford County in 1859, Dec. 15, 1908, he was bereft of his wife, who had shared with him the hardships and the privations of pioneer life. Since that time he has made his home with his children. He united with the Church of the Brethren in 1860. In 1863 he was called to the ministry. Later he was ordained, and had charge of the Prairie Creek congregation for twelve or fifteen years. With his Kitterman never did very much preaching, he was a good, earnest, faithful counselor. No sacrifice was too great for him to make for the cause of Christ. He leaves four children, three brothers and three sisters. Services at the Sugar Creek church by the writer, assisted by Bro. Roy Mahon.—Lewis Huffman, Mount Zion, Ind.

Longenecker, Sister Mary, died of consumption, in the Berthold congregation, N. Dak., Nov. 9, 1911, aged 32 years, 9 months and 7 days. She was married to Bro. Daniel Longenecker Nov. 4, 1903. View Schoolhouse, Interment in the Wild Rosa cemetery.—Mrs. Bessie Stong, Box 112, Berthold, N. Dak.

Meyers, Sister Susanna, nee Hostetter, born in Somerset County, Pa., April 20, 1837, died at her home in Grundy County, Iowa, Nov. 13, 1911, aged 74 years, 6 months and 23 days. She was married to Samuel B. Meyers, Dec. 25, 1856. To them were born six children, two of which preceded her in death. All of them survive and were present at the funeral. Sister Hostetter united with the Church of the Brethren in the Middle Creek congregation, Pa., in 1868, and was a faithful, devoted member for fifty-one years. Services by the undersigned at the Brethren's meetinghouse in Grundy County. Text, Psa. 116: 15.—I. M. Brubaker, Grundy Center, Iowa.

Miller, Mildred Hazel, daughter of Brother William and Sister Emma Miller, born Oct. 31, 1900, near New Lisbon, Henry Co., Ind., died near the same place Nov. 16, 1911. She was the only living child of Brother and Sister Miller. One little brother preceded her in death. Little Mildred was a sweet, obedient child. She loved to go to Sunday-school and church, from which she was seldom absent. She was loved by all, and will be greatly missed in the neighborhood and Sunday-school at Locust Grove. Sister Miller is our District Sunday-school secretary of Southern Indiana. Services by Eld. L. W. Teeter, assisted by Bro. D. E. Bowman at the Locust Grove house. Text, Luke 8: 52. Interment in the cemetery near by.—Chas. W. Miller, Hagerstown, Ind.

Myers, Bro. William H., born in Lancaster Co., Pa., March 11, 1836, died at his home in Cadams, Nebr., Nov. 10, 1911, aged 81 years, 8 months and 6 days. Bro. Myers was married to Sister Rebecca Erwin, Dec. 23, 1858. They were permitted to spend nearly fifty-six years in happy married life. "Grandpa," as he was familiarly called, lay down on a couch to take an afternoon nap. His wife laid a cover over him and went busily about her housework. About an hour later she discovered that he had passed into the spirit world without a struggle. He lived a beautiful life. He accepted Jesus as his personal Savior before he was fifteen years of age, and lived a quiet, exemplary Christ-life. Six sons and two daughters were born into this home, all of whom survive, except the youngest son. Two brothers and two sisters also survive. Services in the Presbyterian church at Cadams, by the writer. Interment in the Nora cemetery.—Walter Rothrock, Carlisle, Nebr.

Row, Benjamin F., born in Washington County, Md., Jan. 4, 1832, died at his home in Dallas Center, Iowa, Oct. 23, 1911, aged 79 years, 9 months and 19 days. He was married to Anna R. Yeakle, Feb. 16, 1854. To this union were born two sons and six daughters. One son and one daughter preceded him to the spirit world. He leaves a devoted wife, one son, four daughters, one brother and many friends. Services by the writer.—D. W. Wine, Dallas Center, Iowa.

Three children survive her. Her last words were: "I am so glad I am going home." Her body was taken to McPherson, Kans., for burial. She was an earnest worker in the Brethren church for thirty-six years. Services by Rev. Carey.—Walsta M. Kline, Woodward, Okla.

Tumpkins, Peter, born in Steuben County, N. Y., Oct. 5, 1841, died Nov. 7, 1911, aged 70 years, 1 month and 2 days. In 1870 he moved with his parents to Michigan, locating in Hillsdale County; then moved to Montcalm County in December, 1895. Services by the writer, at the Brethren church at Ferris Center, Mich.—Samuel Bollinger, Vestaburg, Mich.

Modern Fads and Parables

—OR—

Moral Truth in a Nutshell

This book contains 352 pages and more than 100 fables and parables. The great majority of these are new. Some are old fables and parables recast and covered in modern dress. They present truth in a forcible style, which is also striking, and makes it easily understood and remembered. The application may be made spiritually as well as morally in most instances. In the variety of subjects almost every phase of human life is touched. The illustrations, 75 in number, by Paul Kraft and others, add greatly to the interest and help wonderfully in making clear the meaning. A careful study of these fables and parables will help one to see himself and others in a new light and enable him to live a nobler and happier life.

FLASHLIGHTS FROM REAL LIFE

BY JOHN T. DALE.

Those who have read any of the author's other books will want to read this one. The sketches and incidents given are real flashlights thrown upon things which are worth revealing. The author in his preface says: "Some of the sketches are based on facts which have come within the personal knowledge of the author, others are founded on incidents which have come under the observation of others, but they are all typical of the ever-changing experiences and mutations of life, in the grand panorama of existence moves onward."

Following are a few subjects taken from the table of contents:

Advice to Young Men
The Boy Next Door
Dangers of City Life
The Drunkard's Example
The Gullible Girl
The Professor's Advice
Single and Married Life, an Monkey Puzzle
The Young Lawyer's Downfall

The Book contains 205 pages. Bound in cloth.

Minutes of Annual Meeting from 1778-1909

This volume contains every known minute of the proceedings of the general conferences held by the Church of the Brethren to the Year of our Lord 1909. Many interesting matters to-day are the problems of church government that were then agitated, matters which nowhere else published, are here recorded. These Minutes also reveal to us the firm stand the Brethren maintained through the years in reference to their opposition to war, intemperance, secretism, worldliness, etc. They also show the change and growth of sentiment in relation to the educational, missionary, and Sunday-school movement in the Brotherhood, and how these departments of work have grown. Taking it all in all, it is one of the books which have a right to a place in the library of every Brethren home. This is a $3.50 book, but in order to bring it within the reach of all the price is placed at $1.75, which is just the cost of manufacturing the volume.

Home Department of the Sunday School

The need of the Home Department is not limited to any locality. It is needed in every church no matter where that church may be. It is sadly needed in the great metropolis, with its unchurched millions. It is needed in the towns with their thousands outside of the Sunday-school. It is needed in the village and rural communities, where only a few are indifferent. It is needed in your school. It will work in every community whether city or country, where one or more persons are out of the Sunday-school.

Notes from Our Correspondents.

Bro. E. M. Detweiler will be with us for the evening service. Our church attendance has been increasing constantly, so that at our evening services the house is well filled.—Ida Helm.

B. Heisey, Saxton, Pa., Nov. 23.

Upper Conewago.—Our church held a series of meetings at the Hampton house, com.encing Oct. 28 and closing Nov. 12, conducted by Bro. T. S. Fike, of Dorcas, Md. The interest and attention were very good. Two made application for baptism, and others are counting the cost. In the afternoon of Sunday, the 12th, we met at East Berlin, in a special Sunday-school meeting. The following topics were discussed: "Seven Ingredients of a Good Sunday-school," by Bro. J. H. Hoke, of Elizabethtown, Pa.; "Who Is Responsible for a Successful Sunday-school?" by Eld. T. S. Fike. In the evening of the same day Bro. Fike preached for us in East Berlin.—Andrew Bowser, East Berlin, Pa., Nov. 15.

TENNESSEE.

Mountain Valley.—Our church met in council Nov. 18. Bro. P. M. Cornell presided. There was very much business to attend to. Two were received by letter. Bro. Samuel Gaby and myself, having been requested to visit an aged brother and sister, who are somewhat isolated from the church, and are in feeble health, we found them much pleased to see us, and they seemed to enjoy our visit very much. We have decided to hold a series of meetings as soon as we can get a minister to help us. We will have preaching on Thanksgiving Day.—W. H. Wine, Baileyton, Tenn., Nov. 19.

Pleasant Hill.—Our church met in council Nov. 11. Eld. A. E. Nead, of Limestone, Tenn., was with us, and rendered valuable service. Bro. Samuel H. Garst, with his wife, was advanced to the ministerial standing. Another brother was held, and Brethren Joseph D. Smith, Pierce Garst and Samuel J. Glover were elected. All were duly installed in their respective offices. Bro. Nead delivered a discourse on Saturday night on the subject of "Prayer," and on Sunday at 11 A. M. he preached to an attentive audience on the subject of "Missions."—John H. Garst, Bloomville, Tenn., Nov. 21.

VIRGINIA.

Beaver Creek.—Bro. J. S. Showalter, of Roanoke, Va., came to us Nov. 12. He delivered eleven soul-inspiring sermons, closing Nov. 19. Ten came out on the Lord's side. Eight were baptized, one awaits the rite, and one will be received at our next council meeting. The entire church was built up spiritually.—G. Oliver Reed, Dulany, Va., Nov. 23.

Bridgewater.—Our love feast was held Oct. 7. Eld. P. S. Thomas, of Harrisonburg, Va., was with us and officiated. We had a large crowd, although the weather was very inclement. The following Sunday morning Eld. Geo. W. Wine preached an excellent sermon for us. Oct. 22 we had rally day at our church. The crowd was large and quite an interesting program was given. Bro. Galen B. Royer was with us and gave an interesting talk on "The Relation of the Parent to the Sunday-school." Nov. 5 was missionary day. Eld. I. S. Long and wife and Eld. S. N. McCann gave very interesting addresses on the mission work in India as they have had the experience. A contribution was taken for mission work. Nov. 12 we met in regular council. Eld. G. M. Miller was moderator. Quite an amount of business came before the meeting and was disposed of in a Christian spirit. Two letters of membership were received, and three were granted. We had a very encouraging report from a West Virginia mission point, where Bro. Joseph Wampler and wife have been working for some time. Two papers were sent to District Meeting.—Ida Fry, Bridgewater, Va., Nov. 23.

Rural Retreat.—Our church met in council Nov. 18, with Eld. Joel Weddle as moderator. Officers met very promptly, and with Bro. S. E. Hylton as moderator; Bro. F. M. Weddle, Messenger agent. Two were received by letter and one by baptism. Our love feast was held Oct. 14. Bro. George Bowman, of Franklin, Va., officiated. He preached an able sermon for us on Sunday, Oct. 15, to a large audience.—Maggie Hylton, Floyd, Va., Nov. 23.

Christiansburg.—We met in council Nov. 18, with Bro. Asa Bowman presiding. All the business was disposed of pleasantly. Two letters of membership were received, and two were granted. The writer was elected as clerk. We decided to divide with the Brethren at Blacksburg, and hold with them the third Sunday in each month, until March 1912.—W. L. Stringer, Christiansburg, Va., Nov. 20.

Dry River.—A very pleasant and profitable members' meeting was held at this church a few days ago. We were glad that there was not much business to attend to, and that gave us more time for heart-to-heart talks, and also a consecration service which was greatly enjoyed by all. Our regular day-schools, as well as all our other branches of church work, are moving along nicely. Dec. 2d our home was favored with singing, was led to accept Christ and received into the church by baptism, another one last report. Our Sunday-men's organized class gave a temperance program Nov. 12, which is sure to help the temperance cause in our community. We expect to begin revival meetings Dec. 2. Bro. Chas. Long is to assist us. We are having a special prayer service each Wednesday night, in behalf of this meeting. Our work here is carried on mostly by young people. A number of them have parents who are not Christians.—Mae Albright, Hinton, Va., Nov. 15.

Flat Rock church met in council Nov. 11, with Bro. J. H. Garber, chairman of the following meeting. The subject, "In What Way Does the Topical Session Benefit Our Church," was discussed by Brethren J. J. D. Wine, J. Frank Good, J. H. Garber, B. W. Neff, M. H. Shaver, D. P. Sherfy, and Sister Ulery. The next topic for general council, Feb. 10, at Cedar Grove will be "What Should Be the Leading Qualities and Attributes of the Sunday-school Superintendent?" The afternoon session prayer was offered by Bro. B. W. Neff. Bro. D. P. Wine presided. The penny collections for the coming year are Sister Bertie Fleming for the Flat Rock church, Sister Mattie Good for Cedar Grove, and Sister Mary Nasselrod for the Stony Creek church. Bro. N. C. Wampler was reappointed on the Sunday-school committee; Bro. J. W. Myers, reappointed on the Home Mission Board; Bro. J. H. Garber, reappointed as secretary and treasurer for another year; Brethren J. Frank Good and J. W. Myers, to reassess the Flat Rock congregation; Bro. John E. Wine, church correspondent. Our church and Sunday-school are in good working order. The week-hour are spent pleasantly. Our all-day councils are great improvements over the old way.—W. H. Wine, Timberville, Va. Would we are better united.—J. W. Myers, Forestville, Va., Nov. 24.

Low Union.—Bro. Samuel Flory came to us Oct. 12, and remained with us for two weeks. He preached with power and boldness. Three were added to the church. Two of them were baptized in a creek, and one decided Christ and died ere Bro. Flory's departure, and was baptized the following Tuesday. Others are laboring and We feel strengthened, and hope to do more and better work in the future.—Mary Garrison, Free Union, Va., Nov. 16.

Mountain Grove Chapel.—The Spirit continues his work among us. Our dear young people have been baptized since our last report. Bro. S. H. Bashor, of Goodview, Va., while on his way to Free Union in Albemarle County, to hold a series of meetings, was at our house Oct. 15. He preached on Sunday morning at the Evergreen house. In the afternoon and at night he was with us at the Mountain Grove Chapel. Before leaving on Monday morning, he baptized a dear young sister, Nov. 1. In the day for our love feast, two more precious souls were baptized. Our love feast was well attended, and was indeed a feast to the saints. Eight members' surrounded the Lord's tables. About half of the number sat at the tables for the first time. A number had never seen the ordinances of God so beautifully set forth. The best of order prevailed, both in the house and on the outside. Those who stood out in the cold were outside as could be accommodated within the house. Nov. 17 Eld. Sanger came back and baptized a man who had been suffering from an operation for appendicitis. Bro. Sanger is engaged in a series of meetings at Mount Hermon. The writer will be held at that place Dec. 18, at 4 P. M.—Nelie Wampler, Dayke, Va., Nov. 17.

Mount Tanner.—We have just closed a series of meetings, conducted by Bro. C. M. Driver, of Waynesboro, Va. In the two weeks' time we had fifteen services, seventeen sermons, proclaiming God's Word in its primitive purity. Bro. Driver gave short talks at each evening before preaching, which were enjoyed by all. There were no additions to the church, yet we feel much encouraged, and think the good seed has been sown by the earnest labor of our dear brother. Our Sunday-school is progressing very nicely.—Belle Campbell, Box 31, Bryant, Va., Nov. 23.

Peter's Creek congregation recently passed through an interesting series of services conducted by Bro. T. N. H. Bashor, of Trevillians, Va. Bro. Beahm came to us Oct. 29, and remained until Nov. 19, preaching fifteen sermons. Much of his preaching was doctrinal, and did much to establish the membership firmly in the faith. Three he was with us four were baptized and two restored to fellowship.—Willard S. Ott, R. 2, Troutville, Va., Nov. 16.

Rolling Creek.—Nov. 4 our church met in council, with Bro. R. L. Sutt presiding. On Sunday, at 11 A. M., Bro. J. C. Rowe preached a sermon, assisted by Bro. R. L. Sutt. After services we received Bro. J. C. Jones, his wife and daughter into our church by letter. Bro. Jones has come from the Bristol congregation and we gladly received them. Our church is growing.—Margaret Thompson, R. D. 1, Box 53, Seven Mile Ford, Va., Nov. 21.

Salem.—Bro. S. R. Bowman closed a two weeks' series of meetings Nov. 19, resulting in six lambs being added to the fold. We enjoyed many other spiritual blessings.—Mitylene B. Dettra, Vancluse, Va., Nov. 20.

Topeco.—We met in council Nov. 4. Eld. Ananias Harmon presided. Very little business before the meeting. We met next day, at 10 A. M., for Sunday-school, and at 11 A. M. Bro. A. N. Hylton preached an interesting sermon. On Sunday morning Bro. J. A. Love, our assistant Sunday-school superintendent, was with us. He preached nineteen Spirit-filled sermons. Five dear souls decided for Christ. Two members are much built up.—Lizzie Spangler, Floyd, Va., Nov. 20.

WASHINGTON.

Wenatchee.—Nov. 4 the Majestic Valley Sunday-school gave a temperance program, consisting of songs and recitations, after which we listened to a temperance talk by Bro. A. D. Bowman, and instructive. A collection, amounting to $2.10, was taken, for the purpose of forwarding the interests of the Anti-Saloon League of Washington. Majestic Valley is a mission point of the East Wenatchee congregation. We have a live Sunday-school, though few in number, and preaching every two weeks. We entertain the hope that they soon will become to be an organized church.—Elva Whitmer Kale, Box 444, Wenatchee, Wash., Nov. 13.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Packs Branch.—Bro. Jas. A. Riner, of Braggville, came to us Nov. 11, and preached on Saturday night and Sunday. Both sermons were very interesting and instructive, and greatly appreciated.—Mrs. E. A. Bowlen, Packs Branch, W. Va., Nov. 23.

Walton.—Bro. Evra T. Pike came to this place Nov. 11 and began a series of meetings. He preached very earnestly, giving us ten Gospel sermons. Three were baptized and three reclaimed. Good in-t-est and attention were manifested throughout the meetings.—William Bane, Burlington, W. Va., Nov. 23.

NOTES NOT CLASSIFIED.

Twin Falls.—I am here, Nov. 10, first, to attend our State District Sunday-school Convention, and, the love feast; third, the first business session of our Mission Board of Idaho and Western Montana. May that day's history ever be bright in the history of Idaho church work. We are also conducting a series of meetings here. The interest is good, and souls are near the kingdom.—L. H. Eby, Twin Falls, Idaho, Nov. 13.

Ash Grove.—Bro. Jacob Heistand, of Walkerton, Ind., came to us and labored earnestly in a series of meetings, commencing Nov. 4, and remained over three Sundays. The attendance was fair, considering the inclement weather. All seemed to be attentive to hear the Word. Our Sunday-school is progressing fine and were baptized.—Ida Coate, R. D. 5, Celina, Ohio, Nov. 23.

ONESIMUS
The Runaway Slave
By ELD. H. B. BRUBAUGH
A book of sacred history, and biography, which, in a fascinating style, portrays an interesting phase of Eastern life and the condition of Roman Society at the time when Paul wrote his epistle to Philemon. This little volume was not written in a day. Much patient research and careful study are clearly evinced throughout. Better not begin the reading of it at a time when you have an important appointment near at hand. When once you begin it you will not want to stop short of the end. It is a charming story of an elevating character. Bound in cloth with gold side title.

THE NATIVITY
A Complete Christmas Service
Edited by Charles H. Gabriel.
Seldom have we had so important an announcement as the forthcoming of Mr. Gabriel's service to produce this beautiful work. Mr. Gabriel needs no introduction to the Sunday-school world, as his wonderful power has penetrated to the far corners of the earth.
"The Nativity" is a 16-page booklet with songs, words and music complete, with full order of services indicated, and two full pages of recitations. It is a dignified, cheerful and inspiring service from start to finish. It is printed on high-grade paper, with handsomely engraved cover design. You can make no mistake in adopting this service for your Christmas season, for there is none so good published anywhere else.
Price, 5 cents per copy, postpaid; 55 cents per dozen, postpaid; $4.00 per hundred, not prepaid; $4.25 per hundred, prepaid.

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER

"SET FOR THE DEFENSE OF THE GOSPEL."—Phil. 1: 17.

The Old Knob Creek Meetinghouse

THE photogravures herewith presented to our readers will afford an excellent opportunity to study the country style of architecture common in the beginning of the last century. The old Knob Creek meetinghouse, the first of our churchhouses built in Tennessee, has been torn down and will soon pass from the memory of the living, but the photographer's art has preserved for us the old house as it was and as it still lives in the memory of many of our people. For the photographs the writer expresses obligation and thanks to Bro. O. L. Hensley, of Jonesboro, Tenn. He is a skilled photographer. In a recent letter, published in the MESSENGER, descriptive of a visit to Knob Creek, this was said about the old meetinghouse:

"In 1834 our first meetinghouse was built in the State, known as the Knob Creek house. It was built of hewn logs, 'chunked and daubed,' as were most of the houses in those days. In size it was thirty-six by fifty feet, with a kitchen sixteen by eighteen, used to prepare for love feasts. Later a lean-to shed, open at side and ends was constructed for the accommodation of the first Annual Meeting held in Tennessee, Sept. 4, 5, 6, 1846. It was a special Conference and is noted because of a deliverance made on the slavery question. A brother had been expelled for selling slaves and wanted to be received into fellowship again. Answer, 'Such a brother cannot be reinstated until he has used every exertion in his power to liberate them, and make full satisfaction to the church.'

"The old house was torn down in 1905 and replaced by a large and well-constructed, modern building. It should have been preserved for the good accomplished in it and especially for the witness of the church against slavery here promulgated and as a reminder how we have changed as to church buildings. It is a long look from the old log meetinghouses of the fathers,—slab benches without backs, eight by ten window-lights, tallow-dips for lighting, built at a nominal cost of not over a hundred dollars, outside of the labor, most of which was donated,—to our best houses of worship today. These cost from ten to twenty-five thousand dollars, finished in polished hard wood, large windows with colored or stained glass, the best of modern seats, the building heated with a furnace, lighted with electricity, cushions if you want them, and every possible convenience. It is not wrong to have the very best for God's service. Surely, we ought to give him as good as we use for ourselves, but there is imminent danger of going to extremes, both in our houses of worship and in our homes."

D. L. M.

Dealing With the Slavery Question.

SINCE the Annual Meeting, referred to by Bro. Miller, was called mainly on account of the slavery question, it may be interesting, in this connection, to note the manner in which slaves were sometimes set free in slave States. There happens to be, in the MESSENGER office, an original emancipation contract, properly signed, with these words on the back: "Jim Shall Be Free." This contract was dated April 30, 1853, and reads as follows:

"Know all men by these presents that I, John H. Bowman, of the County of Washington, and State of Tennessee, do hereby grant, order and direct that my black man, Jim, or James, shall be free for life after he serves me eleven years, from the first day of March, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-three, after making up all lost time that he may lose, and paying all doctor bills, etc., and I also order and direct that Wm. Clark, Henry Swadlew and Samuel Sherfey, shall be my lawful trustees in trust to see that the said Jim or James shall be free for life after the manner herein mentioned, and in case the said Bowman should die, the said Jim is to be hired out to some man he may choose, for the sum of eighty-four dollars and sixty-five cents per annum, and the man that hires the said Jim must find his clothes, and all the money of the said Jim's hire is to be equally divided between my children at the end of said time, as they may come of age, and all the time that he has or will labor for the said Bowman he is allowed eighty-four dollars and sixty-five cents towards his freedom, and no instrument of writing whatever shall supersede or change this instrument of writing.—April 30, 1853. Sealed with my seal and delivered in the presence of John H. Bowman (seal); M. M. Bowman, John Head (Test)."

It would seem that Jim was, in the manner stated, to pay the original price of his purchase.

At the Conference of 1797, held at Blackwater, Va., the church had already, at some length, set forth her policy regarding slavery. We quote:

"Article 1. It was considered good, and also concluded unanimously, that no brother or sister should have negroes as slaves; and in a case a brother or sister had such, he (or she) has to set them free. And in case a person is drawn by the grace of God, who has negroes, and desires to be received into the church, then it is to be laid before him (or her) before being received by baptism into the church, that it is the brotherly and united counsel that brethren and members having negroes for slaves, and thinking that they could not at once emancipate them, may hold them so long as the nearest church may deem that they had earned the money, and then, according to the counsel of the church, to let their slaves go out free, with a good suit of wearing apparel (frei kleid) as is given to a white servant. And if they (the slaves) have children, they shall stay with the brother as servants until they are twenty-five years old; he is to have them taught reading and writing, and bring them up in the fear of the Lord, and when they enter upon their (26th) twenty-sixth year, to let them go out free with a good suit of clothing (frei kleid). Further it is considered, if a brother, contrary to this conclusion, would purchase negroes, and would not emancipate them, he would have to be considered as disobedient, and we could have no fellowship with him until he sets them free."

The question of freeing slaves had its difficulties, and so the matter came up

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER

Vol. 50. (Old Series Vol. 60.) Elgin, Ill., December 9, 1911. No. 49.

AROUND THE WORLD

One Billion Souls Without the Gospel.

Of the 1,600,000,000 souls, inhabiting this earth, 1,000,000,000 are as yet unreached by the Gospel. This is the astounding statement of Dr. W. Y. Fullerton, an English minister. In a recent address he characterized these appalling figures as the everlasting reproach of the church in this twentieth century. It is not so much a case of man's inability as man's unwillingness to heed the marching orders of our Great Captain. With the exception of a few countries like Tibet, Afghanistan and several native Indian states, the whole world is practically open to the gospel message. "Go ye into all the world," says Christ, coupling with the command his blessed promise, "Lo, I am with you alway."

Changing the Guideposts.

In the mistaken idea of having a season of merriment at the expense of others, a group of boys at Livingston, N. Y., changed the guideposts along the wayside, giving no end of annoyance and real vexation to misdirected travelers, some of whom had to spend much valuable time in reaching their destination. In the end the fun was dear to the perpetrators also, for they had to pay a heavy fine. Morally and spiritually there are many signboards that tell their story straight and true, unless some evil-minded person changes them,—to the great detriment of the weary traveler on life's highway. It is well to look to guideposts for direction, but we must be sure that no one has tampered with these most essential waymarks. "Remove not the ancient landmark which thy fathers have set," is an injunction of spiritual significance today.

India's Emperor at Bombay.

When the steamship "Medina" arrived at Bombay Dec. 2, the royal guests of honor, King George V. of England and Queen Mary, were greeted by a large and enthusiastic crowd of India's population. As already mentioned in these columns, the English sovereign is on his way to the Durbar at Delhi, where the imposing ceremony of his coronation as Emperor of all India is to take place. Despite King George's protestations to the contrary, the ceremony is to be "one of the most gorgeous the world has ever seen." All the pomp and magnificence that the imaginative Oriental mind can suggest, will dazzle the eyes of the spectators. In sharp contrast with all this splendor, however, is the wretchedness of large numbers of India's swarming millions who, as referred to elsewhere on this page, are passing their days in the most abject misery and deprivation.

The Bible in the Queensland Schools.

It was a wise resolve, indeed, that prompted the people of Queensland to abolish the merely secular education in the primary schools, and to allow the various religious bodies to give adequate Bible instruction to their own children during school hours. While the Blessed Book is required to be taught undenominationally, the fact remains that its great truths are amply and intelligently presented to the children,—a boon that, as a rule, is denied to Christian parents of America, in the training of their children attending public school. Ours is a favored land of liberty indeed, but it is to be deplored that infidels, Jews, and even Catholics, have united in largely excluding the Bible from the public school. The Psalmist assures us that the entrance of God's Word "giveth light." Why not let it "have free course, and be glorified" in the hearts of all whom it touches?

The Approaching Crisis in Persia.

The ancient country which, under King Cyrus, was a leading factor in the world's history, has suddenly been thrust into the limelight of political significance by recent events. Refusing to yield to Russia's unreasonable demands, the territorial assignment forces of the Czar were ordered Dec. 1 to begin their march upon Teheran, Persia's capital. Great Britain, through its foreign minister, Sir Edward Grey, has urged compliance with Russia's demands, but Persian officials are not inclined to yield to the strong pressure. The country's prosperity has been phenomenal under the able management of Mr. Morgan Shuster, who with American push and energy has done his utmost to place it on a sound, financial footing. The very aggressiveness of Persia's present administration, however, has brought about the complications that now threaten its future independence. Russia's advance upon Persia, fully supported by Great Britain, will mean the eventual partition of the ancient monarchy. Once more, in all likelihood, there will be the startling exhibition of two strong nations crushing a weak country whose land they desire to possess. Once more will Oriental nations present an opportunity to view the significant results of so-called Christian (?) civilization.

The Living Message.

While the power of the Holy Spirit is a most important factor in missionary work, and while intellectual training and practical experience are of undoubted value, the missionary's personality,—his character, tact, courtesy, and general attractiveness,—are also of the utmost importance. In a very real sense the true missionary is the living message to the heathen world. The untaught native reads the missionary long before he reads the Bible. Dr. Guinness, of China, after an experience of fifteen years, refers to many striking instances where the influence of promising missionaries was practically nullified by some thoughtless act or habit that counteracted their teaching. The missionary must remember that first and foremost he must not please himself but him at whose behest he goes, and this lesson, by the way, applies not alone to those to each Christian in the homeland. Each one must needs be a "living epistle," "known and read of all men."

Pensions for Mothers.

Illinois has entered upon a new era of relief fund administration. It proposes to come to the rescue of mothers with dependent children, doing so not as a matter of charity, nor as a favor, but as a right. If the mother is unable to care for her children by means of her own resources, the public funds come to her relief by giving her a stated amount of money periodically. This is done on the ground that she is rendering a worthy service to the State in the proper bringing up of her children. Under the old method of doing,—still practiced in other States,—the dependent home was broken up and its members assigned to the various centers of public charity. The Illinois plan, while requiring a somewhat larger expenditure, makes the home, rather than the institution, the center of the child's life. The pension is paid to the mother for the bringing up of her children at home,—just as money is paid to teachers for bringing up the children at school. It is another step upward!

The Craze for Entertainment.

In the mad race for new and sensational methods of attracting people to the house of worship, there is a tendency to lose sight of all proprieties,—to attain the end sought, no matter what the means may be. At a recent meeting of the Milwaukee Ministers' Association one of the speakers suggested that the church parlors be used as dance halls for young people where young people might safely indulge in dancing and other harmless (?) amusements without being exposed to the evils incident to public halls. He boldly said, "I stand for the advocacy of church dances as the best thing for both minister and church. It will give the young people an inclination to come to the church which so liberally provides for them." As to the utter impropriety and inconsistency of the proposed plan, we simply remark that the Word of God has long since been placed in many a church, and all such attempts "to do evil that good may abound." Too often it has sounded the death knell of true vital piety.

The Truth Revealed.

When James B. McNamara, on the afternoon of Dec. 1, pleaded guilty to the charge of having caused the explosion which wrecked the office of the "Los Angeles Times" Oct. 1, 1910, the people everywhere were greatly surprised. Labor organizations, believing in the alleged innocency of the McNamara brothers, had, at the beginning of the trial, raised $100,000 for their defense, and it is not to be wondered at that now they are greatly wrought up, confronted as they are by the revelation of actual guilt. Labor leaders throughout the country strongly repudiate the lawless act by which twenty-one lives were ruthlessly sacrificed, and they now insist that the full penalty be meted out to all those who are guilty, —not only the one who has confessed to the carrying out of the fiendish deed, but all those who were "higher up." It is to be hoped that hereafter labor organizations will most severely discountenance all violence and lawlessness, too often characteristic of unionism. Thousands of serious, law-abiding men in the ranks of labor organizations can well afford to adjust the attitude of their unions to the highest requirements of justice and good citizenship.

Corrupting Agencies.

It is encouraging to note that other denominations, also, are condemning, in no uncertain language, the vicious moving picture shows. Our esteemed contemporary, "The United Presbyterian," refers in a recent issue to a most striking report of the "New York State Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children," in which it is stated that the moving picture shows have created fifteen million new theater-goers in the United States, most of them children. In illustration of the deplorably bad influence which many of the exhibitions have on the morals of the children, recent cases before the Juvenile Court of New York City are cited. So pronounced and flagrant were these instances that thirty-two men who conducted places of the kind, and admitted children to them, contrary to law, have been convicted and sent to prison.

The Jews and Palestine.

Recent reports from Constantinople point to the probability that the Jews will shortly obtain large concessions in Palestine,—principally extensive tracts of land belonging to the Turkish Government. M. Pavolus, the departmental chief of the Agricultural Ministry, who had been sent to Palestine to investigate industrial and agricultural conditions, has presented a summary of his investigations. It is, by all odds, the most important declaration in behalf of Jewish colonization, recently made, for the official plainly declares that only the most far-reaching concessions to these people will succeed in developing Palestine to the highest degree. He also advises the replanting of forests around Mount Lebanon, conserving the valuable resources thereby protected. He is sure that additional planting of trees on sandy slopes and hillsides throughout Palestine, will go far to affect the climate of the country most favorably. It is his firm conviction that the Jew holds the key to the future prosperity of the country.

The Hague Peace Palace.

Slowly the magnificent peace palace at The Hague, now being erected by the generous donation of Andrew Carnegie's millions, is moving onward toward its completion, but whether the end, sought by the munificent donor, will be realized, is another question. Every nation has contributed an essential part to the building and its furnishings, but so far this has not added to the world's sum total of real peace. The "Matin," a leading French journal, recently pointed out, with fine irony, that so far every stage in the building operations has been signalized by wars or war-like demonstrations. When the building was first planned, the Anglo-Boer war broke out, and the Russo-Japanese war followed. When the first floor was laid, Austria seized Bosnia and Herzegovina. With the second floor complete, the Franco-German controversy arose. As the roof was being put on, the Turco-Italian war began. All of this goes to show that peace palaces, in and of themselves, are of little real value. If, however, you make, as far as possible, each heart a temple of peace, the golden morn of a brighter day will dawn for earth's nations.

India's Want and Destitution.

According to British officials, fully conversant with conditions in India, more people in that country lie down hungry each evening, than live in the entire United States, and more than a third of the multiplied millions never, from the cradle to the grave, know what it is to have enough to eat. The average income in North India, we are told, is but two dollars a month for a family averaging five persons. So intense is the struggle for subsistence that every member of such a family, of sufficient strength to labor, must add to the general resources, however pitifully small the pittance. Prof. S. Higginbottom, of the Allahabad Christian College, recently passed a field in which native women were working, whose infants were lying in the shadow of a tree, strangely quiet. Such unwonted silence by the usually clamorous youngsters was so unnaturally peculiar that he was led to inquire. One of the older women then explained that the man for whom they were working did not like the mothers to leave their work to care for the babes. So, before beginning the weary toil in the fields, the mother places a bit of opium beneath the little one's finger-nail, which, upon being brought in contact with the mouth, transmits the narcotic into the system, producing a deadly stupor. Thus the mother can labor on unhindered. Dreadful, you say? Yes, but matters are instances of India's woeful condition which can only be remedied by long years of better training. Send the light!

Those Gone Before.

BY D. MAXCY QUELLHORST.

How dear is the mem'ry of loved ones departed,
How sweet to recall their bright faces again,
Though through misty tears we bring them before us,
It gives us a pleasure surpassing all pain.

Yes, give us the vision, if but for a moment,
Of faces we've loved, and hands we have clasp'ed,
'Twill lighten the burden of life's dreary pathway,
To have but a glimpse of the happy days past.

'Twill banish the sadness, the present brings with it,
And hold dear the past, though at times we must weep,
But 'tis only a day, and all will be over,
And calmly, in Jesus, with loved ones we'll sleep.

Till our dear Redeemer shall call us to glory,
Then, free from all care, we shall rise with the blest.
With glorified beings we'll shout, through all ages,
His praises, while entering heaven's blest rest.

The Church.

BY NETTIE C. WEYBRIGHT.

In Four Parts.—Part Two.

IN the Book of Hebrews we have such full evidence, so many proofs that the New Dispensation is so much better than the Old. We have a higher position than they. We are joint-heirs with Christ of the riches of God. Although created a little lower than the angels, we are, by the grace of God, through the death of Christ, and our faith in him, now higher than the angels. The hopes of the Jews were mainly earthly; ours are mainly heavenly. They were servants under Moses; we are sons of God, under the headship of Christ. The law of bondage united them, but we are united by the Spirit of love and liberty. Although Jehovah was their God, he is our Father, and through Christ, our Living Mediator, he leads us, blesses us, and answers our prayers. Of them he required righteousness, the fulfilling of the law, but through the death and victory of the sinless Christ we have his perfect righteousness imputed to us. Indeed, God is no longer the God of the Jews only, but the world is the field of Divine grace. Grace not only puts away sin, but establishes brotherhood, a bond of love and sympathy among men. Between Israel and the church, all is contrast. The origin, calling, promise, worship, principles of conduct, and future destiny are all different. The future church will be taken away from the earth and restored Israel is still to have her greatest earthly splendor and power. The Jews are of and for the earth; through grace the church is of heaven and is to find her future glory there.

In the field of theological thought, today, there seems to be much confusion concerning the distinction between "church truth" and "kingdom truth;" also a large degree of confusion in regard to the different "kingdoms" mentioned in the Bible.

For the meaning of the kingdom of God and the contents of his kingdom, we find, in Heb. 12: 22-24, the innumerable hosts of angels, the general assembly and church of the first-born who are enrolled in heaven, and the spirits of just men made perfect, with God, the Judge of all, and Jesus, the Mediator of the new covenant. From this we would infer that the expression, "The kingdom of God," means "the rule of God anywhere," that all, in heaven or earth, from the first created one, Adam, to the present, and all hereafter, in future ages, who love God and obey him, who bow submissively and reverentially before him, are in the Kingdom of God. This, of course, would include the saints of the Old Testament, the church of the present dispensation, and all others, in every age, who love him; also the angels of heaven.

The kingdom of God is all-inclusive. It is called also the kingdom of the Father (Matt. 13: 43; 1 Cor. 15: 24), the kingdom of our God (Rev. 12: 10), and his heavenly kingdom (2 Tim. 4: 18).

Then, within this kingdom of God, is the kingdom of heaven,—the kingdom which is the kingdom of the Messiah, the kingdom mentioned in the Davidic covenant in 2 Sam. 7: 5-19. The real kingdom of heaven has for its work the mediatorial function, "the restoration and conversion of Israel, and the ultimate conversion of the world." This is the time when the majority of people will be converted. It is called "my" (Christ's) kingdom in Luke 22: 30, "the kingdom of the Son of his love" in Col. 1: 13, and "the kingdom of the Son of man" in Matt. 16: 28.

In the Davidic covenant, in 2 Sam. 7: 14, God makes provision for the sinfulness of his people by reserving for them his chastisement. He says, "If he commit iniquity, I will chasten him with the rod of men, and with the stripes of the children of men." His own,—the Jews,—did sin and he chastened them by interposing the "times of the Gentiles" as mentioned in Luke 21: 24, during which time "Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles." This period began with Nebuchadnezzar and still continues,—we know not how much longer. The kingdom was "at hand" when Christ first came, as was witnessed by John the Baptist (Matt. 3: 1, 2), by Jesus (Matt. 4: 17), and by the twelve (Matt. 10: 5-8), but it was rejected by the evil and adulterous generation, when the "kingdom at hand" became the "kingdom in mystery" (Matt. 13: 1-51), extending from the rejection of the king to the harvest at the end of this age. In it are both true and false believers, for the "children of the kingdom" and the "children of the wicked one" are in it together. All are professing believers. Jesus spoke these parables of the "mysteries of the kingdom" because, as he says in Matt. 13: 11, 15, he intends for these to know, but the others had rejected him because their heart had waxed gross, their ears were dull of hearing, and their eyes they had closed, therefore they could not understand him. Later, in Matt. 16: 18, he announced another "mystery" (Eph. 3: 1-11), in the purpose of God to them,—one that had been hidden through all the ages, that his intention was to establish his church, and unto this church were to be given the "keys of the kingdom of heaven" (Matt. 16: 19).

The millennial kingdom will be composed of, first, the living nations upon the earth in their natural bodies; second, the translated church (1 Thess. 4: 14-18), and, third, the saints of all times, who have passed, through death and resurrection, in their glorified state. Then the church, as the Bride of Christ himself, shall reign, as a body, with him,—not subjects of Christ, but corulers with him.

Some would claim that a church existed under the Old Dispensation, but that could not have been the case, for—

1. Before the death of Christ it would have been unredeemed.

2. It would have been without the indwelling Spirit before the resurrection of Christ.

3. It would have been a body without a Head before the exaltation of its Head and Redeemer.

4. It could not have been formed by the baptism of the Holy Spirit before his descent at Pentecost. Neither was the church, nor the idea of the church an accident, nor an after-thought of God, but it was, in the mind of God, from the beginning,—before the world was. In the mind of our all-knowing God there are no accidents. All is included in his one great plan for the universe. Before he created man, he knew he would fall, and had then already planned the death of his Beloved Son, Jesus Christ, to atone for the sins of the whole world. The church, the organic body of Christ, is to be the glorious bride of Christ in the glory of the great future ages.

The original word for "church" is the Greek word "ekklesia," composed of "ek," "out from among," and "kaleo," "to call;" therefore the real church is a distinct body, separate from the world, filled with the powers and hopes of immortality, for whom "to live is Christ and to die is gain" (Philpp. 1: 21). The church, then, is a body of regenerate persons, called out from among the world during this dispensation, forming the "body of Christ," vitally united to Jesus Christ as head, and to each other as parts of the whole, by the baptism of the Holy Spirit, designed for the display of God's grace in the world, by witnessing for Christ, and engaging in his service.

The Rainbow.

BY J. H. MILLER.

AFTER the flood God was willing to give unto man a token of the covenant made with him. God promised Noah that he would never again destroy the earth with a flood. As an evidence of this promise, or covenant, God placed the rainbow in the clouds (Gen. 9: 13), so that we might see and remember his promise to us.

This bow God calls, "My bow." "And the bow shall be in the cloud; and I will look upon it, that I may remember the everlasting covenant between God and every living creature of all flesh that is upon the earth." Every time Noah saw this bow in the cloud, he knew that God was keeping his promise. Noah did not only realize the truthfulness of God's promise, but the happiness and the full enjoyment of living under such a protecting power.

The rainbow is a silent messenger. Often our minds recall the promise or assurance made to Noah. When God thus speaks, we realize how true his word is! Jesus confirms this by saying, "Till heaven and earth shall pass away, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law till all be fulfilled."

This rainbow is only visible upon the approach of a cloud or storm. In our Christian race, when the dark clouds of persecution come, God's promises only shine more brightly in our hearts. As we gaze at the rich colors in the bow, we feel happy over God's precious promises to his children. When, however, the dark clouds of sorrow overspread our spiritual sky, we must turn to God in earnest prayer. He has promised to hear us, and if we pray in faith believing, the rainbow of God's promised blessings will soon shine into our hearts.

A cloud may overspread the sky, but no rainbow will be seen, unless the cloud affords moisture enough to let drops of water fall gently to the earth. So dark clouds of sorrow may overspread our spiritual sky, but we receive no benefit unless our innermost depth is stirred,—unless the tears of sorrow fall, because of our infirmities in the flesh. Then we can look up, through a moistened eye, to see the beautiful rainbow of God's promises.

I presume the colors of the rainbow are still as beautiful and grand to look upon as when Noah first saw them. So should the Word of God be as beautiful, in all of its grandeur, as it was when God first created this beautiful world of ours. God can make a rainbow when he pleases. He has made many thousand rainbows since he made one for Noah, and they come to us as so many promises and blessings.

Do the people of the present age enjoy God's blessings as Noah did? I fear some of these blessings or commands have lost their attraction, yet Peter tells us that "the Lord is not slack concerning his promises." Again, "He is faithful that promised." One of God's promises, through Jesus, is: "If ye love me keep my commandments." "They that seek me early shall find me."

John, the revelator, saw an open door in heaven. He also saw a throne in heaven, and on that throne he saw one sitting who was beautiful to look upon. Around the throne he saw a rainbow, the sight of which was beautiful like unto an emerald. Out of the throne proceeded lightnings and thunders and voices. God holds his promises very sacred, and as a token of these promises the rainbow is a visible sign or witness. This power is imposed upon us in a threefold sense: First, by the rainbow; second, by lightnings; third, by thunderings.

The rainbow has seven colors,—one for each day of the week. The earth was created in six days, but on the seventh day the Lord rested from his works. The number seven frequently occurs in the Bible. It is a full number in Bible count. The earth is nearly six thousand years old. The millennium, or seven thousandth year, will soon be here.

God, in the rainbow, has placed seven different colors, grand to behold. Let us notice them in their order: Red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet. These colors set forth the perfection in the economy of grace. We have the rainbow in the first and last books of the Bible. The rainbow, spoken of in Genesis, was seen by man on the earth, but the one that John saw was in heaven. The Revelator tells us that he was in the Spirit on the Lord's Day (a good place to be, to see the blessings of God as they come to us). The rainbow that John saw was not merely a half or one-sided bow; neither was it in the cloud, but around about the throne. God comes to us with seven promises of beautiful colors, and envelops us with them. This rainbow of the Revelator had but one color, resembling an emerald, reminding us that the Lord has "green pastures for the saints, on the evergreen shore, in the heavenly home."

In the rainbow, as seen on earth, there was a union of the seven colors, all blended together. The rainbow, as seen by John in the heavenly vision, was round about them as an emerald,—green. This teaches us that the blessedness of God, coming to his saints, is fresh and green. Though nearly two thousand years have passed away since the New Testament covenant was made with man, yet it is as green and as flourishing as ever. It never changes nor decays.

Were the Twelve Disciples of Acts 19: 1 Rebaptized?

BY B. E. KESLER.

In considering this question I note, first, that it has never been shown that Apollos or Paul baptized them; second, that it has not been shown that they were really rebaptized. And if they had been, then what? Why, it would show that all John's converts must have been rebaptized, and John's work was, therefore, a failure.

Concerning Apollos I note:

1. He was a (converted) Jew, and, as might be expected, the burden of his teaching was Jesus.

2. He "knew only the baptism of John." But this must not be construed to mean that he only knew how John baptized. A man "mighty in the scriptures" would know more than that.

3. A man of his character and learning would not presume to baptize without authority. If he baptized at all, his baptism was valid, hence there was no need of rebaptism.

4. His call to the ministry evidently was regular and valid. There is no record to the contrary, nor of any future call to the ministry. The record, however, does show that he continued his ministerial labors right along with Paul and others, hence his ministry, like his baptism, if he baptized, was valid, and there was no need of the rebaptism of his converts.

Of John it may be said that none of his converts were ever rebaptized, for if one were, then all must have been rebaptized.

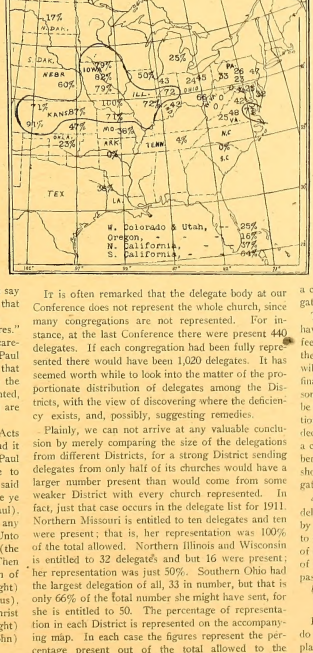
Of Paul it may be said that the record does not say he ever rebaptized any one, but men say or infer that he did, and this is all there is to support this idea.

Again; Apollos was "mighty in the scriptures." Was Paul more? Apollos "spake and taught carefully the things concerning Jesus" (R. V.). Did Paul do more? He "powerfully refuted the Jews and that publicly, shewing by the scriptures that Jesus is the Christ." Did Paul more than this? "Paul planted, Apollos watered." Which is the greater? Both are "one," says Paul,—equals.

Now, with this understanding, let us turn to Acts 19 and read, beginning with verse 1. Luke, "And it came to pass, that, while Apollos was at Corinth, Paul having passed through the upper coasts came to Ephesus: and finding certain disciples, he (Paul) said unto them, Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed (Luke)? And they said unto him (Paul), We have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost. And he (Paul) said unto them, Unto what then were ye baptized?" Luke, "And they (the disciples) said, Unto John's baptism." Luke, "Then said Paul, John verily baptized with the baptism of repentance, saying unto the people (whom he taught) that they (the people) should believe on him (Jesus), which should come after him (John), that is on Christ Jesus. When they (the people whom John taught) heard this, they (the people) were baptized (by John) in the name (authority) of the Lord Jesus."

Thus they needed no rebaptism. And such, no doubt, were these twelve who may as likely have come from Judea to Ephesus, as Apollos from Alexandria. And not having received the Holy Ghost, all that was now necessary was for Paul to lay hands on them, which he did, and so Luke says: "And when Paul had laid his hands upon them (the twelve) the Holy Ghost came on them (the twelve) and they spake with tongues and prophesied."

Not a word was said about rebaptizing them. Why should Luke specifically tell us that Paul laid hands on them and not tell us that he rebaptized them, if he did? It would have been easy to say, "Paul baptized them," or "rebaptized them," if it had been so, "and laid his hands upon them." This silence by Luke, on rebaptism is very significant here. He did not see it as some modern writers do.



Since rebaptism fails here, where, in all the Bible, can it be found? The ancient church, for several centuries, failed to see rebaptism in this passage. Indeed, I am not sure if, when in later times they began to rebaptize, they depended upon this passage.

So the idea that these twelve were rebaptized, is modern. It seems to have grown out of the idea that we must have "baptism by direct descent," though, as one historian says, "It came through Pope Joan."

Representation at Annual Meeting.

BY W. L. EIKENBERRY.

It is often remarked that the delegate body at our Conference does not represent the whole church, since many congregations are not represented. For instance, at the last Conference there were present 440 delegates. If each congregation had been fully represented there would have been 1,020 delegates. It has seemed worth while to look into the matter of the proportionate distribution of delegates among the Districts, with the view of discovering where the deficiency exists, and, possibly, suggesting remedies.

Plainly, we can not arrive at any valuable conclusion by merely comparing the size of the delegations from different Districts, for a strong District sending delegates from only half of its churches would have a larger number present than would come from some weaker District with every church represented. In fact, just that case occurs in the delegate list for 1911. Northern Missouri is entitled to ten delegates and ten were present; that is, her representation was 100% of the total allowed. Northern Illinois and Wisconsin is entitled to 32 delegates and but 16 were present; her representation was just 50%. Southern Ohio had the largest delegation of all, 33 in number, but that is only 66% of the total number she might have sent, for she is entitled to 50. The percentage of representation in each District is represented on the accompanying map. In each case the figures represent the percentage present out of the total allowed to the churches of the District, based upon the best available information. The heavy black line surrounds, approximately, the area from which were sent at least 70% of the full number allowed, and includes all such Districts excepting East Virginia.

Several things are at once evident upon inspection of the map.

1. Very few Districts send more than 75% of a full delegation. We may consider that under ordinary circumstances any District equalling that number is doing all that can be expected.

2. The representation is good and relatively uniform over an area including several States surrounding the place of meeting, but falls off decidedly at greater distances. This indicates that the proposition to have one permanent location for the meeting, if adopted, would result in the meeting being permanently dominated by a few States near the location. On the other hand, both the eastern and central divisions are small enough and compact enough so that each of them might very well select a permanent location for entertaining the meeting, whenever it comes to them in rotation. Such an arrangement would hardly be practical west of the Mississippi River until the growth of churches in that region makes possible a division of the area.

3. A considerable number of Districts sent a small representation, which can not be explained merely by distance. For instance, Arkansas was relatively close to the meeting, but sent no delegates. This is easily understood when we remember that though Arkansas has 13 congregations, the total membership is only 238 and no congregation has more than 30 members. It can not be expected that so small a congregation will assume the expense incurred in sending a delegate.

Examination of the data from a number of Districts indicates that, on the average, the number of delegates corresponds very closely to the number of congregations having above 60 members. These facts are tabulated below for several Districts somewhat remote from the place of meeting.

S. E. Kansas,	5	7
Oklahoma,	5	7
N. California,	3	3
Oregon,	10	5
Carolina,	2	5
Michigan,	6	5
Totals,	31	27

It will be noted that in these seven Districts there are thirty-one congregations of above 60 members, sending 27 delegates—almost one to a congregation—though, of course, a few of the delegates may have come from the smaller congregations.

The conclusion seems inevitable that congregations having a membership under 50 or 60 do not commonly feel able to send a delegate to Conference. What is the remedy? Certainly under present conditions it will do no good to urge greater response, for the financial burden is too great. It is necessary to find some way to lessen the expense. This may very well be accomplished by allowing several weak congregations to join in sending a single delegate. It might be decided that churches under 50 could unite in sending a common delegate, provided only that the total membership of churches, represented by any one delegate, should not be more than 100. Will not some congregation send such a request up to Conference?

4. There are certain other Districts whose small delegation can be explained neither by distance nor by the smallness of their congregations. One is driven to suppose that they do not appreciate the importance of the work of Conference, nor the advantage to them of having a part in it. It is to be hoped that as time passes they will see the importance of this great work.

Dealing With the Slavery Question.

again in 1853, when the Annual Meeting convened at at Beaver Dam, Md. This was a few weeks after the signing of the emancipation contract given above. We quote the following from the Minutes of 1853, Art. 9:

"Concerning slavery. How shall any branch of the church proceed, in case an individual wishes to become a member, who is in possession of a slave or slaves, and the law of the State in which they reside is such that they cannot manumit them in safety, without transporting them beyond its limits; and as we are aware that the several States where slavery does not exist are contemplating and passing strenuous laws, prohibiting their emigration thither, etc, it seems indispensably necessary for us to adopt some other plan than hitherto practiced, in order that the church should be kept clear from the evils of slavery, and that such persons may be enabled to come into Christ's kingdom?

"The questions involved were considered too important, and therefore concluded to intrust this matter to a committee, to report thereon as soon as possible, and the committee to consist of the following brethren: Joseph Arnold and Benj. Boonaw, of Virginia, John M. Umstad, Sam. Lehman, Isaac Price, and David Bosserman, of Pennsylvania, and Daniel P. Sayler and Henry Koons, of Maryland."

The next year, 1854, the Conference being held at Ashland, Ohio, the committee, appointed the previous year, presented the following report:

"Report of the committee appointed last year on the subject of slavery. (See Minutes of 1853, Art. 9.) The question having been, 'How shall any branch of the church proceed in case an individual wishes to become a member who is in possession of slaves, and the law of the State in which they live is such that they cannot manumit them in safety, without transporting them beyond its limits?'

"'Agreeable to the ninth query of Yearly Meeting of 1853, concerning slavery, the committee appointed to report the same have had this subject under serious consideration, in the fear of the Lord, and do report as follows:

"'First, Under no circumstances can slavery be admitted into the church.

"'Second, in all cases where a holder of a slave or slaves wishes to become a member in the church, he be required to manumit all his slaves before baptism, upon the following conditions: The males to go out free at the age of twenty-one, and the females at the age of eighteen years. All these over and above these ages, when manumitted, are to be paid by their former owner such a sum, either in money or goods, as may be judged right by the church in which the case may occur, and which is considered as the best judge, being acquainted with all the circumstances—as a compensation for their services over age. This will enable the manumitted to migrate to a land of liberty, and will relieve the conscience of the liberator from the burden of taking with him to the bar of God the wages of oppression."

This gives the Church of the Brethren a clear record on the slavery question.

Something About the Uprising in China.

BY F. H. CRUMPACKER.

The uprising that has taken on a rather serious aspect in the last few weeks has been in the hearts of the people for a long time. More than two hundred years of being ruled by a foreign line of rulers has been more than the people of China want to endure for future years. So the rebellion is really against the rulers of China,—the Manchus. Our church people at home ought to know that the trouble this time is in no way a feeling towards the foreigners.

Both China and government are promising all protection to the foreigners and the Christians if they will simply keep at their places and not take any part on either side. Of course the missionaries are afraid that possibly a mob spirit might be started that would only care for plunder. In that case there would be real danger. So, in many cases, the women and children are leaving the interior for the port cities where they are sure of protection. Our own missionaries are all in Tien Tsin, and most of them will stay there till there is general quiet again. Some of the men may go back to Ping Ting Chou as soon as there is a reasonable change in affairs.

The church need feel no anxiety, at this time, for the missionaries, for the consul and the legation are on the alert to look after all the interests of the foreigners, and we will keep in the bounds of safety, as far as it is possible for us to do, and at the same time do our duty. We are not courting disaster but hope to do our full duty as we are led.

To be sure, when we first heard of the rebellion we thought it was so far away that it would never get to us, but it seems that there has been an uprising in our capital city, Tai Yuan Fu, of late. With all this there seems to be a real effort, on the part of all, to protect foreign interests. So even we feel that our property is all right at our place.

It is a time, as I look at it, that the Christian people ought to pray mightily that the Lord might use the result of the rebellion,—whatever that may be, for greater freedom in religious liberty in China. The Chinese feel that the Manchus have not dealt with them on the square, in that only the Manchus were appointed to office.

The government is now feeling a bit nervous about the outcome, for in so many places the troops are refusing to move at the command of the Imperial officers. Many places, too, the troops are going over to the rebels. Many of the people here are predicting that the result will be that the troops will go over in sufficient numbers to make the result a sure thing for the rebels. In case the rebels are victorious, they are promising a republic. We are not sure out here that the time is ripe for a republic but there is a strong feeling, almost all over the empire, that there must be a change in the dynasty.

For more than a year there has been open hostility in places, but there has been but little bloodshed until within the last month. During the past month there have been several uprisings in as many places, and as a final result many of the Manchu people have been killed by the native Chinese people. As to what the real result will be, no one is ready to prophesy just now, but many of the people are hoping that there will be a change in the rulers. The rebels are posting notices in all the important centers that they will not hurt, or permit to be hurt, any of the missionaries or their work. So far as promises go, the missionaries are safe. May we, at this time, plead together, at the throne of God, that the Lord may bring, out of all this confusion, glorious and unrestricted religious liberty. Our party are all well.

The Supreme Need of the Church on the Pacific Coast.

BY N. J. BRUBAKER.

(Read at the largely-attended Ministerial Meeting of Southern California and Arizona and, by the unanimous vote of that body, sent us for publication in the Messenger. The article is lengthy, but since those attending the Ministerial Meeting are united in thinking that it represents the needs of the District, we are giving the essay in full.—Ed.)

What Is the Church and Her Functions?

It is not a club. It is not a human organization. It is not a democracy. It can not make its own laws. It has no authority because of its organization, but is a creature of authority. It is a theocracy, the voice of God in human expression. It is the instrumentality in God's hand, making man anew in his image. This image is not a matter of human shape nor intellect nor achievement, but a matter of soul image and spiritual being. All souls born of his Spirit, responsive to his will and conforming to his image from glory to glory, constitute his church. His church stands for the cardinal doctrines of Christ,—the atonement, faith, obedience, regeneration, nonresistance, nondivorce, simple, temperate, useful lives.

In the power of the Master we shall open the eyes of the blind, quicken the deaf ears, heal the lame, raise the dead spiritually, cast out devils, inhibit bad impulses and arouse good ones in their stead. We are to bring men to Christ that he may conform them to his image. In his hands we are clay but not by any means passive clay. We are living, active, elastic personalities. Between the thumb of God's power and the fingers of his grace we react not with flesh and blood but spirit with spirit. In this eternal molding to God's image we need spiritual elasticity, spontaneity, soul-tension, responsive to the Father's drawing.

On the Pacific Coast.

The Pacific Coast is a big thing. It is the back door of twenty centuries of Christian civilization sweeping onward to the front door of Oriental millions in spiritual darkness. It stretches from the icy caverns of Patagonian savages to the totem poles of superstitious Esquimaux. The spirit of commerce has thrust into one great seething pot Buddhistic philosophy, Hindu practices, Confucian doctrines, Theosophic pretensions, Christian Science, Agnosticism, Spiritualism, Atheism, and all manner of Christian interpretation and exemplification. Our mission is to contribute as much as possible true Christian doctrine and practice and to skim off as much as possible of the social dross. With all these elements at present, with the inevitable influx to come at the completion of the Panama Canal, it behooves us to redouble our diligence, lest we be plunged into disaster. Unless the church can bring order out of chaos, his Word will return void from the Pacific Coast.

For the sake of truth, posterity and our immediate interests, we must grapple with the complex problem before us.

Our Need.

When the prophet Ezekiel saw that wonderful vision in the whirlwind of the north, the cloud, the fire, the four faces, the dreadful wheels, the sapphire throne and the man upon the throne, he saw the peculiar genius of God's power in wondrous action. He saw the necessity of human instrumentalities in complete organization, but above all these he saw God's glory, in the rustle of the wings he heard God's voice, and back of the wheels, he reiterates again and again, was the Spirit guiding and impelling it all. All forces of nature, all powers of intellect, all the strength of beasts, all vision of the eagle, all endurance of the ox, all material force is subject to the spirit of God's eternal purpose behind the wheel. So in coming to this question before us the answer in one word is, the Holy Spirit. We have machinery enough, resources enough, and power enough at our command had we only the true spirit of Christianity impelling and guiding it onward and upward. We have organization upon organization, wheels within wheels, soaring eagles and roaring lions, worldly wisdom and ox-like endurance, but do we go whithersoever the Spirit is to go? Is our church energy organized that the Holy Spirit may do his work through us? Are we running without first having God's message ready?

"Why run, seeing you have no message ready?" Would that not be a good motto to put on your bookmark, your prayer meeting topic, your young people's outline, your sermon leaflet, your convention program, your calling card? We are doing too much running without God's message ready. We may be too much in haste to stop to prepare ourselves for the real missions of life. Our message is God's tidings, but we must get them ready. We shall be workmen that need not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth. To get this truth ready, requires much study, prayer, consecration, hard work. We must divide the Word of Truth. It cannot be lumped off in a sort of general undifferentiated mass. Essentials must be emphasized, incidentals subdued. True insight will see all truth in right perspective. Proper emphasis requires subordination of the several parts. The messenger of God's message needs preparation.

The church needs Christianity above all things else. We are not sufficiently enchristed. There are nominal Christians by the score who have never yet given Christianity a chance to actuate them. Christianity has scarcely yet been applied. The spirit back of the wheels has been too often left out of our conduct. We have been baptized, enrolled, fellowshipped. We have observed the rites, eaten of Christ's body and drunk of his blood in symbols, but have we throbbed with divine impulse, loved with pure hearts, served with true devotion? Have we been efficient? We need a creed that accomplishes a religion that lifts, a doctrine that sanctifies, a life that serves. We need conductivity. Some church people are really insulators. They interpose themselves between man and God, and keep them apart. God can not use a nonconductor. We need applied Christianity that flows from souls imbued with power from on high. We need men of power, acumen, conviction,—men grounded in church doctrine, versed in the Scriptures and able to reach men and inspire them to higher living. We need men, real men, who know no authority but God's and obey it with unflagging zeal, who think more of their consciences than their official heads, whose moral backbone stands parallel with the plumb line of eternal justice. We have had enough supine cringing to induce slow paralysis. While we mused, the smoldering fires of nepotism have burned on. Favoritism has supplanted merit and men have been influential because of family relationship rather than spiritual usefulness.

Our atmosphere is not conducive to high-class spiritual leadership. We sorely need leadership in all the departments of our church activity. We are the victims of ephemeral leadership. In the midst of great financial opportunities secular affairs press hard. Religious questions are correspondingly neglected. Our churches are aggregations rather than institutional developments. They are transient in their constituency rather than permanent. Local sentiment has not yet had sufficient time to root deep in the soil of long-hallowed association. The membership is floating. This gives us wider experiences but shallowness of sentiment.

The ministry is worse afflicted with the transitory succession than the laity. Visiting ministers coming for the winter or for their health, have time at their disposal for the churches. We are always glad to welcome them and appreciate their services more than those to whom we have become accustomed. As a consequence the local ministers drop into business, almost unmused, and the new blood practically fills the field. Thus new ministers are made the hobbies and used vehemently until their successors appear. Thus we hail with joy every new man and drop him, by the same courtesy, at the approach of the later arrival. We are like spoiled children,—always craving the new because new, and rejecting the old because old. This condition of affairs is peculiar to the Pacific Coast, and is fatal to real substantial leadership. No man has time to develop his own powers until the very nature of the case has thrust him upon the shelf of inactivity. It is fatal not because of any inherent weakness upon the part of the newcomers, for, like the wine at Cana, the last tastes best to us, but because the newcomers are not familiar with the prevailing conditions. They are not spiritually acclimated. They are good swimmers, but they do not know the strength of our UNDERTOW. This condition forbids permanency and encourages superficiality. If we were susceptible to it, jealousy would easily take root in such soil, irresponsibility would thrive, and absolute love of ease would overwhelm us.

We need a pastor in every church. Not merely to preach but rather to do personal work among his parishioners. But no pastor could long hold his place in a pulpit open to frequent newcomers. The courtesy of the pastor, the demands of the parishioners, and the generosity of the guest, all combine to break down the pastorship idea. This over-supply of free ministry in the centers makes apparent the need of a paid ministry in outlying churches, hence we have a bunched ministry rusting in idleness in the central points, and an unpaid minister struggling to edify the people incidentally, while he makes a scant living for his family. In a word, the interests of the church are made secondary by all long-time residents, whose chief energies are devoted to secular affairs. This induces weakness, mediocrity, and shallowness. Leadership is not practicable nor keenly felt as even desirable.

This temporizing state of affairs can not build well for the future. We need a new sorting out, a new Gideon, and each man at his place to blow the trumpet and hold up the light. This means a classification of our ministry into active and inactive. A paid pulpit for every active pastor and an active pastor for every pulpit. This is only common sense business sagacity, sanctified gumption. In good common vernacular, we need real old-fashioned gumption,—gumption of the pioneer type, sanctified to holy purposes,—spiritual gumption that perceives the true relationship between man and God, and man and man. Such gumption has unglassed vision. It knows no bias, no procrastination, no subterfuge. It sees what ought to be done and immediately contrives ways and means to do it. Gumption cuts off the corners and goes direct to the goal. Gumption strips off cumbersome paraphernalia of antiquated customs, traditions, precedents and superstitions. Gumption discriminates and animates. Gumption is lubricated with common sense. Gumption hunts the lost sheep and recovers the ox from the ditch even on Sunday. Gumption is a faithful ally to the Holy Spirit and is just as applicable to principles of Christianity as to secular business.

We need efficiency. "Not what goeth into the belly but what cometh out defileth." In like figure not what we absorb but what we radiate makes us useful. Not information but vitalization is our cry. Not the observance of negative commandments, not theoretical observance of the highest positive. The young ruler observed all yet missed the fundamental element—efficiency. His fullness of possibility and opportunity became his millstone, drowning him in oblivion. He feasted on theory from his youth up, yet shriveled his soul to utter bareness. He lacked one thing,—but it was everything,—he lacked the spirit of service. We need, most sorely do we need, Christian efficiency. We need the "indwelling Spirit," not the "dwelling in" Spirit. We need the expansive power of righteous zeal rather than the molecular attraction of the bunch-up spirit. We need true spiritual insight. This will enable us to see things in wide perspective. It will put all things in true proportion. We need more altruistic foresight and less selfish hindsight.

We are to build for the future, not revel in the past. Remembering that it is God's work that we are to do, we can not hope to do it well with short tenure of active service. No business house could succeed under frequent change of proprietors. The Army of the Potomac changed generals after every big battle. Failure accompanied them as long as they followed this policy. Seeing our need, let common sense apply. Create an atmosphere in which leadership can thrive. Establish conditions of long tenure, with rights of initiative. Let it be our established policy that the church appreciates strong men, and will use them during good behavior at their market value in other pursuits, giving them scope enough to make efficient their individuality, and we can expect the best talent in our Fraternity. Put the most efficient man possible in each pulpit, and keep him there at a good support financially and morally.

Create standards of efficiency and assurance of tenure as long as efficient. Without standards, tenure, or adequate compensation for high service, there can be no inducement to men of natural ability to prepare for work in a field open to all sorts of unequal competition. No man would venture to prepare for a high degree of usefulness in the face of the fact that mere incident, accident, personal whims or family relationship might at any time make his services undesirable. Our whole atmosphere tends to drive men of power and initiative out of church activity into secular pursuits. There are born leaders and born followers. Our born leaders should be liberated from the thongs of envy, jealousy, or tradition. They should not be driven to secular pursuits but should be permitted to dream dreams, see visions, initiate, inspire and achieve.

Equality of station does not imply equality of efficiency. Common level unity does not mean lock-step movements. True unity implies superiors and inferiors in cooperation. Not all elders are competent for all sorts of elders' duties. Some are competent to lead, while others are not. Some are good counselors but poor in achievement. Some are aggressive and inspiring, while others are too much occupied with inhibitory measures. They are excellent brakemen, and useful as such, but their place is not at the throttle of the engine. They are not full of the power back of the wheels.

To create the necessary atmosphere, we need local institutes to train workers. We should also establish teacher-training courses in every church. It might be feasible to conduct a teacher-training class in connection with the prayer meeting, in a separate room, simultaneous with the prayer meeting. Let some efficient teacher meet one of the classes each week. By arranging a course, he could meet five classes each week. He could train them in general and on the current lessons in particular. This would materially strengthen our Sunday-school work.

We need to raise the standard of our prayer meetings. They should relate to the practical problems of the community. They are not social gymnasia but rather "ways and means councils" for the uplift of the people. They should plan WORK rather than work plans. Our weekly meetings are too often mills without the grist. We run the soulless machines but get no output. It is largely impersonal, impractical and barren of results. We dissipate our strength rather than combine it. Here, too, we discourage leadership by taking set outlines, and putting every man by rote at the crank, to grind them out. It would be just as feasible to ask a non-singer to lead your music as to ask a non-leader to lead a meeting. How can a man teach unless he be prepared? "Why run, seeing ye have no message ready?"

We need a well-endowed college to prepare men for efficient work. Could our college every year send out two score young people, prepared to work and imbued with the Christian spirit, we would, in the course of a decade, find a new atmosphere pervading all our activities. The atmosphere would develop the college and the college would develop the atmosphere. We need both and one can not exist without the other. When once we demand the best talent obtainable for our leadership, and support it morally and financially, we shall find more men and women of sincere purpose patronizing our college, and our college, in turn, infusing new life and power into all our work. We need men. When we become conscious of our needs, we will demand them. And truly Christian men will respond to the demand.

When once we make possible the full moral and financial support of strong and well-prepared men, we shall find the spring flowing out from under the altar deeper than the ankle, deeper than the knee, deeper than the loins, flowing out through all this coast, giving life and power to all her people.

A Clean Heart.

BY H. A. STAHL.

MAN is conceded to be the noblest work of his Maker, within the range of mortal vision. Man was acknowledged to be such by the blessed Creator himself. God crowned him with glory and honor in such an extent that he not only introduced man into the world, shining forth in all the loveliness of the Divine image, but permitted him, in first stepping upon the threshold of existence, to find the whole visible universe fitted up and prepared for him, ministering to his temporal and, to a great degree also, to his spiritual wants.

Having been placed in the scale of being, both morally and physically, it is a plain indication that he has not been destined merely to spend a few fleeting years upon the footstool of the great "I Am." His proper home is to be sought somewhere within the precincts of the more immediate presence-chamber of the Infinite Jehovah.

But having dispossessed himself of that holy and heavenly image which he bore on his first entrance into the world, man's pilgrimage upon earth has its appointed bounds. These he can not pass. As a creature endowed with a never-dying soul, however, he shall, after the expiration of this his probationary state, live on in an endless eternity, beyond the shores of time and sense,—a future that will either be a blessed or miserable state of existence for him, according as he shall have improved his probationary season, or neglected his soul's salvation.

Man's future destiny will, according to the teaching of Scripture, not only depend upon his external circumstances, but altogether upon his spiritual state and condition. He that wishes to dwell with the Immaculate Jehovah in regions of eternal light and blessedness, must have the image of the invisible God stamped upon his soul. Man's chief endeavor should, therefore, be to become divested of the sad indications of his fallen nature, and to attain to that state of perfection, holiness, and happiness, in which he was created, by being assimilated again to the holy, Divine image of the Great Original. He must be recreated, reborn

Sixtieth Anniversary.

BY J. D. HAUGHTELIN.

THE fact that 1911 is the sixtieth anniversary of my spiritual birth into the Church of the Brethren, as well as of the starting of the Gospel Visitor, the ancestor and progenitor of our present splendid Publishing House, marks this anniversary of double interest,—to me at least.

I am strongly impressed with the great changes and improvements along the various lines of church work, in the last three-score years. Few are the members now living that were members in 1851. This impresses me with the duty to note some of the changes that have come under my personal observation.

Then Bro. Kurtz carried his 350 Gospel Visitors, once a month, in a satchel, to the postoffice. Now printed matter is hauled weekly by the wagon loads from our extensive publishing plant.

Then the Visitor was a tolerated experiment (see "Two Centuries," page 344). Now the Publishing House is a part of the church.

Prior to 1851 there was but one permanent organized congregation west of the Mississippi River. It was near Libertyville, Iowa. In that year Mount Etna, also in Iowa, was organized (see "Two Centuries," page 89). So this is the sixtieth anniversary for the Mount Etna church also.

Then there was no Mission Board, no missionaries in foreign lands, but, like the meek, little Gospel Visitor, there was a great deal of quiet, effectual, personal mission work being done by self-denying, God-fearing men and women all over the field,—the foundation of the colossal mission work of today.

Then there were no institutions of learning controlled by our people, but many of our prominent brethren were teaching in the various schools of the land, thereby exerting an educational influence that told, in later years, when this subject came to the front and prospered against much opposition.

Then there were very few churchhouses and organized congregations in cities or towns. Today city missions and churches present problems of the greatest importance.

Then very few of our ministers received financial aid. Today the environments have so changed that it becomes necessary, in many places, to have well-trained brethren and sisters to give their entire time and effort to the work of the ministry; consequently their support becomes the duty of the church. Don't envy the supported ministers. Generally they are sacrificing more than we, who have, for scores of years, preached without being a charge to any one. Then, again, it gives the laity an opportunity to share the burden and enjoy the reward as well. This, however, is a point that needs guarding, or it may lead to a salaried ministry, with the salary large in proportion to the minister's popularity, rather than his ability to preach the Word.

Will there be as much improvement and advancement in the varied lines of church endeavor, the next three-score years, as in the last? We hope so, and even more. There should be a greatly accelerated ratio. There should be Brethren missions in every nation on the earth. "Go ye therefore and teach all nations."

The Anointing.

BY CHAS. S. WOOD.

A FEW of the things, as I see them, being necessary before the anointing (James 5: 14).

1. Great unworthiness (Luke 18: 13).

2. The ones making the call should have great faith (James 1: 6).

3. They must believe that God is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him (Heb. 11: 6).

4. They should feel the need of accomplishing a great work for the Lord.

5. If conscious of some great sins, they should pray mightily to the Lord before making the call (Jonah 2: 2; James 5: 17).

6. They must call for the elders,—not ministers or deacons (James 5: 14).

7. They should call for men in whom they have great faith (Acts 11: 24).

8. They should call while they are able to exercise faith. Life is the time to serve the Lord (Acts 24: 16; Prov. 14: 27).

9. Those that are called should be men of strong convictions, ready to communicate to every good work (2 Cor. 6: 1; 2 Tim 2: 15).

10. They should go at once,—nothing doubting (Acts 10: 20; 11: 12).

11. They should feel that the anointing is a sacred duty, but not necessarily a sad one. The sick ones are not dead (John 11: 3).

12. The services should not be too formal, but for the uplifting of the sick (James 5: 13).

13. The potter first tempers the clay before he makes the vessel (Jer. 18: 6).

14. Do not conclude by saying: "Not my will, but thine be done." It is God's will, or he never would have said we should make the call (Mark 11: 22).

15. Officiating elders should leave the home with great confidence, and not forget to pray (Heb. 10: 35).

The Best Paper in the World.

BY TOLMAN H. FERNALD.

I AM going to tell you what the GOSPEL MESSENGER did for me a few weeks ago. I always enjoy the MESSENGER and get a great deal of information from it,—in fact, all I know about our church,—but not until a few weeks ago did I realize its true worth to me. It came to me one Saturday (it always reaches me on Saturday) while in bed at the hospital with a very painful disease. I laid it aside to read on Sunday.

On that day, while suffering much pain, I read every word of it, and I can not tell you the peace and joy and happiness that came to my soul as I read it in connection with my Bible and prayer. The Lord so blessed it to me that by Sunday night my pain was all gone. The nurse asked what had caused such a radical change in my condition, and when I told her she said: "Would to God it had come before, to have saved you all that pain."

I came home the following Tuesday, and on Wednesday had strength enough to go to work. Today,—one week after,—I am working my full time, and have done so the whole week, and feel in excellent health. The MESSENGER was surely a "God-send" to me that week. It is the best paper in the world, and may God bless it and all connected with it, is my prayer!

"Want to Chop Down a Tree?"

BY C. D. HYLTON.

AWAY out in the West, on the side of a mountain is an emaciated little bundle of energy in the person of a man. Physically he is very weak, financially he must be in need, but spiritually he is rich. He has taught many people lessons in patience under adverse circumstances. He has shown energy where others might have given up the struggle.

A wife and some little girls are looking to him for food, for raiment and for a home, and his children must be educated, so he must work.

Who is he? Why he is a brother and a preacher. And, no doubt, after the clods have covered his body, some one will put some flowers on his grave, and some real nice things will be said of him. But he will not see the flowers nor hear the kind words then.

Just now he needs some trees cut down to chain to his wagon as he comes down the mountain. He does not have the physical strength to cut them down. Say, brother, sister, don't you want to cut down a tree for him? You can do it, if you will.

Testing the Boy.

BY SAMUEL BOWSER.

A MINISTER visited a family in his parish. While the father and mother were otherwise engaged, the little boy was left to entertain the preacher. Desiring to enlist his interest in the Book (the Bible), he said: "Johnny, that Book that your father and mother prize so highly, in which they read every day, which seems to them more precious than all other books,—the one they love and get more comfort from it than any other book, can you tell me what the name of that Book is?" Johnny, in great glee, said: "Oh, yes, I can tell you what the name of that Book is. It is the S——, R—— & C—— Catalog." I wonder how many of you would give a truer answer, if tested.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS' TOPIC

Resolutions Respecting Public Worship.

Psa. 5: 1-7.

For Sunday Evening, December 17, 1911.

Man is a religious being. Of all the sincere worshipers of the true God, David was one of the chiefs. He still stands forth as a model for Christian imitation. We notice

I. The Place.—(1) "Thy house" (v. 7),—doubtless the tabernacle. (2) Now, all places where the spirit of true devotion is, are such (John 4: 21, 23; Matt. 18: 20). (3) Avoid (a) mere veneration for the place; (b) indifference and levity in God's house.

II. The Resolution Expressed.—"But as for me" (v. 7). This shows: (1) David's love for the place—"I will," etc. (v. 7; Psa. 84: 10). (2) His constancy—"I will come," and not neglect (vs. 1-3). (3) His personal decision—"I will," etc. He could not answer for others, but for himself. "I will come."

III. The Purpose of His Coming.—"I will worship" (v. 7). Three things are included in worship. (1) Praise—"Enter . . . with praise" (Psa. 100: 4; 92: 1; 95: 1, 2). (2) Prayer (vs. 2, 3; Psa. 55: 1; 141: 2). (3) Meditation and communion with God (v. 1; Psa. 19: 14; 119: 97). The mind and spirit lifted to the Lord.

IV. The Spirit He Would Cultivate.—(1) The spirit of confidence.—"In the multitude of thy mercy" (v. 7). (2) The spirit of holy veneration.—"In thy fear" (v. 7). (3) The spirit of expectation.—"Towards thy holy temple"—the place where thou dwellest.

PRAYER MEETING

The Coming King.

Isa. 9: 6; Zech. 9: 9.

For Week Beginning December 17, 1911.

1. His Coming Foretold.—Zechariah's prophecy speaks of the coming of the Lord, not in his final triumph over the world, but in his meekness and lowliness to redeem all men from their sins. What potentate of earth ever started out on the invasion of the world as this King? Unheralded by thrones or principalities, with no military escort, with no trumpeters to proclaim his advent, no great men of the world bowing at his feet, save the strange magi from a far-away land. Truly, a strange coming for a King! But the world today lies prostrate at his feet (Luke 2: 10-14).

2. He Came "Having Salvation."—The earth-king wields his scepter, places a diadem upon his brow, and arrays himself in gorgeous splendor. But the King of kings comes "bringing salvation" to all who will receive him. He comes to break every yoke and to let the oppressed go free, to sever the chains of the captives, the bonds of the bound, and to proclaim everywhere a year of jubilee. This world, in reality, needs not wealth, station, armies and battleships, but salvation from sin, redemption from the power of evil, the mastery of wicked propensities, the grace which links every heart to higher ideals and to God (Isa. 61: 1-3).

3. He Is Just.—Christ brought not only salvation to the world, but the guarantee of justice. And there is no one who can be as just as he, for there is no one who understands so thoroughly all our actions and motives. All wrongs shall be made right. He who has had to endure for righteousness' sake shall not go unrewarded; and he who has dealt unjustly with his fellows, who has willfully wronged and robbed them of that which was theirs, will be dealt with in impartial justice (1 John 1: 9; Rom. 5: 1-5).

HOME AND FAMILY

My Prayer.

By Emily Harris.

Gently lead me, loving Savior,
To the throne of God, I pray;
Put thy loving arms around me,
Lest, perchance, I lose my way.
Fill me with the Holy Spirit
And the power to do thy will.
Gracious, kind and loving Master,
Help me climb life's rugged hill!

Though the way be rough and lonely,
And my feet are oftimes sore,
Guide my footsteps, Lord and Master,
Till I reach the golden shore.
Fill me with thy guiding power,
That for thee souls I may win;
And thus go not empty-handed,
To the home of Christ, my King.

Mrs. Wallick's Visit.

BY ELIZABETH D. ROSENBERGER.

Mrs. WALLICK was plainly bewildered. Like a boat that has been loosed from its safe, time-honored, well-known moorings, and left to drift helplessly with wind and tide, Mrs. Wallick found no anchor. At the earnest solicitations of her husband and children, she had left her home just two weeks ago to visit her sister, Lavina Hoyt, who lives about two hundred miles away. "Aunt Lavina wants you, and she can not come as easily as you can go," her daughter Rose had said.

Mrs. Wallick had objected at first. She feared her family would not be comfortable in her absence and then, too, it would make her late for fall house-cleaning. Besides this, she wanted to fill some mangoes, and she never went away when any household duties claimed her. For that matter she never went away in any case. She had not visited Lavina for eight years. Come to think of it, she had not left the village in all that time. She was the most notable housekeeper in its precincts.

As a young woman her ambition had been to own a fine house and have it well furnished. Her dreams were more than realized. Her carpets and furniture were the envy of her friends, but the years brought with them new problems, and some heartaches. Of what avail were lovely surroundings when her children worried her? She admitted this to herself. Rose had started to go to some other church and Willie, who was fourteen, seldom could be induced to go anywhere on Sunday morning.

Even her husband, somehow, seemed to get along better with the children than she did. Most of the time she felt left out of things. Conditions had changed and she could not manage as she had hoped. Perhaps it was owing to all this that she let them persuade her to go to Lavina's. It would be good to forget things or at least to be away from a situation that daily grew more aggravating.

On the way she wondered whether Rose would remember to put a piece of carpet in the front hall so that the new rug would not get spotted. She was afraid the house would look upside down when she returned. She was half afraid that Rose would use her apron to hold kettles, and that she would get the range all greased up. However, she was going away; she set her lips in a straight line as she thought of herself, with mop and brush, getting the house in order upon her return.

It is a good thing to have a routine interrupted and the set ways of Mrs. Wallick were certainly broken up by this visit. The rushing in of outside influences, like fresh air in a long closed room, is healthful.

Her sister, Lavina, lived in a less pretentious home than her own, but the comfort and warmth of it,—its cheer and brightness,—were at once apparent. But first of all she was impressed by the perfect confidence and good understanding that existed between her sister and the children. Lavina did not seem to check them. There was no apparent harshness, no rebukes, no fault-finding. Mrs. Wallick pondered, "Do the children never aggravate her as Rose often does? Do they never scold as Willie does when things don't suit him?"

The evenings were most delightful. All the children were home, and some of the neighbors' children, and Lavina was as popular among them as her girls. "It's awful hard on carpets an' furnitur' but Lavina never was a hand to fix up much," thought Mrs. Wallick. But she wished that she knew where Willie was spending his evenings. He seemed to want to go somewhere nearly every night, and then they had hard words when she tried to keep him at home. And as the days went by and she and Lavina opened their hearts to each other, as sisters will, Mrs. Wallick began to perceive that she had left some things undone which she should have done, and done some things which were not of paramount importance.

"I have learned so much from my children," said Lavina happily. "We always counsel together."

Mrs. Wallick also had learned much, though she said nothing in reply. She thought of how she had always kept her children "toeing the mark," as she expressed it. There came into her heart the wish that she might begin again.

Bewildered as she was by all these new impressions, she came to one conclusion. She was going to try Lavina's plan for her own children, and she shortened her visit in order to begin a little sooner.

She came home in the evening and found the parlor lighted and some company in the seldom-used room. Rose came to the door at once and began a little apology. Some young folks had come in without invitation. But Mrs. Wallick interrupted her, "It's all right, Rose; I'm glad they are here." And to her children's astonishment, she came into the room and talked with them all as if she really enjoyed seeing them there. And that was the beginning of a closer sympathy between herself and her family.

There are bare cabin homes that have been remembered with pleasure, because of the loving presence of the woman who lived there. Mrs. Wallick learned a vital truth in her sister's home. She learned to enter into the joys and pleasures of her own children. She learned how to enter into things which interested them.

No good work can be done in the world by children grown to maturity with false ideas or false ideals. Civilization is more complex today than ever before in the history of the world. There is a greater demand for work, for food, for clothing and shelter. Our great cities are crowded with the ignorant and the poor. In too many of our farming districts the people live without any regard for the future. Churches are shut up and entire families never look into the pages of the Bible.

Right-thinking and right-acting people are needed everywhere. They should come from our homes. Children are naturally confiding and until they have been rebuffed many times, they do not become chilled or hardened. The human sympathetic, consistent mother lives close to her children and she lives close to God. In the noise and hurry of this strenuous, progressive age, she takes time to go apart and listen to the voice of God, and he helps to bear her burdens.

Going Home.

It was evening, and a woman with the sunset light in her face was nearing home. The journey had been long and hard and the sky overcast with clouds. But now she was almost home and the gold and crimson lights of sunset were just ahead. It had been a journey full of toil and there had been many troubles. She had not minded the hardships so much, for she had early learned that they were to be expected by all who traveled that way. But there had been bitterness and cruel hurts.

The shadows were lowering behind her, but the sunset light gleamed before. She thought of those whom she had helped and who yet needed even greater help; she knew, but they did not; she hesitated to go on, though rest and home were just ahead. But perhaps it was not given her to help any more, for she was very, very tired.

So many things had hurt. She had not been ready of speech or action in defense against cruelty and wrong when the shafts had come her way; and besides she had been so busy there had not been time to return like for like. Or perhaps, and she had not been quite sure about that, perhaps it had been best and right for her to endure in silence. She was not sure. And if she were to send forth winged shafts of bitterness, perhaps they might go astray, striking some who already had overmuch of pain. What would God have her do? That had always been the question. Her philosophy and her faith were plain and simple: "We ought to try to do what God wants us to do, no matter what people do or say; for pleasing God is all that counts in the long run, anyway." Such had been her summing up in her own homely phrasing.

But simple and plain as were this faith and philosophy, they had cost much. And now, when she was so near home, she did not regret, but was glad, as glad as one so weary could be. For the simple faith that had not questioned the commands did not now question the promises. Often she thought of what seemed to her the little accomplished; but she had tried faithfully always to do her best. And she remembered God's mercy.

Home was almost in sight. There were rest and peace and joy without shadow of pain or sorrow. There was something wonderful about this homegoing. For as the light faded in the sunset a new day would dawn, a day made glorious by the light which filled it, the light of the glory of God. This day would never end. In place of sorrow and pain and partings, there would be peace and gladness and meetings wonderful in their joy. There would be glory and joy unspeakable.

And so the weary traveler journeyed on to the sunset.—Herald and Presbyter.

A Doll Three Thousand Years Old.

THE delight which a little girl sometimes experiences in getting hold of a doll that belonged to her mother when she was a little girl—a quaint, china-headed and china-haired little creature, with low neck and short sleeves and very full ruffled skirt—is a tame thing when compared with the feeling that any girl must experience over a doll now in the British Museum. This doll is almost three thousand years old.

When some very learned men were exploring an ancient Egyptian royal tomb they came upon a sarcophagus or tomb containing the mummy of a little princess seven years old. She was dressed and interred in a manner befitting her rank, and in her arms was found a little wooden doll. The inscription gave the name, age and rank of the little girl and the date of her death, but it said nothing about the quaint little wooden Egyptian doll. This, however, told its own story. It was so tightly clasped in the arm of the mummy that it was evident that the child had died with her beloved doll in her arms.

The simple pathos of this story has touched many hearts, after thousands of years. The doll occupies a place in a glass case in the British Museum and there a great many children have gone to look at it.—Youth's Companion.

Doing Good to Enemies.

SELECTED BY WEALTHY A. BURKHOLDER.

THE horse of a pious man, living in Massachusetts, happening to stray into the road, a neighbor of the man who owned the horse put him into the pound. Meeting the owner soon afterwards, he told him what he had done: "And if I catch him in the road again," said he, "I'll do it again." "Neighbor," replied the other, "not long since I looked out of my window, in the night, and saw your cattle in my meadow, and I drove them out, and shut them in your yard; and if I again find them there, I will do it again." Struck with the reply, the man liberated the horse from the pound and paid the charges himself. "A soft answer turneth away wrath."

☞All business and communications intended for the paper should be addressed to the BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, ELGIN, ILL., and not to any individual connected with it.

A NEW congregation was recently organized at Bluefield, W. Va.,

A REVIVAL at Sunnyside, Wash., conducted by Bro. J. U. G. Stiverson, closed with seven conversions.

BRO. J. KURTZ MILLER, of the Brooklyn Mission, is assisting the members at Ephrata, Pa., in revival services.

SIX were added to the church at Twin Falls, Idaho, as the fruits of the protracted meeting held by Bro. L. H. Eby.

BRO. ANDREW HUTCHISON has reached Northern California, and is now engaged in a series of meetings at Chico.

LOOK over the splendid assortment of books and Christmas goods listed in this issue, and let the House have your order at once.

THE members in Elgin enjoyed a good Thanksgiving service, Bro. S. C. Miller delivering the address. The collection was $38.51.

BRO. T. A. ROBINSON'S labors at Boise, Idaho, resulted in five being added to the church,—four by baptism, and one reinstated.

IN the Maple Grove church, Ind., a Bible Term will be conducted by Bro. J. G. Royer, beginning Dec. 23 and continuing one week.

BRO. G. N. FALKENSTEIN, of Elizabethtown, Pa., is booked for a series of meetings in Harrisburg, his State, beginning Jan. 1, 1912.

THE Third Annual Bible Term of Northern California, to be held in the Oak Grove church, Laton, is announced for Dec. 25 to Dec. 30.

SEVEN were added to the fold during revival services held by Bro. Eli Heestand, in the Middlebury house, Pleasant Valley church, Ind.

DURING the late revival meetings in the Windber house, Scalp Level, Pa., conducted by Bro. B. Ludwick, eleven applied for membership.

FIVE came out on the Lord's side and united with the church, during a series of meetings held by Bro. Albert Arnold at Union Chapel, W. Va.

BRO. J. L. GUTHRIE, of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., writes us that he is in the midst of an interesting revival meeting at the Crowson church, his State.

BRO. B. B. GARBER, of Waynesboro, Va., is engaged in a series of meetings in the Woodberry church, Baltimore, Md., having commenced last Lord's Day.

BRO. D. A. ROWLAND, of Northern Illinois, has changed his place of residence from Polo to Dixon, and may be addressed at 516 North Dement Avenue.

IT is said that at least 8,000 Russian pilgrims visit the Holy Land annually. After reaching Jerusalem by different routes, they walk to the River Jordan and bathe themselves in the sacred stream. The scene at the Jordan is both interesting and impressive.

WE can still fill some orders for the doctrinal issue. Those desiring copies free, for distribution where they will do good, should let us hear from them at once.

SOME revival services, conducted by Bro. J. O. Garst in the Arlington house, Miami congregation, Ohio, resulted in six being baptized and one restored to fellowship.

A COPY of the Inglenook will reach all of the MESSENGER patrons this week. Look the journal over carefully, and you will probably want to add it to your list of papers.

THE new house of worship at Lima, Ohio, has been completed and dedicated, thus affording a splendid place of worship for the members of that city and the immediate vicinity.

THE District Meeting of Texas and Louisiana, to be held at Manvel, Texas, is announced for Dec. 22. The Ministerial Meeting convenes the day before, and the Sunday-school Meeting Nov. 20.

BRO. J. R. LEATHERMAN, of Vienna, Va., spends his winters at Wabasso, Fla., on Indian River, where he has an orange grove. During the winter months he may be addressed in Florida instead of Virginia.

BRO. J. M. BLOUGH and wife, on their way to India, are crossing the Atlantic on the "Berlin," of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company. They are booked to leave New York on Saturday at 11 A. M.

IT will be observed that the MESSENGER contains four extra pages this week. This enables us to call attention to a number of books, as well as to some useful articles for which we are prepared to fill orders.

BRO. D. M. ADAMS, of Pennsylvania, has been doing some effectual preaching at Flora, Ind. An interesting report, to be published next week, says that thirteen have been led to accept Christ, and are now numbered with the believers.

WRITING concerning her furlough, Sister Sadie J. Miller says that while in the homeland she visited eighty churches, and that the collections taken at he meetings, and turned over to the General Mission Board, amounted to over $1,000.

BRO. ABRAM BUCK, of Francis, Canada, has moved to Florida, and may be addressed at Santa Rosa, Lock Box 32. Sister Buck, writing of their change of location, says that they are the only members in that part of the State, in Washington County.

BRO. P. R. KELTNER is holding a series of meetings at Pearl City, Ill. During his absence from Rockford his pulpit is filled by ministers from Elgin, Bro. S. C. Miller conducting the services last Sunday, and Bro. Galen B. Royer the Sunday before.

BRO. F. R. MCCUNE, who has taken up work at Princeton, Kans., proposes to introduce his work to his new neighbors by sending them the MESSENGER on the fifty-cent proposition. He sends fourteen new names, and will now have the pleasure of knowing that many of those who hear him on Sunday, can also have something helpful along religious lines to read during the week. What Bro. McCune is doing in this particular should commend itself to hundreds of others. They will do well to follow his example.

OUR readers seem to have greatly admired the Sixtieth Anniversary issue of the MESSENGER and are saying some very complimentary things about it. We are glad for the words of appreciation. The following, from Bro. D. M. Adams, of Scalp Level, Pa., is a sample of what is said: "The Anniversary number of the GOSPEL MESSENGER is exceedingly interesting. I prize it very highly for its illustrations and the valuable data which it contains. I consider it a valuable asset to my library. I feel that I need it for future reference. The illustrations are fine, and the articles full of meat and well written. I would admonish every subscriber to pass his or her copy to that brother who is indifferent to our publishing interest. It will do him good."

WE learn that Bro. A. D. Garber, of Mount Sidney, Va., passed to his reward the latter part of last week, but we have no information regarding the date and manner of his death. He was the oldest minister in the Shenandoah Valley, lacking only eighteen days of being eighty-seven years old.

BRO. E. M. COBB held a series of meetings at Raisin City, Cal., in which he set forth the doctrines of the church clearly and forcibly. As an immediate result twenty-two were added to the fold,—twenty baptized and two reclaimed. Most of the people in the vicinity of Raisin are now said to be members of the Brethren church.

BRO. M. M. ESHELMAN, of Los Angeles, Cal., writes us of the death of his wife, which occurred Nov. 26, after an illness of nearly five months, her age being sixty-eight years and past. We have known Sister Eshelman for thirty-five years, and always regarded her as one of the most patient, most cheerful, and most kindly disposed women we ever met. Were there more people of her type, this world would be a great deal better off.

A LETTER from Sister Sadie J. Miller, posted Nov. 10, tells of her safe arrival at Yokohama, Japan. She says the voyage was the most pleasant one that it has been her privilege to enjoy. Referring to an interesting experience, we quote: "Wednesday, Nov. 1, we passed the 180th degree, at which point we skipped a day, and therefore we had but six days instead of seven in the week. We had no Thursday, Nov. 2, but simply Wednesday, Nov. 1, and Friday, Nov. 3." At the time of writing, Sister Miller was not certain about being able to enter China, but may have gone direct to Calcutta, India.

BRO. D. H. BAKER, of Hanover, Pa., has a splendid way of keeping his nine children in close touch with the church and its work. There are hundreds who do well to follow his example. From his letter of recent date we quote: "I ordered the GOSPEL MESSENGER sent to all my children, nine in number, last year, and 'Our Saturday Night' for myself. After I read the book I was so well pleased with it that I ordered it to be sent to all the children. They all appreciated it and thanked me for it. One of the boys said: 'It is unique. Each chapter is a lesson by itself.' I think every reader of the GOSPEL MESSENGER surely ought to order one."

LAST year hundreds of our patrons desired copies of "Our Saturday Night" for Christmas presents for their children or some friend, but our rule was not to sell the book separate from a MESSENGER subscription. For this year we are making a concession that will enable subscribers to get all the books they may need for presents, provided they take two or more copies at the rate of fifty cents each. This means one dollar for two copies, and fifty cents each for all the extra copies desired. The book can be mailed to separate addresses, if so desired. Single copies can not be secured, excepting with a subscription to the MESSENGER, that is, $1.85 for the paper and the book. Those desiring "Our Saturday Night" as a Christmas present, should let us have their orders without delay.

OUR readers will be interested in the two illustrations appearing on the first page of this issue, showing where the special Annual Meeting of 1846 was held. There are other photographs that we should like to obtain, representing places that have become historic among us. Especially is this true of the places where the Annual Meeting has been held from year to year. Therefore we take the liberty of calling on our readers for such photographs or pictures as they may have, or can procure for us, along with as much information concerning each place represented as they care to give. Some of these pictures may appear in the MESSENGER, and when accompanied by a good write-up should prove valuable, as well as interesting. We happen to have a good photo card of the house in which a special Conference was held in Shenandoah County, Va., Oct. 20, 1794. We shall be pleased to hear from those who can favor us with illustrations of the class named.

On page 782, this issue, will be found a communication from Bro. F. H. Crumpacker that will greatly interest those who are deeply concerned about our missionaries in China. From this we learn that the missionaries were all well Nov. 2, and in no danger whatever. Just how long they will have to remain at Tien Tsin can not be determined even at this date. Little time, however, is to be lost, for a teacher has been employed, and the new missionaries have buckled down to the study of the language. It is believed that the rebellion, when over, will result in better conditions for mission work, in parts of the Celestial Empire at least.

It is encouraging to note that a number of ministers are being ordained to the eldership. There is no danger of getting too many earnest and efficient elders. When fully set apart by the laying on of hands, they should constitute a body of consecrated shepherds, and often counsel together regarding the work entrusted to them. While one of the number may properly be selected as the foreman, they should nevertheless work together jointly in caring for and feeding the flock over which the Holy Ghost has made them overseer. In some congregations one elder is set apart as leader or foreman, while all the others are practically ignored. This is not apostolic, for in New Testament times the elders counseled with each other respecting the duties placed upon them. When conferring with the elders at Ephesus, Paul did not single out the foreman, or elder in charge, and tell him what to do. He addressed all of them, and the instructions given out were to apply to one as well as to the others.

The Rebaptism Question.

In this article we do not propose to discuss the rebaptism question, but wish to call attention to the turn the exchange of views on the subject has taken. It occurs to us that there is a disposition to discuss John's baptism, and the rebaptism of the twelve disciples whom Paul found at Ephesus, rather than to consider the question that is to be passed on by the coming Annual Meeting. Those who have expressed views not in accord with what we may here present, will pardon us for saying that, in our judgment, the rebaptism of the twelve disciples,—that is, if they were rebaptized,—has little or no bearing on the question before the Brotherhood.

Whatever may be said pro and con, respecting the rebaptism of these disciples, one thing must be admitted: They had not been baptized into some other denomination by a preacher regarded as not being in fellowship with the church of Jesus Christ. The preacher may not have known very much about the Gospel, and the same thing, in a measure, might be said of a few whose names are in the Brethren Almanac. These disciples may not have been properly taught, and this, in a degree, might be true of some unfortunate members we hold in full fellowship. But let this be as it may, the purpose, in the first baptism of the twelve, was to constitute them members of the church of Christ, and this, also, is the feeling they had. They passed as members, and not a preacher, deacon or elder regarded them as members of some other religious body. Whatever irregularities may have existed, could not be charged up against another denomination, but in some manner had to be attributed to a party claiming bona fide fellowship in the church. We have had similar experiences among us. Applicants, with scant instructions, have been baptized, and received into fellowship, only to become dissatisfied, and at their request were rebaptized. We leave such members to settle the question of rebaptism for themselves, while Paul settled it for the twelve at Ephesus.

But this is all inside of our own recognized body, while the question before Conference relates to rebaptizing persons who have received trine immersion at the hands of those affiliated with other denominations. We have no controversy about the rebaptism of the insufficiently taught in the church. And since the twelve at Ephesus must have been of this class it follows that, in considering the subject, the one case has no more bearing on the rebaptism question, before the Conference, than the other.

If we may be permitted to make a suggestion, it would be, that we carefully consider whether trine immersion, administered to penitent believers by other persuasions, can be recognized as valid baptism by the Church of the Brethren. Settle this, and the question before us will be disposed of. And, by the way, this is the only phase of the rebaptism question the Annual Meeting is asked to pass on. The Conference is not to decide whether the twelve disciples whom Paul found at Ephesus, were baptized by Apollos, or by some one else. We are not to decide what the irregularities were. We simply know that they were inside of the church twenty-five years after the day of Pentecost, and must not be charged up to some denomination holding erroneous views. The Conference might debate this matter for weeks, but that would not settle the real, vital question of recognizing the validity of trine immersion administered for the remission of sins by ministers of other religious bodies.

We might say as much regarding the discussion of John's baptism. We can not conceive in what way it can assist us in deciding whether we should or should not receive adult trine immersion from the hands of others. There are a few things that must be evident to every careful thinker; viz., that the baptism practiced by John and that taught by Jesus were from heaven. They were both sanctioned by the Holy Spirit and approved by the Father. They were both intended for the Christian dispensation, both recognized alike as valid, whether employed at the baptism of Christ, the apostles, or the 3,000 on the day of Pentecost. With all this practically self-evident, to claim that the two baptisms are not virtually the same in form and purpose, is to us, in the light of the New Testament and reason, inconceivable.

But this is not the question that the York Conference is asked to decide. At that meeting we are not to decide whether the baptism performed by John and that practiced by the disciples on the day of Pentecost were one and the same thing or not. We are to decide whether we may or whether we may not recognize as valid, trine immersion, when administered by other persuasions, to penitent believers for the remission of sins. And it further occurs to us that if we confine ourselves to the real question it will not be necessary, while considering the subject, to say much more concerning the baptism of the twelve disciples at Ephesus, or the baptism of John.

We have been urged to say something on the validity of John's baptism, and its relation to the baptism taught in the baptismal formula. This we may do at a later date, but what we may offer should have no bearing, whatever, on the rebaptism question, to be discussed and decided by the coming Annual Conference.

First Things.

In the life of every man and woman, accountably rational and, therefore, responsible, there are first things which receive their first and most careful and considerate attention. Everything else must take a secondary or less important place in their life's program, or the side-show position.

This may be right or wrong, according to our sense of right, and according to our standards of choosing. Our standards differ as to what are first things, and as our standards are, so are our first things. The Christ standard is "The Kingdom of Heaven." This is, and always should be, our first things, for the very good reason that, having this, we have the promise of all the other good things. It is the key that opens the door to every other desirable thing, for this life as well as for the life to come.

As we are writing more especially for the edification of those who have accepted this first thing, it will be well for us occasionally to ask ourselves whether or not we are still and continually making this our first thing. Every day of the year, and every hour of the day,—all the time having this standard first, and uppermost in our mind, making everything else a lift upward and a step in this direction. There are a great many good things in this world for us to seek after, do and desire, but every one of them may be made, to this one ultimate,—a great help and encouragement. The mere entering the kingdom of heaven can not mean much to us unless we determine to make it our home and give it our loyal service. And, considering the precious promises of the Christ, we can well afford to do this, as, on our doing the one needful thing, all other needed things will be added.

In this age of heedless and blind commercialism it requires much careful thought and divine grace to steer aloof of the spirit of the times in which we live, and make the first thing our first thing. To do what we ought to do, as citizens of this kingdom, our first consideration must be the upbuilding and maintaining, intact, the church to which we belong—the church of Jesus Christ. In doing this it is not at all necessary that we give up or forsake our legitimate callings in life, as Paul says we are to "be diligent in business," thus serving the Lord, and whatsoever we do, do it with our might as unto the Lord, but whatsoever we do, do it all with an eye single to the glory of God. In all of our doing the thought should be: How can I make, what I do, be of service to the church? If we can not see such service in it, don't do it, because it will prove to be a service of loss in the time that now is, and in that which is to come.

The test as to which is our first thing, comes to us when several of these things loom up before us at the same time, and we are made to decide which shall have the preference. It is the Lord's Day. We are living on the farm, and the busy season of the year is upon us. The week has been one of hard and constant labor. In the distance we hear the ringing of the church bell, calling us to worship. But we are weary and need the time for rest. Which shall we do,—remain at home and take a good rest, so that we may be the better prepared to take up our work on the coming morning, or shall we go to church that our spiritual man may be fed and nourished, that we may be the better prepared to combat successfully the temptations and trials that will meet us, and thus be enabled to do better service for the Master? Which of the two will make our first thing?

This, and similar conditions, come to all of us in our daily lives, and we make our decisions. We decide on the thing that is first in our mind and heart, and conjure up some kind of an excuse for not doing the other, if the other thing happens to be the thing that our knowledge of right and our conscience tell us we ought to have done. It means, too often, that we are more concerned about caring for and feeding our bodies than we are about feeding our souls. It means fat bodies and lean souls, and applies to all callings and conditions in life. It applies to the Church of the Brethren as well as to other churches. Yes, it does; and we know it, or can easily learn it by reverting to our own experiences.

A few days ago, we read, in a late Christian journal, of a small town in which there were five different churches struggling for an existence. The pastors were poorly paid, with inadequate church accommodations and a general complaint that the people of the town were too poor to support so many churches. So the officials of the different congregations called a meeting to determine what would be the best thing to do under the existing conditions, as they saw them. While there were a number of suggestions made, they all united in the thought that there were too many churches for them all to receive a reasonable support, and the only thing they could see was, that several of them should disband. But which of the five should do the disbanding locked the wheels of the meeting, and they adjourned for further investigation.

As the report of the meeting got out among the people, the interest in the condition of the churches grew, and wiser heads took up the matter. They came to the conclusion that in the deliberations of the officials they made the first things take a back seat and looked for a remedy at the wrong place. On further investigation they found in this same town of impoverished churches, seven different secret societies with well-equipped lodges and in a flourishing condition. That some of these should be disbanded, did not once enter into the minds of the officials, from the significant fact that all of them belonged to one or more of these lodges. And, further, three of the five ministers were lodge members. Still further, it was learned that these three churches, having the lodge ministers, were to remain intact, and that it was decreed that the other two churches were to disband and unite in service and support with the other three. It did not take much thought in the minds of sincere Christians to see that, in this case, the secret lodges were made the "first things," and the church of Christ the second.

Need we wonder that, under such conditions, these five churches were struggling for a living support? The better plan would have been for this official body to recommend the disbanding of all these secret societies, or at least to decide that those who professed to be members of the church should withdraw from all outside societies, and give their whole time, service and support to the church, where it rightly belongs. This would be a rich blessing to all concerned, and thus enable the churches of the town not only to support their pastors, but do also much greater work for the Master in extending his kingdom and saving souls.

It has been asked of old: "Will a man rob God?" Yea, verily, and we can think of no other way of doing this more effectually than by uniting with and supporting the growing number of the secret orders, thus taking their service and support from the church of Jesus Christ, and so robbing God of that which belongs to him. Every secret organization could be disbanded today, and the world would move along better without them, while millions of dollars would be saved for the use of the church and for the salvation of souls.

There is not a single good thing claimed for these organizations, that could not be done a thousand times more effectually by the church of Jesus Christ. The great trouble, even with the Christian church, is that too many of her members are not considering and doing the "first things" first. In the teachings of the Gospel of Christ is found everything that is needed for the betterment of the world; for our highest social, financial, intellectual and spiritual good. "It is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," does it and holds to it.

The Passion Play.

Late in the summer Prof. W. A. Garber, of Dayton, Va., sent us a copy of his fifteen-cent booklet,—sixty-four pages,—in which he gives an account of his visit to Oberammergau, Europe, to witness the celebrated Passion Play, but not until quite recently did we read the interesting little publication. For some time we have felt confident that the Passion Play, as celebrated in Oberammergau, every ten years, instead of being a sincere religious service, is simply a commercial affair, and the reading of Prof. Garber's booklet confirms our conviction.

In our opinion the Professor is a little severe in his strictures, and yet, if half what he says is true of the people who take part in the play, or the play itself, the whole performance deserves censure rather than praise. He does not regard the people, in the way of religious and moral sentiment, as a shade better than those of surrounding villages. They are practically all a beer-drinking set, who resort to many well-worked methods of getting money out of the tourists who visit the village. He says he has seen men who performed an important part in the play, at the drinking resorts drinking beer and smoking, and inside of an hour they would be playing a most sacred role in the great drama. He has seen little children drinking beer and smoking cigarettes, only a little later to be regarded as little angels in the play. All the saloons and stores are wide open on the Lord's Day, and men, such as the twelve apostles, may be seen working on Sunday the same as on any other day. And then, the prices charged for everything that must be purchased are simply outrageous. He calls it downright graft.

He was much disappointed in the rendering of the last supper, and looks upon it as a farce, saying that the solemnity and sincerity of the occasion are not to be compared with what he has repeatedly witnessed on a love feast occasion in the Church of the Brethren. He looks upon the Passion Play as a money-making scheme from start to finish, and says that all the so-called apostles, and even the Christ and the mother of the Lord, are engaged in the theatrical performance simply for the money there is in it, and for the whole village,—and especially for the leaders,—there is a rich harvest indeed.

The Tyranny of Fashion.

At different times we have called attention to the fact that fashions from year to year, are devised and planned for by those who regulate the clothing business for the civilized world. Sensible people are not permitted to choose their own style of dress, but the style must be arranged by men and women who concern themselves more about the pocketbooks of their customers than about their souls, health and comfort. The Messenger, however, is not the only paper to speak of this matter. The following clipping from a late issue of the Northwestern Christian Advocate, a Methodist paper published in Chicago, shows that others are taking notice of this growing evil:

> The manner in which the dictates of fashion have absolute authority is not more remarkable than the manner in which these subtle laws come into being. Time was, and perhaps still is, in Europe, when fashion followed the lead of certain distinguished individuals. But in this country, since the thorough organization of all kinds of trade, the question of what people shall wear is definitely determined in the offices of trade journals. Behind the famine of these dictates there are other influences, not distinctly traceable. They relate, however, to the financial well-being of manufacturers and jobbers, and consist in considerations of stock on hand, material obtainable, and the ability of the buying population to make purchases. In other words, questions of health and beauty give way to questions of profit. The most flagrant instance appears in the following quotation from the Boot and Shoe Recorder: "A 'growing girls' boot is now built over a last with a slight raise in the arch and with a little narrower toe than the ordinary children's or misses' shoe. It is intended to train and prepare the growing feet of young girls for the high arches and narrower toes of the modern women's boot." In China, intelligent women have revolted against the custom of deforming women's feet for the sake of fashion, and have practically succeeded in abolishing the practice. What shall be said of the intelligence of the women of this country if they slavishly follow trade decrees that sacrifice health and comfort to the desire for profit?

Teaching Church Doctrines.

Every church ought to have a Sunday-school superintendent who thoroughly believes in teaching the doctrines of the church in his school. He may not be prepared to give instruction along doctrinal lines, but there are always those who can be called on to do that part of the work. Our Sunday-schools are never going to serve the best interest of the church until they are made to stand for what the church as a body believes, teaches and practices. A Sunday-school in which our doctrines are ignored, can never prove permanently helpful to the cause. Even the editor of the Sunday School Times, though he publishes an undenominational paper, believes in the Sunday-school teaching the doctrines of the denomination in whose interest it is run. We quote the following:

> "The peculiar doctrines of the denomination to which the school belongs should be taught to the scholars. I am sure, however, that the best way to do this is in the general exercises of the school, the superintendent taking the platform for this purpose. There are booklets prepared by the various denominations, especially adapted to the teaching of the church doctrines, and five minutes a Sunday given to this matter by the teacher in the class will accomplish a great deal in the course of a year. In our school we had the leading features of the denominational polity embodied in an opening exercise that was used in opening the school from time to time. These exercises named and described the work of all the missionary boards of the church, the method of government, etc. We found it worked very well, indeed. Some of the denominations have similar exercises prepared that may be used in this way, or adapted to be used as opening exercises, and we suggest that it would be a fine thing in every Sunday-school, at least once a quarter, to open the Sunday-school with an exercise of this kind, using, say, ten minutes, giving the leading facts concerning the denomination. This, kept up at intervals for a few years, would go far toward instructing the pupils in the beliefs of the denomination."

Converts Teaching the Missionaries.

A lady missionary, who visited Pandita Ramabai's school of fifteen hundred girls in India, in writing to the Tokyo Christian, says that when the missionaries began their work at this mission point they employed sprinkling for baptism, but as soon as the converts read the New Testament well enough to understand the meaning of the words, they asked so many questions about the authority for sprinkling in the place of immersion, that the missionaries despaired of satisfying them. So they adopted immersion, and that put an end to all questions about baptism. The natives read the New Testament and think that the Book teaches immersion.

This reminds us of the experience of a Presbyterian missionary among the Greeks. He wrote to the head man of his Mission Board for advice as to how he should baptize his converts. He said: "These people have all their books and papers in the Greek language. They read the Greek, they talk it, and they understand it. They say that the word baptizo means trine immersion, and they will not hear to anything else." The President of the Board wrote the missionary that the Greeks were right about the meaning of the word, and that the converts he made should be immersed. After that all the Greek converts at the Presbyterian mission were baptized by trine immersion, the form of baptism clearly taught in Matt. 28: 19. But it is unfortunate that missionaries, in some instances, have to depend upon their converts for a perfect understanding of some parts of the Gospel.

Sunday-school and Games.

We may well wonder what nominal Christianity is coming to. Quite recently a Sunday-school worker in Philadelphia arranged for a genuine boxing match, for the amusement and entertainment of his large Bible class. Not only so, but the teacher of the class was one of the parties in the boxing bout. But this is only one of the many purely worldly performances being conducted under the auspices of some religious movements. This, along with Sunday-school and church baseball games, shows how far those pretending to worship God have departed from the simplicity taught by Christ and the apostles. The Christians of a few generations ago never dreamed of any church countenancing such performances. Instead of the churches and Sunday-schools converting the world, as they claim to be doing, the world is actually swinging the church and its activities over to her side. It is a case of the world and church getting together by the church going to the world.

Letter-Heads.

It is interesting to notice what elders and pastors will sometimes have printed on their letter-heads. Years ago some of the letter-heads would be embellished with the cut of some fine-looking animals,—horses, cows, sheep or swine. Now and then the picture would represent fine poultry or a fine farm. Then followed Eld. "So and So," Proprietor. The elder and the pictures never seemed altogether fitting. We do not see much of this, of late years, but quite recently we received a letter written on paper bearing the following, plainly printed on the upper left-hand corner of the sheet:

> Church of the Brethren
> A Whole Gospel for a Whole People.
> Motto:
> More and Better Work for Jesus

The name of the elder and pastor are on the other corner, with the address below. This letter-head seemed much more fitting.

Baptizing for Other Denominations.

"May one of our ministers baptize a penitent believer, who desires trine immersion, but will not promise to unite with the Church of the Brethren?"

When the members of a Brethren congregation call a brother to the ministry, and advance him to the second degree, they do not authorize him to baptize people for other denominations. We are sure that the apostles did not baptize men and women in that way. They baptized them into Christ, and had them put on Christ in baptism. We read that the 3,000 that were baptized on the day of Pentecost were added to the church. We do not hear of any receiving the true baptism with the understanding that they might affiliate with the Pharisees or the Sadducees.

AT WORK FOR THE MASTER.

The writer has just returned home from the Salem church, Reno County, Kansas, where he held a two weeks' series of meetings. Two were baptized at this meeting. This is one of the old organizations, having been organized about thirty years ago, and is located in one of the finest farming countries in the West. Such men as Elders Enoch Eby and John Wise, both of sacred memory, did a great deal of their best preaching here. May the Salem church live long, and do much good work for the Master.

Eld. D. A. Crist, of Quinter, Kansas, is conducting an interesting series of meetings at the West Big Creek Mission, Gove County, Kansas, where the writer is located. His sermons are both interesting and instructive. We are hoping and praying for an ingathering of souls. The West Big Creek Mission is to be organized into a working body in the near future. We earnestly desire the fervent prayer of the righteous in behalf of the work at this place.

Dec. 3, the Lord willing, I will be near Oberlin, Decatur Co., Kans., to begin a series of meetings, at an isolated place, where there is a small number of members. From there I will go to the Saline Valley church, to conduct a series of meetings. Then I will be at Oakley, Kans., in April or May. I can hold meetings in January or February, for any who desire my labors at that time. Address me at Grinnell, Kans. Geo. R. Eller.

DEATH OF ELD. DAVID B. CRIPE.

Eld. David B. Cripe was born in Clinton County, Ind., Oct. 23, 1833, died at the home of his nephew (the writer), Newville, N. Dak., Oct. 24, 1911, aged 78 years and one day. He was a member of the Church of the Brethren for about sixty years. He moved with his parents to Grass Lake, Kans., in the early sixties, where he remained for a number of years. Then he moved to Arkansas, where he was elected to the deacon's office. A year or so later he was called to the ministry, and was ordained to the eldership about twenty-five years ago. He was married twice, but never had any children. He has called his companions preceded him in death. He was a very strong believer in prayer, and he prayed a great deal.

He spent the greater part of the last years of his life with us, and he never lay down at night without a prayer to the Lord for his goodness. He also asked the Lord to give him a peaceful hour in which to die, and the good Lord constantly answered his prayers.

He suffered a great deal from the dread disease, cancer of the stomach but he never murmured. When the end came he closed his eyes and mouth, folded his hands on his breast and stopped breathing. He never made a struggle or a gasp; neither did a muscle of his face move.

Truly, a good man has gone to his reward. He expressed a strong desire to depart this life and be with Christ. He called for the elders and was anointed. After the administration of the rite he deplored the mistakes of his life, but said he had done all he could for the advancement of the kingdom of Christ, and was anxious to depart and join the loved ones gone before. We will never forget his good counsel, and how he wanted us to meet him in the better land. The services were conducted by Eld. J. W. Shively. Text, Psa. 119.

Newville, N. Dak., Nov. 21. J. W. Cripe.

DEATH OF ELD. JEREMIAH GUMP.

It is with profound sadness that we report to the Messenger readers the death of our esteemed brother and colaborer, Eld. Jeremiah Gump, of Churubusco, Ind.

Eld. Gump was born in Miami County, Ohio, May 7, 1829. He was united in marriage to Sarah Shultz, Jan. 17, 1850. In May, 1853, they moved to Allen County, Ind., locating on the farm upon which he resided since.

He with his wife, and his brother Jacob and his wife, united with the Church of the Brethren June 12, 1854, having been received by Eld. Geo. Gump. But it was in November of the same year he was called to the ministry, forwarded to the second degree in 1857, and ordained in October, 1862.

Brother and Sister Gump's home was blessed with ten children,—three sons and seven daughters. Four of these preceded him in death. He departed this life at his home, after a brief illness, Nov. 18, 1911, aged eighty-two years, six months and eleven days. He is survived by his aged companion, two sons, four daughters, thirty-two grandchildren, sixteen great-grandchildren, two brothers, and many relatives and friends. His younger brother, Eld. Henry Gump, of Covington, Ohio, preceded him in death about six weeks.

Eld. Gump was a kind, affectionate husband and father, an esteemed Christian friend and neighbor. Loved by all who knew him, he will be greatly missed in the church and community in which he lived and labored for over fifty-eight years. He was active, and his memory served him well. He was present at the council meeting a little over a week prior to his death, taking an active part in the same.

He had the care of the Pleasant Hill church since its organization until some over a year ago, when on account of age and infirmity he resigned. His younger son, Jesse, was then placed in charge.

He was the oldest elder of the Northern District of Indiana. His faithful counsel will be greatly missed by the adjoining churches. In his early days he gave much time to preaching the Word, and was a very successful evangelist. He united a great many people in marriage, and baptized quite a few. In his death the family has lost a kind and loving father, the church and neighborhood a strong and safe counselor.

Funeral services by the writer, assisted by Elders J. W. Kitson and D. E. Hoover, in the churchhouse near his home. 2 Cor. 2 Tim. 4: 7-8. A very large congregation of neighbors and friends attended the services. Truly his works will follow him. May we cherish his many virtues in our memories, and practice them in our lives! As these old veterans are passing away, may the ranks be filled by strong, consecrated, young brethren! God be praised for these faithful old brethren who have done so much for the church! Geo. L. Studebaker.

IMPROVING OUR DISTRICT SUNDAY-SCHOOL AND CHRISTIAN WORKERS' MEETINGS.

Their Purpose.

These meetings, first of all, should not be held, yearly, simply as a place for brethren and sisters of the District to meet and have a social time together. Their purpose should be to strengthen every Sunday-school and Christian Worker who attends them. The meetings should be spiritual and uplifting. All who come should be filled with the Holy Spirit, and when they leave they should be overflowing, and take some good thoughts to the local organizations.

Send Delegates.

It is very important that the local organizations should send delegates to their respective District Christian Workers' Meeting and every Sunday-school that expects delegates should receive recognition. It should be considered an obligation on every organization to send delegates.

Variety in Programs.

Have a great variety in the nature of the programs. Too much sameness becomes monotonous and uninteresting. Plenty of good, lively, spiritual singing adds greatly to the interest. Give at least a few moments during one session to the children. They want a share in these meetings as well as the older ones. Let them have a share. If there has not been a children's meeting arranged for during this meeting, it is always in place to have a short meeting for Christ's little ones. The children are too often neglected in our local, as well as in our special meetings. They are the ones to carry on the work in the future. They may not be the means of converting some of us older ones to a better life. In the Bible we have the words: "A little child shall lead them." Let us not neglect these jewels for Christ.

A Rousing Missionary Session.

Another important part of the program should be a rousing missionary session. The young brethren and sisters, as well as the older ones, should have the spirit of missions stirred up within them, so that they will take more of it to the local organizations. It is from the Sunday-school and Christian Workers' Meetings that we must get the young people to carry on this work, so much needed all over this world, as well as in the cities in our own District. If there would be more missionary spirit within our schools and Christian Workers' Meetings, we would find many young brethren and sisters consecrating their lives fully to the Lord. More of them would be willing to say: "Here am I; send me."

Use the Best Material for the Program.

Get the very best material you can for the program. Get expert speakers on vital subjects. Go out of the District for some help. It is well and good to take material from the District, when it is found. But if there are not brethren enough in the District, and if we, as a District, could be made stronger by receiving outside help, why not go out and get the help? True, we have good, spiritual brethren in our District, but perhaps those from another District could strengthen our work.

Suppose, for instance, that there is a certain subject that the committee wants to have discussed and they know of a person out of the District who would give the needed light on that particular subject. That person is the very one to handle that subject. Thus we will be strengthened by receiving strength from others. All will still be working for the one great plan of salvation.

The Right Person for Each Place.

Try, as much as possible, to put the right person in the right place. Supposing that a young man, who has never been on a farm, or has no desire to be there, were taken from his place, in office work and placed on a farm to cultivate it, would he not, double-less, make a failure of it? So it is in these meetings. To give to a young brother or sister a subject that should be discussed by an older person of wide experience, is possibly a mistake. I do not mean that the young should not have a part in these meetings. They, perhaps, should have the greater part. But give to the younger persons subjects within their sphere, and give the subjects demanding experience to the more mature. Then let the young grasp their suggestions, and be benefited and helped to carry on the work which will be theirs in later years.

Systematize Your Work.

Organize the work thoroughly throughout the District. Get a leader at the head; then, when the local organizations are wide-awake, the special meetings will be full of fire, and will be the means of leading more souls to Christ.

The purpose of these special meetings, as well as of the local organizations, is to build up the brethren and sisters in the knowledge of Christ, and to train them for the service of Christ. Ira Rohrer.

JUNIATA COLLEGE NOTES.

The College opened on Monday, Sept. 18, to begin the work of another year. The enrollment for the Fall Term is quite encouraging, exceeding the total enrollment of this term in previous years. The addition of one full year's work in the course, under the School of Education, making it a four years' course is perhaps, partially responsible for this increased attendance. A course in agriculture, under the direction of Bro. Dupler, professor of Biological Sciences, has been introduced into the Teachers' and Academy course of study.

We are fortunate in having with us this year Brother and Sister B. F. Wampler, who have charge of the Voice and Piano departments, respectively. Last year they were associated with the work at Elizabethtown College.

At the chapel service of the term the students and faculty were greeted with the announcement that Bro. Harvey Brumbaugh, who has served in the capacity of Acting President of the College for a number of years, had been elected to the presidency, to succeed President M. G. Brumbaugh, of Philadelphia, whose resignation as president had been reluctantly accepted. Bro. W. J. Swigart, in an address in behalf of the Trustees, presented Prof. Brumbaugh to the school body in his new official capacity. President Brumbaugh responded to the announcement in an address, in which he pledged his honest and steadfast support of the work being done by the faculty, and his time and best service to the students. To the trustees he promised to perform the duties of the president of Juniata College as God should grant wisdom and strength.

The missionary spirit of the College has been greatly strengthened and intensified by the inspiring and helpful visits, recently, of Bro. Galen B. Royer, Brother and Sister J. M. Blough, and Brother and Sister Quinter Hollsopple. While Bro. Royer was with us, he delivered a very interesting and instructive address before the Missionary Society, in which address there was a very earnest and strong appeal to young people to enter the missionary service, since this service offers the greatest opportunities for using one's life to the praise and glory of God's name. Farewell services were held in honor of Brother and Sister Blough, and Brother Royer and Sister Blough, respectively. May the blessing of heaven rest upon them, and may his Spirit abide with them in their labors of love! Brother and Sister Holsopple go to India for the first time, while Brother and Sister Blough will resume their work in the same field, after having spent a year in America, on furlough.

In order to foster the missionary spirit, to enlighten the mind and heart, and to press the claims of Christ upon the individual in relation to the moral needs of the world, the Christian Association of the College, for a number of years, has been offering classes in mission study. Three classes have been organized for this year's study, viz.: "The Unoccupied Mission Fields in Africa and Asia," "The Effective Factors in Christian Missions," and "The Knights of the Labarum." The interest taken in the work of these classes is quite encouraging.

The Mission Band meets every Saturday evening with Bro. R. D. Murphy as its leader. The Band meets for prayer, consecration, and study. Such pamphlets as "The Morning Watch," "Spiritual Prerequisites," "Motives in Foreign Missions," etc., are taken up and studied. The Band numbers about fifteen. Edgar M. Detwiler.

A Clean Heart.

in righteousness and holiness according to John 3: 1-7.

To this end it is absolutely necessary for him to attain to a complete knowledge of his true condition. He must be made deeply sensible of his own inability to extricate himself from this abyss of sin and misery into which he has plunged, and of only becoming able to climb the ladder of moral and Christian excellence by the assisting grace of Christ Jesus, the Lord. Casting away all dependence upon any sufficiency of his own, he must pour out his soul in humble prayer to the Great God of heaven and earth in this fervent petition: "Create in me a clean heart, O God." There must be clean actions, clean dealing with our fellowmen and a clean love for him who brought us into this great existence that we may live like him.

Notes From Our Correspondents

As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country

CALIFORNIA.

Chico—We were glad to have Bro. Andrew Hutchison conduct a series of meetings for us, beginning on Thanksgiving Day. The meetings are to continue for one week. Our last feast will be held to-day. Our workers are doing all they can to make our meetings a success.—Hiram Forney, Chico, Cal., Nov. 28.

 Egan church expects to hold a series of meetings beginning Dec. 23, and closing with a love feast Dec. 31. Eld. H. J. Harshbarger, of Illinois, is expected to be with us. At a late meeting of the Sisters' Aid Society Sister Della Minnich was chosen president, and Sister Lena Gibbel, secretary-treasurer.—Mary Yoder, Hemet, Cal., Nov. 20.

Long Beach—On 12 Bro. Masterson filled the appointment here, in the absence of our pastor, Bro. A. L. B. Martin. In the evening Bro. Peter Brumbaugh gave us a talk upon an excellent sermon. Nov. 19 Eld. W. E. Trestle preached two able sermons. All these services were conducted by Bro. Martin filled his appointments for Nov. 18. Nov. 26 we were made to rejoice when the Father of a young man of professed Christ and was buried with him in baptism. We feel that others are on the kingdom. Our pastor will continue to have services each evening from Nov. 27 to Dec. 1. Our little flock is much encouraged, and we feel that the Lord is blessing us abundantly. Sister Reeves, the Sunday-school is increased considerably, both in attendance and interest.—J. M. Wisely, 1251 Locust Street, Long Beach, Cal., Nov. 27.

Ralsin—The church at Raisin City has been enjoying a feast of good things since Nov. 5, one of our home ministers, Bro. E. M. Cobb, gave a week's illustrated lectures on the Bible. Each evening he followed the same plan of first reading the doctrines of the Gospel were told in plain and simple, yet very strong language, which put sinners to thinking. Twenty were baptized today, and two reclaimed. There were very few in our immediate neighborhood now, who do not belong to some church. Bro. Cobb has been the instrument of the Church of the Brethren. We enjoyed a most pleasant love feast meeting. One hundred and thirty communicants were surrounded the Lord's tables. Although there were several ministers present to preach a word was said in regard to any of the necessary scripture, and it was impressive and solemn. Try it sometime, brethren. It is a good way to encourage new converts from Bro. Cobb's meetings, and those reclaimed, were very happy. This was the first time many of the sisters had broken bread to each other, and we must say to say that the Annual Meeting made no mistake in the change.—Emma Saylor Raisin, Cal., Nov. 28.

Santa Fe Mission.—On Sunday morning we had the pleasure of listening to a very enthusiastic sermon on prayer, by Bro. Geo. Bashor, the minister in charge. A special program was rendered by the Christian Workers' Society in the evening, or "Thanksgiving," which was very good. This was followed by a sermon on "Thanksgiving" by Bro. Bashor, to a large and attentive audience. The Sunday-school is in a prosperous condition. The collections are very good. The Santa Fe Mission is a delightful place of worship. One can not help but feel the nearness of God when his children are gathered together to worship Him in Spirit and in truth.—Lizzie E. Schaffner, 136 Hancock Street, Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 1.

COLORADO.

Smith Fork.—Our church enjoyed another series of meetings, conducted by Bro. J. E. Bryant, of Grand Junction, Colo. He delivered some very strong sermons full of instruction. Bro. Bryant labored very earnestly while among us. Having contracted a severe cold he was hindered somewhat in his work. There were no accessions to the church, but the members have been greatly strengthened, and sinners were warned to flee the wrath to come. One letter of membership was accepted, and others will be handed in soon. Our Sunday-school Secretary's report for Nov. 12, has been lost. Our pastor, Bro. Bryant filled his place last Sunday. We should like to see members more ready to help up, as this is a new district to work for the Master.—R. A. Saylor, Crawford, Colo., Dec. 1.

IDAHO.

Boise Valley.—Eld. T. A. Bohren came into our midst Nov. 5 and began a series of meetings, closing last night. He preached some very strong sermons for us. Our object is to declare the Gospel in its primitive purity, strengthening the church and warning sinners. As a visible result four Sunday-school scholars, a husband and one man older in years, who had wandered away, came back to the fold. Others seemed to be near the kingdom, but not quite persuaded.—Sadie F. Brower, Meridian, Idaho, Nov. 27.

Payette.—We held a love feast in the Payette house Nov. 18, which was enjoyed by all present. Bro. C. A. Williams, of Boise Valley, officiated. After visiting awhile we present were Elders Mow and Peterson, of Weiser, and Bro. John Reed, Valley View. Elders Williams spent Sunday with the members at Fruitland and preached two excellent sermons, morning and evening. He also filled our appointment at the schoolhouse, south. In the afternoon he went to Notus, Nampa, began a series of meetings in the Payette house on Sunday, which is continuing with a good attendance and much interest. Bro. Neher is laboring very earnestly and zealously and is doing spiritual good in perseverance manner. The meetings at Fruitland, conducted by Bro. Gorham, closed Nov. 17. Bro. Gorham labored earnestly and faithfully and preached excellent sermons.—S. J. Kenepp, Payette, Idaho, Nov. 23.

ILLINOIS.

Astoria.—We had the rare but happy privilege of listening to two lectures on India, and also a soul-touching sermon by Bro. O. H. Yereman, of Kansas City, Kans., Nov. 25 and 26. We also seldom hear direct from the foreign mission field by one who has been there, that our hearts were made to burn within us. Those who are earnestly laboring especially in heathen lands, to save men and women, need some of our means and our continual lifting up before the Throne of Grace in their noble work.—Ray A. Rohrbaugh, R. D. 3, Nov. 13, Browning, Ill., Nov. 28.

Girard.—Last Thursday, at 5: 30 P. M., we met at the Old People's Home at this place, to participate in the ordinances of the Lord's House and engage in another love feast. At this meeting thirty-four members, including the inmates of the Home, surrounded the Lord's tables and had a time of spiritual service. Eld. J. Jones, of Girard, officiated, assisted by others.—Kate Smeltzer, Girard, Ill., Nov. 28.

Kankakee.—Our meetings closed Nov. 22, with good interest On Thanksgiving Day, at 10:45 A. M., we met for services, after which the ordinance of communion was observed. At 3 P. M. we met in council. A committee, consisting of Brethren D. T. Wampler and James Clapper, was appointed to secure a minister to hold a series of meetings for us next fall. Bro. Andrew Hutchison was chosen messenger agent.—Mary Simpkins, Avena, Ill., Dec. 1.

Lanark.—Our Sunday-school is still growing. Our attendance last Sunday was 198, with a collection of $13.37. After the church services Bro. Head, who is working for the Illinois Children's Home Society, decided to collect for the orphans, which amounted to over $50. Our Thanksgiving service was held at 10: 30 A. M. Bro. S. I. Newcomer preached for us. Eld. I. D. Trout has been sick, and confined to the house all week. The Thanksgiving collection amounted to $15.00. This will be given to the General Mission Board.—Addie Arnold Zuck, Lanark, Ill., Dec. 1.

INDIANA.

Anderson.—Our church assembled in council with a fair attendance Saturday, Nov. 18, to transact business. Plans were completed for our dedication and communion to be held Nov. 2. Brethren Hutchison and Bosserman will be with the writer as superintendent. It was decided that the local temperance committee should give a temperance program on our next temperance day in our Sunday-school. We are to present in the prayers of the Brotherhood for the success of our Sunday-school for 1912. The writer was chosen church correspondent.—Curtis Hilbert, 3314 Cole Ave., Anderson, Ind., Nov. 27.

Beech Grove.—Nov. 23 we came to this church, and met with 13 members. Prayer-meeting and Bible study were held for a minister, and the result was that two brethren were a tie, so the church decided to install both of them. Brethren Bishop, Gossard, Stoner, Bro. Wm. Hall, George Stump, astonishing elders, were present. Brethren Solomon Holsinger and Bro. Gossard were elected and installed. Bro. Joseph Longanecker performed the installation service. Bro. Gossard was chosen to preach next Sunday. The writer officiated. We will remain here in a series of meetings. Prayer-meeting and Bible study are held at the basement of the correspondent, who has been elected to the ministry.—H. E. Bru, Middletown, Ind., Nov. 27.

Four Mile.—Eld. Manly Inscore and wife came to the Whitewater house and began a series of meetings for us Nov. 5, continuing over two Sundays. Eld. Inscore preached twenty-one well-prepared sermons, that were a comfort and help to the church, and a joy and a blessing to those who dear young brother gave his heart to God. Others seemed near the kingdom.—Ida Mow, Fountain City, Ind., Nov. 27.

Landess.—Bro. I. B. Wike has just closed a three-weeks' revival here. He preached twenty-five sermons in all, which were appreciated by all. Bro. Wike is a good old gospel. Several are near the kingdom, but none accepted Christ. Sister Victoria Hoover, of Middletown, Ind., led the song services, which were appreciated by all, and we feel that she has consecrated herself to the Master's work. She is a splendid leader in work at home, so as to put in more of his time in the interest of saving souls for Christ.—Adella Endsley, Landess, Ind., Nov. 26.

Maple Grove.—We met in council Nov. 25. Our elder, Bro. Wm. Hall, presided. Bro. Solomon Holsinger was present from Mowry Chem., of the Solomon Creek congregation, and Bro. Dan Gossard, of Beech Grove. Brethren Bishop and Gossard were a minister in our election, we chose Bro. Chas. Neff as our minister for the coming year. Sunday-school Secretary's report for day-school we retain Sister Grace Huffman as superintendent and Sister Ethel Bishop as secretary. Our last report two members have been received by letter and one by baptism.—Ethel Bishop, R. F. D. 4, New Paris, Ind., Nov. 23.

New Paris.—We met in council Nov. 18, with Bro. John Stout presiding. Bro. Emerald Jones was installed into the ministry, and Bro. Wm. Hoffman was elected to the ministry brought before the meeting. Bro. S. J. Burger is holding revival meetings at Nappanee, Ind., and reports success and very unfavorable most of the time, and the crowds not so large, but sermons are appreciated by all.—Maude Jones, R. D. 7, Syracuse, Ind., Nov. 27.

Roann.—Nov. 22 Eld. Geo. E. Swihart, while trying to dispose of a load of hay, was overturned and severely injured. In evangelistic duties, lost three fingers of his left hand in a corn shredder. Brother is getting along nicely, but will be off work for the present; however, he is getting along nicely. We expect Eld. Jesse Ober, of Middletown, Ind., to be with us the first of the year, to hold a series of meetings for us.—H. E. Weyo, Roann, Ind., Nov. 27.

Rock Run.—Our congregation held services on Thanksgiving Day. Bro. J. E. Weaver gave us a good sermon, after which we were with us to talk in our revival meetings. Our Aid Society, at its next meeting, will do some work for the sewing circle. Bro. Wm. Hall will be with us in our revival meeting, night, was held in the home of a nonprofessor, and was much enjoyed by all.—Ethel Bishop, R. F. D. 4, Nov. 23.

Yellow Creek church met in regular council Nov. 25, with our elder, Bro. Wm. Hoffman, in charge. A letter was granted. Bro. Daniel Martin was elected Sunday-school superintendent. We decided to order fifty Hymnals. We expect Bro. Isaac Wise to be with us in Peterson's house in a revival meeting.—Irvin Miller, R. D. 5, Goshen, Ind., Nov. 23.

IOWA.

English River.—The church met in quarterly council Nov. 25. Eld. H. C. Coffman was chosen to preach and serve the meeting, and was disposed of in a Christian spirit. Sunday-school Secretary's report for day-school was very good. The ministers reported the work done on the pastoral visit during the past year. Arrangements were made for a series of meetings at each house during the next year. The ministers, deacons and Sunday-school officers met to consider and make some other improvements at the North house, reported on by committee.—Ida Hilton, Nov. 27. H. Brower was elected president for our Christian Workers for the coming year, with Sister Minnie Gibson, secretary. Bro. H. W. Coder was elected Sunday-school superintendent, and Sister Ida Hilton, secretary. Decided that the church, through the Sunday-school, support a missionary on the foreign field. One was received by letter, and two letters were granted. On Sunday, the 26th, the school gave an offering of $19 for the poor in Ottumwa.—Peter Brower, South English, Iowa, Nov. 27.

Prairie City.—We met in council Nov. 25. Our elder, Bro. W. I. Buckingham, presided. We had a very pleasant council. Quite an amount of business was pleasantly disposed of. Bro. W. I. Buckingham was again chosen as our elder for another year. Bro. Carl Elrod is our Sunday-school superintendent; Sister Myra Arnold, secretary; Bro. Roy Alexander, president of the Christian Workers' Meeting; Sister Murl McCune, secretary. Our evening meetings will not begin until Dec. 10. Bro. West was unable to get here Dec. 3. Bro. Snavely, of Nagercoil, Ill., will be here during the holidays, to conduct a ten days' Bible school.—Jennie Alexander, R. D. 2, Monroe, Iowa, Nov. 28.

South Ottumwa church enjoyed a spiritual love feast Nov. 24. There were a number of brethren and sisters from other congregations present, which we enjoyed very much. Eld. J. H. Keller and wife, of Udell, Iowa, and Bro. Albert Miller, of Delmar, Iowa, were with us and assisted in the communion service. Bro. Miller officiated at the love feast and also gave us a sermon in the evening. Bro. Keller preached two excellent sermon.—Geo. W. Burgin, 118 South Moore Street, Ottumwa, Iowa, Nov. 28.

KANSAS.

Abilene.—Nov. 12 Bro. P. E. McCune began a series of meetings at the Mulvane church, and is laboring very earnestly with us until Thanksgiving evening. One young lady expressed her desire to make Jesus her personal Savior. The attendance and interest were good throughout. We believe much good seed was sown.—W. A. Morrer, Elmo, Kans., Dec. 1.

Bloom.—Our church met in council Nov. 23. Two letters were granted. The visiting brethren present all the ministers to be in peace and union. As this was the council preparatory for our love feast, we made the arrangements to have one for our feast, which was held Nov. 25. Twenty-two surrounded the Lord's Table. Eld. J. H. Moore officiated. This was the first communion for some, and they seemed to enjoy it very much. We have evening meetings on the evenings of the feast. Bro. C. D. Hylton is to do the preaching till Dec. 2, when Bro. H. Forney, of Conway, Kans., is to be with us. Our Christian Workers' Band is active and growing in interest.—Cassie Martin, Bloom, Kans., Nov. 27.

Fredonia.—Nov. 19 Bro. C. D. Hylton began a series of meetings, conducted by Bro. C. D. Hylton, of Bloom, Kans. The meetings continued for ten days. One day both were called to the church by baptism. We held our love feast in the evening, with many visiting members. Bro. Hylton officiated in his home Nov. 26, leaving many new friends at this place.—Ada Stidebeker, Fredonia, Kans., Nov. 27.

Liberty.—We are now working in the town of Liberty, Kans., a place where the Brethren have never, as yet, preached a regular sermon, and the Lord is blessing us. We meet over every night, giving the best of attention to the Word taught. There are a few members here, but a large field of place, whom we are glad to strengthen by the help of God.—Chas. A. Wagner, Liberty, Kans., Nov. 27.

McPherson.—Today was decision day in our Sunday-school. Five responded to the call to be on the right side. Last Sunday evening we held our love feast. About 200 communed. We had a very spiritual feast. Bro. E. S. Studebeker officiated, assisted by Bro. Hiram Forney, of Chico, California, and Bro. Peterson, Kans., Nov. 27.

Norton.—We closed a very interesting series of meetings Nov. 27, which had been in progress four weeks. We had with us Eld. Jesse Ober, of Middletown, Ind., who preached one week, after which Bro. T. Z. George conducted the meetings up to the close. There were three additions to the church. Much good seed was sown. We held our love feast Nov. 11. Bro. Barboe, of Quinter, officiated. Brethren C. J. Wagner and Bro. Peterson assisted to the eldership.—Lewis Naylor, Fortis, Kans., Nov. 25.

LOUISIANA.

Roanoke.—The District Sunday-school Meeting of Texas and Louisiana will be held at Manvel, Texas, Dec. 20; the Ministerial Meeting, Dec. 21, and the District Meeting, Dec. 22.—A. A. Sutter, Roanoke, La., Nov. 27.

MICHIGAN.

Sugar Ridge church met in council Nov. 25. Eld. J. M. Lair presided. Bro. Lair was chosen elder. Sister Ella Snavely was reelected as Sunday-school superintendent for one more year. Sister Ella Snavely is also secretary of the Christian Workers' Meeting. We expect Bro. O. P. Haines, of Albany Bible School, to be with us in a series of meetings from Dec. 17 to Dec. 31.—Nellie N. Teeter, Scottville, Mich., Nov. 28.

MINNESOTA.

Lewiston.—Nov. 30, at 10: 30 A. M., we met for Thanksgiving services. Services were held in the forenoon. There were the expressions of gratitude to God who has so bountifully blessed us during the past year. An offering of $17.88 was taken for the poor in the city of Minneapolis, and the Minneapolis Mission. Dec. 7 we expect to hold our council.—Mary Bowman, R. D. 1, Lewiston, Minn., Nov. 30.

Worthington.—Our council was held Oct. 11, a little earlier than usual, on account of our elder going to Ashland, Oregon, to attend Bethany Bible School. Bro. J. Schechter, Jr., presided. Considerable business came before the meeting. Sunday-school officers and teachers were elected. Bro. W. S. Ramer is our superintendent. Our Christian Workers' Society was reorganized with Bro. Ira Ramer, president, and Sister Meda Fowler, secretary-treasurer. The Christian Workers have arranged literature for the distribution of the Bible Text for the coming year. The Sunday-school is supporting an orphan in India. Bro. Frank Richardson is to hold a Bible and temperance worker. We will use the graded lessons for the three months' quarter. Bro. Richardson expects to be with us the first of the year.—Minnie Schechter, R. D. 5, Box 39, Worthington, Minn., Nov. 28.

MISSOURI.

Carthage.—Nov. 19 we closed a very interesting series of meetings. Bro. Buckley began Nov. 5, and Nov. 12 was surrounded the Lord's tables. Bro. Buckley conducted the meetings. He preached thirty sermons, with convincing power. There were no additions to the church, but the good seeds sowing impressions were made. We believe, as is often the case, that this meeting was the means of the conversion of others at home. Bro. Buckley had to return home. We are now holding meetings with Bro. Orens Carthage, Mo., Nov. 27.

Mount Herman.—We met in council Nov. 25. Our elder, Bro. J. B. Hylton, presided. Sister S. B. Hylton and N. A. Duncan were appointed as a committee to assist some isolated members. Nov. 26 Bro. Hylton preached for us on Second Arthur Akers, Norwood, Mo., Nov. 30.

South St. Joseph.—Held a thanksgiving service in the Hyde Park Mission room at 8 P. M. on Thanksgiving Day, conducted by Bro. Carter. The audience was composed mostly of our own people, who showed by their presence and expressions that they were truly thankful for all of God's blessings. Only one of our families felt able to furnish a thanksgiving dinner, but others who were unable to furnish one sent most crippled ones to come and partake of a bounteous meal, but some were unable to come on account of work, and some were unable to work. Those who could not furnish well-filled baskets to all such, but we were unable to do so. We have many poor among us, and we can not do all we would and some for food.—E. N. Huffman, 502 Kentucky Street, St. Joseph, Mo., Dec. 1.

MONTANA.

Glasgow.—Bro. William Kittner, of Williston, N. Dak., came to us Nov. 11 and preached eight impressive, Spirit-filled sermons, which were greatly appreciated by all who could attend. The meetings were held at the South Bench school house, six miles southeast of Glasgow, with the exception of Chapel, which is located at the Galpin Sunday-school in the incitement of the weather and the members being so scattered, the meetings were not so well attended as they would have been had the weather been favorable. There are only seventeen members in this church. We would indeed be glad to have some minister locate in this vicinity. Our nearest church is at Medicine Lake, Mont.—Estella Wingard, Glasgow, Mont., Nov. 27.

NEBRASKA

Alvo.—Nov. 26 our congregation met in the church to show our gratitude to God for the many blessings of the past year. At this meeting two letters were granted and one received. Sister Mary Miller was made our treasurer agent. A collection was taken for the Colored Peoples' Orphanage. Old Folks' Home and Mission Planting School at Denver, Colo. —Edyth Snavely Kitzel, Elmwood, Neb., Dec. 1.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Brumbaugh.—A very pleasant and profitable members' meeting was held at this place Nov. 25. Five letters of membership were granted. After the temperance lesson, Nov. 12, our Sunday-school took an offering of $2.25 for the work of temperance cause in this State District Nov. 26, at 11 A. M., we met in a special thanksgiving service. A collection of $7.41 was taken for the World-wide Mission Fund.—Mary Ethel Brumbaugh, N. Dak., Dec. 1.

Pleasant Valley.—On Thanksgiving morning we met at the country house for worship, and in the evening we met in the town church. Both meetings were well attended and we enjoyed them much. Our offering amounted to $11.20, which is divided between China and Home Missions. Prayers that through our crops were cut very short, the last two years, still we have much to be thankful for and to be thankful people here are feeling contented generally. We have much room for many more to locate in the valley.—A collection of $7.41 was taken for the World-wide Mission Fund.—Mary Ethel Brumbaugh, N. Dak., Dec. 1.

Pleasant Valley.—On Thanksgiving morning we met at the country house for worship, and in the evening we met in the town church. Both meetings were well attended and we enjoyed them much. Our offering amounted to $11.20, which is divided between China and Home Missions. Prayers that through our crops were cut very short, the last two years, still we have much to be thankful for and to be thankful people here are feeling contented generally. We have much room for many more to locate in the valley. A cordial welcome. We welcome any members who desire to come into our midst to help in the Lord's service.—A. H. Blocher, York, N. Dak., Dec. 1.

OHIO.

Black River church met on Thanksgiving Day in an all-day meeting. Bro. W. A. Wiley, of Ashland, Ohio, delivered two well-appreciated sermons, after which a basket lunch was served. was taken for Bethany Bible School.—Enos D. Nolt, Lodi, Ohio, Dec. 1.

Charleston Mission.—While Bro. Heisey has been away, engaged in a series of meetings, Brethren J. O. Garst, Herschel Weaver and H. H. Fry came and held short meetings, each one giving us three good sermons, which were much appreciated by all. We trust they have gotten seed into the soil. Our Sunday-school is still progressing nicely.—Emma Heisey, R. D. 6, Chillicothe, Ohio, Nov. 27.

East Dayton church met in council on Thursday evening, Nov. 9, four elder being absent. Bro. W. M. Fidler presided. One letter was granted. The election of Sunday-school and Christian Workers' officers was held. Sister Grove was again chosen for superintendent. All former officers were also reelected. John Quinn gave us instructive sermons, both morning and evening, Nov. 26.—Allie Grove, 1030 W. 3d St., Dayton, Ohio, Nov. 27.

Greenville.—We are again enjoying the services in our churchhouse, after considerable work of enlarging the building and making it more convenient for our Sunday-school, for which we feel very thankful. It is now in good shape for our Sunday-school, as well as in our Sunday-school. Our elder, Bro. David Hollinger, has been giving us good sermons and some very strong sermons for the last two weeks, with good attendance and interest. Two of our Sunday-school scholars were baptized during the meetings, and others are very near ready.—Nov. 9 we had a good Sunday-school meeting. The visiting brethren gave a favorable report of their work. Four letters were received by letter, and one letter was granted.—Mrs. Anna Wilner, Greenville, Ohio, Nov. 27.

Junction Mission.—Bro. L. H. Prowant, of Dupont, Ohio, preached for us today. His theme was "Consecration." He expects to give us services every two weeks. We hope to have a series of meetings in the near future. Our Bible and day-school scholars was baptized this fall.—Miss Pearlie Brown, R. D. 19, Defiance, Ohio, Nov. 27.

Peebles.—Nov. 3 the church met in council, with Eld. William Minnich presiding. The visiting brethren found all the members in peace and union.

Trustee, Bro. William Stover having resigned, Nov. 4, at 4 P. M., we met for love feast service, which was very spiritual and the Lord's tables. Bro. William Minnich officiated. Eld. R. C. Davidson, Brethren Frank Custer, Ira Gibble, of Missionary and others were present. We had a very spiritual feast. On Sunday, Nov. 5, at 10 A. M., Bro. Gibble preached us a good talk, and at 2 P. M. Bro. Minnich gave us another good discourse. The attendance have been much strengthened. Bro. Crouser led the song service. We expect Bro. J. H. Gulnet, of near Dayton, to be with us in a series of meetings in the near future.—Quinter Ramsey, R. D. 5, Peebles, Ohio, Nov. 27.

OREGON.

Newberg.—Bro. Andrew Hutchison came to this place Nov. 13 and began meetings that evening. We have had three good sermons, which we all appreciated very much. Our meeting closed with a love feast, Nov. 24, which was quite well attended by the local members, and also some of the neighborhood. Bro. Hutchison, of Portland, officiated.—Sarah A. Van Dyke, Newberg, Oregon, Nov. 25.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Chiques.—We met in council Nov. 25. Our church decided to call for the Ministerial Meeting. Eld. S. S. Mohler, S. H. Becker, J. S. Hackman and Herman E. Geib were appointed as a home committee committee. Our Sisters' Aid Society made their first report, which was accepted and they are now building a new church. Meetings at the Mount Hope house. Bro. D. W. Weaver is laboring for us. He is getting on well and very forceful. One soul came out for Christ so far.—Henry S. Fox, R. D. 1, Bainbridge, Pa., Nov. 30.

Conestoga.—Nov. 11 Bro. Jesse Ziegler came to us, and we opened a series of meetings at the Brethren's house. He preached for us every night until the 26th. The attendance and interest were good. One young man stood up for Christ, and others are counting the cost. We held our Thanksgiving meeting at the above meetinghouse. The home ministers did the preaching. We took up a collection for the Bethany Bible School, R. D. 1, Darsville, Pa., Nov. 30.

Johnstown.—Brethren Charles B. Royer gave the last of his helpful Western Pennsylvania series of missionary talks in our Walnut Avenue meetinghouse on the evening of Nov. 13 to appreciative audience. If Bro. Royer could be kept moving among the churches, our missionary interest would surely grow in a remarkable way. On the evening of Nov. 13 Bro. W. R. Miller came to us and began a series of illustrated lectures. Large audiences greeted him each evening. The attendance continues until Sunday evening, when he told the story of his early captive by the Indians and his escape from them. His work was much appreciated by all. Our pastor, Bro. W. M. Howe, is now conducting a Bible study at the Walnut Grove house, on the Book of Revelation.—Ada M. Beughley, 1124 Thomas Avenue, Johnstown, Pa., Nov. 28.

Midway.—Nov. 13 Bro. Ira D. Gibble, of the Little Swatara church, preached for us in Lebanon in the evening. Nov. 26 our elder, Bro. Jno. Herr, preached for us in Lebanon in the forenoon. Bro. Ira D. Gibble also preached for us at Midway on Thanksgiving Day, after which an offering was given in behalf of our Orphanage in Eastern Pennsylvania. Bro. Rufus P. Bucher will open a series of meetings in Lebanon Jan. 21. D. D. Lehman, Lebanon, Pa., Nov. 30.

Norristown.—The Christian Workers' Society of this place held a joint meeting on Sunday evening, Nov. 26, which was largely attended. A splendid program was rendered, in which representatives from the following churches participated: Mahlon, Mahlon Mission, Upper Dublin, Skippack, Green-lane, Landisdale and Dauphin St., Philadelphia. This was the first a grand success. Officers for the ensuing year were elected. Norristown Christian Workers' Society were also represented. We pray that this may be a stepping-stone to greater things in the way of mission work. —Hattie M. Nedrow, 737 George St., Norristown, Pa., Nov. 30.

Waynesboro.—Nov. 11 Bro. John M. Mohler began a series of meetings in this church yesterday morning (Thanksgiving Day). Twenty-three sermons were preached. Eight precious souls were brought into the kingdom. While the ingathering was not what might have been expected, we feel that the seed sown will prove in a series of meetings that is first of all most important. —To revive the church.—Thanksgiving Day. Those who were in the faith of the Gospel. We heard safe doctrine.—D. B. Monter, Waynesboro, Pa., Dec. 1.

TENNESSEE.

Lawrenceburg.—We are just now in the midst of a very encouraging series of meetings, with Bro. J. L. Guthrie, of Ohio, doing the preaching. There have been eight baptisms to date, six by Bro. Guthrie in his way of Primitive, Ala., where he spend the winter. His visits with us are both pleasant and profitable. Some would be very glad to have him locate. Interesting brethren stop with us as they are passing from the South to the North. We are in the midst of a great field of labor, with no other Brethren church within a radius of 100 miles. Millions of precious souls are perishing for the want of the Bread of Life. Brethren, pray the Lord to send laborers into the harvest. Who will come over and help us?—A. M. Bashor, Lawrenceburg, Tenn., Nov. 30.

Limestone.—Our church met in council Nov. 25, with Elders A. E. Neas and Jesse Ziegler, both presiding. Two members came before the meeting. Bro. Nead gave us a good sermon. Sisters' prayer-meeting was appointed. Two were appointed to solicit and collect pledges for funds, to be used in the mission in Italy. Sunday-school has a plan adopted at our last District Meeting. We had our regular Sunday-school and 200 people were present. Sunday Bro. J. C. Bashor preached during the day we gave us eight sermons and Bible Land talks. We were glad for the privilege of having Bro. Bashor with us. We feel strengthened and hope he will come south again.—Annie Lee Neas, R. D. 1, Afton, Tenn., Nov. 30.

Midway.—Brethren Laughrun and Clark came to our place and continued to unfold meetings. The meeting one week. They preached ten soul-searching sermons. One member was cast on Friday night. It was the plainest preaching ever done at this place. The church was greatly strengthened.—W. J. Dunmyer, R. D. 1, Box 46, Surgoinsville, Tenn., Nov. 30.

New Hope.—Bro. A. D. Wine, of Bluff City, Tenn., began a series of meetings at this place on Thanksgiving Day. A collection was taken for World-wide Missions.—Laura Saylor, Jonesboro, Tenn., Dec. 1.

TEXAS.

Ft. Worth.—We are getting along nicely at this place, with better attendance and better interest shown to our talks and to the study and exposition of the Word. We expect our first series of meetings, to begin the second week in December.—C. O. Dorcas, 1109 W. Terrell Ave., Ft. Worth, Nov. 30.

Portland church met in special council Nov. 7. Eld. Jacob Elmora Adams, who has decided to leave here, he resigned his position as overseer and elder, which was accepted, and Eld. J. A. Miller, District Evangelist, was again chosen as our overseer. Two letters were granted. Bro. Elmer Bledsoe was chosen delegate to represent us at District Meeting. We are now without a minister, but Eld. Miller is now holding meetings in the North and East afflicted with lung or throat trouble or catarrh of the head, who are advised by physicians to come to this climate and breathing this salt-laden atmosphere. Many have been much benefited by the change they have obtained by coming here. At the time of writing we have good work for the Master.—L. J. Porter, Portland, Texas, Nov. 26.

VIRGINIA.

Brick church met in council Nov. 9, with Eld. G. B. Plora presiding. Two letters were granted. Bro. Jesse Ziegler and J. A. Fisher was elected Sunday-school superintendent for the ensuing year. Bro. Ziegler preached for us Sunday. We use our thanksgiving offering for the purpose of helping to build a church in Roanoke, Va.—Ida Bucher, R. D. 1, Box 18, Mt. of Trevilian, Va., came to us Nov. 15 and labored with us until Nov. 26. We delivered 27 very interesting lectures on the Holy Land. He labored earnestly and faithfully. Our church was greatly strengthened, both spiritually and numerically. Twenty were baptized. Bro. Bucher's ministry was reclaimed, and one is awaiting the rite of baptism. Eld. J. W. Rogers, of Bridgewater, Va., will begin a series of meetings at Piedmont in October. Nine were buried with baptism.—Mrs. Ida Bucher, Mt. of Trevilian, Va., Nov. 30.

Botetourt.—We met in council at the Troutville church Nov. 26, with Eld. Sam'l Garber presiding. Bro. Jesse Ziegler Crumpacker gave a very helpful talk on private Bible reading. Sunday, Nov. 26, Bro. Ziegler began a new very glad to have Bro. W. E. Conner, of Bridgewater, Va., with us for a short time. Bro. Conner began a series of sermons at Trinity Nov. 12. He labored faithfully and earnestly. The meetings ran fourteen strong sermons. There were no accessions to the church. The good was encouraged.—Mrs. Ida Bucher, R. D. 1, Box 18, Mt. of Trevilian, Va., Nov. 27.

Elk Run.—Bro. Ziegler is preaching, not knowing whether we were able to build or not, we decided, by the help of God, that Mission Board, Sunday-school, and different Aid Societies, to build a churchhouse in our mountain district near Swoope. We began work Aug. 24, 1911, and completed the building Oct. 26, except painting, which will be left when Bro. Ziegler is present. This church will be known as the Griffin church, and was dedicated by Bro. D. C. Zigler Nov. 12. We wish to thank all who have contributed so liberally to this work. We have labored many months and have not been able to pay it off in the near future. This is a promising mission point, and we hope to have preaching every two weeks, also for any of our brethren, traveling to and from their appointments, to stop and preach. Bro. Zigler will address Brethren Jesse Griffin, David or Samuel Bright, Deerfield, Va.—Sarah E. Zigler, R. D. 2, Churchville, Va., Nov. 28.

Manassas.—Nov. 10 one dear mother was baptized. So far, this year, we have baptised seventeen and one was reclaimed. We received several by letter, and several letters were granted. Eld. J. M. Blough, of India, gave us several much-appreciated addresses and an able sermon. A collection of $1.56 was taken on Nov. 13 Eld. M. G. Early, of Nokesville, Va., and I. M. Neff, of Fairfax, Va., came to us for the purpose of ordaining Bro. E. E. Blough to the eldership. Bro. Neff preached an excellent sermon, which was much appreciated. Bro. S. H. Flory, of Nokesville, Va., preached a good sermon Dec. 10 our elder, Bro. J. A. Cowan, and wife, will leave to spend the winter in Cuba.—Alice C. Blough, Manassas, Va., Dec. 1.

WASHINGTON.

Sunnyside.—Our church met in council Nov. 18, at 10 A. M. Bread of Eld. Geo. A. Wise, of North Yakima, was also elected. Jul. G. Stiverson, Bro. Thomas, Wise, were present. Bro. Jul. G. Stiverson, Brethren A. H. Partch and J. A. Eby were advanced to the ministry. Nov. 27 Bro. Stiverson began a series of meetings at the Euclid schoolhouse, one of our preaching points.—Mrs. M. E. WEST VIRGINIA

Bethany.—Bro. Isaac S. Long, of India, now home on a furlough, was with us one Lord's Day, and gave us three fine talks on the work and conditions in India. Bro. Long will leave us in a few days for the field of labor, with no other Brethren church within a radius of 100 miles. Millions of precious souls are perishing for the want of the Bread of Life. Brethren, pray the Lord to send laborers into the harvest. Who will come over and help us?—A. M. Bashor, Lawrenceburg, Tenn., Nov. 30.

Limestone.—Our church met in council Nov. 25, with Elders A. E. Neas and Jesse Ziegler, both presiding. Two members came before the meeting. Bro. Nead gave us a good sermon. Sisters' prayer-meeting was appointed. Two were appointed to solicit and collect pledges for funds, to be used in the mission in Italy. Sunday-school has a plan adopted at our last District Meeting. We had our regular Sunday-school and 200 people were present. Sunday Bro. J. C. Bashor preached during the day we gave us eight sermons and Bible Land talks. We were glad for the privilege of having Bro. Bashor with us. We feel strengthened and hope he will come south again.—Annie Lee Neas, R. D. 1, Afton, Tenn., Nov. 30.

Midway.—Brethren Laughrun and Clark came to our place and continued to unfold meetings. The meeting one week. They preached ten soul-searching sermons. One member was cast on Friday night. It was the plainest preaching ever done at this place. The church was greatly strengthened.—W. J. Dunmyer, R. D. 1, Box 46, Surgoinsville, Tenn., Nov. 30.

New Hope.—Bro. A. D. Wine, of Bluff City, Tenn., began a series of meetings at this place on Thanksgiving Day. A collection was taken for World-wide Missions.—Laura Saylor, Jonesboro, Tenn., Dec. 1.

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

McPHERSON COLLEGE, KANSAS.

The second term's work at McPherson College began Nov. 13, showing a steady increase in enrollment. Thanksgiving Day was followed by a two days' vacation. The Thanksgiving season is rendered especially joyous by the opening of the new Auditorium-Gymnasium, which we have had to wait for long. It is one of the finest of its kind in the State of Kansas. It will be completely equipped as soon as possible.

The average age of the student body is greater than it has been for some time. This is due to the fact that several heads of families have come for special work. It certainly adds stability to the student body. The size of the Collegiate department has been increased.

Our Bible Department has been materially strengthened. Eld. J. H. Moore, the Dean, is ably assisted by Bro. E. M. Studebaker. A special course in Sacred Hymn Reading is provided by the Expression Department for the convenience of ministers. There is general satisfaction with the courses and the instruction afforded in the department. Our Bible Normal will be held in January. The program will be unusually rich. Definite announcement will be made later.

The Alumni Association is busy keeping in touch with its members in the United States. A great homecoming is being planned for next Commencement. The Board of Trustees has hired a Field Secretary, who looks after students and endowment.

Faculty and students are all busy. A lecture course has been scheduled, and several of our professors may be secured by churches, to give lectures. Correspondence solicits. Dr. Clement, our president, is crowded for time to fill his many engagements. He is a member of the State Board for the standardization of colleges.

The outlook is hopeful. Enthusiasm for the school and the church is at a high pitch. Interest in prohibition, oratory, music, missions, etc., is indeed commendable. We crave the patronage and the prayers of the church in behalf of the school, for the accomplishment of its purposes.—McPherson, Kans., Dec. 1. E. L. Craik.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

The Third Annual Bible Term of the District of Northern California will be held in the Oak Grove church, Lacon, Cal., beginning Dec. 25, and continuing until Dec. 30, 1911. Eld. D. L. Dickey, of Lordsburg College, will conduct the study of Bible and Bible Doctrines during two periods daily. One period daily will be conducted by Bro. Dickey especially for the young, in the study of Bible characters.

Bro. G. G. Hollinger, of Macdoel, the newly-appointed Sunday-school Secretary, will take up the work of the Sunday-school along practical lines during the Bible term. A feast of good things is in store for all who will avail themselves of this period of Bible study.

The brethren and sisters of the Oak Grove church have kindly arranged to furnish board and lodging free to all who may attend. Dinner will be furnished at the church; other meals at Brethren's homes. Kindly inform Eld. D. L. Dickey, Lacon, Cal., of the number likely to attend from each congregation, and he will attend to the needed accommodations.

Bible School Committee: D. L. Forney, D. R. Holsinger, E. C. Overholtzer.

KASKASKIA, ILLINOIS.

Bro. Chas. Walter came to us Oct. 28 and began the greatest revival this church has experienced for some time. We held our love feast Nov. 10, which was a spiritual feast indeed. Sister Walter came Nov. 9, and is with us at present. We are grateful for her help, for she is indeed a great worker. Eleven have been buried with Christ in baptism. One of them is our young minister's wife. Three have been reclaimed. Many more seem to be near the kingdom. Although Bro. Walter has, at times, exhausted his strength, yet he is not willing to give up until all is done that is possible. He preached the Word plainly and forcibly. Besides his preaching, he visited many and explained many scriptural passages. Although the roads were bad, the house was filled to overflowing, and he had the best of attention. Now Bro. Walter, our elder, and a small company went to the home of one of our aged brethren, who has been afflicted for some time, and held services.

CASSTOWN AND TROY MISSION, OHIO.

Our communion, held at the Casstown house, Nov. 11, was not so largely attended, but it was a very spiritual meeting. Eight ministers were present, and their assistance was truly appreciated. Eld. I. J. Rosenberger officiated. Bro. Joseph Studebaker, of Indiana, was also present and led the singing.

On Sunday, Nov. 26, the members of the Troy Mission held special Thanksgiving services. In the morning we had a sermon by Bro. O. S. Yount, and in the evening an interesting program by the Christian Workers' Society. The interest and attendance at both services were very encouraging for this mission point. The workers in our society range in age from five to fifty years.

To the nearby congregations we would say that your aid society could help us out materially by sending us clothing or money,—either one. We have the poor with us, and some children are not in Sunday-school, because of a lack of proper clothing. Let us not forget the very near home field. We appeal especially to the members of Southern Ohio that you allow God to burden your heart with a much deeper interest and concern in behalf of the Troy Mission. We need your prayers, your assistance, in every way. Send clothing to Bro. Cyrus Petry, 520 Sherman Avenue.

MERIDIAN, IDAHO.

On our way to this great western country we stopped over long enough at the Omaha Mission to become acquainted with Brother and Sister Weaver and other members, and to enjoy a very spiritual meeting. We found some live workers there, and a sweeter prayer I never heard than the one that was offered by a little girl of about eight or ten summers.

Our next stop was at the Denver Mission,—only about eighteen hours' travel. Here again we met for worship, and found anxious members waiting our arrival. Here two of our sons are located for the present. Nov. 4 wife and I arrived safely at Nampa, Idaho. After being with the Nampa church, and our loved ones,—some of whom we had not seen for about twelve years,—in the afternoon service, we hastened to commence the appointed series of meetings in the Boise Valley church. The bad weather set in with the meetings, and up to the last three days it continued to be very unfavorable for the meetings. Four dear souls have been made willing to accept Christ. Three have been baptized, and the other was restored to fellowship. We have decided to continue the services yet this week, as more seem to be near the kingdom. Our next appointment will be in the Nampa church, to continue over two weeks.

T. A. Robinson.

Nampa, Idaho, Nov. 25.

GRAND JUNCTION, COLORADO.

Nov. 5 we enjoyed a temperance program at 10: 30 A. M. This program proved to be the right thing at the right time and the right place, it being two days before election. We are quite sure it helped to sway the sentiment for a dry town. At the close of the program, the Italian Band, Italian missionary of Denver, gave us a talk, which was much appreciated. The Christian people of this city owe great praise to the Lord for the victory in the battle. Nov. 12 Bro. A. A. Weaver preached for us both morning and evening, in the absence of our pastor, who is engaged in a revival effort at the Mount Garfield church. Nov. 19 Bro. D. M. Click gave us two good talks.

Now that the cold winter is upon us once more, it would be well for the charitable people of the District to remember that there are some poor, hard-working people, living among us, who have had sickness. With a number of small children, they do not know how to pull through the winter. If you have any outgrown clothes that will help to keep the baby bodies warm, or anything in the way of eatables, that you can spare, bring them with you when you come to Grand Junction. Sacrifice a little of your time and come. Read Acts 20: 35. Remember the words of Solomon: "He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth unto the Lord; and that which he hath given will he pay him again" (Prov. 19: 17). Emma Root.

726 W. Main Street, Grand Junction, Colo., Nov. 26.

FOUNTAIN CITY, TENNESSEE.

Nov. 18, at 4: 30 P. M., I boarded the train at Knoxville, Tenn. After a run of thirty minutes I was at Boyd, the very station one mile from the Union Valley church. I walked to the church, and found a company of members and friends waiting for the preacher to come.

After singing a few songs, prayer was offered. Taking as the text for my discourse Matt. 5: 2, I gave an invitation at the close, when a young man and his wife presented themselves as candidates for baptism. We read to them Matt. 18, and, after a confession of their willingness to conform to the order of the church, we announced that baptism would be administered the next day, at 9 A. M. This is a place where many have not been baptism performed by trine immersion.

On Sunday, at 11 A. M., we addressed an attentive audience on the subject of baptism. We also had services on Sunday night. We think we have made many friends in this locality, and by diligent and careful work done at this point much good can be accomplished.

MORE ABOUT BRO. ALLEN IVES.

It was in the early summer of 1872 that I first met Bro. Allen Ives. By the way, his name was not Allen, but Allene; however, he always went by the name Allen, both in common courtesy and in print.

I had had correspondence with him before, and knew that he lived at Burr Oak, Kans., and was a pioneer in that State just a year ahead of us; but previous to an answer to a letter written to him before we left Iowa, I had no knowledge of him, or acquaintance with him.

Our acquaintance began when he and Sister Polly Ives drove down the White Rock Creek valley, a distance of eighteen miles, to pay us a visit, and reached our humble home one warm summer evening in June. He was then a minister in the second degree, advanced to that responsible office at Marshalltown, Iowa. They brought with them to Kansas two daughters and a son-in-law, that were members of the church, besides other younger children.

His zeal and love for the church led him to hunt us up, having heard that we had only recently arrived in Kansas, and that we, too, were members of the church from Iowa.

What a cheering visit we did enjoy that night and the next day! None but those who have gone far away from kindred and friends, and settled in a lonely, new country, can know how rich these visits are. Our family, after that evening, was enriched by the fruits of Bro. Ives' zeal and love and offerings; and our hearts were made to rejoice together in thankfulness and praise.

During this visit he told us of some scattered members that had preceded us, who he said must be looked after, and plans were laid to hunt them up and visit them at our earliest opportunity. Among these were Richard Miller, Nathan Miller, and their families, at Cuba, Republic County, Sister Barbara Butler and family, in Jewell County, Sister Morrow and family, in Osborne County, Bro. Wolf and family, in Mitchell County, Bro. Benj. Wagoner and family, at Red Cloud, Nebr., Bro. Martin Kinsey, Montgomery, Dale, and others, and their families, living southwest of us on Limestone Creek, Jewell County, and still others in different parts and directions. All of these, Bro. Ives' zeal, devotion, and loving-kindness of his zealous nature, said we must find and visit, and look after their welfare.

Thus began the missionary work in Northern Kansas. Bro. Jonathan Liehty had previously started a little plant in Brown County, on the north edge of the State, but to the planning and work and zeal of Bro. Allen Ives is due the active beginning of the great missionary cause in the State of Kansas.

For thirteen years he and I labored lovingly and harmoniously together. We used to meet every month at a schoolhouse, halfway between our homes, worship together, compare notes, and arrange plans for meeting and work. In all our labors together there was not a particle of trouble or discussion or friction between us. His great heart was too loving, his zeal too earnest to find fault.

Together we organized and had charge of what is now the Belleville church in Republic County, the South Solomon church, near Osborne City, the North Solomon church, on the north fork of the Solomon River at Osborne County, the Burr Oak church, at Burr Oak, and the White Rock church in Jewell County.

The churches are still alive, so far as I know. Bro. Ives as leader, and I as helper, sowed the first seed for all these plants.

Later on we were ably assisted by Bro. John Forney and Bro. Samuel Stump, of Dickinson County, Kans., who ministered to these churches every fall and were present on most of the love feast occasions. Still later Bro. Lemuel Hillery and Bro. M. M. Eshelman labored in those fields. Bro. Jas. R. Gish also visited us.

I do not know the aggregate membership of these churches now. Many that were members have, like Bro. Ives, gone to their eternal reward. But the plants remain and have spread and brought forth fruit to the glory of God, and to the most commendable and lasting honor of that zealous pioneer and missionary, Bro. Allen Ives.

WAYSIDE NOTES.

I was called to the Berrien church, Mich., over Sunday, to preach for our people. This point has been looked after by the Mission Board of Northern Indiana for years. They have a good house, and a good country, but lack the services of an active minister. Bro. Richard Shreve is one of the retired ministers. He is in declining health, and his family will move to Alabama, in the near future, for the benefit of his health.

The Berrien church has been some dark clouds in days gone by. A brighter day may be hers to enjoy, if the members will stand united and work in the one common cause for the salvation of souls. Bro. Eli Roose, of Nappanee, Ind., has the work in hand. There was a time when this church did good work, but, like the Laodicean church, the members went worldward, and the cause has been crippled. Some other churches in the Brotherhood have gone over the same road, and keenly feel the need of more spiritual life. When we consider the Seven Churches of Asia and their fall, we need not wonder if the same thing may happen in these days. May we look to God for help!

Goshen, Ind., Nov. 20. J. H. Miller.

BETHEL, ILLINOIS.

We held our love feast Nov. 5, with Bro. Zimmerman, of Chicago, officiating. A number were with us, and we enjoyed a splendid spiritual feast. Bro. Zimmerman spoke to a very appreciative audience in the morning. Nov. 19 was another "red letter" day for us, for in the morning we had a fine Sunday-school program. Most of the speakers were the officers and teachers of our Sunday-school. Many good talks were given. In the evening Sisters Shock, Bright, Bradley, and Eshelman, and three Chinese brethren were with us, who rendered a most inspiring program to a full house. These three brethren are preparing for the China mission field. When we saw their happy faces and heard their testimonies of what Christ has done for them, we were constrained to offer a silent prayer to God in thankfulness for his great goodness, in making known the good tidings to these our Chinese brethren. On Monday evening a small social gathering was held at our parsonage, so that the Bethel members might become better acquainted with these dear sisters and our future missionaries, the Chinese brethren. We expect to have a Thanksgiving service here on Thursday at 10: 30 A. M. Estella B. M. Erb.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord"

Buffmeyer, Bro. Jacob S., born in Lancaster County, Pa., Nov. 16, 1834; died of apoplexy at his home near Argenta, Ill., Nov. 14, 1911, aged 77 years. In 1854 he was united in marriage to Mary Ann Hershey. To this union were born twelve children. Five of them are now living. He united with the Church of the Brethren in 1866, and lived a consistent life until death. Services by Eld. W. T. Heckman. Text, 1 Tim. 1: 15.—Etta Buckingham, Oakley, Ill.

Davison, Sister Elizabeth Frances, wife of Bro. Franklin Davison, born in Douglass County, Kans., in 1849, died near Reedley, Cal., Nov. 8, 1911, aged 62 years. Sister Davison came with her husband to California from Oregon in 1903, and located in Fresno County near Reedley. She was one of the ten charter members of the Reedley congregation, and was loyal and devoted to the church of her choice. For some time her health was not good, but she was ever hopeful and cheerful. She was conversing at the fireside and seemed as well as usual, but complained of pain and went to her room to retire for the night. Her husband followed her a little later and found that her spirit had taken its flight. The spirit had taken its flight. Services at the Brethren church in Reedley, by Eld. D. L. Forney. Interment in the Reedley cemetery.—Sadie Forney, Dinuba, Cal.

Dilla, Sister Mary J., born in Miami County, Ohio, May 27, 1846, died Nov. 15, 1911. She united with the Church of the Brethren in 1871. Interment in Mishawaka, Ind. Services by the writer.—H. W. Krieghbaum. 1032 Vistula Avenue, South Bend, Ind.

Dodge, Sister Ethelda Blanche, nee Binkley, born April 27, 1871, died Nov. 11, 1911, aged 40 years, 6 months and 15 days. She united with the Church of the Brethren when she was quite young. Dec. 23, 1893, she was united in marriage to John R. Dodge. To this union were born nine children, seven of whom are still living. The family deeply feels the loss of a loving wife and mother, but we trust prayers may be said that might be spared to care for her children. Services at the County Line church, by Bro. Byerly, assisted by the writer.—Ira N. I. Cool and James Guthrie.—I. W. Byerly, Lima, Ohio.

Emmert, Sister Sarah, died of old age, at her home near Boonsboro, Md., Oct. 4, 1911, in her eighty-fourth year. She united with the Church of the Brethren fifty years ago and lived faithful till death. Services at the home by Bro. Caleb Long, assisted by Bro. G. A. Paretti. Text, 2 Cor. 5: 1. Her husband, Bro. Leonard Emmert, died just four weeks later, Nov. 1, 1911, of heart trouble, in his seventy-eighth year. These aged pilgrims lived faithful lives, and always attended meeting when ever possible, especially love feasts. They are survived by one son and one daughter. Services at the home by Bro. Caleb Long. Text, Eccles. 3: 2.—Interment in the Mount Zion cemetery.—B. F. Foltz, Mapleville, Md.

Gilbert, Sister Mary, nee Horning, wife of Israel Gilbert, born in Pennsylvania, April 3, 1837, died in the bounds of the Ogans Creek congregation, Wabash Co., Ind., Nov. 17, 1911, aged 74 years, 7 months and 14 days. To this union were born eleven children. Her husband and three children preceded her to the great beyond. She leaves eight children, two brothers and one sister. Her relatives and friends will miss her. She united with the Church of the Brethren in her youth and lived a consistent life. Services by Bro. Geo. Swihart, assisted by Bro. Ira Kreider. Text, Rev. 14: 13. Interment in the Fairview cemetery.—Sallie E. Carr, North Manchester, Ind.

Haller, Bro. Nicholas, born in Prussia, Germany, near the River Rhine, Nov. 3, 1823, died Nov. 18, 1911. He emigrated to America in 1854, and located in Cass County, Mich., where he resided until his death. He was a faithful Christian unto the end. Services in the Newton Grove house, Pokagon congregation, Mich.—H. W. Krieghbaum, 1023 Vistula Avenue, South Bend, Ind.

Hoover, Bro. John S., son of Michael and Catharine Hoover, born near Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 10, 1841, died at his home in Goshen, Ind., Nov. 9, 1911, aged 70 years and 1 month. He came to Ohio from Harrisburg, Pa., in 1862. Jan. 28, 1864, he was united in marriage to Lementine Tobias, of near Dayton, Ohio. To this union were born three sons and four daughters. He labored with the Church of the Brethren in 1871. He moved from Ohio to Elkhart County, Ind., in 1879, where he resided until his death. He leaves his faithful wife, two sons and four daughters. One son preceded him. Services by Bro. William Hess, assisted by Bro. William Bussard.—Mrs. Ole Brumbaugh, Goshen, Ind.

Jolliff, Sister Lydia, A., born March 25, 1844, died Nov. 16, 1911, aged 67 years, 7 months and 22 days. She united with the Church of the Brethren at the age of twenty years. She was married to W. A. Jolliff March 25, 1866. They had four sons and five daughters. One son and two daughters preceded her in death.—Mrs. Mary Wolfe, 364 Beechurst Avenue, Morgantown, W. Va.

Jones, Sister Anna, nee Adkison, born in Mahaska Co., Iowa, Nov. 12, 1861, died near Lyle, Minn., Nov. 9, 1911, aged 49 years, 11 months and 11 days. She leaves her husband, John W. Jones, five children, her parents, two sisters and three brothers. Sister Jones united with the Church of the Brethren about four years ago, and lived a consistent Christian life until her death. Services by the writer, near Lovilia, Iowa, at the Cedarville church. Interment in the cemetery adjoining the church.—Frank Roberts, Albia, Iowa.

Kirby, Bro. Geo. W., died Nov. 18, 1911, in the bounds of the Flat Rock congregation, Va., in the sixty-third year of his life. Bro. Kirby was married twice. His first wife was Rleanora Myers. To this union two children were born. Three of these died while in infancy. His last wife was Delilah Nasselrodt. To this union three children were born. Seven children are living; also his wife. Bro. Kirby was a native of Fauquier County, Va., interred near the Flat Rock Brethren church. Services by Bro. S. W. Neff.—J. W. Myers, Pattonsville, Va.

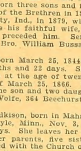
Mumper, Sister Arissa Mumper, born July 20, 1835, died in the bounds of the Perry congregation, Pa., Nov. 12, 1911, aged 76 years, 3 months and 22 days. She united with the Church of the Brethren a number of years ago, and lived faithful until death. Just three weeks before her death she had the pleasure of seeing two of her daughters unite with the church through the rite of baptism. She took sick suddenly at the waterside, while baptism was being administered, and her sickness was of such a nature that the doctors thought best to take her to the hospital at once. She would not submit to an operation, but came home and died two days after her return home. Her death is a and stroke to her family. She leaves a husband and nine children. Sister Mumper was well known to be a kind neighbor and friend to all. She was always ready to do a favor. She was an affectionate wife and a devoted mother, and will be greatly missed. Services by the writer, assisted by Bro. I. L. Weibley. Text, "Thou shalt be missed because thy seat will be empty." 1 Sam. 20: 18. Interment in the Three Spring cemetery.—E. D. Book, Blain, Pa.

Newman, Sister Sophronia, born May 30, 1848, at Little Falls, W. Va., found dead in her bed at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Ambrose, of Clarksburg, W. Va., Nov. 17, 1911, aged 63 years, 5 months and 17 days. She was brought to her home in Morgantown, W. Va., where she made her home with another one of her daughters, Mrs. Geo. Middleton. Sister Newman was a faithful member of the Church of the Brethren. Services by Eld. Jasper Barnthouse, of Uniontown, Pa., and Bro. W. J. Hamilton. Text, "In my Father's house are many mansions." Sister Newman's husband died Feb. 19, 1902. She is survived by one brother, three sons and six daughters. Interment in the Mount Union cemetery.—Mrs. Mary Wolfe, 364 Beechurst Avenue, Morgantown, W. Va.

Stong, Sister Sophia A., wife of Bro. Geo. W. Stong, born in Juniata County, Pa., Dec. 26, 1843, died at the home of her son-in-law, Brother and Sister L. J. Welch, in the bounds of the Salem congregation, N. Dak., Nov. 6, 1911, aged 67 years, 10 months and 16 days. She leaves her husband and ten children. She was taken sick last May with a tumor, and then dropsy set in. She was a great sufferer, but died an affliction patiently. Her only concern was for the future world and her children. She called for the elders and was anointed last June. She spent the greater part of her last days in prayer. She was a saintly wife and mother, and has gone to her reward. Services by Eld. J. H. Brower and Eld. Job 14.—J. W. Crips, Newville, N. Dak.

Stump, Sister, nee of Brother and Sister Edward Stump, born Dec. 30, 1909, died Nov. 3, 1911, aged 1 year, 11 months and 5 days. He took sick suddenly and lived only a few days. Services in the Pine Creek congregation, Ill., conducted by Eld. Jacob Hildebrand. Interment in the Pair cemetery.—M. S. Morris, R. D. 1, Walkerton, Ind.

Switzer, Sister Bettie, nee Good, born in Shenandoah County, Va., Dec. 3, 1845, died of stomach trouble at her home near Spring Hill, in the bounds of the Lebanon congregation, Va., Oct. 26, 1911, aged 65 years, 10 months and 17 days. She was united in marriage to Daniel Switzer in 1871. To this union were born two sons and two daughters. She was baptized twenty-five years ago, and remained faithful until death. She is survived by her husband, one son, and one daughter in California; also one brother and one sister in Kansas. One son died in his infancy and one daughter a few years ago. Services at the Lebanon church by Eld. Peter Garber, assisted by Bro. J. W. Cline. Interment in the cemetery near by.—E. Estella Garber, Ft. Defiance, Va.



Wise, Bro. Isaac, born Dec. 8, 1843, near Covington, Ohio, died at his home at Conway Springs, Kans., Nov. 11, 1911, aged 67 years, 11 months and 14 days. His death was caused by hemorrhages. In 1865 he was married to Mary Market. To them were born five sons and two daughters. One son died at the age of three years, and one daughter died in infancy. Bro. Wise and his wife united with the Church of the Brethren in 1885. He died faithful in the church. He chose his own funeral text about one year ago: "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." Services at the Brethren church by the writer.—J. J. Bowser, Conway Springs, Kans.

Young, John David, son of Bro. W. E. and Sister Mary Young, born July 7, 1884, died Nov. 12, 1911, aged 17 years, 4 months and 5 days. He leaves his father, a stepmother, two brothers and three sisters. Friend John was formerly dealt, being struck by a G. R. & I. passenger train near Elmira, Mich., where he had secured a position as a call boy. Services at Clarion by the writer. Text, Psa. 88: 18. Interment in the Brethren cemetery.—Joseph Warren Sala, Petoskey, Mich.

MISSIONARIES WANTED—

You don't have to go to India or China or Africa and endure privation and suffer hardship or be massacred. You can do the best kind of missionary work right at home, and you won't need any preparation or previous training either. All you need to do is to use a little of your spare time and a little of your surplus cash.

One of the best missionaries to the home that we know of is the Gospel Messenger. It preaches several sermons each week to each and every person that reads it, besides containing interesting bits of news and timely articles on up-to-date subjects.

This paper does not have the circulation that its worth deserves; possibly the reason for this is that a good many people do not know of its value, and thus are not aware of the benefit they are missing.

OUR PROPOSITION IS THIS

We will offer the Gospel Messenger for only 50 cents a year if sent into homes where there are no members of the Church of the Brethren. This fact of course is to be mentioned when sending in your orders. The General Mission Board will pay the deficiency.

Why not take advantage of this special offer and BE A MISSIONARY? If each present subscriber would send in but ONE subscription we would double our list, and the good derived could not be estimated.

Will You Be a Missionary?

DID YOU EVER WANT SOMETHING THAT YOU COULDN'T GET?

The BEAUTY BOOKLETS

are what you want, and this is the place to get them

Their name gives an idea of their attractiveness, but they must be seen to be appreciated. Into each volume are gathered selections which are the cream of the writings of a certain author. You don't have to buy a complete set of the author's writings and pick out the best—the best is already picked out and put into a handsome booklet, 3½x5 inches, bound in good cloth, with gold title on side. Can be mailed in an envelope and makes an appropriate gift.

Look at the following titles and then say whether or not you can afford to do without them:

a visit to all the congregations in our Second District of West Virginia. His whole soul is in his work and he is in earnest. We were glad for his visit among us, though his stay seemed entirely too short. A collection of $19.25 was taken here at the Antioch house. He will be with us Nov. 22 and 23, at Shiloh Nov. 24 and 25, at Mount Zion Nov. 26 and 27, at Valley River, Junior, Nov. 28 and 29, at Beam's Chapel Nov. 30 and Dec. 1. From there he will go to Pleasant Valley.—A. C. Auvil, Thornton, W. Va., Nov. 23.

Bluefield.—Nov. 26, at 11 A. M., Bro. C. E. Hylton, Va., preached for us. At 3 P. M. we met for Sunday-school. The attendance was good. At 5 P. M. we held our first council meeting. Our elder, Bro. D. Newton Eller, of Dalevilla, Va., presided. The matter of being organized into a church was considered, and it was unanimously agreed that we be organized. The boundary line between the Bluefield and Smith's Chapel churches, both in West Virginia, was decided on. Unanimously we agreed to live in obedience to the principles of the church, and to work in harmony with the District and General Conference. As officers for the coming year, Bro. C. E. Boone was elected treasurer, and the writer, Church Messenger correspondent. At 7: 45 P. M. Bro. D. N. Eller preached our "The Second Coming of Christ." It was a pleasure for us to have preaching here twice each month.—Irene A. Boone, Bluefield, W. Va., Nov. 27.

Spruce Run.—Oct. 14 we enjoyed a spiritual love feast, Bro. C. E. Eller officiated. One brother was received by letter. On Sunday the 15th our elder administered baptism. Nov. 11 we met in council with Bro. Hutchison presiding. Nov. 12 Bro. J. H. Gnagey began a series of meetings here, continuing until the 19th. Our dear brother labored earnestly, and preached the truth with power. The weather was very bad, the attendance was small, but the order and attention were good. We feel much encouraged to press on in the good work.—Lucy A. Fleshman, R. 1, Box 61, Lindside, W. Va., Nov. 26.

Union Chapel.—Bro. Albert Arnold, of Eglon, W. Va., commenced to preach for us Nov. 12, closing the meetings Nov. 26, after preaching sixteen inspiring sermons. We met out on the Lord's side and were buried with Christ in baptism. Many good impressions were made, and more are near the kingdom. Our little congregation feels greatly built up. The work has been much strengthened here by his having come into our midst.—Mary Hamrick, W. Va., Nov. 27.

NOTES NOT CLASSIFIED.

Sabetha.—Eld. Geo. Manon, of Gypsum, Kans., is with us at this time, holding a series of meetings. He is preaching some strong gospel sermons. The meetings are to continue indefinitely.—F. A. Yoder, Sabetha, Kans., Nov. 26.

MINNEAPOLIS MISSION, MINNESOTA.

Nov. 19 and 20 we had with us Bro. Shock, of Chicago. He gave us three Spirit-filled messages, which were enjoyed, and, we hope, will be given much thought by those who attended. Bro. Fike, of Waterloo, Iowa, President of our District Mission Board, was here at the same time, and it was arranged that Bro. Shock take up the work at this place, beginning May 1, next. Until that time Bro. Barnhart will still have charge.

Our Sunday-school has been the best in attendance this fall. With the exception of one Sunday, we have enrolled from one to six new pupils each Sunday since Oct. 1. We hope this may still continue.

We have received two barrels, one trunk, one sack and a box of clothing, and there are two more barrels now coming. This is all the clothing we have received since last winter. We are very thankful, indeed, for these. Every piece will find a place in helping others.

Winter has set in now for several weeks past, and we feel that the needs will be many. We hope the churches in the District will remember that fuel, light for the church, and all incidental expenses, must be met from their contributions. May the Lord bless you in your giving, that the poor may be ministered unto, and the Lord's work carried forward at this place.—Bertha Brunskill, 1210 Twenty-fifth Avenue, North, Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 29.

No. 565—AUTUMN LEAF HAND PAINTED MOTTOES. The mottoes in this series are very pretty and dainty. A short poem is printed in gold or another color, with illuminated initial. At the top of the card is a leaf of oak or maple or ivy, embossed and tinted. In the center of the leaf is a pretty scene; one of a stone bridge, another a country house, another an old Dutch windmill, etc. The picture is in natural colors. Around the edges of the card are hand painted sprays of pansies, violets, roses, etc. The whole surface of the motto card is beautifully tinted and shaded so that it presents a truly exquisite appearance. Very appropriate for gift purposes, and will be greatly appreciated by the receiver. Size, 6½x8 inches. Each, 16c; per Dozen, $1.50

No. 41—ART SERIES OF HAND PAINTED WALL MOTTOES. These are unquestionably beautiful. They are painted on Bristol cardboard mounted in roughened and has gold beveled edge. The poem is printed in red and black. The poems alone are of sufficient merit to make the mottoes well worth the price. The hand painting on these mottoes is wonderful. The shapes and colors of the flowers and leaves is so perfect that one can almost smell the perfume coming from them. And it is genuine hand work, too. The flowers are painted against a delicately tinted background. If you want an inexpensive yet very acceptable gift for a friend, you can find nothing better than these mottoes. You can get no idea at all from the illustration of the superb coloring. Size, 7½x9½ inches. Each, 50c; per Dozen, $6.00

Texts—
"Proven."
"Abide with Me."
"A Wish."
"Consolation."
"Good Night."

No. 501—THE GREAT HEALER, Size, 19¾x12. A beautiful reproduction of the famous picture by Gabriel Max, printed in full Chromo Lithography. Mounted on Art Boards, with suitable texts in white letters. This is a special card, for which a very large sale is expected. NOTE THE SIZE OF THIS CARD. Corded. Each, 25c; Per Dozen, $2.50

Texts—
"His compassions fail not."
"He careth for you."
"God is our refuge."
"Rest in the Lord."

No. 345—ROCK OF AGES. Size, 12⅝x9½. A fine series of silver blocked verse cards with designs of a cross in silver, with colored inlaid roses entwined round and across the design. Corded. Silver beveled edges. Each, 25c; per Dozen, $2.50

AROUND THE WORLD

The Smile That Counts.

In the vestibule of a New York hospital all visitors are confronted by a card bearing this advice: "Never utter a discouraging word while you are in this hospital. Come only to help. Keep your hindering, sad looks for other places. If you can't smile, don't go in." We are wondering if the directions, above given, would not be most excellent if applied more universally,—to home as well as church associations! There is not a soul that can not be touched by the magic of a smile! It is a ray of hope and a savor of life to the discouraged. It helps the little child just entering life's rugged pathway, and cheers the aged pilgrim in the lonely decline of life. More and more we need to apply the sunshine of the heart,—the smile of heaven-kindled joy and hope!

Arbitration Treaty With Germany.

Convinced of the fact that an arbitration treaty with Germany would go far in the promotion of international peace, Pres. Taft is now making arrangements to that end, hoping that with the treaties now awaiting ratification, a notable movement in favor of peace will be consummated. Coincident with the above we note Mr. Carnegie's active efforts along the same line. He claims that a treaty between the United States, Germany, Great Britain and France will enable these countries to "stand four square to all the winds that blow,—a mighty monument to peace! If we could get this quartet to play a tune, it would not be a hard matter to have the rest of the world fall in with the refrain." Let us hope that Mr. Carnegie's prophecy may be abundantly fulfilled in the Lord's own good time, even more fully than he anticipates!

Is China to Be a Republic?

Under date of Dec. 9 the revolutionary element of the Celestial Empire, through Gen. Li Huen Heng and other leaders of the movement, is reported as having formulated a constitution for the proposed Chinese republic. The conference was held at Wu-Chang, and eight provinces were represented in the deliberations. Whether the entire Chinese nation will be willing to accede to such a plan,—granting that the revolutionists succeed in the overthrow of the present dynasty,—remains to be seen. And even the establishing of a republic will be no guaranty of its ultimate permanency and security, unless the people are fully qualified to carry it on successfully. Promoters of the new republic predict an early settlement of pending troubles and a possibility of a speedy resumption of missionary labors in all parts of the empire.

Liquor Forces to Attack Oklahoma.

When Oklahoma was entered as one of the States of the Union, it was dry territory. Now the saloon element is circulating a petition to have prohibition repealed and local option, with the county as a unit, substituted. Fortunately, however, for the cause of temperance, there is a federal provision which specifies that the entire part of Oklahoma, formerly known as "Indian Territory" must remain dry for a period of twenty years from the time it was admitted as a State. It is hardly feasible to repeal a State-wide law for one-half of the State and have it remain effective in the other half. If the courts take a fair and square look at the facts in the case, the anxious petitioners will probably be forced to wait for the expiration of the restraining clause. And by that time, let us hope, temperance sentiment in the flourishing western State will have become so pronounced that the fiercest attacks of the liquor forces will be unavailing.

Why Not Have a Missionary Tree?

At a recent missionary gathering a devoted worker of long experience told his audience: "I have established missionary trees all over the country. Perhaps you do not know what a missionary tree is. It is one whose profit goes entirely to missions. A Roxbury, Md., farmer has in his apple orchard a golden pippin tree that helps to support the Chinese missions. A Florida woman has an orange tree that helps to uplift the cannibals of New Guinea. A California nut farmer devotes a walnut tree to the spread of the faith in Zanzibar." While reading this, we were forcibly impressed with the fact that a most effective impetus could be given to our own mission work by a systematic application of the above plan. Practically all of our members have room on their premises for at least one missionary tree, and many might have a number of them. Then, goo, let us not forget that the principle underlying this and all other similar efforts is not confined to that one feature alone, but reaches out to every occupation and avenue of life's busy arena. As the Lord has prospered, so let us give,—abundantly, cheerfully! It is a matter of vital importance. But in a few fleeting weeks another year will be ushered in,—a gracious gift from the Loving Father above. Freighted so richly with new possibilities, new opportunities, what will it mean to the progress of the Kingdom? Will the missionary enterprises, so effectually entered upon by the Church of the Brethren, be sustained more amply than ever before by the consecrated gifts and earnest prayers of the membership? Do the millions, dying outside of Christ's redeeming grace, prompt us to redoubled effort? If so, let us not tarry. "The King's business requireth haste."

Diplomacy Better Than Threats.

It would be easy, right now, for our Government to get into a serious difficulty with Russia over the treatment of Jewish-American citizens who happen to reside in the Czar's domains. Notwithstanding the definite and comprehensive stipulations of the long-established treaty, our Jewish citizens have been discriminated against, and treated shamefully. Our authorities are being urged by many of the more impulsive and thoughtless to abrogate the treaty and bring matters to a crisis, but better counsels are likely to prevail. It is now thought that the entire matter can probably be settled by The Hague Court, which has complete jurisdiction over cases of the kind. There are better ways of settling differences of opinion than by angry threats and the brandishing of swords.

Violence Must Cease.

It is truly encouraging to note that from all portions of the United States,—from the ranks of union labor as well as from the people outside of those organizations,—there is but the one insistent and all-pervading idea that violence in labor troubles must cease. With James B. McNamara serving a life term in the State penitentiary of California, and his brother, John J. McNamara, sentenced to spend fifteen years in the same place, two of the chief actors in the Los Angeles dynamite outrages are paying the penalty of their transgression of law, but the public is interested as to the future policy of labor agitators. Organized labor, evidently, has two factions,—one of honest, law-abiding men, the other disposed to gain their points at all hazards, and making use of violence if thereby they can gain their point. Are we to have order and law-abiding conditions, or is there to be a periodical repetition of the deplorable outrages of the past?

A Waldensian Colony for Manitoba.

It is announced that a colony of Waldensians is to be established in Manitoba. If the new settlers are anything like their earnest and heroic ancestors, they will be a decided gain to their immediate neighborhood. A noble history is theirs. The fires of many bitter persecutions in no way discouraged their zeal. Their complete extermination was attempted by popes and emperors, but at no time succeeded, so that a small but vigorous remnant still survives,—the oldest Protestant organization in the world. It will be remembered that Peter Waldo, a rich merchant of Lyons, France, in 1170 freely gave up all his possessions in order to preach Christ and him crucified, and he thus became the leader of the courageous and determined band that feared neither Roman intrigues nor the prisons, torture and cruel death of the civil powers. Devotion and faithfulness like that of the Waldensians should inspire thousands of timid and inactive Christians of these latter days to renewed vigilance. "Quit you like men; be strong!"

Modern Dishonesty.

That commendable progress is being made in the battle against dishonesty and questionable practices, affords gratification to every lover of truth and righteousness. Horse-racing, the lottery, and other gambling devices, have been put under the ban of legal prohibition, and the growth of a purer public sentiment tells powerfully in the practical enforcement of all prohibitory laws. Of late there is renewed agitation against dishonest weights, adulterations, and fraudulent schemes of any description, resulting in a goodly number of convictions. Most forcibly we are reminded of the sad fate of those whose aim is to get rich at any cost but that of work. Truly, "the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil," as the apostle so emphatically assures us. Many of the latter-day forms of dishonesty were perhaps unthought of by the simple fishermen on the shores of the Sea of Galilee, but the genius of their teaching is applicable to every case of dishonesty, however much men may seek to hide behind the flimsy disguise of legal technicality.

New Zealand's Military Act.

Brief reference has been made, in these columns, to the stringent requirements of New Zealand, which not only impose military training upon school-boys of tender age, but insist upon further rigorous service after the close of their school period. The "Maoriland Worker" relates the story of two boys who, conscientiously opposed to the bearing of arms, were compelled to undergo twenty-one days' imprisonment each, at hard labor, because they preferred to stand for principle, no matter at what cost. It seems hardly possible that, in these days of progress and enlightenment, there should crop out this spirit of sinister compulsion and tyranny, which would punish the courageous souls to whom the anti-war spirit is a sacred and divine principle. Whether the military frenzy will ever attain like dimensions in this country, only the future can reveal. If, however, the matter should be brought to a test, may the Church of the Brethren be found firmly implanted upon the Rock of Everlasting Truth, ready to suffer, if need be, in the maintenance of the time-honored principle of nonresistance.

What a Settlement Worker Says.

Most of our readers are familiar with the excellent and far-reaching work of uplift carried on in Chicago by Miss Jane Addams, the great settlement worker. In her efforts of lifting up the downtrodden, discouraged and needy, she comes in close touch with the sources of sin and degradation. Recently-completed investigations have convinced her that "on a Sunday night in Chicago one-sixth of the entire population is led into 466 moving picture shows." Meanwhile hundreds of churches in the same city are but half filled, to the great loss of spirituality and desire for better things. Throughout the United States 8,000,000 admission tickets are sold daily for the 15,000 moving picture theaters,—all the managers of these concerns assure us. Those with a taste for statistical compilations may obtain some interesting data by figuring the vast sums spent daily for pleasure and entertainment,—wholly unremunerative as compared with the putting devoted to the dissemination of the real and vital truths of religion. And yet we loudly acclaim that "religion is the chief concern of mortals here below!"

Mormons and Tracts.

It is stated by those in close touch with Mormonism that their chief strength and proselyting power is gained by a judicious distribution of tracts, reenforced by the active efforts of their missionaries. In one community, where Mormons recently attempted to work, prejudice was strong against them, and they were not allowed a hall in which to teach the people publicly. Not a whit discouraged, however, the Mormon elders kept themselves busy. They visited the people in their homes, spoke kindly to them, and at each place left some tracts, with the courteous request that they be accorded a careful reading. It is reported that their lawful method of tract distribution exerted a perceptible influence upon the people. We refer to this matter to call special attention to the fact that the millions of Mormon tracts and leaflets are having their intended effect. Furthermore, we should get the much-needed lesson that we, as a church, are letting thousands of splendid opportunities go by, of doing a most effective work in the promulgation of gospel truth as it is in Christ Jesus. We talk of "sowing by all waters," but too often we are most lamentably lax in making even the smallest effort well within our reach.

Gathering Up the Fragments.

The Treasury Department at Washington employs two faithful women as wastebasket searchers. It is their duty to examine every scrap of paper thrown out by the busy workers of the Government, lest money or bonds be inadvertently. It is said that they have already saved the Government over $1,000,000 in the actual value of money recovered, besides the fortunate discovery of important documents, accidentally dropped. It might be well if like vigilance were applied to the more important matter of Government expenditures, so lavishly made by the nation's representatives at Washington. Too often but slight scrutiny is given to the many demands for the nation's funds by the "billion dollar Congress," which not excite a great degree of comment. Most profitably, however, may we apply the lesson to people like ourselves, in the common walks of life. The difference between failure and success often hinges upon our ability to watch out for the little matters,—the small and insignificant things, as we consider them. Spiritually speaking, many a one has made a sad shipwreck of life's voyage by failing to make use of the little opportunities within his reach. He is unwise indeed, who "despiseth the day of small things."

ESSAYS

Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth

Onward.

As we journey onward, homeward,
In this vale of sighs and tears;
Let us strive to be more cheerful—
Lay aside our doubts and fears.

'Tis not well to cringe and falter—
Weep, complain and mourn and fight.
Let us feel that we are striking—
Striking still for truth and right.

Some there are who borrow trouble—
Fear the lions in the way.
Think, perhaps it would be better
If they'd stop or turn away.

Oh, this useless, sad complaining!
Why not strive to live it down?
Why not then be faithful, honest,
Striving still to win the crown?

Let us start with new endeavor—
Let us aim to do the right.
Let us walk with honest purpose,
Onward, upward in the light.

Are You a Deacon?

BY DR. O. H. YEREMAN.

Are you a deacon? If you are, I want to talk to you awhile. What is your work in the church? Perhaps you think it strange that I ask you such a question, but did you ever try to find an answer to it? What do you do? If you stop to think of it, there are usually two things which you are expected to do. The one is to set the tables on love-feast occasions. The other is to assist in the work of paying the annual visit to the members of your local congregation. This comes only once a year, and I have lived in a congregation where the elder and his wife attended to almost all the visiting, so that the deacons were free from even that work. I also know of places where the sisters do almost all the work on love feast occasions, and I venture that many of my readers know of similar instances, so that the deacons of such churches do practically nothing.

Of course, there are exceptions to this rule. There are places where the deacons are called on to do more than this; but my observations, in my travels through the Brotherhood, lead me to think that this is the rule in the majority of the congregations.

I remember, some fourteen years ago, that in our older congregations, where they had the long tables for their pulpits, there was a deacon's bench facing that of the preachers. Here the deacons were seated, one next to the other, according to their seniority. And they tell me that, at an earlier date than that, the deacons did not only sit there, but assisted in the services by reading the Scripture lesson, offering prayer, and even making a few public exhortations and remarks of assent at the close of the sermon. I have even heard of their taking the minister to task, on points of doctrine where they thought him to be weak.

But these things are in the past. The average deacon of today in some congregations, at least, is a stranger to any duty, except that of paying the annual visit and preparing the tables. And as considerable of the table setting is done by the sisters, I have often wondered why we have deacons any more. Why should we have deacons? Why are you a deacon? Why those stringent qualifications and that long ceremony of installation, if your office does not amount to more than setting tables?

If you survey the situation from this point of view, you will be led to conclude that the deacons are either a mere figurehead in the church, or that we are not using them as we should. And the latter conclusion is the correct one.

Studying the question from the Bible standpoint, we find that in the days of the apostles the deacon's office was a very important one, and those who held it were as actively engaged in caring for the church as the ministry itself. In fact, I am led to believe that the diaconate was a department of the ministry, its officers having to deal with the internal affairs of the church, and holding a sort of common-pleas court. To be more specific, the deacons looked after the temporal needs of the membership at large, caring for the widows and orphans, settling the little differences which arose among a polyethnic membership, of which the church at this time consisted. Doubtless you remember that it was "the Grecians who murmured against the Hebrews, because their widows were neglected in the daily ministration." In other words, the widows of the Hellenists,—Jews who had resided in foreign countries and had adopted the Greek language and many of the foreign customs,—were being neglected, while the widows of the Hebrews, or the old resident Jews of Jerusalem, being better known, received the daily care and ministration which they needed.

The original Greek version strengthens me in the position that the diaconate is a department of the ministry, in the fact that the apostles, in presenting their need of help to the church, state that it is not right that they should leave the ministry of the Word of God, and attend to the ministry of tables. The word diaconate is used in both instances. The passage, in a free translation, would be rendered, "It is not meet that we neglect the diaconate of the Word of God, to attend to the diaconate of tables."

The qualifications of the candidates for this office, as the apostles stated it to the church in Jerusalem; as well as those given by Paul in his letter to Timothy, where they are placed side by side with those of the bishop and are so similar in character, is further proof that the diaconate is a department of the ministry.

The practices of our church lead me to think that our early church-fathers looked at this matter in a similar light, for our ceremonies in the election and installation of deacons differ from the installation of ministers only in the absence of the authority for regular preaching. Furthermore, in the early days of our Brotherhood the diaconate was made a stepping-stone to the ministry, inasmuch as many of the ministers were called from the deacon's office.

Note further, if you please, that Stephen as well as Philip, out of these seven first chosen, engaged in preaching and did it so acceptably, that the Lord used them mightily. Our church fathers also believed that deacons should engage in witnessing for Christ; hence they authorized them to fill appointments in the absence of the ministers.

But, you will say, the deacons of today are not accustomed to exercise in public, and some of them would be afraid of the sound of their own voices. Supposing they are, whose fault is it? Have we preachers ever given them a chance? But I believe you are mistaken in your opinion that the deacons will not exercise in public. At least so it proved in a recent case which came under my notice.

All the ministers of a certain congregation were expecting to be absent on a certain Sunday, because of attending their District Conference. Their usual way was to announce that there would be no preaching on that Sunday, but, at the suggestion of one of the ministers, the deacon brethren were called together and the matter was laid before them. It was explained that some were afraid that the deacons would not undertake it, but the rest believed that they were fully able to do the work. At this point a gray-haired old deacon brother with tremulous voice remonstrated and said that they used to do such things frequently, in the early days of his deaconship, forty years ago. And so the service was left in the hands of the deacons, and they conducted it creditably, I assure you.

So we see that the fault lies largely with the ministry. Our deacons do not exercise because we do not give them a chance to exercise. They are weak, because we do not help them to get strong. They are not interested, because we give them nothing to do.

But, you will ask, What shall we give them to do? If there is so little work in your church that you can do it all without help, I am afraid your church is not very prosperous. But not to leave your question unanswered, I will say, Give them just what the Bible enjoins as being their duties,—the ministry,—which means the serving and the care. Our deacons should be given a chance to realize the blessedness of the privilege of serving and caring for the church. Most of them do not realize, that, like Christ, they have been called "not to be ministered unto, but to minister."

The cause for the election of deacons, at the time of the apostles, was the specific work of caring for the widows. That term can be easily covered by the word needy. In fact I like the word needy better, as it does not limit their activities to ministering to temporal wants only, but gives them free range to assist in spiritual matters as well. There is no church in existence which does not have needy ones in the broader sense of the term. If you think your church does not have them you are mistaken, for if you watch carefully, you will find the spiritual barometer of some of your members fluctuating; and the conscientious deacon is on the lookout for such fluctuations, and does not wait for orders from the preacher to go and warm up a member who is beginning to get cold. That member is not given a chance to get cold, nor his grievances to take root. They are "nipped in the bud."

Should the case have escaped his notice until it has taken the form of trouble between two members, then the deacon, again, can bring to bear his fatherly influence and often obtain a reconciliation, without parading the case before the entire church council. The performance of such things is no small task, and that is why the apostles mention, as essential qualifications, that the deacon should be a "man of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and [full of] wisdom."

And was this not the early custom of our own church, when the elders entrusted to the care of the deacons such members as needed their assistance? Perhaps it was the abuse of this custom, where the deacons were sent as a committee from the church council to rectify some slight transgression, which caused the antagonism against it, and thus almost stopped its employment. The coming of a single deacon in a kind, fatherly way, as a self-sent committee, softens and warms the heart of the erring one, where the coming of two of them as a church committee, often produces resentment and antagonism. This is the experience of the majority of our wide-awake, observing elders. To be sure, the deacon's committee has its rightful place in our church government, and its use should be continued; but its abuse has greatly limited its sphere of usefulness.

The interest of the deacons in the preaching service should be stimulated by employing them to accompany the minister in filling his appointments at distant preaching points. This would be the revival of an excellent custom which is almost dead among us.

On appropriate occasions the deacons should assist in the opening or closing of the services, by reading the scripture lesson, leading in prayer, and even exhorting. And that brings me to another important work, viz., the doing of personal work in urging sinners to come to Christ, especially during revival meetings. We depend too much on the minister and the revivalist to do the needed personal work. Much of it can be, and should be done by the home members, and especially by the deacons.

It is not necessary for me to enumerate the many other ways by which the deacons can and should serve their congregations. I only wish to add that we, of the ministry, should take the deacons into our confidence more than we do, use them much more than we are in the habit of doing, and thus give them an opportunity to prove to us that they are valuable assistants, given to us by the church to help us in the performance of our responsible duties.

Putting on the Brakes.

BY JAMES M. NEFF.

I had been up the mountain for a second load of "shakes." After the load was on, the young man who had been assisting me, very kindly went up the mountain side and cut a tree which was dragged down by one of the horses and chained to the rear of the wagon to supplement the brake.

When all was in readiness I started down, but soon discovered that my brake strength was insufficient.

With the tree dragging behind and the brake drawn as tightly as I could draw it, the load was still pushing on the team altogether too much to give the driver a comfortable feeling.

When I came to the steepest part of the road I decided something must be done to remedy the difficulty. Accordingly I scrambled up the slope above the road and with much effort cut a number of bushes and, tumbling them down into the road, I fastened some to the wagon and some to the various limbs of the tree, distributing them along its whole length until I had an array of brush that looked as if I were bringing out almost the whole woods with me.

I climbed to the seat and started again, only to see that something more must be done. In fact I had a heavier load than I should have tried to take down over such a road. I got down and inspected my brake. As I considered how much depended upon it, I thought, "What if my brake should break?" The road looked frightfully steep as I stood and contemplated it, and the gulch into which team, wagon and driver would have tumbled, had we gone down over the grade, was altogether too deep to be considered as any part of the program. I felt frightened.

What should I do? After revolving the thing in my mind awhile, I decided to tie a wheel. This changed things very materially and, indeed, proved to be more brake than I needed. On down we went, however, till we came to a little spot in the road not quite as steep as the steepest, when the team stopped. I said, "Go on down the mountain!" They made a faithful pull, then another and another, but they could move the load no further. "Can it be possible," thought I, "that I have stalled going down hill?" It was even so.

This piece of road is known all over the country as the "Frazier Grade" and is famous for its steepness. I thought, What a funny and absurd story I'll have to tell of stalling on the down-hill pull over the Frazier Grade!

I untied the wheel, and as the worst of the road had now been passed, I got down without further serious difficulty.

Now, the fact is, I wouldn't have stalled at all if I hadn't simply overdone the matter of putting on the brake.

And this reminds me that in a few instances I have seen churches on a standstill with apparently nothing before them but what should have been an easy, down-hill road. The difficulty was, they had too many members who were devoting themselves exclusively to putting on the brakes. There are, indeed, some otherwise good church folks who give themselves so incessantly to putting on the brakes that they seem to lose their fitness for any other kind of service. It's a pity.

Now and then, in his efforts at discipline, a parent makes the mistake of devoting himself exclusively to putting on the brakes. And to see a little fellow literally stalled going down hill, having been so incessantly nagged with "Don'ts" and "Quits" that he has given up all effort to please his superiors or do right, is really a sad sight.

Of course a brake is an essential and important thing on boy, church or wagon, but if you work it too hard, it stops all progress and renders useless the whole machinery.

The Church.

BY NETTIE C. WEYBRIGHT.

In Four Parts.—Part Three.

As to the nature of this new body, the church, it is not a mere organization, but an organism, a unit, a whole, one body, whose head is Christ. An essential factor of it is its absolute unity. It is not a religious club, not an association for moral culture only, not a mere human creation. The church, as an organic whole, as an organism, is clearly taught in 1 Cor. 12: 12, 13, "For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of the body, being many, are one body, so also is Christ. For in one Spirit were we all baptized into one body, whether Jews or Greeks, whether bond or free; and were all made to drink of one Spirit." The members of this body must be content to be just where the Great Master-hand has placed them, for in 1 Cor. 12: 18 we read, "But now hath God set the members each one of them in the body, even as it pleased him," and, according to verse 22, of the same chapter, we learn that even that member that seems to be feeblest or most unworthy is very essential for the perfection of the whole body. The unity is so essential a characteristic of this "body of Christ," that if one member suffer, all suffer, and if one member is glorified, all the members rejoice with it (v. 26). Paul, in Eph. 1: 23, says that the church is Christ's body, the fullness of him that filleth all in all.

Not only is the church his body, but in the new and nobler dispensation it is a "household" (Eph. 2: 19) in the economy of God, "in which God is the Householder, his Son, the Steward, the Spirit, the indwelling life, and faith the law which gathers and binds them together." It is the habitation of God (Eph. 2: 22), the place of God's glory. It is the temple of the Living God (2 Cor. 6: 16) in which Jesus Christ himself is the chief corner stone (Eph. 2: 20) and each member a living stone (1 Peter 2: 5), making a spiritual house (1 Peter. 2: 5). Christ is not only our Head (Col. 1: 18) but our foundation (1 Cor. 3: 10, 11) and the Bridegroom of the church (2 Cor. 11: 2). He has gone to prepare a place for her and will soon come and take her unto himself where she shall forever be with him (John 14: 2, 3). Composed of "many members" (1 Cor. 12: 20) it is considered an holy priesthood to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God through Jesus Christ (1 Peter 2: 5). The Spirit builds the house and abides in it (1 Cor. 3: 16). Love is the law of the church, for it is founded on grace. It is a new community rising out of the ruins of all former kingdoms, pervaded with new and immortal principles. Through it the gates of righteousness are opened to all nations. "The one great central pillar in the church is the Incarnation. Christ's humanity touches earth. His divinity reaches heaven." In the coming kingdom it will be the "new" or "holy" Jerusalem (Rev. 21: 2) and the tabernacle of God (Rev. 21: 3). "The Lord God, the Almighty, and the Lamb are the temple thereof" (Rev. 21: 22). In Matt. 16: 18, "Upon this rock I will build my church," we have the "rock-basis" of it. In 1 Tim. 3: 15 it is called the "church of the Living God," assuring us of its divine ownership.

Local church organization was not, at the first, suggested by Christ to his disciples. In the first history of the church, at Jerusalem, it seems to have been without complete organization, but when the necessity arose for men to look after the temporary needs of the widows and the other poor, and serving tables, seven were selected from their number for that purpose, and thus those who preached or attended to other spiritual needs of the church, were not hindered in their work. Thus, the first church came gradually to include "church officers," for in the great Providence of God, all things are provided as necessity demands.

Through the inspired writer of the Acts, and several of the Epistles, we have specific instructions as to church officers, the method of their calling, the qualifications necessary for their specific work in the church, and the duties and responsibilities devolving upon them in that office. Nor does he only give such instructions concerning them in the Sacred Word, but, through the Holy Spirit, from time to time, he prepares men, each for his definite work, and by the Spirit's power, in controlling the minds and hearts of his followers, he makes their service possible. And for these places it is essential that we have the best, purest, most thoroughly consecrated, best qualified men the church affords. These officers include bishops (1 Tim. 3: 4, 5), or elders (Acts 14: 23), and deacons (Acts 6: 1-6). The New Testament knows nothing of a priesthood,—excepting the "priesthood of all believers."

The Spirit transfuses and fills all hearts, and lifts us up into fellowship with God. We receive our nourishment,—all we need,—by our Head, Jesus Christ. We live on heavenly manna. All our petitions are heard and answered through him. Although our union with him is not visible, it is surely real and vital. Through him we have boldness before the throne of God. We are no longer his slaves, to tremble before an Almighty Lord and angry Judge, but we are his sons, and rejoice in the confidence of a Father's love. We can not fulfill the law. Human nature is too sinful for that, but Christ, our Head, obeyed perfectly, and made satisfaction for us. "Heavenlymindedness, union with the Son of God by faith, the hope of his coming and kingdom, of being with him, and like him in his glory, of reigning with him,—these are the heavenly things we are entreated to seek. These distinguish the religion of Christ, from all others."

We see the dignity of the church in Acts 15: 28, where the church, with its leaders, is placed on the same high throne with the Holy Spirit. They legislate with him, conscious of their exalted dignity and Divine fellowship. The church proper began with the coming of Christ to the earth, and will continue until Christ comes in glory and takes his bride home with him (1 Thess. 4: 16, 17). This is the present dispensation.

The history of the church is stated prophetically in Rev. 2 and 3, in the form of the letters or messages to the "Seven Churches of Asia." The church today is doubtless in the Laodicean age, as described in Rev. 3: 14-22, in which the great fault, as mentioned by the Spirit, is lukewarmness,—no holy zeal. It is this fault that threatens us today, and against which we must use our most earnest efforts.

After being separated from the world, and united together,—members one of another,—each one should be actively engaged in service for his new Master, giving of his time, talents and possessions, witnessing:—

1. To the atoning blood.

2. To the person of the Lord Jesus Christ and his work.

3. To the work of the Inspired Word in the cleansing of the life.

4. To the work of the Holy Spirit in the regeneration of character, for "ye are the light of the world, shedding light in the midst of the darkness, and dispersing the darkness."

This is not all. A Christian should be engaged in most earnest Bible study and prayer, for the spiritual development and growth of himself and all saints, and for the conversion of the unsaved, and in devout, reverential worship of the Great God, exalting him above all else, and in spiritual communion with him. By Christ's incarnation he became visible among us (John 1: 14; 1 John 1: 1, 2), and now it is our privilege to make him still visible to men (1 Peter 2: 9).

In this present dispensation it is God's will that the individual members of the body of Christ serve him, in their several capacities, as apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors and teachers, each doing all in his power to be a faithful witness of Christ, extending the borders of his church, bringing the light of Christ to those who know him not, glorifying God in their lives and all their activities, "for the perfecting of the saints, unto the work of ministering, unto the building up of the body of Christ, till we all attain unto the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a full grown man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ" (Eph. 4: 11-13).

The Stone From the Mountain.—Dan. 2: 34, 35.

BY A. H. O'BRIEN.

THIS picture in the image is the symbol of the world power in the whole future development of nations, and also their final destruction which is yet to take place. The transferring of political power from Judah is also implied in the figure. The image measures the duration of the Gentile power, which is now, and which is fast coming, to its consummation (Luke 21: 24). Until the time of the Gentiles is fulfilled, the "stone" is symbolic of a supernatural power, "not made with hands," but is heavenly, Divine. The mountain is the Messianic kingdom, yet to be set up in the old land of the Jews, with Jerusalem as its throne. (See Jer. 3: 17; Psa. 102: 13-17; Zech. 14: 4-8; Isa. 2: 2-4.) All is symbolic of the Messiah and his kingdom (Gen. 49: 23, 24). Here we see the wounded Christ, but we also see the strength of the Lord manifested in the phrase, "The stone of Israel."

The toes of the image correspond to the ten horns of the beast in the seventh chapter of Revelation. Thus the ten horns are ten kingdoms as well the toes. The two iron legs of the image correspond to the Eastern and Western hemispheres, and their ten toes are thus represented as spreading out in all directions. Talk about freedom in America. It is not true, it is deceitful. There is freedom in one man only, and that is found in Gal. 3: 13. We talk of a patriotic spirit. There is a sense in which we, as true citizens, "sojourners," feel and recognize the land of our adoption as the fatherland, but if we look at this scripture we see our nation, and all other nations, ground to powder, and driven away by this stone to make way for the coming Messianic kingdom.

There is but one kingdom that will have an everlasting duration. The Jews will be the people, then, in that, to lift all other people into blessing and dominion with their king (Rom. 11: 12). The day seems to be at hand when, literally, as the Gentile kingdoms carried away the Jews into captivity, they shall carry them back to their own land.

I. When did the stone strike? When the image, as represented by the feet and toes, was in power. There were the feet in the Babylonian days, nor in the Medo-Persian, nor in the Græco-Macedonian, nor in the Roman. But it is when these two iron legs exist in divided form. Toes and feet, part iron and part clay. It is here that we see the impossibility of the iron of imperialism and the clay of democracy endeavoring to cleave together. It is, therefore, evident that the stone did not strike at the birth of Christ, nor on the Day of Pentecost, nor in any other past period of history, for there were no feet to strike.

II. The stone struck suddenly. "The phrase, "Thou sawest" has direct reference to the vision from head to toes, and at the close of the vision "the stone not made with hands" struck.

III. It struck simultaneously. It did not strike repeatedly, but only once, and so completely broke in pieces the whole image. By one breath from the mouth of God will Christ break and destroy the world powers (Psa. 37: 10). The image did not decrease gradually but all together and like chaff. It was all overwhelmed and swept away at one time.

IV. The stone struck before it began to grow and not while it was growing into a mountain. Daniel says that the stone grew after it struck. It is when the stone does strike that the kingdom will come and will be set up, and from that time it will fill the whole earth (Acts 15: 16, 17; Micah 4: 1, 2).

It is, therefore, conclusive that the stone power has yet to fall and the kingdom to be set up. Or, as the Scripture says, the "times of the Gentiles are not yet fulfilled." The God-defying as well as man-defying powers will meet their awful doom in the coming crisis, a day yet in the future. May we be of a heavenly citizenship.

Review of Denny-Kesler Debate.

BY B. E. KESLER.

I HAVE been handed a report of the above debate by the elders of Sycamore (Disciple) congregation, Ind., with the request that I review it, which I shall now attempt to do.

"Eld. Kesler occupied nearly all of the entire time in three sessions on his favorite theme: 'The building of the kingdom.' From this time forth there was rough sea for his frail craft."

This is a clear admission that I had a smooth sea on the building of the kingdom and I surely did. Eld. Denny utterly failed to meet my arguments on that point.

"He next attempted to support their means of conversion, reading, as proof, statements from histories of the second and third centuries on the practice of the 'subapostolic church.' When Bro. D. arose to reply, the forgetful Kesler was reminded that he had signed a contract that nothing was to be taken as authority in the debate but the King James Version of the Bible."

To this it may be said that Eld. D. was the first to present outside testimony (the Manual and Minutes of Annual Meeting) and he seemed to be willing to take them as authority, even though I denied the Manual being authority; that all outside testimony I presented was corroborative of the Bible truth; that Eld. D. failed to show that any of it was at variance with the Bible; that it is a strange thing that Eld. D. and his brethren are so afraid of history. To me this is a surrender of the whole historic field and the practice of Christians from the apostles to 1809, when the doctrines of Eld. D.'s church were, for the first time in the history of the world, advocated.

"The audience was surprised beyond measure to hear Eld. K. flatly deny the name of his institution, the very name in the proposition to which he had signed his own name."

On this point I showed from the Minutes of 1908 that "Church of the Brethren" is our church name, and I proposed to submit to a committee of three teachers to decide the point, but Eld. D. did not want the committee.

"He next noticed the name of his institution, and referred to Isa. 62: 2; Matt. 23: 8; Heb. 2: 11; Acts 1: 16; 2: 29; 15: 22, 23, 30-32."

From these scriptures I showed: (a) The Lord was to name his people. (b) That Jesus did name them. (c) That the apostles recognized the name. (d) That the apostles placed this name on a legal document. (e) That this name, as given by Christ, and used by the apostles, is Brethren, and, when organized, the logical and scriptural name is "Church of the Brethren." Will the reader turn to these references and read and decide for himself?

"Their method of taking persons into the church was next discussed. It was proven by the 'Manual' that sinners were called upon to pray and this was not denied. When asked to give examples where sinners were told to pray, Mr. K. referred to Acts 2: 37; 16: 13, 14; 16: 30."

I gave these as Bible precedents showing that God will hear the prayer of penitent sinners, which Eld. D. denies. I asked him repeatedly if he would tell the unsaved part of that congregation that they ought to pray, or if it would do them any good to pray, and he utterly refused to do it. Will the reader turn to these scriptures with Acts 10: 30, 31, and decide who is right?

"Eld. K. read John 13: 14, 15, to establish feet-washing, and emphasized the word ought, and referred to many passages containing the word, and then absolutely failed to find where a single congregation ever met to observe it."

I also asked Eld. D. to find a time and place where it is said that they had the cup and its contents in the communion service, and he failed to do that, and yet he believes they did.

"And those of the world said Denny routed him (Kesler) on feet-washing."

If this be true, it only proves there were some there (and I presume there were some) who, like Eld. D. and his brethren, are not willing to do what Jesus says they ought to do. The reader will pardon me from refraining to state what was said by some of the people of the world on the other side of the question.

"On Friday afternoon the elder, being stranded, tried ridicule, but in a very modest manner was called down by his moderator."

I had just related a little anecdote to meet the effect of one related by Eld. D., in which he tried to "get the laugh on me," and my moderator simply said, "Proceed with the argument." That was all.

"He (K.) declared he would do as he pleased, moderator or no moderator."

I said, "I do not propose to be 'laughed down' before this audience without retaliating, moderator or no moderator. If we had a third moderator, we could rule these anecdotes out." And I used none except in reply to his.

"Eld. K. then introduced his arguments on the communion and Lord's supper. He labored hard to keep away from "Simon's." Geography was resorted to, but the truth could not be so easily covered up. Eld. D. proved to all that he understood the Scriptures on this subject."

But those who were present will recall how I presented "Denny's dilemma" on the blackboard at this point, showing that his position makes the Bible contradict itself on several counts and he is in the dilemma still. (This dilemma is shown up in the K. and H. debate, soon to be published.)

"On Monday afternoon the discussion was resumed. Bro. D. then began his affirmative arguments. He stated that a body or church, not built on the right foundation, nor at the right place, nor at the right time, is not the New Testament church."

At this point I showed by history that his church was built on "secession and effusion," that it was built in "Surrey County, Va.," that it took its present organization in "1809," that it was organized "loosely," and has had a "loose" government ever since. All this by historians of his own church. It will be noted that, while he was on his affirmative, his arguments were negative. That is why I had to get on the "affirmative" here.

"Bro. D. then presented an argument on the covenant of Abraham (Gen. 12: 2; Gal. 3: 16; 3: 4-15; Eph. 2: 13, 14; 3: 3-6). That the Law was weak and was to be done away with (2 Cor. 3: 6; Gal. 3: 19; Rom. 10: 4; Col. 2: 14-16; Eph. 2: 15; Gal. 4: 30, 31; Heb. 8: 7-13; 10: 6-9, 7: 19). Eld. K. said, 'We are willing to admit that we are not under the old law,' but declared that the new order of things began with the birth of Christ (Heb. 10: 5-9), putting much stress on 'when he cometh into the world.'"

Here I showed that the old law began to be "abolished" and "taken out of the way" in the Sermon on the Mount. Will the reader turn to this and note how often Jesus said, "It hath been said by them of old time, but I say unto you"? Did not this take these "old-time" laws out of the way?

"He next declared that 'there is no history of an organization on Pentecost' (Acts 2), and then outlined the work of Pentecost on the blackboard."

And the debate came and went, and Eld. D. failed to show any history of organizing, building, beginning, commencing or setting up a church on that day, and the singular thing about it is that Eld D. was afraid to affirm the doctrine of his church on that point.

"Bro. D. showed by Acts 2: 47 that now, for the first time, men and women were added to the church, that Christ was the Head of the church, and that the church had a foundation."

On the contrary, I showed that the kingdom or church originated in the mind of God long before Christ came into the world, that when John baptized his first convert, he baptized him into this kingdom to which Christ later applied the name church, that Denny's position cuts John's and Christ's converts out of the kingdom, and denies that Christ, the Head, ever had any connection with the church, his body, that many of the rites of the church, as baptism and the communion, originated with him, and to be head of these, and have them built on the foundation, he must have been "head" and "foundation" before any of them were originated or instituted.

"Bro. D. showed by the Bible that Acts 11: 15 pointed back to Pentecost as the beginning."

But he was afraid to say the beginning of what. I showed, by Col. 1: 18, that Christ is the beginning of all things pertaining to the church and even of the church itself.

"Bro. D. presented twenty-seven questions to Mr. K. which forever tied him."

These questions were all answered in such a way as forever to silence the adversary, to say nothing of the many questions I presented, which were returned with evasive answers. I "stayed with the Bible" and Denny too.

River Bend, Colo.

Confession.

BY C. D. HYLTON.

MAN seems to have a bias to do wrong. From Adam down to the present we know of but one man who was without sin.

In the Bible there is no encouragement to sin, but, on the other hand, there is much, in favor of turning from sin and following the divine pattern.

Some one has truthfully said, "The failure is not in falling but in not trying to get up again." Hiding our sins from God is impossible, and every effort will prove a failure. David vainly attempted it and in his confession said, "When I kept silence my bones waxed old through my roaring all the day long. For day and night thy hand was heavy upon me," etc.

From this language we infer that David suffered mentally and physically on account of his sin, but there was a "balm" or remedy for him and when he applied it peace was restored to his mind, and health to his body. Then he could say, "Then will I teach transgressors thy ways; and sinners shall be converted unto thee."

The church and the world no doubt have many men and women who are suffering, as did David, from various kinds of sins, and who would gladly unload, were it not for public censure and ridicule. Satan has many agencies to keep men from coming to the light, and often, when one has determination sufficient to stem the tide, Satan turns loose some of his imps, to devour them, in the public mind, or before the church, so that they may never become useful again. The church may be hindered in her work of love and sympathy by these ungodly accusers. And who are they? What kind of lives have they lived? How will they measure up with Barabbas who was turned loose to help accuse Jesus?

Observation has taught us that accusations do not come from the most spiritual and consistent members, but often from policy workers and backsliders.

But David faced all these and God forgave him his great sin and he was again useful in God's kingdom.

But what is the remedy for sin? Listen to the wise man: "He that covereth his sins shall not prosper: but whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy" (Prov. 28: 13).

Where shall this mercy come from? Surely, from God and his people. We need not expect it from a cold and sinful world.

Again we hear the beloved disciple saying: "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (1 John 1: 9).

To whom should we confess our sins that we may be forgiven? This, I believe, is a very important question. We may fail to obtain forgiveness by going to the wrong place.

If we have sinned against an individual, to that one we should go. If we have sinned against a corporation to them we must confess. If we have sinned against the Government, to that particular branch we should go and make right. If the sin has been a public one, to the church we should go. If it has been a "secret sin," to God only we should go, as the public and the church will be better off by never knowing it. But in every case the Lord should be implored, and we should forsake as well as confess, if we expect pardon.

We are also admonished to "confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed." In this way we may be very helpful to each other in showing sympathy and helping some one over the road where we may have stumbled and fallen.

Our duty to our brethren, when we see them err from the truth and become sinners, and their souls are exposed to death, is not to accuse them to the church or to the legal authorities, but to become a soul saver to them.

Brethren, if any of you do err from the truth, and one convert him, let him know, that he which converteth the sinner from the error of his way, shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins (James 5: 19, 20).

Brethren, there is a time when the Lord may be found and he should be called upon while he is near.

Bible Study in Our Schools.

BY AMOS H. HAINES.

As the time approaches for the opening of Special Bible Terms and Institutes in our schools and colleges, it is fitting that we should briefly consider the place of Bible Study in a liberal or so-called "literary" education. The primary purpose,—at least one of the primary purposes—of the American college and high school was to fit and prepare young men for the Christian ministry; and especially for the work of the moral teacher. By consulting the original charters of the oldest American schools and colleges, this fundamental purpose is evidently manifest.

The materialistic development of our country as well as the materialistic education, have directed and shaped the policy of many schools, so that these schools no longer hold to the primary purpose, which was that of moral and religious education.

The legislating of the Bible out of some of our public schools shows how far the materialistic, the nonreligious, and also how far unscrupulous and selfish politics have gone, in their influence on present-day education. This adverse legislation concerning the reading and study of the Bible in public schools and also as it pertains to education, is, to say the least, unpatriotic, unphilosophical and thoroughly unpedagogical. It is a movement, contrary to the nature of man, and also contrary to the upward movement and progress of Christian citizenship. It is surely contrary to the best teaching in ethics and morals; also contrary to the best thought on government and law. Our nation needs to be called back to God. The remedy for greed and selfishness in public office, graft and political corruption, must be the putting into practice the teachings of the Bible, the best text on ethics and morals.

There are some signs of better government and civic improvement. A better type of man is being placed into office. A sifting process seems to be going on. Such being the case, a better rule and role of conduct may be expected and even demanded. A Bible-reading people will demand,—and rightly so,—a better and higher standard of conduct from our public servants.

The "Adult Bible Class," the "Laymen's Movement," missions, temperance, general Bible study classes, etc., will necessarily demand a higher type and better prepared moral teacher. The minister, especially, will be expected to measure up to this expectation and higher standard of efficiency. To meet these expectations and requirements, our Bible Departments and Bible Schools have been provided.

Those who can not take a few years of preparation for church and Christian work, should at least avail themselves of the provisions made and opportunities given by our Special Bible Terms and Bible Institutes.

The Special Bible Term of Juniata College will open Jan. 12, 1912, and continue ten days. A large number should remember the date, and arrange to come and remain throughout the session. Bible Study, Church Work, Sunday-school, Missionary, Temperance, and Educational Work will be considered.

Several daily classes, pertaining to Religious Education are reciting the present fall term in the Bible School of Juniata College. These classes are as follows: Biblical Literature, Theism, Hebrew History, Old Testament Exegesis, History of Missions, Church History, Systematic Theology, New Testament Greek, Life of Christ, New Testament Theology.

We earnestly urge that all who can possibly do so, arrange to attend at least one of these special sessions of Bible Study and Evangelistic services, held at our various centers of learning. A proper point of view of Bible Study, will doubtless expel much of the doubt, uncertainty and many of the questionings relative to the content and formation of the Bible.

Bible School, Juniata College, Pa.

Special Bible Term of Daleville College, Va.

January 6 to 13, 1912.

On Saturday, Jan. 6, the Botetourt Memorial Missionary Circle will hold a special service, at which time Eld. I. S. Long will deliver an address to the Circle. On Monday following, the regular Bible work will follow which, in brief, is as follows: Eld. I. S. Long will give daily lectures on "Missionary Studies in Acts," and also will discuss the following themes one period each day: "Our Missionary Work in India," "How People Live in India," "Hinduism As We Know It." "Educational Work in India," and "Opportunities and Needs of Our Work in India."

Bro. George W. Flory, of Covington, Ohio, will conduct the evangelistic services from Jan. 2 to 14, inclusive. In connection with this he will give daily lectures on the following: "The Strength of the Church," "The Organized Church," "The Pastoral Church," "Gnats and Camels in the Church."

Sister Long will give, from her actual experience in the field, daily talks on the following subjects: "Women of the Orient," "In and Out of the Homes of India," "India Christian Homes," "Our Trip to Babylon," and "Orphans and Native Workers in India."

Eld. T. S. Moherman will deliver daily lectures on the following subjects: "The Formation of the Hebrew State," "The Hebrew State a World Power," "The Period of the Prophets and Prophetism," "The Hebrews between the Old and New Testaments" and "The New Testament Age."

A special opportunity will be given to those interested in Sunday-school Teacher-training. During this week of Bible work, Bro. T. S. Moherman will give "Ten Lessons on the Teacher," Bro. C. S. Ikenberry, "Ten Lessons on the Pupil." Examinations will follow these classes in Teacher-training. Arrangements will also be made by which those taking this part of the work may complete the study of the first year's course at home, under the direction of the District Sunday-school Secretary.

On Saturday the following Educational programs will be rendered:

Forenoon Session—10 o'clock.

Influence of a College on a Community, ...T. C. Denton
Educational Ideals, ...T. S. Moherman
The Kind of Education That Counts, ...P. S. Miller
What Would the Church Do Without the College?.....
.....Geo. W. Flory

Afternoon Session—2 o'clock.

The Educated Ministry, ...John B. White
What Education Can Do for Our American Homes,.....
.....Annie Bowman
Education the Solvent of Social Ills, ...A. B. Hurt
Denominational Schools, ...A. C. Flora
The American Colleges the Emancipators of Oriental Civilizations, ...E. Q. Hawk

One missionary and ministerial scholarship will be offered to each congregation of the District, covering all expenses while in attendance. We invite the presence of our brethren and sisters.

DALEVILLE COLLEGE.

OAKLAND, TENNESSEE.

Our church, located in Blount County, Tenn., bounded on the south by North Carolina, has been reorganized. Maryville, sixteen miles from Knoxville, is the county-seat, and is noted for its colleges and high schools. Here was the home of Eld. S. Z. Sharp, who came here with his family, Bro. Levi Hertzler, and perhaps some others, from Pennsylvania, soon after the Civil War. Bro. Sharp was an educator and preacher, hence he taught school and also preached. The doctrine of the Bible, as we practice it, was new to the people, as this was about one hundred miles farther south than our church, up to that time, had ventured. As little slavery existed, not much could be done in that section by our Fraternity.

The people were pleased with Bro. Sharp, and by a study of the Word learned that his words were true, and in conformity with the Scriptures. It was not long until several were added to the church by baptism, both in Blount and Knox Counties. Other members also moved in, and in a short time two churches were organized. Bro. Sharp commenced the work of building a house of worship, and by the help of the few members they built the Oakland church. The house is in a fairly good condition yet, though it has not been used much for several years. Here, for years, they had able ministers and a prosperous congregation, but some of the leaders moved away, some died and some became cold and indifferent, and finally dropped out. But a remnant still kept the faith. Several members moved in recently, and called for a reorganization. Bro. W. S. Ledbetter and self met with the members, and partially organized. Bro. Adam Klepper was elected to the deacon's office, and Bro. G. W. Young was advanced to the second degree of the ministry. Bro. Alden Frye is a minister in the first degree. We had in all five services, which were well attended, and the interest taken by the members and friends gave us much encouragement. Pray for the little band at Oakland!

The other church mentioned was the Choto congregation, which lost out about the same time, but was reorganized in May as the Union Valley church.

THE ROUND TABLE

Are We Consistent?

BY JAS. A. SELL.

BEING consistent is no evidence of being right, yet to be right we must be consistent. Our inconsistency may disgust people, and drive them away from a good work.

Strangers looking into our book of Minutes might easily conclude that we were trying to legislate righteousness into the church, but what will they think when they find the book full of decisions that never were repealed and, at the same time, are largely disregarded? This, too, becomes intensified when we remember that elders in their rulings, and committees who are sent on official business, are required to carry out the decisions of Conference to the extent of expulsion, when they themselves are equally guilty,—not perhaps in the same particular, yet just as culpable in other things.

When a committee is sent to try a case, or to set things in order, there is but one thing left for them to do, and that is to enforce the decisions of Conference. When the refractory seek to justify themselves by the inconsistency of their judges, they may be called "contentious" or "out of order," but it is surely embarrassing to the elders to know that the claim is just.

Some decisions have become obsolete, some have been repealed, and others have been cast aside, seemingly, by general consent, or enforced in some churches and not in others,—depending largely on the opinion of the elders. Then, too, Conference sometimes makes decisions that conflict with other decisions, and yet does not repeal those first made.

Members are disowned in some churches for things that are tolerated in others. This is an inconsistency for which the church in general is not responsible, but when members are disfellowshiped for the violation of some rules, and later on the rules are changed or so modified that the violation is no longer a test of fellowship, how about the expelled member? He is out for an offense that is no longer an offense.

While it is not best to publish examples of some of our inconsistencies, the fact remains that we have a number of them on our hands that have assumed the proportion of problems. We need to do some earnest thinking before we make any more decisions. There must, after all, be the force of public opinion behind a decision, to make it effective. When opinion changes, regarding methods of church administration, it is a losing battle to attempt to enforce the measures of other days.

Coworkers With Him.

BY IDA M. HELM.

"My voice shalt thou hear in the morning, O Lord; in the morning will I direct my prayer unto thee, and will look up" (Psa. 5: 3).

EACH morning we should be sure to begin the day aright. Too many of us stew around to get our toilet made and breakfast over, then rush off to our work, neglecting to open our hearts to the One who has promised to be with us if we seek him, and whose presence with us will lighten every burden and sweeten every care. Then we may wonder why things do not move along smoothly and pleasantly, and why it is that we become aggravated so easily. We forget that the flesh is weak, and that, if we are trusting in our own puny strength, we will be swept down in the current of cares and temptations and trials that cross our path. When Jesus was here in the world, he was ever eager to minister to the needy ones. Now he is at the right hand of the Father, but he is still mindful of his children, and ready and pleading to come to their help at the faintest call. "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." If we open our hearts to God in the morning, acknowledge our weakness, tell him our every need, and invite him to be with us through all the day, he will be our Strong Tower of defense, and he will be sufficient for every need. In his strength we will be conquerors in the conflict, because we are coworkers with God.

"And if my heart and flesh are weak
To bear an untried pain,
The bruised reed he will not break,
But strengthen and sustain."

The Work at Malmo, Sweden.

BY J. F. GRAYBILL.

I ENJOYED the doctrinal number of the GOSPEL MESSENGER, which I just received last week, so much that I felt like telling you. If the MESSENGER admits of comparison, I think this was the best paper I ever read. I wish every member of the Brethren church in Sweden and other foreign missions might read it in their own language. It would be a great help here, I am sure.

I trust that the time is not so far distant when we shall be able to translate some of these good productions and have our Swedish members enjoy the rich treasures they contain.

We have two brethren here who can read English. The one is having the MESSENGER sent to him; the other brother reads my paper. This brother said he reads the paper over the second and third time in order to be able to retain its contents.

We are well, happy, and busy with the language, and planning for our work.

May the Holy Spirit ever guide you in your work! Pray for your servants and the work at this place!

In Touch With the Church.

BY MRS. D. H. MILLER.

Nov. 2 my husband, several sisters and myself attended the love feast at Elizabethtown, Pa. The love and welcome received will not soon be forgotten. Our minds were carried back years ago when we became members of the Church of the Brethren. The German speaking and singing, and their plain attire, were quite impressive. How much we wish that plainness and the "simple life" might be characteristics of all our dear churches! We also visited our daughter and the college. The question often comes to me: Why don't the Brethren patronize our own colleges and bring up their children in closer touch with the church? Nov. 5 we attended the children's meeting at Lancaster City, and were present at their feast of love in the evening. We also visited the Brethren's Home at Neffsville, where we met our aunt, who is in her ninety-fourth year, and still well and happy. Who could not be in such a pleasant home?

Church and Sunday-school Officers.

BY N. N. GARST.

SOMETIMES the best talent, and the most or deepest consecration are not found in the same individual. I believe in this case the most consecrated one should be chosen and an effort be made more fully to impress the other party with his duties and responsibilities. Thus the combined talent and consecration may be used as soon as possible.

I am aware that many circumstances and conditions enter at times, into the choice of an officer, despite the fact that the Holy Spirit should be the only influence of the voter in his choice. It is a serious fact that sometimes electioneering is resorted to, and that at other times a large relationship may combine to put forth special ones for the office, discarding talent, consecration and like qualities.

The Anniversary Issue.

BY ARCHIBALD VAN DYKE.

IN reading the Anniversary number, I concluded it was the most interesting of any yet published. I remember well when there was no paper, and what fear there was in allowing a paper to be printed by the church. The various changes made since then, are also fresh in my mind. I do not think I have missed one year's subscription since the first, neither do I want to miss any. I thank God for the GOSPEL MESSENGER, and will try, in my weakness, to pray for the editors.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS' TOPIC

A Better Way of Celebrating Christmas.

Matt. 2: 1-12.

For Sunday Evening, December 24, 1911.

Heaven's Best Gift to Man.—Isa. 9: 6, 7; Luke 2: 11. A Gift to C. W. Society Honoring Christ.

(a) After the opening prayer, a boy and a girl each give a Christmas recitation, followed with a song by all.

(b) A young man tells about Christmas in Alaska; a young woman about Christmas in Porto Rico (three minutes each).

I. Ways of Giving.

1. The Workers—up to ten years old—carrying baskets covered with green, which bear their donations, bring them forward and sing a song.

2. The Workers up to sixteen years old,—the girls, after reciting a recipe for making good bread, present loaves of bread; the boys bring products of the soil—sacks of turnips, potatoes, etc., and repeat texts like, "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

3. At a meeting the young men and women placed sealed envelopes on the table, and, when opened, it was found that eleven contained a dollar bill each.

4. Now the basket was passed to receive the gifts of the older ones present.

II. Gifts That Went Home.

1. An aged invalid lady whose chair had no rockers. (A rocking chair.)

2. A woman doing washing for a living with only one tub, a dishpan, and a leaky boiler. (A tub, wringer, boiler, bag of clothespins and a box of soap, went to her.)

3. A girl promoted to the eighth grade who could not attend school for want of books. (Was helped.)

4. A delivery boy who has no overcoat, mittens, or "stockings with feet in them." (Remembered.)

5. A crippled boy—a genius at making things—who has only a cuskenife and tack-hammer to work with. (A box of tools.)

6. An invalid with soiled, insufficient bedding. (Made comfortable.)

7. A widow whose little children must daily forage for fuel along the railroad tracks. (Coal sent.)

8. A child who never had a boughten plaything. (Not forgotten.)

Such is "giving back to him who gave" (Matt. 25: 40). (See write-up in Our Young People.)

PRAYER MEETING

Something to Think About.

Philpp. 4: 4-8.

For Week Beginning December 24, 1911.

1. A Recipe for a Sterling Character.—Would you seek that which will go to the building up of a truly worthwhile character, sit down in the quiet of the evening and meditate on the words of our lesson. Here is the guide to true Christian neighborliness, to honest dealing, upright behavior, purity of life, refinement of thought and speech, everything that is lovely and of good report (Col. 3: 1-17).

2. "Whatsoever Things Are True."—If we would be true, we must think on the things that are true. To deal in falsehood or misrepresentation, or to resort to petty deceptions is to ruin a soul. To think on the things that are false will as assuredly destroy character as the blighting frost kills the tender vegetation (Eph. 4: 14-16).

3. "Whatsoever Things Are Honorable."—To be anything less than honorable is disgraceful. This is the test of a gentleman,—the test of a noble character. To be less than strictly honorable in any transaction, whatever may be the temptation, is incipient degeneracy,—a sure indication that the road one is on the downgrade. Preserve honor at all hazards (Rom. 12: 17).

4. "Whatsoever Things Are Just."—Yes, strictly just. We sometimes forget that. We may do a favor to a friend and, if not careful, do a terrible wrong and injustice to another. Remember it in all you say or do (Prov. 4: 18).

5. "Whatsoever Things Are Pure."—Let us think of the things that are pure,—the things that will cleanse our minds of all that is low and degrading. Think of the spotless lily and the lesson it brings to us of absolute purity. Think of the holy angels and their holy mission (1 John 3: 1-3).

6. "Whatsoever Things Are Lovely."—This old world of ours is full of things that are lovely. Ten thousand objects are daily held before our gaze wherein we may see the loveliness of God. These, together with those of "good report," are agencies in God's hands to make us more in love with life, and more eager for the glory yet to be revealed (2 Cor. 4: 15).

HOME AND FAMILY

The Master Is Nigh.

BY EMILY HARRIS.

Jesus loves you; why do you sigh?
Don't feel lonely, the Master is nigh.
Tell him your trouble; he's always there,
Ready and waiting to hear your prayer.

Jesus loves you; why longer fear?
Gracious and loving, our Savior dear!
Happy and joyous, glad-hearted and true,
When you acknowledge his refuge for you.

The Father's Advice—Prov. 6: 20.

BY RICHARD ARNO DASSDORF.

"My son, keep thy father's commandments, and forsake not the law of thy mother."

THIS is the advice given by Solomon, primarily to his son, but in a larger sense to the young men and boys of all time. He addresses them as a father would. The people began to have dealings with the surrounding nations, and this brought in a chain of evils to which they had previously been strangers. Solomon saw this, and he also noted how easily the young men were led astray.

We all, at times, need the assistance and advice of others. We feel our own weakness, and long for aid and comfort. I know I need the help of my Heavenly Father daily.

Solomon says: "My son." This means that the speaker has authority over the one he is addressing. He does not mean to inspire terror, but love and kindness. "Come here, my child; I wish to tell you what to do. There is danger near you and I want to tell you how to escape from it. I will tell you about life's temptations and how to resist them. Foreigners are coming in and bringing many evils along with them. These sins were not so prevalent in the former days. and your forefathers did not know much about them. Now we are expected to face these evils and to overcome them."

As parents we must be strengthened against the evils of the day, that our children may not be drawn away from God. Those sins which creep into our land, by the evil influence of the foreign element, will ruin our nation if not checked.

We find that many of our young men have banded themselves together in their wickedness. They defy the law and are fast going to ruin. Young men, do not go with bad boys! Rather stay at home with father and mother around the cheerful fireside.

Do not associate with drunkards or gamblers under any circumstances! Do not spend your nights in revelry! Such a course unfits you for any of the active duties of life. Be a man of courage, ready to do your duty at all times! Our nation wants its young men to be strong, sober and vigorous.

"Keep thy father's commandments and forsake not the law of thy mother." If you are in doubt, at any time, ask your dear parents. They have learned by experience what is right and what is wrong. They love you too well to give you wrong advice, and want you to grow up to a life of usefulness.

One of the commandments says: "Honor thy father and thy mother that thy days may be long upon the land, which the Lord thy God giveth thee." We see how necessary this is, at the present crisis confronting us. Will the people remain noble and righteous? It will depend upon you, my sons, my daughters. Just think how much love your parents are bestowing upon you. Honor them for this; and honor them also because God has commanded you to do so. God thought this matter so important that he gave his first promise to those who live up to its requirements. Long life and a blessed estate are promised to those that honor their parents.

We are living in a different age and among entirely different surroundings. All are in a hurry and a rush. We seem to find no time for deep consideration, outside of the business turmoil of life. Youth, evidently, is the time to consider these things, for then we have more time for the consideration and study of the ways of the Lord. Remember, there is no pleasure outside of the Christian life. Nothing else can give you lasting joy. Paul fed milk to the babes in Christ, but he gave meat to those who were stronger and able to bear it.

Many of our dear young men and women have noble Christian fathers and mothers praying for them. I plead with such to make the good choice. Will you refuse to listen? Will you disobey a direct commandment of God? Do you think it is wise to continue in sin and have your quiet moments disturbed by the fear of approaching death? Do you value the promise of a long life? If so, be sure to honor your parents.

We have here a twofold promise. One part pertains to the life you are now living, the other to the everlasting life to come.

Does Satan offer you much? Let us see. "The wages of sin is death." You are always haunted by the fear of your impending fate. All the time you are afraid something will happen to you. Will you starve your soul? Instead of the Bread of Life you are feeding upon sinful pleasures. Is this the counsel of your parents? Do they advise you to pursue that course?

Do you love your parents? How much love and respect have you for their commands? It is easy to say you love them, but how often have you caused them days and nights of sorrow by your wayward course? You little realize the love they bestow upon you. Many are the parental prayers that ascend to our Heavenly Father's throne, to protect their dear children and draw them to himself.

Do you ever realize how many love and watch for your safety? I will name some of them: God, Christ, the Holy Spirit, the angels, the church, the ministers, your parents, your friends. God so loved you that he gave his only begotten Son that you might be saved.

"Life is real; life is earnest,
And the grave is not its goal.
Dust thou art; to dust returnest,
Was not spoken of the soul."

The soul can never die. It is a part of God himself. He has given you the soul to keep pure. Many of us will be ashamed when he comes to make up his jewels. Will our precious souls be pure and bright, or will we bring them to him all dimmed and defiled by sins?

"Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh, when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them" (Eccles. 12: 1).

The Joy of Service.

BY WEALTHY A. BURKHOLDER.

THERE is nothing that gives greater joy to those whose constant aim is to be of use in the world, than to feel that they are saving some one who needs assistance in some manner, although, at the time, they realize that their well-meant efforts are not appreciated as they should be. Our Lord and Maker, as he went up and down the hills and dales of Palestine, among the distressed and oppressed, did not stop to inquire if his work was appreciated. "Do they need my help?" was the question. He was a master teacher and the finest physician of whom we have any record. He not only healed the sick, in common with our medical men of today, but he opened the eyes of the blind and raised the dead to life. Nothing was beyond his skill, and it was a loving service. He was serving because he wanted to help. He desired to raise those who were cast down, to strengthen the weak and to brighten the lives of those who were in darkness. He tried to make the homes better and happier; for, as a rule, from happy homes emerge men and women who are well fitted for life's work.

One particular instance of ingratitude was shown when he healed the ten lepers. While all received the same physical help, only one returned to thank and praise him for being healed, and we hear him say: "Were there not ten cleansed? But where are the nine?" Where are they? After being cleansed from such a loathsome disease as leprosy, to go on their way without even thanking or praising their great Benefactor, seemed like base ingratitude. But it was in harmony with Christ's spirit to bear these things patiently. Today conduct like that would seem to be far from right. Surely, any earthly physician would desire and honestly deserve to be thanked, if those to whom he administered were not able to remunerate him financially. Appreciation, manifested in some way, would surely he in order.

When administering to the bodily wants of the poor and distressed, there is joy in the service if it is done from pure and holy motives, even though conscious of the fact that they do not appreciate the kindness shown. "A lowly man does a little thing,—a little act in itself. It is only a simple kindness,—a cup of cold water given to one who is thirsty. But the motive is love, and that makes it shine in bright radiance, like a transfiguration, in heaven's sight. Great gifts were dropped into the treasury that day, when the Master was watching how men gave, but the only gift he praised was the widow's offering of a farthing. He said her offering was greater than that given by any of the others. The motive made the difference." Often the ones who serve are repulsed, but such should remember that the Master met with such experiences, and the thought should be kept in view that if done to one of the least of his children it is done unto him. It is the Master's work, and his work is found everywhere.

But, notwithstanding the fact that many did not appreciate the Master's service so much as to thank him verbally, or by following his commandments, yet he did not turn away, but continued his loving ministrations. Do we, as his children, want to follow in his footsteps? If so, we will find many opportunities to do little things; perhaps so little that we may be tempted to turn away and look for greater and more honorable fields of labor. But if we find joy in his service, we must not overlook those who are low down in sin and suffering, but be willing to extend the helping hand. We must put our heart into what we try to do. Heart service is much more effective than hand service only. The great Heart Searcher knows whether or not we are honest in our work, and truly discerns our motives. He wants his people to administer to the wants of his needy ones, and to find joy in so doing, and to do it as unto him; for he said: "I came not to be ministered unto, but to minister."

This suggests the thought that there is much service we may engage in for the Lord, as coworkers in the great cause. Hear the Psalmist David: "I will praise thee, O Lord, with my whole heart. I will show forth all thy marvellous works. I will be glad and rejoice in thee." While he made mistakes, he confessed them, repented of them, and continued to be joyful in the Lord's service.

"If I can live
To make some pale face brighter, and to give
A second luster to some tear-stained eye,
Or e'en impart
One throb of comfort to an aching heart,
Or cheer some wayward soul in passing by;

"If I can lend
A strong hand to the fallen, or defend
The right against a single envious strain,—
My life, though bare
Perhaps, of much that seemeth dear and fair
To us of earth, will not have been in vain."

THIS is a cold and cruel world, where it is always true that he who feels the most feels the worst.

SISTERS' AID SOCIETIES

LAMOTTE PRAIRIE, ILL.—Our Sisters' Aid Society was first organized July 4, 1910. We have held twenty-five half-day meetings. Our work consisted of making comforts, quilts and clothing for the needy, which were sent to the Chicago Mission. The first box was valued at $21.29; the box sent in June, at $14.32; the box sent in October, at $20.36; balance in the treasury, $1.36. Sister Minnie Steinger is our president; the writer, secretary-treasurer. The laborers are few, but may the Lord bless our work.—Rebecca Pittsafick, Palestine, Ill., Nov. 29.

KEEDYSVILLE, CAL.—Our Sisters' Aid Society met Oct. 19, to reorganize. Sister Michaels was elected president; Sister Choat, vice-president; Sister Woods, secretary-treasurer, and Sister Lehman, assistant. The past year we held thirty meetings, with an average attendance of about eight. The time was spent mostly in sewing, with devotional exercises. The roll call was answered by repeating scriptural verses. We donated carpet for a church, a box of clothing to the St. Joseph Mission, in Missouri, donated by Bro. Davidson to the Aid Society, and the remainder of the money, $9.35, to church work. We had $47.4 in money during the year.—Hattie Woody, Sec., Reedley, Cal., Nov. 21.

☞All business and communications intended for the paper should be addressed to the BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, ELGIN, ILL., and not to any individual connected with it.

THE special Bible Term at Juniata College, Pa., begins Jan. 12.

DURING a revival at Edison, Nebr., eight are reported to have united with the church.

FIVE were added to the Lower Twin church, Ohio, where Bro. Isaac Frantz recently held a series of meetings.

TWELVE applied for membership during a revival meeting in the Botetourt church, Va., conducted by Bro. J. M. Henry.

WHY not send the MESSENGER to a friend as a Christmas gift? It is a gift that will last the year round and be appreciated.

STEPS have been taken to build a new meetinghouse at Nezperce, Idaho, and work on the basement has probably been commenced.

WHEN last heard from there were seventeen conversions in the series of meetings at Flora, Ind., conducted by Bro. D. M. Adams.

THE three weeks' revival at Mexico, Ind., conducted by Bro. C. S. Garber, resulted in fifty accessions to the church by confession and baptism.

THE special Bible term at Daleville College, Va., begins Jan. 6 and closes the 13th. A splendid program has been arranged for the occasion.

BRO. J. J. SHAFFER did some effectual evangelistic work in the Woodbury congregation, Pa., which resulted in fifteen being added to the church.

THE special Bible Term at Manchester College, Ind., begins Jan. 8, and continues eight days. A fine program, to be published next week, has been arranged.

AT the last District Meeting of Western Colorado and Utah it was decided not to send a member to the Standing Committee next year, but to represent by letter.

SINCE last report there have been nine conversions at Hagerstown, Md., most of them being the fruits of a series of meetings held by the pastor, Bro. J. C. Flora.

BRO. I. B. TROUT not being able to attend the dedicatory services of the Anderson church, Ind., Dec. 3, Bro. L. W. Teeter delivered the address for the occasion.

BRO. JOHN W. MISHLER closed a revival at the Valley Bethel church, Va., with twenty applicants for membership,—thirteen baptized and seven awaiting the rite.

BRO. JOSEPH STUDEBAKER, of Flora, Ind., called at the House on his way to Panther Creek, Iowa. From there he goes to Dallas Center, where he is to conduct a class in vocal music.

WRITING from Tien Tsin, China, under date of Nov. 14, Bro. Hilton says that the missionaries are quite safe, and in good health, but for the present they must remain away from the interior.

NINE accessions,—seven baptized and two restored to fellowship,—are reported at Bethel, Old Fields, W. Va., as the fruits of some recent revival work done by Bro. W. B. Smith.

THE new church at Prowers, Colo., is fast nearing completion. The building was made possible by one brother giving $1,000, another nearly $500, and the banks contributing liberally.

WITH Bro. J. D. Mishler in charge, a splendid revival is in progress in the old Union Center congregation, Nappanee, Ind. Twenty-eight have been baptized and eight await the rite.

SEVEN were added to the church during a series of meetings, conducted by Bro. J. O. Garst, at the Arlington house, jointly controlled by the Salem and Brookville congregations, Ohio.

AS a correction, we are requested by wire to announce that the Sunday-school, Ministerial and District Meetings of Texas and Louisiana will convene in Manvel, Texas, on Dec. 27, 28 and 29.

GLANCING over the Minutes of the late District Meeting of Northeastern Ohio, we notice that Bro. Noah Longanecker has been selected to represent the District on the Standing Committee.

A FRUITFUL revival is in progress in the Ridgely congregation, Pa., with Bro. Rufus Bucher doing the preaching. Nine have applied for membership and more are expected before the close of the meeting.

A COMMITTEE, appointed by the District Meeting of Northeastern Ohio, one year ago, is at work on a history of the District. Each District ought to follow the example of Northeastern Ohio in this particular.

WE have the program of the Sunday-school Teachers' and Bible Institute of Southern Indiana, to be held on North Germania Street, Indianapolis, Dec. 25 to 29. The program reached us too late for this issue.

BRO. W. F. HAYNES, of Patterson, Cal., accompanied by Bro. H. E. Wagoner, of La Place, this State, called at the House last Monday. They are spending the winter in school work at Bethany, Chicago.

THE "Kingdom Songs" seems to be taking splendidly, and, so far as we can learn, is giving excellent satisfaction. It has been decided by the Committee of Arrangements to use the book at the Conference of 1912.

Our College Times for December, published in the interest of Elizabethtown College, Pa., contains the announcement and program, in part, for the Annual College Bible Term, to begin Jan. 11 and continue until Jan. 21.

THE Mission Board of Nebraska sees to it that all isolated members in the District get the MESSENGER. Those not able to pay for the paper have it donated to them. Intelligent work of this sort is sure to produce fruits.

BRO. CHAS. D. BONSACK says that he finds himself rather busy at Blue Ridge College, Union Bridge, Md. He is not only preaching each evening, for ten days, but he is carrying three classes daily and one semi-weekly, in Bible Study.

BRO. D. L. MILLER writes us from Empire, Cal., where he is to remain until the 18th, saying, that he and Sister Miller had a pleasant journey across the Continent. He finds a good working congregation at Empire, with a membership of about 200.

WE are printing the Minutes for an unusual number of District Meetings held during the fall, and observe that most of the Districts are bringing out their Minutes earlier than common. The House takes pleasure in doing work for the Brotherhood, and would be pleased to print the Minutes of all the District Meetings. Knowing our people as we do, we naturally think that we can do their work a little more satisfactory than they can get it done anywhere else. We are also prepared to do any printing that our schools may need, and would certainly appreciate their patronage.

THE workmen are engaged in erecting the tabernacle at York, Pa., for the next Annual Meeting; so writes Bro. J. A. Long, Chairman of the Committee of Arrangements.

IN these days war is an expensive proposition. Up to Nov. 1 the war in Tripoli had cost Italy $65,000,000, and since then the expense has been over one and a half million dollars a week, with the end not even in sight. Should Italy win out, she will certainly pay dearly for her venture.

THE District Bible and Sunday-school Institute of Southern Illinois, to be held at Cerro Gordo, begins Dec. 26 and closes Dec. 29. A good program has been arranged for the occasion. The program, however, reached us too late for this issue, and will have to be held over until next week.

THE Brethren Almanac for 1912 shows an increase in the ministerial force of the Brotherhood, there being nearly forty more ministers than are found in the former list. There is also a decided increase in the number of congregations, the list containing 913,—seventy more than reported at the close of 1910.

JUST before sailing from New York last Saturday, Bro. J. M. Blough prepared an interesting communication which, for the want of space, must be held over for next issue. He says that until Jan. 8 he and Sister Blough may be addressed at Jerusalem, Palestine, and after that date at Ankleshwer, B. B. C. I. Ry., India.

A NUMBER of congregations are raising money to have the GOSPEL MESSENGER sent to their poor. We can not name all the churches engaged in the good work, but we incidentally noticed, in the correspondence coming to our desk, Yellow Creek, Ill., Hickory Grove, Ohio, and North Manchester, Ind. It is certainly very kind that the churches are remembering their poor in this way.

SOME of those, interested in having news of special importance appear in the MESSENGER at the earliest date possible, are making use of the "night letter" service, which permits the sending of fifty words or more by wire at the rate of one cent a word. In fifty words one can send considerable news. In order to appear in the issue of the week, such night letters should be delivered, prepaid, at the telegraph office on Sunday night, and they ought to be on our desk early on Monday morning.

THE breaking of wills is a common occurrence, these days. In fact it is difficult to make a will that will stand the test in court, especially if there happens to be plenty of money at stake. Benevolent institutions lose much money through wills. Our General Mission Board and other mission boards lose no small amount of money in this way. Devout people bequeath money, to be used for some good cause, and when they can not appear in court to speak for themselves, their wishes are set aside, and their hard earnings are used in a manner never contemplated by them. The better way is for donors to place their money where they want it to go while they are yet living, and then they will be sure of having their wishes respected. Should they need the income from their money, they can easily arrange for this on the annuity plan.

WE wish to urge all of our patrons to renew their subscriptions to the MESSENGER for 1912 at the earliest possible date. The law forbidding the carrying of unpaid subscriptions on the mailing list is exceedingly strict, and in order to comply with the postal regulations we must be able to show a creditable paid-up list of subscribers. If our agents have not already called on the old subscribers for their renewals, or have not, in some manner, notified them, they should do so at once. In a few instances it may be necessary for subscribers to call on the agent and pay their subscriptions. But in each instance subscribers should pay the agent when they renew, and not ask the agent to run an account with them. In localities where we have no agent, subscribers can send their own subscriptions. But we urge everybody to be prompt. Let us hear from you before the rush sets in at the end of the year.

Last week Bro. W. R. Miller was in the Roxbury church, Pa., delivering evening illustrated lectures in connection with the Bible, Missionary and Sunday-school Institute of Western Pennsylvania. He says it was one of the best Institutes he ever attended.

One of our ministers, while in the midst of a series of meetings, and making his home in a family where the Messenger is not received, writes us that he is lost without the paper, and wishes a few issues sent him during his stay at the point where he is laboring. On an average of about four times a year we hear of evangelists being assigned to homes where the Messenger is not read. Some of them will hunt up a family where the paper may be seen, while others ask us to supply their temporary needs.

Raising Money for Church Purposes.

For months the Sunday School Times has been endeavoring to convince its readers that the tendency of raising money for church purposes, by means of festivals, oyster suppers, pay entertainments and things of like character, is to lower the morals of the people. It is held that no one is benefited morally by paying for a meal, or paying to enjoy some kind of an entertainment, just for the sake of helping to raise a little money for a religious cause. It is appealing to the lower rather than the higher motives. The editor would have all funds for Sunday-school, church expenses and mission fields raised by direct methods, and thus appeal to the higher and better motives of men and women, both old and young. He would have every dollar donated count for 100 cents, for the purpose for which it is given. With this idea prevailing there would be no preparing of dinners and suppers at the church, or any place else, solely for the purpose of raising money. If one is expected to give fifty cents he would have him give the money direct, without having to appeal to his appetite with a dish of oysters. He would educate people to this method of giving, feeling sure that more money can be thus secured than to coax it out of the donors by means of meals and paid entertainments. He publishes a number of letters from as many churches and Sunday-schools, where the direct method of meeting all expenses has been employed most successfully, and is giving the very best satisfaction. We are pleased to note that a number of churches are doing away with church festivals, suppers and paid entertainments. They have learned that such methods lower, rather than elevate, the religious sentiment of a community.

The St. Louis Mission Again.

One of our brethren, residing in St. Louis, is very favorably impressed with what we said about establishing a mission in his city, and suggests a careful investigation of the conditions with that in view. It occurs to us that we might build up and maintain a strong working congregation in St. Louis, if we go at it in the right way. The former mission was under the management of Southern Illinois, while the territory is within the bounds of the Middle District of Missouri. But the churches in both States are rather far away to permit them to give the contemplated mission the attention it should have, at the start at least, and yet this objection might be overcome.

In the first place, we should locate in the city an efficient minister, who understands city work, who should be amply supported, so that he can give his very best efforts to the mission. Without too much delay a building for the use of the mission should be erected in a creditable part of the city. In our judgment this building should be a business block of three stories, with the first floor fitted up to be rented for store rooms. The third floor could also be fitted up with rooms for rent. The second floor might be arranged for the mission proper. This would include an audience room, a few Sunday-school rooms, and possibly accommodations for the preacher and his family. When once completed, the rent of the first and third floors should pay all the expenses of the mission, and in this way the work might be made self-supporting. The only problem would be the raising of the money for the building and lot, and this ought not to be a difficult matter, considering the purpose. In the mission room services might be conducted until the congregation should grow large enough and strong enough to build a meetinghouse of its own, if it is desired to do so.

We should certainly like to see this method tested in a city like St. Louis. We have been for sometime thinking about the plan suggested, and do not see why it may not serve the purpose in any city where we wish to open up a mission and have it at once placed on a self-supporting basis. If the mission should fail, the money invested would not be lost. The way we now conduct city missions, there is a constant drain on the churches for their support. We know of a city where at least sixty thousand dollars has been spent, and all there is to show in the way of a building is a house that is no credit to our people or their work. Had a $25,000 building been erected, on the plan here named, and the work thus made self-supporting, the other $35,000, with a little added, might have been used in establishing missions in two other cities requiring less expensive buildings.

This is not simply visionary. The scheme is practicable, as any one can see, by considering that two store rooms, each rented for $80 a month, and $40 a month for living rooms on the third floor, would mean $2,400 a year. The plan is not a new one. It has been tested and found not only feasible, but desirable. In the long run, it is a most economical method. True, it takes money in the start to procure the lot and erect the building, but that is the end, so far as expenses are concerned. People do not object to attending services in properly arranged apartments in a business block. Some large and wealthy churches worship in auditoriums located in business blocks, and the time may not be far distant when many strong city churches will put their money into a business block, with rooms reserved for religious services, instead of large church edifices that bring no income, but are a constant source of expense. At least, what we are saying, will do to think about.

And if we may venture another thought, we would like to see the plan for collecting the money, having the building erected, and the pastor installed, turned over to the General Mission Board, which might do its work through a special committee. After the building is completed, the property deeded to the Board, and the pastor installed, the further care of the mission, so far as it might need attention, could easily revert to the State District to which the territory properly belongs. The mission being self-supporting, would stand related to the District the same as any other church.

All of this, however, is said not solely in the interest of St. Louis, but mainly for the purpose of getting our people interested in working out a plan that will make city work less expensive. We have already put enough money in city missions and city work to have established and equipped a full dozen of these self-supporting mission centers. Every building thus erected might be made a center for our people. There are scores of young members working in cities who would be only too glad to rent rooms in a building that would place them in touch with the church and her work. We need centers in all the leading cities around which our people can cluster, and from which they can go forth carrying the Gospel into other parts. We need centers to which members, when traveling, can go and be made to feel at home. We do not mean places to which they go to save hotel bills, but places where they can secure lodging, pay for it, and at the same time, be in the society of those who will take an interest in them. There are many things that might be said in support of the plan partly outlined, but we leave the subject at this point for our readers to think about.

Orthodoxy Versus Loyalty.

In our church thought and life there is much being said and written about loyalty—church loyalty. This man or that man is loyal to the church and to her form of government. This is certainly commendable,—a good thing to be. Loyalty means to be faithful to those whom we are expected to serve,—those to whom we are under obligations,—our parents, our friends, our country, our church, or wherever a trust is imposed. We may be all this, and yet we may not be dependable, because our mind, our opinions, are defective. In other words, we may not be orthodox and, therefore, religiously wrong. We may be loyal, as we think, to the church and her form of government, and yet our loyalty may prove hurtful to us and the cause we are supposed to represent, because we are not orthodox.

Loyalty of a man to a cause proves nothing as to the righteousness of the cause which he advocates, nor does it prove that the man himself is right, because a bad man may be loyal to a bad cause. A man may be as loyal to a bad cause as to good one. So loyalty of itself does not prove that the loyal person, or the cause or the person to which he is loyal, are right and commendable. A blind devotion to any person or cause or church is not desirable, because such a judgment is not to be depended upon. We have men and women who boast of being loyal to the "order" of the church, and perhaps they are. But what does that mean? All churches have such loyal members. This is especially true of the Mormons, Christian Scientists, and scores of other cults that might be named.

Loyalty has been the prolific feeder of the manifold isms in which we find Christendom today. What the church of Jesus Christ needs today, and at all times, is a loyalty that is orthodox,—men and women that are sound in the Christian faith,—in the fundamental principles of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

We have people in the world today that are so loyal to methods,—means to an end and an order,—that you will find them cultivating their ground with the mattock, the ox team, the shovel plow, and sowing their seed by hand; reaping the harvest with the old-time sickle, and treading out the grain by the oxen. And so they desire to work in their religion. With them it is the old way, as did their fathers. Any change made, or new methods introduced to meet the new conditions, are looked upon as innovations that are out of order and dangerous. The Sunday-schools, prayer meetings, Christian Workers' Meetings, and all other changes that are needed to do service for the Master as the new conditions bring them to us, are objected to, not because they are wrong in principle, but because of the changes they make from the way they have been accustomed to do things in the church.

Unfortunately we have men who have been called, and are exercising in the ministry, who are better informed as to what the order of the church is than they are in its doctrines and principles. In other words, they are not orthodox. In some of her fundamental doctrines they are either lacking or holding wrong views. They are wanting or deficient in their theology. They do not understand the science of God and his relation to his creatures,—the science which treats of the existence, character and attributes of God, the doctrines which we are to believe and the duties which we are to practice. As a result, we do not need to wonder at their expressions of doubt as to the divinity of Christ—do not see how the miracles which he performed can be true or real, which to reject is about equivalent to rejecting him altogether. It would be very remarkable if such men, holding such views, should be allowed to preach, simply because they profess to be loyal to the "order" of the church; thus placing the order of the church, in importance, above that of her doctrines and foundation principles.

Of course, such conditions could maintain only where gross indifference is prevalent, on the part of those who have the oversight of those who are commissioned to preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ. But as strange as such things may appear, is it, after all, very strange when we consider the kind of training that many of our ministers receive? In all seriousness, who would be to blame if some of our ministers should preach some strange doctrines? What is our theological standard, and where do we send our young ministers to get the knowledge which they need, to make them efficient workers for the church? Many, called by the church, are left to choose for themselves without direction or help. They either buy such commentaries and books as are most available, cheapest or sent to them as gifts, so that the teaching which they get outside of the Bible is mere chance. They may be good, indifferent or decidedly bad, theologically, and yet from such sources come the teachings which some of our ministers get. As there are all kinds of erroneous doctrines published, and freely distributed, different ones will fall into the hands of our different ministers and be read by them, would it be a strange thing if those who thus read and study them should receive some different views into their minds and hearts, and thus weave them into their sermons? Surely not! Indeed, it would be strange if they would not. And then, shall those, who are not satisfied with such sources of obtaining needed knowledge, decide to go to some theological school or seminary about as orthodox as the books and papers read by the others, what are their chances? A man thinks along the things which he learns through teaching, and "as a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." It is true, some are so well-founded on the truth that they are able to discriminate between the false and the true, sufficiently, to reject the untrue and doubtful, and accept only the true. But let them be as strong and well established as they may, they can not pass through such a course of theological training without becoming more or less tainted with the spirit that permeates such institutions of religious training. There are some who are so thoroughly fixed and established in the simple and evident doctrines of the Bible that no amount of speculative religious theories can find lodgment in their minds and hearts. But they do not belong to that class that are called from the country churches, having only a rudimentary education, such as is attained in our common and high schools. For such men to go or be sent to some of our theological schools, because of the cheap and enticing inducements which they are able to offer, because of their heavy endowments, would be, and is, suicidal to their religious usefulness to the Church of the Brethren,—the church of Jesus Christ.

It is a sad fact that we, as a church, do not yet have colleges of our own of sufficient standing and possibilities to give to our young men the literary, scientific, classical and religious education that they feel the conditions and times demand, in order that they may be able, most successfully, to fill such honorable callings as may open to them for their life's work. We are glad, however, that this want is being more generally felt by the church, and that moves are being advocated, in some of the State Districts, to supply our needs. But in doing this we must not duplicate the mistake already made in trying to establish one, two and three in each State, where there is a strong membership. The only thing we could hope to do successfully would be to establish one fully-endowed, or perhaps three partly-endowed colleges,—one in the East, one in the Middle West, and one in the Far West, or in the South.

Biblical or theological universities of this kind will do more towards giving us a sound and unified ministry, church and people than scores of small, struggling colleges, trying to spread themselves over a field that is entirely too large for their possibilities. Our loyalty, orthodoxy and unity must grow out of our teaching. If our young men and women, who are preparing to do church work, can be provided with the same kind of gospel methods and sound Christian theology, they will thus be prepared to do the same kind of teaching and preaching. And the rational conclusion is: Like priests, like people. This will give us a unity that will be as natural as the likeness of fruit on the same tree, or grapes on the same vine. This is the Christ way of unifying his church and people. And children, thus born into the kingdom, need no arbitrary ruling to keep them in the right way, because they are all born of the same Spirit, and are all fed on the same food. Give them sound doctrine, and they will be loyal to the truth as it is in Christ Jesus!

Without a Religion.

An unfortunate condition is being worked out for Japan, for the way matters now look, it is likely, in the course of a generation, to be a country without a religious. For centuries Buddhism has been the religion of the island kingdom, but, through the spread of western methods in education, this is rapidly disappearing. While the people are losing confidence in the faith of their ancestors, there is nothing, as they view it, to take its place. The growing sentiment of the country is being moulded largely by the young men who have been educated in the universities of the United States, England and Germany, and it so happens that there is nothing in the way of Christianity, in these great seats of learning, to appeal to the Japanese student. In his search after knowledge he has lost interest in Buddhism, the religion of his childhood, and since the destructive critics of the universities have been so persistent in their attempts at undermining the inspiration of the Bible, the student is led to think that there is no more in Christianity than there is in the faith he has discarded. In this state of mind he completes his university work, returns to his homeland and leaves on the minds of the young men of his country the same nonreligious impressions that the great schools have made on his mind. This is the class of men who will soon be the leaders of thought in Japan, and as the older people, who still hold to Buddhism, die off, we may look for a whole generation of men without either a heathen or a Christian religion. The situation is unfortunate, but this is the fruit of universities that tend to undermine the Christian faith. However, the young men of Japan are not the only ones that are being wrongly influenced. The young men of all civilized countries are feeling the same influence, and the situation in the field of thought is becoming decidedly serious for the world at large.

The Communion Cup.

Some brethren, who do not believe in the individual communion cup, are a little uneasy because a few cities have condemned the use of the congregational cup for the communion services. While it seems a little strange that city officials should meddle with matters that are ninety-five per cent religious, and possibly five per cent sanitary, we presume that members in these cities may, for the time, have to adjust themselves to the conditions, but they do not need to coax the authorities to enforce the law in their case. It will be time enough to take up the matter when the officials show their hand. Some of the best thinkers in the country are now convinced that much of the legislation against the public cup shows considerable haste. Men voted to do away with the public cup in railroad depots, on trains, etc., and then turn right around and vote in favor of retaining the saloon, when every physician and every intelligent man knows that the saloon is the cause of more disease and more sickness than the public cup, a hundred times over. The city council of St. Louis voted to place the ban on the congregational communion cup, and at the same time are doing their utmost to keep the saloons of the city from being voted out, when one saloon, probably, does more to undermine the health of people than all the public cups in the city. Possibly the members of the city council never in their lives heard of the spread of disease from the use of the communion cup. All of this opposition against the communion cup, for sanitary reasons, shows a decided lack of careful thinking and reliable statistics. So far as we are concerned, personally, we have the first case to hear of where a contracted disease may be traced to the communion cup at a love feast. To teach people how to drink, and what to drink, will do more good than to attempt to excite public sentiment on this cup question.

Warning to Parents.

A sister wishes to give a note of warning to parents by telling what happened in her community. Months ago a fifteen-year-old girl was missed from the community, and after a most careful search, far and near, could not be located. The mother, on meeting two traveling salesmen, gave them the girl's photograph and told them to keep a sharp lookout for her daughter. Finally the salesmen, in a distant hotel, saw a girl resembling the picture, and so notified the mother. The mother went to the hotel, registered and watched for her girl. To the mutual joy of each they met when not seen by the proprietor. The girl told her mother how she had been kidnapped, and under threat of death, was held a prisoner, and did not dare inform her friends of her whereabouts. Later, but unobserved, the two escaped to the depot, and were soon on their way home. Much mischief of this character is going on all over the country. Innocent girls are stolen or decoyed from their homes and prevented from communicating with their relatives. Sometimes they are made white slaves, while at other times they may be held as domestics. It is fortunate that this mother was able to rescue her daughter, but since law is "made for the lawless and disobedient" (1 Tim. 1: 9), it is to be regretted that the mother did not give the information she possessed to the proper authorities. It is the business of the authorities to see that men who abduct girls have a chance to reform behind locked doors, better secured than hotel doors.

The Pious (?) Disobedient.

One belonging to a church that holds to immersion as the New Testament form of baptism, writes to one of our exchanges, wishing to know what Scripture would be violated by receiving the pious unimmersed into fellowship, provided the converts from the world should be immersed. This looks like a strange question for a man to ask, who believes solely in immersion. It shows a weakness in the application of the Scriptures, hard to be accounted for. Why not ask what part of the Gospel would be violated by receiving into fellowship pious persons who have never confessed Christ? Why not have the same question apply to that class of seemingly devout people who never pray? Why not ask what part of the New Testament would be violated by receiving into fellowship one who had never repented? Men and women are commanded to believe, to repent, to confess Christ, to pray, and to be baptized, or, in other words, to be immersed. To receive people into fellowship who have not obeyed this last command means to receive them while in a state of disobedience. It means to encourage their disobedience, and in this way become a party to their disregard of the Word of God. To refuse to be immersed is to disobey that part of the Gospel in which baptism is clearly taught, and to the extent that we endorse this kind of work, to that extent we become partakers of the sins of the disobedient.

Large Feasts.

We frequently hear of feasts where the attendance is too large for all the members to be accommodated. It occurs to us that for large congregations it might sometimes be well to hold two feasts, accommodating one-half of the members at one feast, and the other half at the second feast. These feasts could be held on successive evenings, and the last one might be made fully as spiritual as the other. Those chosen to serve at either feast would then be permitted quietly to enjoy the services of the feast at which they would not need to serve. Or, if it should not be thought proper to divide the congregation for two feasts, a second feast might be held for those who can not be accommodated at the first. It is not advisable for members, under any circumstances, to be deprived of the spiritual benefits associated with a love feast.

Moving Picture Shows.

We would advise our patrons to keep their children away from moving picture shows. The little good that may now and then be gotten from helpful and instructive illustrations, thrown on the screen, is nothing, as compared with the evil resulting from bad pictures. The Gospel Herald tells us what recently happened near Scranton, Pa. We quote: "An eighteen year old boy shot and killed an express messenger near Scranton, a few days ago, robbed the express car, and was captured later. He confessed the crime and said that he had gotten the idea of committing it from a moving picture show. He seemed satisfied with his act and proud of the fact that his deed was equal to the one he had seen in the show. It is no wonder that the moving picture show is meeting with such vigorous opposition from various quarters."

SOUTH BEND, INDIANA.

Following the Thanksgiving service, at the First Church of the Brethren, Nov. 30, a choice was held for deacons, resulting in the election and installation of Brethren James Newcomer, Chas. Steele and James Blake. Elders W. R. Deeter, I. B. Wike and Jacob Grater assisted in the service. In the evening of the same day our communion services were held, Bro. Deeter officiating. Monday evening, Dec. 4, our church met in council, the chief business being the election of officers for the ensuing year. The following officers were reelected: Chas. Steele, clerk; the writer, corresponding secretary; James Newcomer, Sunday-school superintendent; Marie Parrett, secretary. The writer was chosen president of the Christian Workers. At this meeting Sister Kelly was installed as deaconess. Cora V. Wise.

LIMA, OHIO.

Nov. 25 and 26 are days that will long be remembered by the members of the Sugar Creek congregation. As had been previously announced, on Saturday we had services in our new churchhouse, located seven miles northeast of Lima. Eld. Reuben Shroyer preached an excellent sermon on Saturday forenoon. After the noon hour an election was held for two deacons. Brethren A. J. Plaugher and C. G. Yore were chosen, and with their wives were duly installed. On Saturday evening about 200 crowded the Lord's tables, and a very spiritual communion service was enjoyed.

On Sunday morning our elder, Bro. G. A. Snider, gave an address to the Sunday-school, after which the dedicatory sermon was delivered by Eld. H. C. Early. Our large house, seating about 800, was filled, and the sermon was much appreciated by all present.

The total cost of the house was about $7,700, and our indebtedness was still about $1,700, but at the close of the sermon, and before the dedicatory prayer, this was quickly raised, and the house was dedicated to the Lord free of all indebtedness. May it ever be used in such a way as will be for God's glory and honor. I. W. Byerly.

A GOOD THANKSGIVING MEETING.

We met at the church for public services as usual on Thanksgiving Day. It had been previously decided that the ministers should each give a short talk, and that the laity were also invited to express their thanksgiving thoughts. Quite a number availed themselves of the opportunity. These talks were mostly short—one or two sentence expressions. They were of a great variety. One faithful mother of a large family said: "I am thankful that our children are all in the church." An old gray-headed brother said: "I am thankful for good health and ability to be here." The pathetic side of this little one-sentence speech is that his wife companion has been confined to her room for months by affliction. Another sister said: "We ought to be thankful for having escaped many trials that are so common all around us, such as bereavements, afflictions and other sorrows." These, and similar brief, heart-to-heart expressions, caused a number to say: "This is one of the happiest hours of my life."

By this we can see how sometimes an informal, impromptu meeting may be blessed as richly as a well-arranged program. There was also a collection taken for the new church at Slifer, Iowa, that is to be dedicated Dec. 3. J. D. Haughtelin.

Panora, Iowa, Dec. 1.

THANKSGIVING AT FLORA, IND.

Yesterday was a great day for us. We rejoiced and praised God all the day long, and far into the night. We had a nice, bright day and a fine sermon by our evangelist, Eld. D. M. Adams, which was certainly one of the best informal talks ever delivered in our church. We had a generous offering for the poor at the conclusion of the service and best of all, a young man came forward and laid his life upon the altar. He is a promising dentist in our city, and dearly beloved.

We met again at 2: 30 P. M., and held preparatory services, at which three more came forward amid much rejoicing. When we came to the water three more,—a young husband and wife of prominence and another young husband whose wife early in life began the heavenly journey,—were there to receive the sacred rite. This is not all. At the evening service the very atmosphere was surcharged with the Holy Spirit's power and when the invitation was given six more came forward, making thirteen volunteers for the Master's service upon this blessed day. Among the number is the city marshal. All, both young and old, are from our best families. Praise the Lord!

We are now fully convinced that an organized, united effort will accomplish great results. Each evening, as we meet in a different home in a consecration service, direct and either by pastor or mission study class, we are greatly benefited personally, and those for whom we pray are made to feel our prayers. Sister Katie Neher, our former missionary, who left her work at Ft. Wayne to assist us in our special efforts, is here, and as busy as ever.

Yesterday, while many wept for joy at the gracious outpouring of Pentecostal power, we found others who lingered at the altar, shedding genuine tears of regret that their own salvation does not among the happy number. This, to me, is more pathetic than the scene at the bedside of the dying or the last lingering look into the silent tomb, for in those cases there is generally some hope of a future meeting, but the thought of a living lost soul is too much for a devoted heart.

Brethren and sisters, when you are engaged in these glorious campaigns for souls, keep in mind that you have espoused a cause of which you should not be ashamed, and remember that the Lord has promised you great things. A. G. Crosswhite.

MINISTERIAL MEETING OF EASTERN PENNSYLVANIA.

The eighteenth annual Ministerial and Sunday-school Meeting of Eastern Pennsylvania, convened with the Mountville Church in their large church, at Petersburg, Nov. 7-9. The place of meeting being centrally located and easy of access, made it possible for a large attendance. The house was crowded at most of the sessions. These meetings are an educational factor in the Brotherhood, and their value is realized more from year to year. The "Sermon to Ministers" on the evening of Nov. 7, by Eld. S. R. Zug (who is the second oldest minister in point of service in the entire District) was like the talk of a father to his children.

The meeting was organized Nov. 8, by electing Eld. J. H. Longenecker, Moderator; John C. Zug, Clerk; S. Z. Witmer, Treasurer. The speakers assigned to the different topics responded well (only a few substitutions being required) and they gave views of great help and preparation. An offering of $30.84 was taken for the support of the District's representative in the India field,—Sister Kathryn C. Ziegler.

Bro. Edgar P. Bucher was elected a member of the program committee, to succeed Bro. J. C. Ziegler, whose time expired.

Steps were taken at this meeting, by which it may be possible to have the proceedings of future Ministerial Meetings of the District reported, and published in pamphlet form.

The following resolutions, somewhat condensed, were then passed and the meeting closed:

1. That we note with pleasure the increased attendance and interest at this meeting, yet we urge every minister of the District to avail himself of these opportunities for his advancement by attending every session of these meetings.

2. That we protest against the abuse and very general desecration of the Lord's Day, and urge our people at all times to spend their Sundays consistent with our profession.

3. That we commend the interest and attention given to "the pastoral problem," in all its phases, by both the ministry and the laity.

And further be it resolved that,—

1. We express our gratitude and praise to our Heavenly Father for his love and care in permitting us once more to meet in a Ministerial Meeting, and for the kindly spirit which prevailed during our gathering.

2. That we thank Eld. H. E. Light and his assistants, of the Mountville Church, for the efficient manner in which they conducted the meeting; and the entire congregation and their friends, of East Petersburg, for the welcome extended, their hospitable entertainment, at their house of worship and in their homes, and for the kindly good feeling shown, which will live in the memory of us all.

3. That we thank the program committee for their excellent labors, and commend them for the timely topics.

4. That we thank the Moderator, the directors in music, the speakers, and all others who helped to make this meeting a success. John C. Zug, Clerk.

DEATH OF A MOTHER IN ISRAEL.

Many readers of the Gospel Messenger recall with pleasure the hospitality and spiritual atmosphere of the Fitzwater home in the Green Tree congregation, Pa. These will learn with sorrow of the death of Sister Fannie Fitzwater, who, for so many years, presided in this home. Sister Fitzwater was born Oct. 21, 1825, and Oct. 19, 1852, was married to Bro. Joseph Fitzwater. Both Brother and Sister Fitzwater joined the Brethren church Dec. 14, 1856.

After more than half a century of life, consecrated to the service of Christ, she fell asleep in Jesus, Sept. 25, 1911. Those who knew her concur heartily with one who spoke of her life as ideal. She was noted for her noble Christian character and unusual executive ability. Many lives can bear testimony to the help received from contact with her life. She was an efficient leader in church, Sunday-school and temperance work. Always a good counselor, she was faithful in all the activities of these organizations.

When she was no longer able to leave her home on account of ill health and declining years, it was her joy to have services in her home. Some of her testimonies in these meetings will long be remembered by those whose privilege it was to hear them. Her husband, Bro. Joseph Fitzwater, has been a faithful deacon and trustee of the church for many years. He has been the superintendent of the Sunday-school for more than forty-two years. During all these years of faithful service to the church and community, Sister Fitzwater was his constant and devoted helper. She is survived by her husband, one son and one daughter. C. P. McKee.

OMAHA MISSION.

We have just passed through a very busy week, but one fraught with many spiritual blessings. On Friday morning, Dec. 1, the District Mission Board met for a meeting in our home. At 11 A. M. we had services for the children at the church. Brethren Mishler, Nickey and Meck, and also Sister Mishler, gave short talks, which were quite interesting.

After these services we all marched down to the basement, where the tables were already waiting (because of the faithful work of the sisters, and others, who so cheerfully tendered their services), heavily laden with many good things to eat. Here we had dinner together. After dinner the children were permitted to go outside to engage in games. It was, indeed, an interesting sight to watch them. At 2: 30 P. M. the mothers assembled to enroll themselves as charter members for a mothers' club which will meet once a month to discuss such problems as confront them. There were twenty-five enrolled. At this meeting a number of talks were given, all of which were impressive. Tears flowed freely as some of the mothers, whose heads were silvery, and fast ripening for the grave, told their experiences, referring to some of their failures and the evils which have attended them. Many were the expressions heard "that it was the best meeting of the kind they had ever attended."

At six o'clock we had supper and supper. There were over two hundred people fed during the day. At 7 P. M. we met for business meeting, in which we elected our church officers for the coming year and our Sunday-school and Christian Workers' officers for the next six months. After this we were favored with an interesting and impressive sermon by Eld. Geo. Mishler, who was listened to by a large and attentive audience.

The building committee, appointed to provide a permanent and suitable building in this city in which to hold our services, were with us at this time, to investigate what seems to be a very feasible project and to lay further plans for definite work. On Saturday night Eld. A. J. Nickey preached to a large and appreciative audience.

On Sunday morning, at 10 o'clock, the joint Sunday-school convention of the Alvo, Lincoln, Octavia and Omaha congregations met for their regular meeting, and discussed some very live and important subjects. From 12 to 1 o'clock we had our Sunday-school session, which is steadily growing, there being 103 present at this session, 13 from outside points, leaving our city attendance 90. After this session we repaired to the basement, where lunch was waiting. As soon as done, we went back to the audience room for the Christian Workers' session, which convened at 2 P. M. Topics of importance and helpful to this society were discussed. In all these discussions there was much interest and life manifested, and it can be seen that all the speakers had given their subjects much previous thought. At six we had lunch again, neither of these being heavy meals but merely light lunches. At 7 P. M. we took up the regular Christian Workers' session which was followed by another good sermon delivered by Eld. L. L. Meck, of Octavia. This completed seven hours of religious session for the day. Many were tired, but you could see that all were happy, which we always see when we have done what we could.

There were a number of visiting brethren and sisters from Alvo, Lincoln, and Octavia, and we were glad for their presence and much helped by their talks and suggestions on the topics of the day. At this time there are many families interested in our work. The harvest is fast ripening but the laborers are few. We now have classes too large to do them justice, some having as many as twenty children in them, simply because we have not teachers available to make smaller classes. Some exemplary, consecrated young brethren and sisters, who would be willing to get employment in the city, and help in the work here, would find that God could bless them in a great blessing and help advance his cause at this place. Who will come and help? M. R. Weaver,

Notes From Our Correspondents

As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country

ARIZONA.

Glendale.—Nov. 18 Eld. D. A. Norcross, of Lordsburg, Cal., and Bro. Harvey Snell, of Ontario, Cal., who is our District Sunday-school and Christian Workers' secretary, came to us and held a short series of meetings. During these the sermons were delivered with power. We believe this church at Glendale is going to be a power for good. Nov. 26 four dear Sunday-school scholars were baptized. Dec. 3 one more came. Surely God is blessing the efforts put forth here. Our prayer meetings are so interesting that we can not afford to miss one meeting. Our minister, Bro. Durr, and his family, are realizing that they can be well used in the Lord's work at Glendale. The members, too, are glad for their coming. Every sermon and Sunday-school lesson is helpful, all bringing their gifts to show their appreciation. The evening prayer and testimony meeting song service, The Interboro Board is trying to start a mission Sunday-school at Phoenix, Ariz. Those wishing to do more in God's service, can find plenty to do at Glendale. This is a rich, fertile valley with a splendid irrigation system. For further information address the writer.—Ada L. Page, Box 39, Glendale, Ariz., Dec. 4.

CALIFORNIA.

Glendora.—Our church met Nov. 30 for Thanksgiving services. Bro. J. E. Gilbert, of Los Angeles, Cal., preached an acceptable sermon. Our collection for the poor amounted to $65.65. Two applicants were received by baptism. The Thanksgiving given by District Christian Workers' union meeting was also held in our church. The house was filled. The program was well and ably rendered. Bro. Gilbert and sister Hettie Stouffer, of the Berean Bible School, to give us a few lectures on her travels through the Bible Lands.—Mary E. White, Glendora, Cal., Dec. 7.

Lordsburg.—Last Friday evening Bro. J. C. Gilbert, of Los Angeles, Cal., delivered a lecture at the college on the "Harmony of Science with the Word of God," which filled the auditorium was filled to overflowing. On Saturday he led chapel exercises and in the afternoon spoke to the college students. On Sunday morning he preached an intensely interesting sermon for us.—Grace H. Miller, Lordsburg, Cal., Nov. 28.

COLORADO.

Rocky Ford.—Our church held a love feast Dec. 2, which was largely attended. Bro. Ullom, of the Prowers church, officiated. A general council meeting was held at 2 p. m. when time Bro. Roy Miller was advanced to the second degree of the ministry, and Bro. N. J. Miller was called to the eldership. Our church offering, at the close of the Thanksgiving service, amounted to $15.75.—Clara Walker Miller, Rocky Ford, Colo., Dec. 5.

Prowers.—We are a little band of workers here, about thirty-five members, and are building a new church and parsonage house with a cement basement. One dear brother gave us $1,000, another $650. The Sunday-school is doing fine. Of late we have received liberal donations from outsiders. We have been holding our services in a schoolhouse, but are building the new churchhouse at Wiley, Colo., 10 miles west, to be used, without saloons. A good farming country surrounds it. There is a well-to-do schoolhouse in Wiley. Come to the Arkansas South. We have a healthful climate, good water in deep wells, and good land. Write to me, Box 1, Wiley, Colo., and any good church worker wanting to locate here. Who will come? We have two ministers besides our pastor, elder, and two deacons. We have services each Sunday. When our building is finished, we want a minister to followed by a series of meetings. We hope to do this some time after the Holidays.—S. D. Spitler, R. D. 1, Prowers, Colo., Dec. 4.

Sterling.—Our church met on Thanksgiving Day, and an interesting meeting was held. A collection of $8.97 was taken and given to our missionary, Bro. Ullom, to use where most needy at this place. We expect Bro. A. C. Daggett Dec. 22, to commence a series of meetings. Bro. Ullom is also expected to be held Dec. 28.—Stella G. Turner, Box 126, Iliff, Colo., Dec. 2.

IDAHO.

Boise Valley.—Thanksgiving Day we met for public worship. Bro. David Betts preached us a good Thanksgiving sermon, after which several of the members held of the special Thanksgiving service with thanksgiving for. An offering of $22.50 was taken, to be equally divided between the Mission Board at Boise and the Brethren's Home Finding Association at Idaho and Mountain Home, Ida. In the afternoon a basket day we met for prayer meeting and teacher-training class. All felt that we had been repaid for our time. We have a quarterly council. One letter was granted. Bro. George Flory was reelected Sunday-school superintendent, and Bro. E. J. Rhodes, assistant. Sister Marie Olsen is secretary and treasurer for the first six months of 1912. An outlook committee of three was elected to increase the attendance at the Sunday-school. We decided to get a set of maps for use in our Sunday-school and teacher-training classes.—Estella S. Brower, Meridian, Idaho, Dec. 4.

Lost River.—Our church also observed Thanksgiving Day by having services at eleven o'clock. Bro. Driver delivered an excellent sermon for the occasion, after which the entire congregation rejoined to a near-by home of one of our sisters and partook of a bountiful dinner, which had been brought in by the sisters. Our Sunday-school is also progressing in interesting nieces. We expect others in during the winter.—Ruth Trone, Leslie, Idaho, Dec. 6.

Nampa church met in council Dec. 1, with Bro. J. H. Graybill, elder, in charge. One letter was granted. Our thanksgiving sermon was delivered by Bro. J. H. Graybill, after which a collection of $8 was taken to be used for helping the poor. We expect to have a Christmas program. Our council meeting was held.—Bradley Kemps, Idaho, Dec. 2.

Nampa.—At our Thanksgiving service Bro. B. J. Fike preached an inspiring sermon, after which a collection of $46 was taken. The money will be used for the needy in the church. The solicitors also reported the amount subscribed for the new churchhouse, and the building committee submitted plans for the house. Rock hauling for the basement and foundation has been completed, and as soon as the material can be gotten together, the building will be erected. It will be an up-to-date building for convenience, etc.—William H. Lichty, Nampa, Idaho, Dec. 7.

Twin Falls.—Bro. L. H. Eby, of Payette, Idaho, came to us Nov. 15 and preached eighteen interesting sermons. His immediate result six came out on the Lord's side and were baptized. Three members were reclaimed, and all were built up and stand firm for the cause of Christ. On Thanksgiving Day we had an appropriate service. A collection of $25 was taken. Bro. Eby visited many homes while here. His love of love will be long remembered.—Ella Fahrney, 761 Second Avenue, North, Twin Falls, Idaho, Dec. 4.

Weiser.—The members decided on having preaching on Thanksgiving Day and a basket dinner. We met at eleven o'clock for services, and in the afternoon at 3 P. M. We had a few sermons by the young some of which were very helpful to the children, after which several of our ministers talked on missionary work. The collection amounted to $5. Every one present had an enjoyable day, and had many things to be thankful for.—Malinda Russell, 414 East Commercial Street, Weiser, Idaho, Dec. 5.

ILLINOIS.

Astoria.—Our church met in council in the Astoria house Dec. 2. Our elder, Bro. J. W. Harshbarger, of Liberty, Ill., presided. Two letters were received. We expect Bro. Jas. Moore, of Chicago, to conduct a Bible school committee next summer, and to follow it with a series of meetings in the Astoria house. Sister Emma Trayner was elected secretary of the Christian Workers' Meeting. The superintendents for our three Sunday-schools are as follows: Bro. W. A. Ellis, of Astoria, Bro. Henry Clannin for Walnut, Bro. Harve Stauffer for South Fulton. As the writer will change her location in the near future, Sister Edna Powell, of Astoria, Ill., was elected agent and correspondent.—Fay A. Rohrbaugh, Brownell, Ill., Dec. 4.

Dixon.—Our church met in council Nov. 30, in an all-day meeting. Bro. Wm. Beahm presided over the body of members. Each member brought a well-filled basket. Our elder, Bro. J. P. Wilson, of Polo, Ill., was present. An annual visit was made, and all the members were found to be in love and fellowship. Two members were received by letter. Our church and Sunday-school officers were elected for 1912. Bro. Wm. Beahm was retained as elder in charge for another year; Bro. C. B. Boyd, clerk; Bro. W. W. Lahman, treasurer; Bro. Wm. Hickey, trustee and Sunday-school superintendent; Sister Alice Lahman, secretary; Bro. Thomas McWhirt, secretary of the Christian Workers' Meeting.—Emma Boyd, 108 Harrison Avenue, Dixon, Ill., Dec. 4.

Girard.—We held our communion Nov. 18. Bro. D. B. Gibson officiated, assisted by Bro. J. H. Brubaker. Nov. 23 a communion was held at our Prospect church for the use of the members who were not able to come to the church. On Thanksgiving Day we had a basket dinner, the meeting being delivered by Bro. F. H. Brubaker. Offerings were taken for the following causes: Bro. Wm. Beahm's family, $14.00; Brooklyn City Mission, $14.22; Dorcas Aid Society, $11.52.—Mamie Gibson, Girard, Ill., Dec. 4.

Spring Run.—We held our Thanksgiving services at the church today. Not many were present, but we had a good meeting. Bro. Wm. Beahm, of Dixon, Ill., preached a sermon on Thursday night. Today our offering was $2.10, to be used for mission work. Our pastor, Bro. Ullom, is holding a few days' meeting at Prairie City.—Estella Ebersole, Rural No. 2, Prairie City, Ill., Dec. 10.

Sterling.—The church has been enjoying a season of refreshing showers. Nov. 26 we had the privilege of seeing Christ in baptism, for which we all rejoiced. Nov. 26 we had a very spiritual love feast, at which Bro. J. G. Royer officiated, assisted by Bro. D. L. Miller. Dec. 3 Bro. Royer began a series of meetings for us Nov. 26, which is now in progress. Dec. 3 the Sterling church held its annual Sunday-school superintendents are Sister Lissie Studebaker for the Sterling school, and Sister Mary Hoover for the one at Prospect; Bro. H. H. Kelmer, treasurer. Ten dollars was given to support our members and those who can not attend church services with the Gospel paper. We have many blessings to be thankful for.—Addie Blocher, Pearl City, Ill., Nov. 12.

INDIANA.

Anderson.—Dec. 3 at 11 A. M. dedication services were held in the Anderson church, conducted by Bro. L. W. Teeter, of Hagerstown, Ind. Bro. I. B. Trout was to conduct the services, but was hindered by unavoidable circumstances. The house has been built that nearly doubles our seating capacity. With it is a commodious basement, which is completed as far as apart, we now have plenty of room. Bro. Teeter gave a very interesting discourse. Dec. 3 we organized a S. S. in the new house. A collection of $300 was taken. At 4 P. M. the members were called together for business, with Bro. Wm. A. Hoover. Assisted by Elders L. W. Teeter and J. W. Rarick, Bro. D. F. Bowman was ordained to the eldership. This service was followed by a 6:30 P. M. communion meeting. A large number of visiting members were present, and the service was a most blessed one.—Mrs. Elizabeth Bowser, 1020 Nebraska Street, Anderson, Ind., Dec. 4.

Curtis Hilbert.—3214 Colorado Avenue, Anderson, Ind., Dec. 4.

Elkhart.—Nov. 26 we had a love feast, which was a spiritual treat. Nov. 29 we had a very good Thanksgiving service. Bro. Wysong officiated. It was a feast of love. Bro. Wysong gave a sermon on "Thanksgiving," after which we received an offering of $24.58, to be used for the Brethren's Home Mission Fund. In the evening he again gave us thoughts that will do us all good. Dec. 3 we had a good day with Bro. Wysong.—W. H. Allman, R. D. 1, Churubusco, Ind., Dec. 4.

Hagerstown.—Dec. 3 at 11 A. M. Eld. Eld. S. H. Utz assisted by Brethren Thomas Kolb and Silas Harp, presided over the love feast. Bro. Wysong officiated. He also preached in the evening. Bro. Geo. C. Main and the writer. They were only fourteen. A sermon appropriate to the day was then given by Elders Kolb and Utz. A collection of $14.41 was taken; for General Missions, $24.16.—C. E. Duvall, New Market, Ind., Dec. 4.

Kel River.—Our church met in council Nov. 25. One letter was received. Our elder, Bro. Wysong, had charge of our love feast Dec. 2. Bro. G. A. Snider, who is conducting our series of meetings at Bethany, Bro. Wysong, was present to serve with power, and in laboring earnestly for the salvation of souls.—Lizzie Wilson, Kel, Ind., Dec. 4.

Laporte.—Our council was held at Waterford, Dec. 2. Eld. E. E. Heestand was moderator. A collection was held for church and Sunday-school purposes. Dec. 3 we held our church treasurer. The writer, clerk; Sister Flora Riley, superintendent of the Bible School; Sister Mary Hoover was fills the appointment at Waterford is to act as superintendent of the Sunday-school. Our series of meetings at the church will be installed Dec. 10. Bro. Clyde Cripe, of Bethany Bible School, Bro. Wm. Hoover, assisted by Bro. J. Ellis Wm. Hess began a series of meetings at the Ross house Dec. 3. A deacon and his wife were received by letter.—Rachel C. Mershon, R. D. 5, Box 79, Laporte, Ind., Dec. 4.

Maple Grove.—Our church met in council Dec. 2, with Eld. Thos. Bell, elder, in charge. Two letters and one by death were referred from the previous council. Brethren John Kitson and Jos. Hutchison were given the ordination to the office of elder. We reorganized our Christian Workers' Meeting, with Bro. Hiram Cripe, president; Sister Ida G. Royer will come here Dec. 23 for a week of Bible Work. We intend to hold these meetings in the forenoon and evening. Surrounding churches are invited to attend.—Ida Hutchison, Burr Oak, Distributing, New Paris, Ind., Dec. 4.

North Manchester.—Our Thanksgiving meeting, Nov. 30, our elder, Bro. Otho Winger, gave us an instructive sermon. A collection of $13.25 was taken. This is to be used in sending the Gospel Messenger to the poor of our congregation. Dec. 3 Bro. D. L. Miller left for Mexico, Mexico, Ind.—Edith Miller, R. D. 5, North Manchester, Ind., Dec. 4.

Pine Creek.—We had services on Thanksgiving Day at two of the houses. Bro. J. G. Royer delivered an interesting sermon at the East house; Bro. Lafayette Steele, at the Blissville house. We had a good day. Our collection was $5.00, which is to be used for World-wide Missions. We expect to have a Bible Institute during the Holidays at the East house, to continue one week. The sessions are to begin at 9 A. M. with three periods of one hour each in the forenoon, and one period in the evening, followed by a sermon. Eld. S. B. Blough, of North Manchester, Ind., will be the instructor. All are invited.—M. S. Morris, R. D. 1, Walkerton, Ind., Dec. 4.

Pleasant Valley.—This church has just closed a three weeks' series of meetings, conducted by Eld. Eli Heestand, in the Middlebury house. His sermons were inspiring and uplifting. The church was encouraged and seven were added to the fold by baptism. The interest and attendance were good. Special Songs" was used, and the singing was very good. Today we held our Thanksgiving service. The collection for missions was taken. Bro. Clyde C. Cripe and wife have gone to Bethany to resume their studies. Bro. J. is selected for reorganizing our Sunday-schools at both houses.—Mrs. J. Shumaker, Middlebury, Ind., Dec. 4.

Salamonie church met in council at the Loon Creek house, Nov. 25, with Eld. Jesse Calvert in charge. Considerable business came before the meeting. Four letters of membership were granted. The Sunday-school superintendents were elected for both houses: Brethren Wilbur Sunderlin and Charles Shultz for the Loon Creek house; Brethren William Paul and Hampton Zook for the Salamonie house. We also had a meeting on Thanksgiving Day. Short talks by four of our ministers were very interesting. Our Thanksgiving offering amounted to $7.53, which was given to a blind brother and his wife, and another who's health has been much impaired for some time.—Sarah A. Heaston, R. D. 5, Huntington, Ind., Dec. 5.

Salem church met in council Dec. 2, at 1 P. M. Our elder Bro. S. F. Henricks, presided. One letter of membership was received. Our church officers were elected, with Sister Julia Joseph as superintendent; Sister Hazel Carpenter, secretary. Sister Ida Hoffman was elected president of Christian Workers' Meeting; Bro. Earl Bolen, secretary.—Lovina Bottorff, R. D. 2, Box 39, Salem, Ind., Dec. 4.

Springfield.—Eld. J. W. Kitson, of Fort Wayne, Ind., was with us Nov. 18-26 in a two weeks' series of meetings. He gave us good, spiritual meat, which was highly appreciated. Others promised to come soon. The attendance at our meetings was not as large as we should like, but this was on account of very inclement weather. Our council will convene Dec. 30.—Cora Hoffman, Lost Creek, Ind., Dec. 4.

Upper Deer Creek.—Our church met in council Dec. 2. Bro. Peter Hilbert, of Bethany Bible School, was present by Bro. D. 12. All the business was disposed of. Bro. John H. Mummert was appointed as agent for the Gospel Messenger. Sunday-school officers for the year were elected with Bro. Mummert as superintendent.—Minnie Mummert, Galveston, Ind., Dec. 4.

IOWA.

Des Moines Valley.—We met for Thanksgiving services in the morning. Bro. Virgil C. Finnell preached for us. A collection of $3.00 was taken. Dec. 3 we had a basket dinner spread and a delightful social time was enjoyed. In the afternoon our regular meeting was held. The Sisters' Aid Society is to be reorganized soon. The writer was appointed Messenger correspondent.—Lydia Bell, Ankeny, Iowa, Dec. 5.

Hartman.—Our church was reorganized by Bro. D. W. Wise, of Dallas Center, Iowa, began Nov. 17 and closed Dec. 3. The attendance was not as large as we desired, owing to the bad roads and blustry weather, the attendance was rather small. We had seven added to the fold. Bro. J. S. Miller officiated. Bro. John Christy was elected to the deacon's office. Bro. Wise and family were duly installed. We also had services on Thanksgiving Day, which were well attended. A collection of $14.32 was taken.—Estella S. Blough, Box 204, Hartman, Iowa, Dec. 4.

Libertyville church met in council Dec. 2. Arrangements have been made for Bro. J. H. Barrick to remain with us another year. We had meeting on Thanksgiving Day. A collection of $5.00 was taken. The money was taken up.—H. B. Johnston, R. D. 3, Batavia, Iowa, Dec. 6.

Notice to Middle Iowa.—It will be remembered by those who attended our last District meeting that there was a motion given for a much needed building for Bethany Bible School. I have been requested to solicit funds for this building. Since last session, a number of pledges that have not been paid. Those who have pledged, please remember them.—Jesse Emmert, Jan. 1, 1912.—W. I. Buckingham, Prairie City, Iowa, Dec. 5.

KANSAS.

Burr Oak church held her Thanksgiving services as usual. An offering was taken, which was equally divided between two worthy families that had previously sustained financial losses. Bro. Wm. Brower, of Belleville, Republic, Iowa (a childhood friend to many of the Burr Oak church), gave us an interesting sermon from Ezek. 47.—Emma J. Modlin, Burr Oak, Kans., Dec. 2.

Norman church met in council Nov. 24. By request of the Mission Board, Eld. D. A. Norcross, of Stevens, Kans., presided. One letter of membership was granted. Officers for the Sunday-school and Christian Workers' Meeting were elected for the coming year. Eld. Steward preached twenty-four sermons. Bro. Norcross will also preach a few more times and verses for his remarks. The attendance and interest were good. Our Thanksgiving day meal was "spread," and we enjoyed another pleasant communion season.—Alma Feller, Norman, Kans., Dec. 4.

Morrill.—On Thanksgiving morning we held a meeting of thanksgiving and praise. We had a good meeting, and many good things were said. Bro. Ira Stevens preached for us the first of a week of prayer and praise service that precedes the love feast. Bro. Stevens preached for us Dec. 3. Bro. Emerson, of Lincoln, Nebr. Dec. 2 our church met in council, with our elder, Bro. J. H. Graybill, in charge. Bro. Ross Eisenbise was chosen as our elder for the ensuing year. Bro. Roy Eisenbise was chosen as our superintendent. Bro. W. H. Haldeman was elected church treasurer, and Sister Dickey, secretary. Bro. David Eisenbise, church clerk; Brethren Harry Stoner and Leander Eisenbise, trustees. We are expecting Bro. Graybill to expect to hold our love feast Dec. 16. We feel that the Lord has been blessing us.—Della Dove, Box 100, Denver, Morrill, Kans., Dec. 7.

Munden.—Our church met in council Dec. 2. Sister Retha Delp was elected president of the Christian Workers' Meeting, for the next six months, commencing with the first of the year.—D. B. Johnson, Munden, Kans., Dec. 4.

Vermillion.—We met at the church on Thanksgiving Day. Bro. Hollenberger preached for us. After which we had dinner at the church. Everybody went with well-filled baskets. About 130 dined. At the afternoon session Bro. Hollenberg superintendent of our cradle roll, gave a program, which was well rendered. Bro. Hollenberg also baptized enrolled. Fourteen of the babies were there. At the evening meeting a collection was taken for mission work.—Lizzie Dellenbaugh, Beattie, Kans., Dec. 3.

LOUISIANA.

Keanoke church met in council Dec. 2, with Eld. A. A. Sutter as moderator. Much business was disposed of. One letter was received. Church officers were elected for 1912; also officers for Sunday-school, Christian Workers' Meeting and the Sisters' Aid Society. Two of our young ministers, Brethren J. F. Hoke and C. E. Hoke, were given recommend to District Meeting. We expect Bro. Moses Deardorff to preach for us the second Sunday in each month. We expect to have our love feast in the evening of Dec. 30. One query will be sent to the District Meeting, which concerns the Holy Land Texas, during the Holiday week. Our aged brother, Joel Little, and wife, who have been with us for several years, are with us on a visit, after an absence of nearly four years. They are on their way to Texas. Bro. Glick preached for us on Thanksgiving Day. He was with us in our council and also preached for us Dec. 4. Our Thanksgiving collection amounted to $10.10. We decided to engage Bro. Isaac Frantz for a series of meetings in December, 1921.—J. I. Miller, Bonnie, La., Dec. 4.

MARYLAND.

Hagerstown.—Our series of meetings, conducted by Bro. J. C. Flora, the pastor, began Nov. 12 and closed with our love feast Nov. 30. Bro. Flora labored earnestly and prayerfully. As a result of these meetings six were baptized. Bro. W. D. Keller and wife, of Washington, D. C., who were on their way to Ashland, Ohio, stopped over with us for two evenings. We were glad to have Bro. Keller preach for us. Also for a few weeks prior to our series of meetings three of our Sunday-school officers (brothers) were received into the church, making a total of nine since our last report.—Emma S. Kriner, 8 South Mulberry Street, Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 6.

Long Green Valley.—Our church held a well-attended Thanksgiving meeting. An appropriate sermon for the occasion was delivered by Bro. H. W. Fike, after which an offering was taken for Home Mission work. We also had a temperance meeting on Sunday evening at 7:30 P. M. Bro. E. Roop, which was much appreciated by all.—Ida M. Neuhauser, Gittings, Md., Dec. 5.

Pipe Creek.—Our church met for services on Thanksgiving Day. Bro. J. H. Yount, of Blue Ridge College, Md., gave us an excellent sermon. Dec. 2 we again met in council and decided to hold a love feast May 18, beginning at 2 P. M. We also tried the plan of a series of meetings, but at this time has not yet been appointed. Our Sunday-school superintendent has been relieved for another year. Bro. C. D. Bonsack had charge of the meeting and gave us good counsel.—Elias J. Engle, Union Bridge, Md., Dec. 6.

Union Bridge.—This evening Eld. C. D. Bonsack began a series of meetings in our College Church. We expect the same to continue during the remainder of the week. He is our presiding elder and college pastor. He is also teaching three Bible classes. We consider ourselves fortunate in having him, as he has had so much experience as a pastor. Our winter term opened for business with quite a number of new students. —W. I. Hoover, Union Bridge, Md., Dec. 6.

MICHIGAN.

Beaverton.—We held our love feast on Thanksgiving night. About ninety members surrounded the Lord's tables. Eld. Perry Mallory officiated. An address was delivered by us with Bro. Walter Gibson preaching in the forenoon and Bro. Perry Arnold in the afternoon. Bro. Arnold was the only visiting member. One elder has resigned and one has died, and one Sunday-school scholar has accepted Christ.—Katie Patterson, Beaverton, Mich., Dec. 2.

Black River.—Our church met in council Dec. 2, with Eld. S. M. Smith presiding. The spirit of the meeting was quite up to greater energy. Bro. Smith was elected as elder in charge for one year. Sister Nina Rigby was elected treasurer, and Ray Hoover were appointed as members on the missionary committee, to serve from one to three years. Bro. W. I. Hoover was chosen Messenger agent and church correspondent; Sister Creveling, secretary; Sister Amanda Whetenberger, treasurer. Decided to commence our series of meetings Jan. 1, with Bro. Deardorff in charge.—A. L. Hoover, Bangor, Mich., Dec. 2.

New Haven church enjoyed a very pleasant council Dec. 2. The following officers were elected: Bro. Ira Hartzler, Sunday-school superintendent; Bro. Hobart Emrick, Messenger agent. Sister Ida Hartzler was appointed to represent us on the District Meeting, to be held in this congregation in August, 1912. Four letters were granted. It was decided to help two needy families. To this one we donated $5.00, and to the other $5. We had services on Thanksgiving Day. An offering of $11.80 was given for World-wide Mission. The Sunday-school sent $5 to the Chicago Sunday-school Extension Fund. Bro. C. E. Deardorff, of Bryan, Ohio, is with us in a series of meetings. We hope much good will result from the labors.—Nellie Lamb, New Haven, Mich., Dec. 4.

Stone.—Our Thanksgiving meeting, held in the schoolhouse, was well attended. A collection of $6.90 was taken. The church decided to use this offering to send the Gospel Messenger to an isolated family in the mountains of Kentucky. We think this is a splendid way of doing missionary work in a new field.—Ruth Bloomer, R. D. 1, Prescott, Mich., Dec. 4.

MINNESOTA.

Root River.—At our Thanksgiving services a program was rendered by the adult portion of the Sunday-school, after which an offering of $37.35 was taken; primary department $16.60; birthday offering, $21.71; total, $83.26. An offering of $11.80 was taken for the Home Mission. We are now enjoying a series of meetings and lectures on the Book of Revelation, conducted by Bro. E. Barnhart, of Minneapolis. —Elia M. Org, Preston, Minn., Dec. 3.

MISSOURI.

Cabool.—Nov. 13 Bro. S. E. Thompson, of Lincoln, Nebr., began a series of meetings at the Greenwood house, continuing until Nov. 26. The attendance was good, considering the weather. The sermons received by the congregation were almost persuaded, but had not the courage fully to surrender. Bro. Thompson preached the Word with power and earnestness. Our love feast was held Oct. 18. About forty surrounded the Lord's table. Bro. Thompson officiated, assisted by Eld. Cline, Mountain Grove, Mo., Nov. 27.

Peace Valley church met in council Nov. 25. Our elder, Bro. P. L. Pike, presided. We elected officers for our Sunday-school for the coming year. Sister Sarah Pike was reelected as superintendent. Bro. Frank Deardorff was elected. We also reorganized our Christian Workers' Meeting, with the writer as president. Nov. 29, Bro. Ritchey, of Hardy, Ark., preached an interesting sermon. Thanksgiving Day we held services and had Bro. Ritchey preach for us. Services were after which a collection of $4.93 was taken for Home Missions. Our meetings are well attended. A new elder and Deleplain was ordained to the eldership, after which Bro. J. H. Hylton preached for us. In the evening we enjoyed a spiritual feast. Twenty-eight members were present at the tables. Bro. Ritchey officiated. A number of ministers were present, including Bro. J. B. Hylton, Bro. Ira Hylton, and Bro. I. L. Harris, of Caboool, Mo. Bro. Ritchey also preached for us on Friday night. We had good meetings. He went from here to the Weatherly schoolhouse, four miles east of here, to begin a protracted meeting.—Annis Deardorff, Peace Valley, Mo., Dec. 4.

Shoal Creek.—We held our love feast Nov. 24. Bro. Leander Smith, of Nevada, officiated. Twenty-four surrounded the Lord's table. Our series of meetings closed with a love feast. One young sister was baptized. Bro. Smith preached three interesting sermons. We were greatly encouraged to labor on in the vineyard of the Lord. We have appointed Christian Workers' Meeting again, and hope to be able to carry it on.—Virgie Argabright, Fairview, Mo., Dec. 2.

NEBRASKA.

Bethel church met in council Dec. 2. Our elder, Bro. E. S. Rothrock, presided. Two letters of membership were granted. Officers for the coming year were elected. Bro. E. O. Heiny was reelected clerk; Bro. U. C. Miller, treasurer; Bro. J. H. Heiny, collector; Sister Sudie Plotz, Messenger correspondent. Bro. Edgar Rothrock was elected elder. Thanksgiving services were held on Thanksgiving Day. An offering of $25.84 was taken, of which $13.84 was sent to the Omaha Mission, and the remainder to the Bethel Mission. We will present our pastor is attending Bethany Bible School. He expects to be gone till the first of the year.—Anna Lichty, Carleton, Nebr., Dec. 5.

Silver Lake.—Our church met in council Dec. 2 with our elder, Bro. F. T. Grabill, presiding. Very little business came up. A collection of $8.20 was taken for the Home Mission. A Thanksgiving offering of $1.62 was also sent to the Home Mission Fund, making a total of $9.82.—Anna Kindig, R. D. 1, Box 37, Roseland, Nebr., Dec. 6.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Fraternity.—Bro. Samuel Crumpacker and his son, Emery, came to our place Nov. 11, and preached two soul-inspiring sermons that day. Nov. 12 Bro. Emery left us, and Bro. Samuel Crumpacker officiated. We appreciated the short stay of our visiting brethren very much, and wish they could not stay with us longer. Our home brethren continued his meetings. Nov. 19 Bro. Samuel left us. There were no immediate additions to the church, but we know much strengthened in the Master's cause.—Emma Spaugh, R. D. 1, Winston-Salem, N. C., Nov. 27.

OHIO.

Arlington church, jointly controlled by the Salem and Brookville congregations, experienced a helpful revival effort, directed by Bro. Jesse Garst, of Dayton, Ohio. The meetings closed on Thanksgiving Day. Six united with the church. One was reclaimed. This is the third revival effort by Bro. Garst in this congregation.—Minnie Stanley, R. D. 1, Brookville, Ohio, Dec. 3.

Arlington.—Our series of meetings at Arlington, a joint house of Salem and Brookville, conducted by Bro. J. O. Garst, of Dayton, began Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 24, and ended with a Thanksgiving sermon Nov. 30. Much interest was manifested throughout the meetings, resulting in several done coming out on the Lord's side—six by baptism and one reclaimed. Others are near the kingdom. The members have been strengthened.—Anna Stanley, R. D. 1, Brookville, Ohio, Dec. 3.

Brookville church met in council Nov. 29, at 10 A. M. The meeting was presided over by our elder, Bro. D. M. Garver. Visiting ministers present: Bro. Jesse Garst, Bro. Samuel Horning, Wm. Minnich and Jesse Garst. At this meeting five letters were granted. The C. W. B. M. was given a report of the Sisters' Aid Society, which showed that our sisters are doing a good work. The following officers were elected to serve for the coming year: Bro. J. C. Bright, elder; Bro. Monroe Snyder, clerk; Bro. Emmanuel Rumbaugh, treasurer; the writer, church correspondent, and Messenger agent; Bro. John Wehrly, trustee; Bro. Noah Prizer, a member of the financial committee. Bro. Garst closed his series of meetings on with our retiring elder, Bro. D. M. Garver, for the faithful ministerial labors he has expended for us. We had our Thanksgiving services on Thursday evening. A very appropriate sermon was preached by Bro. Jesse Garst. Text: Ps. 100. At this meeting a collection of $12.39 was taken, to be used for the World-wide Mission Fund.—Mrs. Ezra Kimmel, R. D. 3, Brookville, Ohio, Dec. 4.

Dayton.—Our Thanksgiving evening love-feast at this place gave our pastor and wife, Bro. Brother and Sister Keller, a donation. On Sunday morning, Dec. 3, Bro. Keller preached in the absence of Bro. Jesse Garst, who is quarantined. Our Aid Society is filling a Christmas box to send to some needy family. We expect Bro. Barnhart to be with us during the Holidays.—Ida Holm, Ashland, Ohio, Dec. 5.

Denard.—Our series of meetings began in the New Carlisle house Dec. 2. Elder L. R. Peiffer presided. Visiting ministers present: Bro. Jesse Garst, Bro. Samuel Horning, C. E. Couser. Three letters of membership were granted. Bro. Ezra Frantz was elected superintendent of the New Carlisle Sunday-school. Bro. Jesse Garst was elected assistant superintendent of the Sunday-school at the country house. Our presiding elder, Bro. D. M. Garver, who is now in poor health for some time, was anointed at this meeting. Bro. J. H. Peiffer, of Bryan, Ohio, was with us Dec. 3 and 4. Barnhart of the responsibilities of the care of the church. We are in the midst of a revival effort at the New Carlisle house, conducted by Bro. Fidler, of Dayton, Ohio. So far there have been four accessions. Three have been baptized at the country house since my last report.—Mary Wagner, R. D. 1, Box 171, Springfield, Ohio, Dec. 4.

Fort Recovery church met in council Thanksgiving Day for services. Our elder gave us a very helpful talk, after which a collection was taken for the Home Mission Board. Bro. Ira Hartzler is at Colorado City, to aid in the erection of a churchhouse.—Ethel Hoover, R. D. 3, West Third Street, Box 24, Dec. 5.

Jonathan Creek—Our council was held Dec. 1, with our elder, Bro. Jacob Meyer, presiding. Two letters of membership were received. It was decided by the church that hereafter our Sunday-school be reorganized at the first members' meeting in the year.—Mrs. Jacob Meyer, Millersport, Ohio, Dec. 6.

Lower Twin church met in council Nov. 7, with Eld. Jonas Horning presiding. Two letters were received. Bro. Joseph Lawman was elected superintendent of the Sunday-school for the coming year. Bro. Isaac Frantz began a series of meetings Nov. 12, preaching some soul-inspiring sermons. Five were added to the fold and many more are near the kingdom.—Ruth C. Kinsey, R. D. 4, West Alexandria, Ohio, Dec. 5.

Pittsburg.—At our meeting on Thanksgiving Day the congregation was favored with a very helpful and interesting sermon for us on "What We Should Be Thankful For." A collection of $4.30 was taken for Home Missions. We elected our Sunday-school superintendents and presidents of the Christian Workers' Meeting. Bro. J. H. Peiffer is our superintendent; Bro. Newton Brinkley, president.—Ruth Delk, R. D. 4, Box 118, Arcanum, Ohio, Dec. 5.

Sand Ridge.—We had Thanksgiving services at 7 P. M. Though the weather conditions were very unfavorable, we had a good meeting. Bro. Jesse Garst, of Dayton, Ohio, gave us a splendid Thanksgiving address, after which a thank-offering of $5.00 was taken. This amount will be used for World-wide Missions. On account of inclement weather and bad roads our series of meetings will not very well attended.—Joel Vancil, Hamler, Ohio, Dec. 6.

Upper Stillwater.—Our elder, Bro. Jacob Cover, elder, Bro. D. D. Wine, could not be present. Eld. J. H. Christian presided, by request. Bro. Jeremiah Hollinger was reelected treasurer, and Bro. Jeremiah Hollinger was made president of the Christian Workers' Meeting. Bro. Couser, of Goshen, Ohio, will be our Sunday-school teacher. Bro. J. H. Sunday-school Teachers' Institute of Southern Ohio will be held in the church at Pleasant Hill, Miami County, Ohio, Dec. 28. The instructors are Brethren Bright, Flory, Wheeler, and Pittenger. All are invited.—Sadie Bradford, Ohio, Dec. 4.

West Dayton.—A series of meetings, conducted by Bro. Jesse Garst, closed Dec. 4. Bro. Keller labored earnestly with us for three weeks, holding forth the Word in its purity. Dec. 4 we had a Thanksgiving service and a collection. We feel very much strengthened by his soul-inspiring sermons. Three were baptized, and one reclaimed. Two others. Many others are near the kingdom. Nov. 26 Bro. Keller gave an interesting talk to the children at Sunday-school, the attendance being 212. In the evening, during the Christian Workers' Meeting, a Thanksgiving program was rendered. The meetings were well attended. Our love feast on Thanksgiving Day was also well attended. Bro. Keller officiated.—Gordie Murray, 2020 West Third Street, Dayton, Ohio, Dec. 4.

Wooster church met in council Nov. 25. Elder D. M. Garver presided. Officers were elected for the coming year, with Bro. Allen Buckwalter as superintendent; Sister Elizabeth Mumaw, president. Bro. Mumaw is president of the Christian Workers' Meeting; Sister Leatha Holmes, secretary. We also reelected one of our church trustees.—Mary Brubaker, Wellersville, Ohio, Dec. 4.

OKLAHOMA

Bear Creek—On account of the sickness of some of the members our love feast was postponed indefinitely. Bro. W. S. Cook held a ten days' series of meetings. The attendance and interest were good. He had to close his meetings on account of a cold in his throat. We had a pleasant Thanksgiving meeting at the Antelope Valley schoolhouse. Bro. Cook conducted the Bible reading and gave an appropriate Thanksgiving talk. We took up a collection of $2.60, to be used in helping needy home families where there are no members.—Nettie Stine, Garber, Okla., Dec. 4.

Elk City.—Dec. 3 we met in council. Quite an amount of business came before the meeting. Our Sunday-school was reorganized, with Bro. A. B. Coover as superintendent; Bro. J. C. Blanton was reelected president of the Christian Workers' Meeting. We also have a fine little band of juvenile workers. The brethren and sisters, also Bro. and Sis. Coppock, delivering morning the Sunday-school rendered a good program, following which a collection of $2.50 was taken. Another was given and one dear protégé returned to the mother's house, making the collection at this time taken to be used in sending the Gospel to isolated points of congregation.—E. J. Smith, R. D. 1, Elk City, Okla., Dec. 4.

Monitor church met in council Nov. 24, with Eld. J. F. Gerner presiding. Considerable business was disposed of. Church and Sunday-school officers were elected. Sister Minnie Ayres was chosen superintendent; Bro. A. F. Gordon, Messenger agent; Bro. Gordon, church correspondent. Several letters were granted. Six letters were received quite recently. We regret that our pastor, Bro. Hamilton Hendricks, Bro. Hess, Jr., Capp, and family, are to leave for Empire, Cal. They go with our best wishes and prayers.—Mrs. Ida Hess, Dec. 5.

North Star (Okla.) church met in council Nov. 2. We decided to have our series of meetings in the Sand Valley schoolhouse. Bro. Wm. Hendricks, of Elk City, Okla., Dec. 4.

Shawnee.—Our Thanksgiving meeting was well attended. The Sunday-school brought in an offering of $19 for mission work and Thanksgiving. This will be sent to the Home and World-wide Mission. In the evening we enjoyed a very spiritual love feast. Eight members were present. Services conducted by Bro. W. B. Glah, Sister Rhoda Poyner and the writer. We have chosen to canvass our town in the interest of the Sunday-school.—Birdie K. Stanley, Shawnee, Okla., Dec. 3.

OREGON.

Portland.—I wish to state to parties who have sent me papers that I have left Portland permanently. They have been handed around, but the address to me should be more plain.—Ezra Stonemaker, 911 Vancouver Avenue, Woodland, Portland, Oregon, Dec. 6.

PENNSYLVANIA

Colorus.—Nov. 23 we closed an interesting series of meetings at our Pleasant Hill house, conducted by Bro. Amos M. Kulp, of Mount Joy, Pennsylvania. Bro. Kulp is a soul-inspiring sermons, and during the time he was with us proclaimed the Word in its purity. The attendance was fair, considering the weather. The church was much strengthened and there are some near the kingdom.—Samuel C. Godfrey, R. D. 2, Red Lion, Pa., Dec. 5.

Indian Creek.—Our church met in council Dec. 2. Our elder, Bro. J. H. Cassell, presided. Among the things considered was the election of officers for the Sunday-school, for the following year. Superintendent, Wm. Hershey; and A. A. Price as superintendents' secretary and treasurer, John B. Shisler and A. Shisler. Our Aid Society is evergreen.—Hannah R. Shisler, Vernfield, Pa., Dec. 4.

Lower Cumberland.—This congregation assembled in Mechanicsburg, Pa., on Thursday, Nov. 24, for Thanksgiving services, conducted by Brethren Beckman and Abraham Hollinger, after which a collection was taken for the amount of $14.18 was taken for the World-wide Mission Fund, to be delivered at the next Annual Meeting at York Pa. Seven of our home ministers were present. Two certificates were received.—Clarence E. Long, 222 South Fourth Street, Steelton, Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 5.

Mechanics Grove church held a love feast Nov. 11. Brethren John Zug, Amos Martin, Jacob Meyer and Ralph Schlosser were the visiting brethren. The writer was present for a two weeks' series of meetings, conducted by Bro. John Zug, of Elizabethtown, Pa. Bro. Zug was with us on Thanksgiving Day.—Mary P. Habecker, Quarryville, Pa., Nov. 28.

Philadelphia (Frankford).—Our house, Dauphin Street

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

PLEASANT DALE, INDIANA.

Our series of meetings and Bible lessons, conducted by Bro. J. Edson Ulery, began Oct. 29, and continued until the evening of Nov. 12. These meetings were greatly enjoyed by all who attended them.

Nov. 20 was a quarterly council. Our elder, Bro. Swihart, could not be present, and Bro. D. M. Byerly presided. Letters of membership were granted to Brother and Sister B. F. Booker. Bro. Booker is a deacon. They expect to locate in Pittsburg, Ohio. We much regret to have them leave us. Church officers were reelected for another year: Bro. E. S. Burket, clerk; Bro. Thomas Griffith, treasurer; Sister Laura Driver, Messenger agent. Bro. E. E. Zimmerman was reelected Sunday-school superintendent; Sister Ida Devine, secretary and Sister Victoria Stoneburner, chorister.

The church decided to have one common treasury from which to pay all church and Sunday-school expenses. A committee was appointed to secure ministers to hold meetings for us. We are expecting Bro. Shroyer to begin a series of meetings here, in the near future. We held services on Thanksgiving Day at 10 A. M.

R. D. 3, Monroe, Ind., Dec. 4. Lizzie Baumgartner.

SANGERVILLE, VIRGINIA.

Our church met in council Dec. 1, with our junior elder, Bro. J. W. Wine, presiding. Bro. Isaac Byrd, of the Midland congregation, Eastern Virginia, was present. His assistance and encouragement were very much appreciated. Bro. Milton Shaver, of the Valley congregation, was also present, in the interest of Bridgewater College. Three letters of membership were received and ten granted. Two were restored to fellowship. Brethren M. G. Sanger, A. L. Miller and J. W. Hess were appointed as a Sunday-school advisory committee; also as a nominating committee for superintendents. Superintendents were appointed as follows: Brethren A. J. Miller and J. L. Driver of the Sangerville school; Brethren S. L. Wine and A. S. Driver for the Branch school; Brethren J. W. Michael and I. B. Miller for the Emmanuel school. The secretary and treasurer made their yearly report. The Sisters' Aid Society also gave a report of their work done during the year. Thanksgiving services were held at the Sangerville and the Branch houses. A collection was held at each place as follows: Sangerville, $12.75; Branch, $3.45. This is all to be used for the benefit of the Orphanage, except $2 which was donated to the General Mission Fund. The number of members in the congregation at the beginning of the year was 504. During the year twenty-six were received by baptism, and twelve by letter. Twenty-eight were given by letter and one died. At present we have a membership of 506. There were fifty-eight members in the mission territory in 1910. Four were baptized during the year and three died. Our membership now is fifty-eight.

SPRINGDALE, ARKANSAS.

I left my home on the evening of Nov. 14 for an evangelistic tour. My first stop was at Springdale, Ark. I commenced meetings on the evening of Nov. 16. Nov. 18 fifteen members surrounded the Lord's tables. Many in the attentive audience witnessed the services for the first time. The meetings continued till the evening of the 26th. The same evening Sister Ella Sheets was anointed in the presence of a very attentive congregation. Many had never seen the anointing service before. These services made lasting impressions on the people. In the morning of Nov. 27, before I left, a promising young man was baptized. Others were near the kingdom.

The little band of members at this place are very much in need of a minister to locate among them. Bro. William Watt, living some distance away, gives them meetings once a month, but with more ministerial help a noble work could be done for the Master at this place.

I went eleven miles to Bro. Isaiah Fiant's home, where there are a few members, and gave them a few meetings. On Thanksgiving evening we met at Bro. Fiant's home in a communion service, with fifteen members surrounding the Lord's table. After this meeting I was called back to Springdale, where there were some more applicants for baptism, and others were to be received. From this place I will go to Jennings, La. C. P. Rowland.

ONEKAMA, MICHIGAN.

Thanksgiving morning was truly the beginning of a most enjoyable day to the few members and some of the dear people who worship with us, in our church here. At 11 A. M. the few faithful ones assembled in our church and listened to an able sermon by Bro. Riley, after which Bro. Sellers gave a few very appropriate remarks. A few minutes were then given to any person wishing to express his gratefulness to God, who has brought us through another year. Volunteer prayers were called for and the response showed how the hearts appreciated the blessings of God. A collection was then taken, which will be sent to the World-wide Mission Fund. There were others who would like to have been with us, but could not. One of these was Sister Kindy, who was confined to her home for many months. "Grandma Kindy" has been a servant of our Master for many years, and is dearly loved by all who know her. After we sang the closing hymn, an invitation was given to go to the home of Bro. Ulery for a Thanksgiving dinner. The sisters had provided good things to eat. As the young people gathered around the organ and sang the beautiful songs of Zion, it made us older ones feel like serving God better, who has made it possible for us to enjoy this Christian fellowship, and the temporal blessings of this life. Then we departed to our homes, feeling that we had spent one of the most pleasant days of the year. Sarah Whitehouse.

THANKSGIVING DAY AT NORTH MANCHESTER, IND.

At the home of Brother and Sister George B. Haynes, residing near Avilla, Ind., their children were all at home with the exception of one son-in-law and an adopted grandson. There are eight children and twenty-one grandchildren, three sons-in-law and one daughter-in-law. After a bountiful Thanksgiving dinner, services were conducted by a son-in-law, Bro. D. E. Hoover. Much thanksgiving was given to our God in sparing the family until the present time. The father and mother have been married nearly forty-nine years, and not a death has been in the home nearer than two sons-in-law and a granddaughter. All that have been added to their family are members of the Church of the Brethren, except one son-in-law, one granddaughter and one grandson-in-law. Our prayers are offered for them as well as for all others who are out of the fold. May God keep us faithful that we may make an unbroken family in the bright courts of heaven! We should be thankful to the Father, not only once in the year, but every day may our praises ascend to him for all his benefits, and may we render unto him our whole hearts in service.

Mrs. Sarah E. Holman.

North Manchester, Ind., Dec. 2.

QUINTER, KANSAS.

The Quinter church met on Thanksgiving Day at 11 A. M., in a special Thanksgiving service. After the usual devotional exercises, conducted by Bro. D. H. Heckman, Bro. Ward led in the preaching services, using as a basis for his remarks 1 Thess. 5: 18. Then followed addresses by a number of brethren and sisters. Truly, we had a very spiritual meeting, and we think all felt glad that they were there.

Dec. 2 the church met in regular council with our elder, Bro. D. A. Crist, as moderator. It was the regular time to elect officers for the various lines of church work for the ensuing year. Bro. D. H. Heckman was chosen secretary; Bro. J. R. Mohler, clerk; Bro. S. Jamison, general solicitor; Bro. David Ikenberry, chorister; the writer, correspondent; Bro. Joseph Clark, Sunday-school superintendent; Sister Martha Blickenstaff, secretary-treasurer; Bro. John Oxley, president of the Christian Workers' Meeting. A committee was also appointed, with a view of increasing the interest in Sunday-school and missionary work of the congregation in the surrounding territory, looking up new fields of labor and sending out more workers. A committee of three sisters was appointed to arrange for a special program to be rendered on Christmas Day. A number of certificates of membership were granted.

IOWA RIVER, IOWA.

This has certainly been a great day of praise and thanksgiving at the Old Folks' Home, Marshalltown, Iowa. At 11 A. M. forty-two had gathered at the beautiful home. After singing some appropriate songs and Scripture reading, we had some very appropriate remarks by our elder, Bro. F. M. Wheeler, followed with talks by almost every one in the big sitting-room. It certainly was inspiring to hear these good old people tell why they were especially thankful. Tears of joy were shed, yet amid the expressions of gladness, tears of sadness were also shed. One good old sister, almost deaf, wept because she could not hear what was said and sung.

At noon all were seated at the table spread with the good gifts provided by liberal hands. Each family that came brought a basket of provisions. We then took up a collection of $26 for the Orphanage of the Middle District of Iowa, with promises for more.

It was an ideal day. The afternoon was given to the dear little children, who gave recitations and sang some beautiful songs, appropriate to the occasion. Thus the day was spent, and we were all encouraged to higher and nobler living. It is not probable that we shall ever meet again as we did today. S. A. Emswiler, Supt.

Marshalltown, Iowa, Nov. 30.

GLENDALE, ARIZONA.

The Glendale church met in a called council Nov. 21, with Eld. D. A. Norcross presiding. Two letters were granted, four letters were accepted, and still others are to be handed in. We praise God that the church is growing spiritually. Brethren John Coffelt and C. B. Fike were elected to the deacon's office. Church officers for the coming year were also elected as follows: Sister W. W. Fagg, clerk; Bro. F. H. Sine, treasurer; Bro. Fred Woodard, Messenger; Sister A. L. Fagg, church correspondent. Bro. F. H. Sine was elected superintendent of the Sunday-school; Sister Donna Durr, secretary. The superintendent, pastor and assistant superintendent were appointed as a committee to choose Sunday-school teachers. The Sunday-school is in a very prosperous department and cradle roll work. A Sisters' Aid Society was organized, with Sister Will Weigold as president. It was decided to hold a series of meetings in the future. If any brethren, whether ministers or laity, desire to change location, to reside where God can use them, we will heartily welcome them to Glendale. This part of Arizona is very fertile, and the climate is delightful. Ministers passing through this part of the country are earnestly requested to stop off at Glendale. Pray for this church!

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord"

Albert, Sister Sarah, daughter of John and Susannah Long, born in Knox County, Ohio, May 25, 1822, died Nov. 20, 1911, aged 89 years, 5 months and 28 days. She was of a family of twenty-one children, only five of whom have died except one sister. She was united in marriage to John Albert May 4, 1848. He preceded her to the spirit world Feb. 4, 1907. To this union were born one son and one daughter, the daughter dying in infancy. Her first husband was killed by guerrillas in Indiana in December, 1862, and settled on a farm in Noble County, where they resided until her husband's death. Four years after she made her home with her son in Green township. She united with the Church of the Brethren about sixty years ago, in which she lived a faithful member until death. Services by Bro. C. K. Zumbrum. Text, Job 14: 14.—W. H. Allman, Churubusco, Ind.

Alexander, Bro. Jefferson, born May 10, 1853, died Nov. 24, 1911, aged 58 years, 6 months and 13 days. He was married to Sarah Morningstar, Dec. 26, 1876. He is survived by his wife, four sons and three daughters. One daughter preceded him. Services by Eld. Jesse Stutsman, Miller and D. Hays. Text, John 11: 24, 25.—Stephen A. Ulery, Timberville, Va.

Basehore, Bro. Henry, died Nov. 30, 1911, in the bonds of the Spring Creek congregation, near Souderton, Pa., aged 76 years. He was a member of the church for a number of years. He leaves to mourn his departure a wife, followed by his wife and children. Services at Campbellstown, where interment was held. Text, Rev. 20: 6.—Lewis Lee and Rev. Paul J. Dundore officiated.—Edgar M. Hoffer, Elizabethtown, Pa.

Caldwell, Sister Mary, died of tuberculosis, in the bounds of the Green Mount congregation, Rockingham Co., Va., Nov. 8, 1911, aged 29 years, 5 months and 4 days. She and her husband united with the church last February. She left a husband and five small children. Services by Eld. J. A. Garber. Text, Eccl. 9: 10.—Interment in the Green Mount cemetery.—L. Katie Ritchie, R. D. 6, Box 26, Harrisonburg, Va.

Dohner, Bro. Joseph A., born at Waterloo, Iowa, Sept. 17, 1873, died at his home in Barbarick, Nebr., Nov. 11, 1911. He was married to Miss Lena Rains in Canton, Kans., Dec. 9, 1896. To this union were born seven children. He was baptized into the spirit world. He leaves his wife, four children, and his mother, four brothers and two sisters, one brother living at Billings, Mont. Services at the Brethren church by Bro. A. D. Sollenberger.—Allie Eisenbise, Beatrice, Nebr.

Eshelman, Sister Lizzie A., wife of Bro. M. M. Eshelman, was born in Lancaster County, Pa., June 30, 1844. With her parents, Conrad Best and wife, she moved to Stephenson County, Illinois, in 1855. She and Brother Eshelman were married in Dixon, Ill., Oct. 25, 1865. They lived together for over forty years. She united with the church in the autumn of 1878 at Cherry Grove, Ill. She fell asleep in Jesus, Nov. 23, 1911, aged 68 years, 4 months and 26 days. Cancer in the stomach was the immediate cause. For many years, while her husband was laboring night and day on the frontiers of Kansas, building up churches, she bore the brunt of labor at home in the family, which consisted of four daughters and three sons. One fourth son and youngest son died at Morrill, Kans. She never murmured, but bore all things patiently. It is said that she never had a quarrel, nor did she cultivate ill feelings toward her fellow-helpers in this world. Her body was laid to rest in beautiful Forest Lawn cemetery, at Tropico, Cal. After a large audience had listened to a very comforting sermon by Bro. A. M. White on John 11: 26 in the Tropico church. —M. M. Eshelman, Tropico, Cal.

Foltz, Bro. John H., died at his home in Mapleville, Md., July 3, 1911, aged 76 years, 3 months and 26 days. Services at the Mount Zion church by Bro. Caleb Long. Text, Job 5: 26.—B. F. Foltz, Mapleville, Md.

Fults, Bro. Henry A., born July 24, 1823, in Rockingham County, Va., died Nov. 26, 1911, in the bounds of the Bear's Chapel congregation, Upshur Co., W. Va., aged 8 years, 4 months and 2 days. He was married to Amanda House April 7, 1853, who preceded him several years ago. He was the father of seven sons and five daughters. Eight of them survive him. Bro. Fults became a member of the Church of the Brethren sixty years ago, and faithfully filled sixty-eight years in the deacon's office. Services by the writer. Text, John 14: 1-3. This text had been selected previously for this occasion. Interment by the side of his wife in the Waterloo cemetery.—Wm. and J. Neff, Custer, W. Va.

Gochenour, Bro. Harrison, son of William and Mary Gochenour, born in Shenandoah County, Va., April 1, 1828, died Nov. 21, 1911, aged 83 years, 7 months and 20 days. He was united in marriage to Elizabeth Sickles. To this union were born nine children. His wife, four children, two sisters and two brothers preceded him in death. Three daughters, two sons, one sister and one brother survive. He was a kind and loving father and brother. He came from Ohio with his parents when he was fourteen years of age. He was a faithful and consistent member of the Church of the Brethren for fifty-three years, being the oldest member in the Middletown congregation. His death was due to paralysis. He only lived six days after the paralytic stroke, and never regained consciousness. Services by Eld. J. W. Wright. Text, 1 Tim. 4:6.—Alma Gochenour, Middletown, Ind.

Hogan, Sister Sarah E., born Oct. 2, 1838, in Tennessee, died of heart disease, at the home of her daughter in this city, Nov. 7, 1911, aged 73 years, 1 month and 15 days. She was a member of the Church of the Brethren for about six years. Services by Eld. Jacob Gerlach, 562 Keeley Street, by the writer. Text, 2 Kings 20: 1.—E. N. Huffman, 502 Kentucky Street, St. Joseph, Mo.

Hostetler, Sister Rachel E., nee Rankin, born in Westmoreland County, Pa., Jan. 29, 1833, died near Waterloo, Iowa, Nov. 27, 1911, aged 78 years, 10 months and 27 days. She was married to Bro. A. B. Hostetler Feb. 19, 1852. They spent their early days in the bounds of the Middle Creek congregation, Pa., where her husband was called to the ministry. Later they moved to Wabash, Iowa, where her husband died Nov. 19, 1889. To this union thirteen children were born. Two of them have passed to the other world. Sister Hostetler was a great care in her later years, but was fortunate in having kind children, and a good daughter gave her the needed attention which was a great blessing to her. She died full of old age and urinic trouble. Services by the writer. Text, "The hour is come." John 12: 1.—W. H. Lichty, Waterloo, Iowa.

Juay, Sister Elizabeth (Mauzy), died at her home on South Branch, nine miles south of Franklin, W. Va., June 20, 1911, aged 83 years, 6 months and 14 days. She was married to Mr. Henry Judy April 10, 1873. To this union were born seven children, four sons and three daughters. One son preceded her to the spirit world. In the fall of 1883 Sister Judy united with the Church of the Brethren, in which she lived a faithful and devoted Christian life. Before her husband leaves three sons and three daughters. She was buried in the family graveyard. Services in the Lutheran church near her home Oct. 18, conducted by Eld. J. M. Kagey, of Dayton, Va.—S. I. Wolfe, Franklin, W. Va.

Miller, Sister Margaret Nancy, nee Runser, born in Preble County, Ohio, Jan. 13, 1835, died in Hancock County, Ohio, Nov. 27, 1911, aged 76 years, 6 months and 14 days. She was married to Jacob Miller in 1852. In 1848 they located in Hardin County, Ohio. The following year she was united in marriage to Mr. Joseph Miller. To this union were born three sons and four daughters. Two preceded her to the spirit world in 1864. Her husband also preceded her in death. Early in life she was converted to the Roman Catholic church, but afterward she fully embraced the Protestant faith, and united with the Church of the Brethren, in which she remained faithful until death. She leaves two sons and four daughters. Services by Bro. Jay Hilbert, at the home, assisted by Noah Blosser, of the Mennonite faith. Text, Psa. 23.—Gertrude Guthrie, Ada, Ohio.

Miller, John J. D., whose funeral was held in the Green Mount church, Rockingham Co., Va., Nov. 18, 1911, by Bro. B. B. Garber, was born in Spottsylvania, Nevada, April 1, 1841. Bro. Miller had gone west some nine or ten years ago. His death was a sorrowful one, being due to some accident in a mining shaft. A diary found in his pocket showed he had been robbed and murdered twice. The first date was Oct. 6, and the entries were made until the 13th. He leaves a wife, two sons and an aged mother in Virginia.—L. Katie Ritchie, R. D. 6, Box 25, Harrisonburg, Va.

Myers, Sister Sarah, died at her home, in the bounds of the Green Mount congregation, Rockingham Co., Nov. 15, 1911, aged 67 years. Sister Myers had been afflicted with paralysis for over two years, this being the third stroke. She is survived by one son, who cared for her faithfully, and one brother. Services by Eld. J. M. Kagey. Text, Job 14: 14. Interment in the Mount Clinton cemetery.—L. Katie Ritchie, R. D. 6, Box 25, Harrisonburg, Va.

Smith, Sister Ella Janette, died in the bounds of the Green Mount congregation, Rockingham Co., Va., Oct. 31, 1911, aged 46 years, 8 months and 14 days. Services by Eld. J. A. Garber, of the Church of the Brethren, and G. R. Fadely, of the U. B. church. Text, 1 Thess. 4: 16 and 18.—L. Katie Ritchie, R. D. 6, Harrisonburg, Va.

Trout, Sister Rosa, wife of one of our young ministers, Bro. C. E. Trout, and daughter of Brother W. S. and Susan Greenway, died Nov. 22, 1911, of cancer in the mouth, aged nearly 29 years. She was a great sufferer for a number of weeks before her death, which suffering she bore without murmuring. She was raised in the faith of the Church of the Brethren. About five weeks before the departure she professed faith in Christ, after which she was intensely concerned and prayed that she might live to work in his church, though she expressed herself as feeling resigned to the will of God, and ready to meet the summons when death came. Sister Rosa had a very kind and lovable disposition, which won for her many warm and lasting friends. She leaves a devoted husband, her parents, two brothers and four sisters. They keenly feel the separation caused by death. Services in the city church by Eld. H. S. Miller. Text, 1 Sam. 20: 3.—Homer E. Trout, Vinton, Va.

Ulery, Bro. Steven, born June 10, 1831, died in the bounds of the Mckinley church, Ohio, Nov. 23, 1911, aged 80 years, 5 months and 12 days. He was united in marriage to Catharine Muma in 1851. To this union were born seven sons and four daughters. Six sons survive. The mother and five children have gone to their reward. The father identified himself with the Old Order Brethren some time ago. Services at McKinley by Bro. D. F. Honeyman and the writer. Text, Psa. 3: 5-6.—John Smith, Trotwood, Ohio.

Ulery, Sister Sarah, nee Cripe, born near Rossville, Clinton Co., Ind., April 8, 1845, died Oct. 31, 1911, at Peru. She was a family of nineteen children. In this family were six sets of twins, six young men and twins. She was united in marriage to J. R. Wiggs in 1871. To this union were born one son and four daughters. Two daughters preceded her to the spirit world. In 1891 she was married to John P. Ulery. Two sons were born to this union. She united with the Church of the Brethren early in life, and lived faithful until death. She leaves a husband, three sons and two daughters, seven brothers and five sisters. Services at the Fyrmont church by Eld. A. C. Cresswell. Interment in the Fyrmont cemetery.—Cassie Walker, Fyrmont, Ind.

Wehrly, Bro. Adam, born in Preble County, Ohio, Dec. 11, 1837, died in Kosciusko County, Ind., Nov. 15, 1911, aged 73 years, 11 months and 14 days. He came with his parents to Indiana in 1858. He was married to Lucinda Sifter in 1864. She died in 1893, leaving five children. He was then married to Elizabeth Cripe Feb. 21, 1894. He died in March, 1903. Bro. Wehrly was a faithful member of the Church of the Brethren for thirty-eight years, serving in the deacon's office for many years. He leaves two sons and two daughters by the first marriage; also one sister eighty-four years old. Services in the Palestine Methodist church by Eld. Samuel Wagoner, assisted by the writer. Text, Rev. 14: 13.—J. G. Stinebaugh, Akron, Ind.

Read what some of the leading Sunday-school Workers of the United States say about the Sunday-school Bible Lesson Chart.

Marion Lawrance, General Secretary of the International Sunday-school Association—"I have never seen anything of the kind that compared with it for helpfulness along the very lines where help is needed."

Dr. W. A. Duncan, Founder of the Home Department—"I know of nothing like it for so good, and I heartily recommend it to all Home Department Students."

Dr. H. M. Kamlin—"I think your Chart to be one of the most timely and helpful of all recent additions to Sunday-school literature."

Reasons Why You Should Have This Chart:

1. It keeps the lesson before you the entire week. 2. The Teaching points are suggested and will start you to thinking about what the lesson is to teach you and others. 3. It is attractive to old and young, and gives you a decidedly favorable impression of the lesson. 4. It hung in the dining room it will lead you to talk about the lesson while you eat. It will awaken a relish for further study.

Notes from Our Correspondents.

above Broad Street.—Nov. 26, our morning service was entirely devoted to an old folks' service. We made a special effort to have the aged with us, from the neighborhood and different homes. At the close of the services each one was presented with a little book filled with precious gems. The services were very impressive. In the evening, at the close of the service, one dear mother chose that good part which shall not be taken away from her. We expect to have baptism in the near future.—Mrs. Sallie B. Schnell, 1906 North Park Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 2.

Philadelphia—(Bethany Mission, 3255 Kensington Avenue).—On Sunday morning, Nov. 26, at the close of the services, three dear souls were buried with Christ in baptism. Nov. 30, at the close of Thanksgiving day, two more have come. It was a blessed feast. The ministers present were Brethren A. C. Wine, D. W. Kurtz, H. F. Baugher, and Jno. B. Bowman.: Bro. Culler officiated, assisted by Bro. D. W. Kurtz.—Mrs. Sallie B. Schnell, 1906 North Park Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 2.

Midge.—Bro. J. H. Beer, of Denton, Md., opened a series of meetings Nov. 19. He preached several helpful evening sermons. Two were received by baptism. There are prospects for others to follow.—Joseph Burkholder, Shippensburg, Pa., Dec. 3.

Shade Creek.—On Monday evening, Nov. 6, Bro. J. H. Cassady, of Johnstown, Pa., gave an interesting and inspiring temperance sermon in the Shade Gap Church house. The following evening Bro. S. S. Royer brought before us the India and China call. Much enthusiasm has been aroused by that most inspiring talk. The same enthusiasm has been manifested in many pledges and offerings, which are being taken up to help the good cause. Our two weeks' series of meetings in the Windber house, conducted by Bro. B. E. Ludwick, of Somerset, Pa., closed Thursday evening, Nov. 23. Eleven precious souls stood up for Christ during these meetings. Bro. Ludwick labored earnestly, fully and faithfully and gave soul and preaching eighteen sermons. Special stress was placed upon the consecration and song service, which preceded every sermon. We believe the cause of Christ was greatly strengthened.—J. H. Lehman, Scalp Level, Pa., Nov. 29.

Spring Creek.—We held our Thanksgiving services at the Spring Creek house. Elders E. B. Lefever and H. B. Yoder gave us many good things. A collection of $21.10 was taken for missions. Surely, we all felt thankful to God for his many blessings.—Mrs. D. C. Flory, of Ashland, Ohio, will run a series of meetings at the Annville house, to be held in January, 1912.—Edgar M. Hoffer, Elizabethtown, Pa., Dec. 1.

West Greenville.—We held a council at Mount Olivet, Bro. D. M. Esbelenian, presided. The time of our fall council was changed one month earlier. A series of meetings is to begin at Greentree Dec. 30, and also one at Rheems sometime in February. Sunday-school officers were reappointed. Bro. Amos Earhart was appointed as superintendent for the Rheems school, and Bro. Hiram Landis assistant.—Sister Mabel M. Dannel, Elizabethtown, Pa., Dec. 7.

Windber.—We held special services on Thanksgiving Day in the Manheim house. Our elder, Bro. Hiram Gibble, and his assistants, gave us a very good sermon as to the proper observance of the day, and how to live and do more good during the year. The attendance and attention were very good.—Anna E. Shank, Manheim, Pa., Dec. 4.

TENNESSEE.

Jonesboro.—The Brethren had services at this place Dec. 2. Bro. D. F. Bowman did the preaching. We had a very good attendance. His subject was well handled, and I think the audience was well pleased.—N. T. Larimer, Jonesboro, Tenn., Dec. 4.

TEXAS.

Bethel church assembled at their place of worship on Thanksgiving Day, at 11 A. M. We had a forty-five minute members' meeting, followed by a short sermon. Many blessings were enjoyed. God's goodness manifested. Bro. Ing, of gratitude inspired. Our Thanksgiving offering amounted to $5.37. Enough was added to this amount to make our money set apart from the Sunday-school fund, to make it $10, and sent to Bro. Jas. M. Neff, in California.—Leo Dadisman, R. D. 1, Ketody, Texas, Dec. 9.

VIRGINIA.

Antioch church met in council Dec. 2. Our elder, Bro. Riley Flora, presided. One letter of membership was granted. Our, the head of a family, was restored to fellowship. Bro. Joseph Bowman was reappointed elder. Bro. J. A. Naff assistant. Sister Orpha Flora was appointed church treasurer. Bro. A. Flora, Jr., was appointed Sunday-school superintendent for 1912. Our Sunday-school was decided to send the Messenger to several families that are not members of the Church of the Brethren. Our church treasury gave an encouraging report. Our Sunday-school is moving along nicely.—Bro. Joseph Bowman appointed correspondent, Dec. 2 on "The Christian Warfare." We had services on Thanksgiving Day. Elder Lewis Flora and Bro. Riley Flora preached for us.—Martha Mitchell, Wirtz, Va., Dec. 5.

Botetourt.—Bro. J. M. Henry, of Daleville, Va., began a series of meetings at Cloverdale, Nov. 11, and continued until Dec. 5. He preached seventeen sermons, with power and boldness. Twelve professed faith in Christ. Seven of them were baptized at the close of the meetings. Much good was accomplished in the strengthening and encouraging of the church. Bro. D. P. Hylton, of Troutville, Va., conducted a series of sermons at Brick Union. He preached with power. Two stood up for Jesus and were baptized at the close of the meetings.—Mrs. W. K. Murray, Roanoke, Va., Dec. 5.

Wirtz.—At our Thanksgiving services Bro. S. E. Hylton preached an excellent sermon from Col. 3: 2, "Set you affection on things above, not on things on the earth." A collection of $4.43 was taken for mission work.—Ruth A. Hylton, Willis, Va., Dec. 2.

Woodstock.—Our church met in council Nov. 25. Much business came before the meeting. Bro. M. H. Shaver was with us at our council, in behalf of Bridgewater College. Nov. 26 the brethren convened at the Valley Pike church in a Thanksgiving meeting. Some of the brethren and sisters went to St. Luke's church and held a Thanksgiving meeting at that place. A collection was held at each place for the benefit of the Orphans' Home at Timberville, Va. The Thanksgiving day at the Valley Pike church, and Bro. D. M. Luke's church.—M. H. Copp, R. D., Maurertown, Va., Dec. 5.

WASHINGTON.

Omak.—All the members here met at the home of one of our brethren on Thanksgiving Day. We had an enjoyable song and prayer service. Scripture reading as a part in the service by giving scriptural verses appropriate to the occasion.—B. E. Brashears, Omak, Wash., Dec. 2.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Bethel.—Bro. W. B. Smith, of Beaver Run, closed his meetings at this place Nov. 26, after a most successful week. Great interest manifested during the entire meeting, the church being crowded each night. There were seven accessions to the church, and two were reclaimed. While here Bro. Smith made quite a number of friends outside of the church. —Jennie Wratchford, Old Fields, W. Va., Dec. 1.

Maple Spring.—Our church met in council with Bro. Jonas Pike presiding. Quite an amount of business was brought before the meeting. Four letters of membership were granted. On Sunday at 10: 30 A. M. Bro. John S. Pike preached to a large audience, after preaching we met around the table on the Lord's side, and in the afternoon was received into the church by the administration of brethren Jonas and Jno. S. Pike. Our Thanksgiving offerings in this congregation are as follows: Maple Spring church, for World-wide Missions, $112.20, for Home Missions, $31.87, total $144.07; Brookside, for Home Missions, $18.75; Glade View, Chicago Sunday-school Extension, $2.75, total, $21.50; Glade View, Home Missions, $13.45, World-wide Missions, $4.81, total $7.21. Total amount of the three places, $174.85. We are rejoicing over the fact that this church has paid her $50 that one of our aged brethren and his wife pay per year, which supports a family of orphans.—Sister Mary Ella Kisamore, Eglon, W. Va., Dec. 4.

Mount Herman.—The Spirit continues his work among us. A husband and wife have been baptized since our last report. We had a most enjoyable Thanksgiving meeting. The same day, at 11 A. M., the communion of brethren and sisters surrounded the Lord's tables in a communion service. Eld. J. S. Zigler officiated, assisted by Eld. J. H. Beer, and Bro. J. M. Crouse, of Brandon, Colo., who, with his good wife, has come to be an old resident again. We are glad to have Brother and Sister Crouse with us.—Anna F. Sanger, Box 45, Braggville, W. Va., Dec. 4.

Shiloh.—Bro. I. S. Long, one of our India missionaries, formerly of Virginia, came to this place Nov. 24, and lectured for us on the India and China field. Sunday, the following Sunday he gave us a talk on "Sunday-school," after which he preached for us. All his talks were very interesting.—Dora Auvil, Valley Furnace, W. Va., Dec. 6.

NOTES NOT CLASSIFIED.

Omaja church met in council Thanksgiving Nov. 30. The meeting was opened for all, and we had many good thoughts given by Brethren, Presbyterians, Baptist, Free Methodist, Salvation Army people. A collection for the mission work was taken.—Grant Mahan, Omaja, Cuba, Dec. 4.

Motter.—Bro. Jno. S. Flory, of Dayton, Ohio, Bro. W. H. Bowman's address is given as being R. D. 1, Cheyenne, Okla. It should be R. D. 9, Guthrie, Okla. Bro. Flory's is R. D. 1, Okla., Dec. 9.

Fairview (Maryland) congregation held services on Thanksgiving Day. Our elder, Bro. I. W. Abernathy, preached a missionary sermon. A collection, amounting to $7, was taken for the missionary cause.—Mrs. Ida Harry, Thurmont, Md., Va., Dec. 7.

South St. Joseph Mission.—We are planning this year to serve our poor and crippled people in a different way from what we have done in the past. Instead of a Christmas tree, a well-prepared dinner, baskets of provisions will be sent to them, provided the churches of the entire city will assist—assistance of sending us the needed help. We believe there are a number of brethren who desire to do something for the poor. This is your chance. Send us what you can spare or anything you may do, and will promise to do our part. We are not asking for money, but anything that will be of opportunity to[r free-will offerings to any one who wishes to help the poor. It would take considerable explaining to tell you why there are so many needy ones. Even many of our members and their children are poorly fed and clothed. They are not to blame certainly, those who are able now have an opportunity to lend to the Lord. The writer is at this time engaged in a short series of meetings, which began last Sunday, benefit of five of our isolated members. The interest and attention are very good, though a series of meetings has not been held there for over nine years, and the Brethren are very little known.—S. E. Hutton, 843 South Hickory Street, St. Joseph, Mo., Dec. 8.

Lower Miami.—Our church met in council Dec. 6. Everything was disposed of nicely. Our Sunday-school superintendent for the coming year is Bro. Bruce Ruble. A local temperance committee was also selected. A series of meetings is to be held in the home of Bro. J. A. R. Cosner, Peebles, Ohio, where it came last winter. Bro. Ira Smith is to begin the first meeting at the Marble Furnace church.—J. O. Garst, R. D. 6, Dayton, Ohio, Dec. 9.

Goshen (West Side).—The church at this place met in council Dec. 2, with our elder, Wm. Hess, presiding. Three letters were received and one granted. Bro. Jno. Shultzman was advanced to the second degree of the ministry. Sister Mabel Kurtz was elected as Messenger agent. A special council was appointed for Dec. 16, at which time we will elect a clerk for the year and to elect officers for the various departments. Thanksgiving day was enjoyed in a sermon given by Bro. Stauffer, of Chicago. An offering of $13.94 was given for Bethany Bible School.—Mrs. Onie Brumbaugh, Goshen, Ind., Dec. 5.

Bear Creek church met in council Dec. 6, our elder, J. W. Beeghly, presiding. One letter was granted. We had a very pleasant meeting, many visiting elders being with us. A temperance committee was appointed; also a Christian Workers' Committee. Bro. Addison Johns was elected Sunday-school superintendent. Bro. Joseph Studebaker was with us Nov. 25 to 25, and conducted a singing school, using our new song book, "Kingdom Songs".—Sarah M. Smith, R. D. 14, Dayton, Ohio, Dec. 8.

The Story of the Gospel

By Charles Foster.

A Child's Life of Christ, printed in short, easy words. The language is so simple as to be easily understood by any child. The pictures illustrate the most important scenes. The events as related in the Four Gospels are not repeated, but the details of each event are placed in their proper order, thus giving one full, complete and interesting statement of the Life of the Master.

The aim of this book to those who wish to instruct the young in the truths of the Bible can scarcely be overestimated. Its very general use, and the sale of more than 180,000 copies is proof of its merit and popularity. Bound in fine cloth, stamped in gilt and colors; with ornamental design. One hundred and fifty illustrations. 366 pages.

Price, postpaid, 65 cents.

FLASHLIGHTS FROM REAL LIFE

BY JOHN T. DALE.

Those who have read any of the author's other books will want to read this one. The sketches and incidents given are real flashlights thrown upon things which are worth revealing. The author in his preface says:

"Some of the sketches are based on facts which have come within the personal knowledge of the author, others are founded on incidents which have come under the observation of others, but they are all typical of the ever-changing experiences and mutations of life, as the grand panorama of existence moves onward."

Following are a few subjects taken from the table of contents:

Advice to Young Men
The Boy Knew
Dangers of City Life
The Father's Example
The Gullible Girl
The Profession Advice
Single and Married
The Runaway Girl
The Young Lawyer's Downfall

The Book contains 205 pages. Bound in cloth.

AROUND THE WORLD

Russia Grants Fifty Millions to Famine Sufferers.

The crop failure in twenty Russian provinces, previously alluded to in these columns, has already caused much want and privation among the eight million people directly affected. Besides the great lack of food for the inhabitants, there is also a great scarcity of fodder for the cattle. The Government has now come to the rescue with an appropriation of fifty million dollars, and it is thought that the needy will be fairly well provided for. Some months must necessarily elapse before even the earliest crops ripen, and until that time the needy will have to be looked after. A large part of Russia's periodical famines might be wholly averted, were there adequate provisions properly to regulate her agricultural and industrial conditions.

Three Americans Ordained as Buddhist Priests.

The recent ordination of three Americans,—Dryden, Moody and Euser,—to the Buddhist priesthood, at San Francisco, is of interest only so far as showing the gradual increase of Buddhism on our shores is concerned. Some are inclined to attach undue importance to the fact, evidently forgetting that in the onward progress of Christianity hundreds of former Buddhists are now telling the gospel story in China, Japan, India, Siam, and other countries where Buddhism has long held undisputed sway. That Buddhism is gaining ground in our land is to be regretted, but there is no reason to become discouraged when we note the great and marvelous progress of Christianity in the very lands where the dogmas of Buddha are most strongly entrenched.

New York's Gift to Nebraska.

Many and varied are the presents given and received at each recurring Holiday season, but the most precious and beneficial gift to all concerned was the carload of homeless infants, sent from overcrowded New York to the broad plains of Nebraska, just before Christmas. The thirty-seven little strangers found a warm welcome in as many hitherto childless homes, where tender and loving parental care will be given them,—the boon to which each of God's little ones is entitled. Nothing is more in keeping with the real Christmas spirit than the sheltering of one of these homeless ones. "Inasmuch as ye have done one such little child in my name," says Christ, "receiveth me." That is the broad spirit of helpfulness that has nurtured the excellent "child rescue work," so beneficently carried on in various parts of our Brotherhood.

The Great South.

More marvelous than all else has been the agricultural and industrial development of the South. In the last ten years the value of southern farm lands has considerably more than doubled, and the value of its farm buildings has increased ninety-two per cent. These facts demonstrate most eloquently the wonderful recent development of the great section which, for some years after the Civil War, made but little advance. An increase of $2,821,000,000 in the value of its farm lands, and an increase of nearly $1,000,000,000 in the value of its farm buildings, indicates substantial growth. As a church we have done comparatively little in the great and promising Southland. In our haste to reach the most remote parts of the West, we have passed by golden opportunities in the South. As a promising mission field, right at our doors, the southern States are unexcelled. Why not go and possess the land?

"No Grumblers in Heaven."

Dr. A. R. E. Wyant, of Chicago, took occasion, recently, to point out the deleterious effect of a morbid and fault-finding spirit upon health, both physically and spiritually. In the course of his lecture he pertinently remarked: "Grumbling is a positive injury to health. It spoils digestion, depresses the nerve centers and disarranges all the vital functions of the body. If fatigued, rest, but do not complain. Under all circumstances, seek the grace of thankfulness to the Giver of all good. Move out of Grumblers' Alley and make your home on Thanksgiving Street. Remember, always, there are no grumblers in heaven; that surely makes it a blessed place. In hell there is nothing but grumbling, and that of itself makes it a place of torment." Doubtless there is much more real value in a happy and contented life,—such as every Christian should live,—than is generally supposed. Solomon assures us that "it is a tree of life" to all who walk in "ways of pleasantness" and "paths of peace."

The Eloquent Hearer.

One of our exchanges ascribes the lack of interest, felt by the average listener, to the fact that he goes to the Lord's house filled with everything else but a readiness to hear. Undoubtedly it is true that "the dull ear is generally responsible for a dull sermon." On the other hand it is an assured fact that "an eloquent hearer will be conducive to an eloquent sermon." What meetings we might have, in every congregation of the Church of the Brethren, were we to go to the sanctuary with the firm resolve to be "eloquent hearers,"—colaborers together with him who ministers in the pulpit,—and still more so with our Elder Brother—who has so graciously vouchsafed his presence at every gathering in his name!

The Christmas Message.

WITH a due appreciation of God's love in the gift of his Son to all mankind, we trust that a happy and joyous Christmas is the blessed privilege of all our readers. May good will and peace enfold each member of our beloved Fraternity in the bonds of perfect union, and may each heart be touched with the sweet tenderness that comes with the Christmastide!

In the midst of our rejoicing, however, we would remember, in loving sympathy, those who sit in the shadow of a great sorrow; in whose homes, since the last Christmas chimes, there are vacant places, and in whose hearts there is a longing "for the touch of a vanished hand, and the sound of a voice that is still." We would bring to them the message of hope and cheer. The same Hand that has sent the affliction will gently lead them in green pastures and beside the still waters, and the clear rays of the star of Bethlehem will illumine even the darkness and shadow.

Let us not forget, in the midst of our social joys and festivities, the true reason why we celebrate the day. Let us put aside all thoughts of guile! Let us cast out all envy, all covetousness, all unkindness! Let us entertain only such thoughts and feelings as the Nazarene knew when he dwelt by the waters of Galilee! Let us cultivate human brotherhood and practice the essence of Christian charity. Let us look beyond and above the narrow limits of our workaday horizon! Let us get out of ourselves and into the hearts of others!

Only thus have we heard and heeded the gracious Christmas Message.

More Discoveries in Ancient Jerusem.

In a former issue we mentioned the proposed excavations on the eastern slope of Mount Orphel in Jerusalem. So far the explorers, in search of the tombs of David and Solomon, have cleaned out and carefully investigated the so-called "Virgin's Well," and the tunnel that runs from it to the Pool of Siloam. One of their most interesting discoveries was an Israelitish lamp, found near the bottom of the Virgin's Well. The lamp, which is in an excellent state of preservation, is believed to date from the eleventh century B. C.,—the time of King David. The excavators have definitely ascertained the site of David's Jerusalem and that of the Jebusite city which preceded it. They have also secured conclusive evidence of Jebusite occupancy of that region for 2,000 years before David's conquest. Further discoveries by this band of archæologists will be awaited with interest by every Bible student. Each glimpse into the life of past ages adds new lustre to the accuracy of the old Bible story.

More Temperance Teaching Needed.

At the recent meeting of the Anti-Saloon League of America, which convened at Washington, D. C., Mr. John A. Lennon, Treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, boldly declared that the "laboring man is the hope of the country in the fight against the rum traffic." He declared that the great battle never will be won, nor will effective work be accomplished until the great army of laboring men is free from liquor actuality does. "Too freely," says Mr. Lennon, "have liquor forces boasted that, as long as organized labor stood back of them, they had no fear of the church. This combination can be broken just as soon as Christian men and women begin to interest themselves in properly teaching the workers of our land." The thought, just given, affords occasion to suggest that the well-organized temperance forces of the Church of the Brethren can do a most excellent work by a proper dissemination of sentiment and teaching against the evils of intemperance in general. The moulding of strong sentiment in behalf of better and more acceptable ways of living is a mighty agency for the promotion of purity and righteousness.

Persian Difficulty Adjusted.

Once more the dove of peace is hovering over the lately threatening conflict between Russia and Persia. British opposition interposed,—not so much in the interest of Persia, but rather to check any possible territorial acquisition by Russia, in a country so close to British India as to invite future complications. As things stand now, Russia accepts Persia's explanation as to its future policy, withdraws her troops, and does no longer insist upon the dismissal of the American treasurer-general, Morgan Shuster. A peculiar sidelight is thrown, by this incident, upon the game of higher politics as played by earth's leading nations. Great Britain would have offered no objection to Russian aggression in Persia, had there not, under present circumstances, been danger to her own interests. Might, rather than right, still adjusts international differences.

Fuel from the Nile.

By the gradual accumulation of enormous masses of matted weeds, papyrus and other aquatic growths, the upper Nile has been largely obstructed to all traffic, greatly hindering the development of the Egyptian Sudan. Lord Cromer, for some years, attempted the solution of the problem, only to be confronted by the great difficulty of removing the enormous accumulations, known as "sudd." Enlisting the cooperation of Prof. Hoering, of Wurttemberg, Germany, further investigations were made. It was found that the available masses might be compressed into "briquets," of high value as fuel, and now a German-English syndicate has undertaken the manufacture of solid fuel from the Nile "sudd." Sir Reginald Wingate, Governor-General of the Sudan, declares that the conversion of Nile "sudd" into fuel, together with the resultant opening and widening of the channel, will mean as much to the Sudan as the Suez Canal means to Egypt. What progress we might make in the spiritual realm, were we employing a similar method of utilizing apparent hindrances as stepping-stones to a larger and more exalted usefulness in the Lord's work!

How the Stream Was Cleansed.

Athens, ever memorable to the Bible student because of its connection with the life of the great Apostle Paul, affords a striking example of the transforming power of modern sanitation. A sluggish stream,—long suspected as a breeder of disease,—was cleaned out and deepened, thus making its waters to flow faster. Each week the newmade river was rid of mosquito eggs. All this was started five years ago, but even before the first year closed, the malaria cases among the school children dropped to sixty per cent, the year following to twenty per cent, then to three per cent, later to one per cent, and last year not a single case of malaria was reported. Applied spirituality, the lesson is obvious. The literature we bring into our homes is either a stream of deadly poison to all within its reach, or a health-giving and refreshing fountain of life. It might be well were each reader of these columns to do some radical cleaning up along the line suggested,—not forgetting the blessed promise that there is "a river, the streams whereof shall make glad the city of God,"—the heritage of those who "make the Lord their refuge and strength."

The Emptiness of Human Ambition.

There is, perhaps, no more forcible illustration of the fleeting character of human ambition and pride than the one afforded by the experience of Robert A. Johnson, of New York. During the days of his prosperity, as a wealthy merchant in the eastern metropolis, he erected an elaborate mausoleum to receive his mortal remains when the inevitable hour should come. Upon the structure he spent the sum of $200,000. His fine estate at Riverdale-on-the-Hudson proclaimed him a successful business man, as the world counts success. Disastrous reverses, however, came. His property was swept away, his business was wrecked, and his estate passed into the hands of others. Being in need of employment, Johnson became caretaker of the very estate that had once been his home, and he was accorded the privilege of sleeping in the tomb. To-day this man, at one time of vast possessions, is spending the evening of his life where there are bound to be but sad memories of past grandeur. He is living in a barn while a tomb of magnificent splendor and lavish cost stands wrecked, to shelter him for the last long sleep. A vivid emblem of the mutability of all things earthly! In reality but one thing counts,—the one thing needful! That means a happy life and a glorious departure. "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord, their works do follow them."

He Is Come!

BY E. F. M. SOURS.

I am thinking today of the story of love
That was told so long ago.
It has come from the distances, under the stars,
Across many a winter's snow.
'Tis a story of One who was cradled in hay,
In a manger far away;
But from heaven he came, and his angels of flame
Spoke "PEACE" on his natal day—
For the Christ, the Son of God, had come
To guide to the heavenly home.

We are singing today of the angels' song
Unto the shepherd's throng.
They were keeping night-watches, lone and drear,
When a wonder, deep and strong,
Crept unto their hearts, and they gazed the skies,
For it burst—O glad surprise!
What the prophets had told in lore of old,
Was told in the flaming skies!
And over the hills from the sheep they sped,
To the Christ-child's manger bed.

We are singing, "All hail!" to the Christ-child now,
And we bow before his throne,
And the world to the Manger-King bends in thrall,
And we own him God alone!—
For the wonderful, wonderful worlds are his,
And the ferns on the mountain-sides,
And the heart that is true, like the sky of blue,
Beneath his smile abides.
And over our spirits, like tidal waves,
Comes the message that Jesus saves!

We are walking today in the light of the throne;
Through him who came we pray.
Let the Christmas stockings have their zest,
Christ was born one happy day.
And whether it be our Christmastide
Our wise-men can not tell,
But the day is kept o'er the nations wide,
And we love it all is well.
And the babies low lisp to the happy home
The joy that Christ is come.

The Obvious Meaning of God's Word.

BY DAVID M. ADAMS.

THERE are a great many people in the Christian world who admit everything contained in the Scriptures, but who admit many of the declarations only in the sense annexed by themselves to the several passages in which they are found. They interpret the eternal, immutable fiats of God in the light of their own preconceived opinions, hence the interpretations of a given portion of Scripture are as divers as the characteristic opinions of the individuals by whom the interpretations are made.

As a result of these various, and, in very many instances, discordant and contradictory, interpretations of the fundamental truths and doctrines of God's Word, confusion has been introduced into the Christian system, and religious sects have become multiplied, while, in the mind of the earnest, sincere seeker after truth, irresistibly arises the pertinent and momentous question: "In what sense shall I believe this and that passage of Scripture? I am ready," such a man will say, "to identify myself with the people of God, but I know not where to go. What shall I accept as truth? A difference of opinion prevails, even among the most profound scholars, as to what the Bible teaches. Whom shall I follow, or shall I follow none of them?"

Persons of this kind do not exist only in the imagination of the writer. They are a part and parcel of every Christian community. The busy pastor and evangelist meets them frequently, and the questions, quoted above, which arise in their minds, and to which they often give expression, are certainly rational, as well as important. It is the duty, therefore, of every minister of the Gospel, to remove, as far as possible, the perplexity out of which they spring. This being the case, the writer humbly submits this article to the judgment of the reader.

It is the conviction of the writer that the plain and obvious meaning of the various declarations of God, in the Scriptures, is the true meaning. The sense in which they are to be received is the obvious sense, or the sense which readily presents itself to the person reading them with seriousness, and whose mind is not biased by any preconceived opinion or pet theory that he or she wishes to sustain.

In support of this position I adduce the following observations:

1. A great part of the Bible was written by men who knew no other than plain language,—the common diction or phraseology of their country. Many of them were uneducated men,—men who were not brought up at the feet of any of the rabbin. As a certain writer has said, "They were not versed in the painful niceties of the legal and theological lore that made the Jewish ecclesiastic." Matthew Henry says, concerning some of them: "They were of mean extraction, and had no learned education, had never been at any university, etc."

Take, for instance, Peter and John who are called "unlearned and ignorant men" in Acts 4: 13. Now we do not assume that they were wholly without education. Possibly they were acquainted with the two languages that were in general use in Palestine in their day,—the Hebrew and the Greek,—but they lacked the professional or rabbinical training, prized so highly by the Jews. Hence, as Timothy Dwight, once president of Yale College, said, "The knowledge of uncustomary, technical or what may be called philosophical, phraseology is an attainment of mere learning; and can not be possessed by an unlearned man. Hence a great part of the doctrines of the Bible, so many as evidently to involve the whole, were certainly delivered in the plain language of men; because they were delivered by those who knew no other."

Our attention may be called to the fact that the Apostle Paul, for one, was a very learned man. To this I would reply that he declares that the things which he and his fellow-apostles proclaimed were not delivered in "words which man's wisdom teacheth" (1 Cor. 2: 13). He was, indeed, a learned man, but he says himself that his speech and his preaching was not with enticing words of man's wisdom (1 Cor. 2: 4).

2. The Scriptures were addressed chiefly,—by those who spoke and wrote them,—to the plain or common people.

Moses wrote the law for all Israel. (See Exodus 20: 2; Deut. 5: 1; 6: 3-9; 11: 18-20; Joshua 8: 35).

The Psalms are a collection of sacred poems, written for all the people, and were made a part of their public worship.

The Book of Proverbs contains the wise sayings of Solomon, written to give subtility to the simple, and knowledge and discretion to the young.

Our Savior spoke mostly to the common people who heard him gladly.

Matthew wrote primarily for the Jewish Christians. Mark wrote his account of the Gospel for the Gentile converts. Luke and John wrote for the Christian world at large. The Book of the Acts of the Apostles is a connecting link between the Gospels and Epistles, and is also addressed to the Christian world. The Epistles of Paul, except those to Timothy, Titus, and Philemon, were written to the respective churches whose names they bear. These churches consisted largely of uneducated people. The Epistle to the Hebrews, supposed to have been written by Paul, was written to the Jewish converts to Christianity. The Epistle of St. James, the two of St. Peter, the three of St. John, and the one of St. Jude, have been called the Catholic or General Epistles, because they are addressed to the church at large, and not to the converts of any one place or city.

In consideration of the above facts, it must be admitted that the Scriptures were for the most part addressed to that class of mankind usually designated by the phrases, the common people, or the people in general. Hence it follows that the meaning of the language used in the Scriptures is the obvious meaning, or such as the people to whom said language was addressed could readily comprehend.

3. If the obvious meaning of the Scriptures is not the true one, then a large portion of the human family should not be held accountable for not grasping their true meaning, and consequently could not reasonably be reproved or threatened for not strictly obeying them.

A correct understanding of God's Word is essential to evangelical faith and practice. To believe what God says is to believe what he means. To receive his words is to receive and to be governed by what he actually says. "He that receiveth not my words hath one that judgeth him; the words that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day." How can this be if such as are concerned can not understand what the Master's words mean? How can one obey his Master in all things, if after hard, earnest, diligent study, he can not understand what his Master requires of him?

The fact of the matter is, the will of our heavenly Father is conveyed to us in language, the meaning of which is the most perceptible. On this point the noted preacher and educator, whom I have already quoted, says: "Every rhetorical critic, perplexed with no theological debates, and having no religious system to support, has remarked that the language of the Scriptures is distinguished from all other books by its simplicity; its native, uncontrived character; its accordance with the most artless speech of man. Particularly, every plain man here finds himself entirely at home, and sees facts and doctrines and precepts presented to him with a plainness which is elsewhere unrivalled."

Speaking of the figurative language, used in the Bible, the same author says: "Figurative language, when used according to the dictates of nature, is scarcely at all less obvious, or less easily understood, than that which is literal. . . . The figurative phraseology in the Bible, which is obscure, is not that which the writers intended to use, but that which is made figurative by those who comment on their writings."

It is contrary to common sense and the rules of propriety to admit, for a moment, that God has revealed his will to the human family, and yet the language of the Revelation is such that those to whom it is addressed can not, without great difficulty, fathom its meaning. While addressing our children with reference to their duty, we would not think of using language they could not interpret. Much less would our Savior and the inspired writers use obscure language, in giving humanity the rites and ordinances of the Christian church.

The Unceasing Song.

BY H. A. STAHL.

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

So the angels sang when Christ, the Savior of men, was born in Bethlehem of Judea. In angelic sweetness the glorious song floated out upon the midnight air, and was borne over the plain to the devout shepherds. A new choir had come to earth, and they sang a song which had never been heard before. It was written by the angels, and sung by them to the music of heaven. The words and notes were voiced by other than human tongues, and by lips that had never before sung anything but the high praises of the Almighty.

But now, after their ages of unceasing glory to God above, something is added, "On earth peace, good will toward men." It is, therefore, a song of heaven for men, to be used in all the circumstances and emergencies of life, and it announces that the greatest blessing, the highest good, the brightest glory has come to men. It is the song of the ages.

The sweet words and heavenly music of the angelic song underlie everything that is truly good in the human heart. The meaning of every holy aspiration, of every longing for the blessedness that has come to earth, in the person of our Lord, is found in the fact that it celebrates the advent of the Son of God into the world.

Unlike the songs of earth, it cannot die, nor fade from the memory of men. Amid the misery and confusion of this world's fallen life, it must be heard, and its words must ever point to the glory that has come and that shall be revealed in all who believe, down to the last moment of time. Then, in the heavenly home, when the redeemed of the Lord shall have returned and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy, will not this song of heaven be the burden of every heart that rests in love of the Father's house on high? Can it ever cease on earth?

I hear the songs of Christmas, the festal day on which Jesus was born. The angels' song is the substance,—the life of all. It is a song by the people of God in every clime,—by fathers, mothers and children, by young men and maidens in the different conditions of human life. The infant lisps its words, the aged saint, as he sings this song, feels new strength in his heart, and his eye kindles with a new light as he hears its music in his soul. It has come down the ages, and has penetrated, with its sweetness, the bitterness of life. Of heavenly birth, it has thrown around man the poetry and music of heaven, and imparted its own sweetness to his heart. As the pathway of Christ's kingdom widens in the world, this song will gather force and beauty from hearts washed in the blood of Jesus, until the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdom of him who was born in the manger at Bethlehem. Aye, the songs of earth shall grow old and be forgotten. The earth itself shall be dissolved and the heavens shall be folded together like a garment, but human hearts shall always know, and human tongues shall always sing the true song which the angels sang on the first Christmas morning.

Thus Christmas does annually cast upon us a light of joy and gladness. It breathes a heavenly benediction upon all the children of men. But there is a sublimer Christmas which no adversities can cloud, which lasts all the year and all the life,—one which ever puts the angelic song on our lips. If it is not so, it is because no proper preparation for it has been made. And with him shall come light, and gladness, and angel songs, and gold, and frankincense, as well as myrrh. Thus shall we rejoice in the Lord always, through the unceasing song.

Excavations on Mount of Olives.

To the east of Jerusalem, and overtopping the city by 174 feet, is the famous Mount of Olives, a long ridge, extending north and south. Its elevation is 2,723 feet above the sea level, and from its summit fully one-fourth of Palestine may be seen. The Jordan Valley, the Dead Sea, Mt. Nebo, and much of the country east of the Jordan are in plain view. It was from the Mount of Olives, in the presence of his disciples, that Jesus ascended into heaven, forty days after his resurrection from the dead. The mount has always been famous in the history of the Jews, as well as in the history of the Christian church. Of late some discoveries have been made on the top of the mount that will prove of great interest to the Christian world. The facts that follow are gleaned from what has been published by the Associated Press:

Under the auspices of the Greek Catholic order of monks called the "White Fathers," excavations were begun recently in the grounds of the institution known as the Carmelite Convent of the "Pater Noster." The convent and the beautiful little chapel attached were built about thirty-six years ago by and at the expense of the late Aurelia de Bossi, Princess de Bouillon, and is now occupied by French nuns of the Carmelite order.

During her lifetime the late Princess turned over the convent and its grounds to the French government. The institution is consequently considered as French property now. France, in turn, placed it under the guardianship of the "White Fathers," allowing them a free hand in its management both spiritual and temporal, and in the carrying on of exploratory researches or excavations whenever the occasion arose or an opportunity offered.

The "White Fathers" have long held to the belief that the grounds must cover the site of some buried ancient church or edifice, in accordance with long-preserved records in their possession, and, acting on this belief, excavations were commenced in the western section of the extensive grounds.

The excavators were not long in coming upon the broken walls of a ruined church, and, judging from the extent of the walls unearthed, this church must have enjoyed quite liberal dimensions. It measures some 150 feet in length from entrance to apse, the latter facing eastwards. Its average width at the nave is about 50 feet, and at the transepts 80 feet.

The main floor of the nave still remains hidden, but those of the transepts, the extent of whose areas measures some 15 feet square each, have been exposed to view. They consist of beautifully laid mosaics in a perfect state of preservation. In the middle of the floor of the south transept is sunk a baptismal immersion pool, some 2 feet in depth and 4 feet square, with a nicely-rounded and finished rim, all wonderfully preserved. The plastering on the sides of the walls enclosing this transept shows traces of a large painting.

On the floor of the north transept were found several shafts of columns scattered here and there among the debris,"and at the junction of the western corner of the transept with the nave were uncovered two or three tombs containing human bones, on the tombstone of one of which is inscribed in Greek the name "Theodorus."

Further up the nave, northeast of the south transept, another bit of mosaic flooring was unearthed, disclosing that there were two separate and distinct floors of different mosaic designs, the upper lying some 2 feet 6 inches above the other, making it clear that the church's history covers two separate periods, namely: The first period following its original construction by Queen Helena, mother of Constantine the Great—for there is now no doubt that this is one of the first three Christian churches built in the Holy Land by Queen Helena some time during the early part of the fourth century, the other two being the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem and the Church of the Nativity in Bethlehem. The second period dates from the restoration by the Crusaders in the twelfth century of the previously destroyed original church of Queen Helena, the destruction taking place probably during the early part of the sixth century at the hands of the Persian King, Chosroes II., or possibly some other Oriental vandals. The latter view is supported by the peculiar construction in a semi-circular fashion of the wall of the apse, which is characteristic of the Crusader type of church architecture.

The church has been given the name of "Eleona," in reference, perhaps, to Queen Helena, its founder, or again, the "Church of the Lord's Prayer," for it stands, as tradition has it, over the site of the spot where Jesus taught his disciples how to pray.

The work of excavation has been temporarily postponed because of a lack of the necessary funds, but it is the intention of the "White Fathers," so called because of the white robes or tunics which they wear, to continue their explorations as soon as possible, and at some future date to restore the church to its original grandeur.

The Church.

BY NETTIE C. WEYBRIGHT.

In Four Parts.—Part Four.—Its Destiny.

THE time will come when the "body of Christ,"—the church,—will be complete, lacking no "member." Then will be the end of the present dispensation, and the beginning of the next,—the consummation, the "fullness of the Gentiles" (Rom. 11: 25). Then will be the time mentioned in 1 Thess. 4: 14-18, for very soon, we believe, "the Lord himself shall descend from heaven, with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first; then we that are alive, that are left, shall together with them be caught up in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air; and so shall we ever be with the Lord" (I Thess. 4: 16, 17).

Christ's saved ones,—the redeemed church in glory,—are but meek members at best. What grace is required to bring us poor, erring creatures to such honor and glory,—to be the bride,—the wife of that glorious Christ! How unworthy are we, in ourselves! How unfit for such an exalted position! Yet, blessed be the Lord of life and power, his grace is sufficient, for he has promised and his Word is true. Jesus, the Son of God, was "better than the angels," being "God" and "Lord." In incarnation he entered humanity, which was "made a little lower than the angels," that he might save men. Having saved them, he brings them into his own position, "for both he that sanctifieth and they who are sanctified are all of one" (Heb. 2: 11), whereupon follows his triumph "in the midst of the church" (2: 12), which is thus associated with him above the angels."

How necessary, then, that we be pure, that our earthly lives be undefiled, that we really live here as Christ would have us live, for his bride must be pure, —spotless,—"that he might present the church to himself a glorious church, not having spot or wrinkle or any such thing, but that it should be holy and without blemish" (Eph. 5: 27). Can not this spur us on to greater activity, to greater devoutness, to perfect purity? Our present life is only for a season,—only a few years,—and it will be ended. How important, then, that we prepare ourselves more perfectly for the life which is to come, for the future life is a far more glorious one than the present can be. "For our citizenship is in heaven; whence also we wait for a Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ: who shall fashion anew the body of our humiliation, that it may be conformed to the body of his glory" (Philpp. 3: 20, 21).

The present is transitory, all earthly hopes are fleeting, earth's joys are uncertain. Without Christ, all is vanity. But Christ offers to his own something far better. "If then ye were raised together with Christ, seek the things that are above, where Christ is, seated on the right hand of God. Set your mind on the things that are above, not on the things that are upon the earth. For ye died, and your life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ, who is our life, shall be manifested, then shall ye also with him be manifested, in glory" (Col. 3: 1-4).

Some one has suggested that the most effectual cure for worldliness is to get the mind and heart centered on the "other world." Live for the other world, realizing that there our possessions lie,—there is our treasure,—our all. We need to remember that it is not for man, but for God that we live.

Our greatest joy in heaven will be, likely, not so much the joy of simply being there, mingling with the holy saints and angelic hosts,—but more than this, to be with the Lord, the blessed Christ, who is at the right hand of God. Then, having cast aside this temple of clay that now is ours, we shall put on our new, spiritual, glorified bodies, and although "it is not yet made manifest what we shall be, we know that if he shall be manifested, we shall be like him; for we shall see him even as he is" (1 John 3: 2). Then shall we be "heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified with him" (Rom. 8: 17).

By this gracious plan that Christ, at the close of this present dispensation, shall take the church to be with him in glory, she shall escape the awful times as given in detail in Rev. 6-18. According to Rev. 3: 10, "Because thou didst keep the word of my patience; I also will keep thee from the hour of trial, that hour which is to come upon the whole world, to try them that dwell upon the earth." The awfulness of this time that the redeemed church shall thus escape, can hardly be conceived by the human mind. In Matt. 24: 21 we read, "For then shall be great tribulation, such as hath not been from the beginning of the world until now, no, nor ever shall be."

Then shall come the reign of a thousand years,—the glorious millennium, of which John, the Revelator, says in Rev. 20: 4, 6, "And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given unto them; and I saw the souls of them that had been beheaded for the testimony of Jesus, and for the word of God, and such as worshiped not the beast, neither his image, and received not the mark upon their forehead and upon their hand; and they lived, and reigned with Christ a thousand years. Over these the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years." Paul perceived this truth when he wrote 1 Cor. 6: 2, 3: "Or know ye not that the saints shall judge the world? Know ye not that we shall judge angels?"

Hear further what joys unspeakable shall be ours: "And I saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, made ready as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a great voice out of the throne saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he shall dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and their God: and he shall wipe away every tear from their eyes; and death shall be no more; neither shall there be mourning, nor crying, nor pain, any more. He that overcometh shall inherit these things, and I will be his God, and he shall be my son" (Rev. 21: 2-4, 7).

"Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who according to his great mercy begat us again unto a living hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, unto an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you, who by the power of God are guarded through faith unto a salvation ready to be revealed in the last time" (1 Peter 1: 3-5). "Unto him be the glory in the church and in Christ Jesus unto all generations for ever and ever" (Eph. 3: 21). "And the Spirit and the bride say, Come. And he that heareth, let him say, Come." Come, Lord Jesus, for thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory, and honor and power.

Manchester College Bible Term.

BY S. S. BLOUGH.

THE seventeenth annual Bible Institute of Manchester College will be held in the College Chapel, Jan. 8 to 20. The management has been able to arrange for an exceptionally fine and practical program, adapted to the needs of ministers, Sunday-school workers, and Christian workers in general. It is the desire to make this the best Institute yet held. For all who come we bespeak sufficient help and inspiration to justify their spending the ten days with us.

Eld. H. C. Early has been secured to conduct evangelistic services and deliver doctrinal discourses. This, in itself, will be an important feature of the Institute. Eld. J. G. Royer's talks on Sunday-school work will be on such subjects as "The Sunday-school at Its Best," "The Superintendent, His Duties," "The Elder or Pastor: His Relation to the Sunday-schools," "Christ, the Great Teacher." In Christian Workers' Society talks he will give, "Its Field of Activity," "Methods," "Systematic Bible Study," "Devotion and Training." Sister Bertha M. Neher, of Milford, Ind., well known to the Brotherhood as a writer and Sunday-school worker, will give practical instruction in Intermediate and Primary workers.

"Chalk Talks and General Methods of Illustration" will be given by Bro. C. A. Wright, of Fostoria, Ohio. Here is a line of work too much neglected by Sunday-school workers in the past.

Eld. David Hollinger, of Greenville, Ohio, will give a number of Bible Land talks with the help of stereopticon views. Sister Hollinger will conduct meetings for mothers and young women. Sister Cora M. Stahley, director of the Music Department, will give instruction in sacred music each day.

Eld. S. S. Blough will give daily instruction in "Ephesians," "Parable Study" in the "Teachings of Jesus Class," and "Lessons on Teacher-training."

All the instructors, President Winger, and others will be ready for private conference work along their several lines, while additional instruction may be given as occasion demands.

This will be a busy time for all. Manchester College is always a busy place, but will be especially so then. The servants of Christ are a busy people. Come and enjoy this feast with us in the Father's business.

Inquiries, received by correspondence, will be gladly answered. Elders and ministers, come and bring the workers of your flock with you. Take this opportunity to improve yourself and the work of your congregation.

North Manchester, Ind.

In the City of Johnstown.

BY W. M. HOWE.

TODAY, without moving a piece of furniture, much less a building, we have, by a vote of the majority of the people of the northeastern end of Stony Creek township, Cambria County,, Pa., been taken into the City of Johnstown. This action affects the geography of the homes of about 1,500 people, but the addresses of none of them. The total vote of the district in question, they say, is less than 300, with a majority of but twenty-five in favor of annexation. There were strong arguments, in this particular case, against the proposition. Others, however, thought the advantages in favor of annexation were greater and it carried.

Right or wrong, the minority, as usual, must yield to the majority. We may hope that in most cases in this world of sin the majority is right. In any case, so it is, and so it will be till he comes whose right it is to reign. Especially in the church, when voting is done, we should labor and earnestly pray that the majority shall be influenced, at least, by the God who makes no mistakes.

Johnstown is divided by a stream which separates the Johnstown Congregation from the West Johnstown congregation. In the latter Bro. J. F. Dietz is the elder, and Bro. J. H. Cassady the pastor. They have two houses of worship in the city and two more within two miles of the city limits.

The Johnstown congregation has for its elders Bro. David Hildebrand and Bro. Abram Fyock, while the writer is pastor. We have had, until this evening, one house of worship in the city, two in the country, within six miles of the limits of the city, and one in the suburb of Conemaugh. The love feast house was in the suburb of Walnut Grove, but since the main house of worship now comes into the city, we, like the West Johnstown congregation, have two houses of worship in the city, including, in each case, the love feast houses of the respective congregations.

The Brethren have therefore four houses of worship in this city. It will be of interest to note, also, that the Progressive Brethren have had likewise, for years, three houses of worship in Johnstown. There is no place in the country where they are stronger than here.

Moreover, while we have now the fourth church edifice in the city, they will have likewise the fourth one, when the suburb of Rosedale is annexed. And, lastly, when the suburb of Conemaugh is annexed, then we will each have five houses of worship in the city of Johnstown.

But if a stranger would seek out these church buildings in Johnstown, to count ours he would certainly err when he would come to the main house belonging to the Progressives, for above the center of the front of the structure he would find carved on a stone these words, "Church of the Brethren." Let him enter and he would find in all the pews "The Brethren Hymnal," secured from the Brethren Publishing House, Elgin, Ill. Here is evidence, inside and outside, that both the building and the people belong to the Church of the Brethren, yet this is not the case. The Progressives own the building and worship there, and have been using our Hymnal for about two years.

But let no one think that they have appropriated our new church name and placed it so conspicuously on the outside of the building. We, the German Baptist "Church of the Brethren," put that appropriate name there when we built the structure, back in the seventies, but when the division came, the Progressives, promising to pay the remaining debt on the edifice secured possession of the church property, so favorably located in the center of the city. They have prospered and so have we.

To the south about two miles from the city limits is the nearest house of worship in the Quemahoning congregation, where Brethren P. J. Blough and S. P. Zimmerman preside as elders. About six miles to the southeast of the city line is the nearest meetinghouse, a large house of worship located at Scalp Level, belonging to the Shade congregation, from which Bro. D. M. Adams has just gone to Cerro Gordo, Ill. At this place Eld. Peter Knavel is elder in charge. These four congregations total almost 2,000 members, and are all in a prosperous condition.

Feeding the Little Ones.

BY MARY P. HABECKER.

IT is of the highest importance that the Word of God be taught to the little ones. It is by the Word that God's Spirit works. Prov. 22: 6 says, "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

It is wise to begin to feed the sincere milk of God's Word early in life, but we must be very careful how and what we feed. We must not feed things they are too young to assimilate. We must not overfeed. Too much feeding wearies them.

Some people think their little ones are too young to be taught the sweet story of Jesus. The time of the year will soon be here when those very little ones will be fed and overfed with foolish, trashy stuff about Santa Claus. Remember that if your little ones are old enough to be taught the untruthful story about Santa Claus coming around every year, presenting to them candies, cakes, oranges, etc., to satisfy their bodies, they are also old enough to be taught the true story of a loving Savior who is always with them and ever ready to feed spiritual food.

This is the most dangerous season of the year for the little ones, especially because of all the improper food they receive. I believe there are hundreds, yea, thousands, of these little ones that are under the impression that the 25th of December is Santa Claus' anniversary instead of Christ's.

There is no reason why we could not interest the little ones just as much by telling about the birth of our worthy Savior as we can by deceiving them with the story of an unworthy Santa Claus. If you do not believe it, try it. Most little ones are interested about little babies. Take them by your side and begin by telling them how, in the town of Bethlehem, a little baby boy was born in a stable one night; how the angels came to see him; the Wise Men; the shepherds, etc.; how he grew up in favor with God and men; the many wonderful things he did, such as the raising of a little girl, giving sight to the blind; how he stilled the stormy sea; how he loved the little children; how he loves them now.

There must be something at fault, if we can not interest them in these good old Bible characters,—such as Daniel in the lions' den, the baby Moses hidden amid the flags on the water, the children mocking the prophet Elisha, etc.

I don't mean by the above that it is wrong to give presents, but we should be very careful in our selection. Give only such as we can give in the name of Jesus, and then, for God's sake, don't give Santa Claus the honor.

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches"

POPLAR GROVE, OHIO.

On the morning of Oct. 22 the shepherd of our flock, Eld. S. W. Blocher, gave a strong sermon on "Pride." After the services we gathered at the creek, close to the church, where a father was received by baptism.

Dec. 2 our church met in council, with Eld. Blocher presiding. One letter of membership was granted. Brethren Preston Onkst and Jacob Halladay were chosen as Sunday-school superintendents for the coming six months.

Sunday evening, Dec. 3, Bro. A. J. Bookwalter, of Dayton, Ohio, gave us a temperance lecture. Although the evening was somewhat stormy, yet the audience room was nearly filled by those interested in the temperance cause.

On Tuesday voters will again be called to the polls to decide for or against King Alcohol. Three years ago our country was voted dry, but now the liquor forces are trying to establish the saloons again, to ruin the boys and girls of our country.

Kathryn M. Royer.

HICKORY GROVE, OHIO.

Nov. 30 we met in the Charleston house for a Thanksgiving service, which was well attended and much enjoyed. Bro. John Gump had charge of the meeting, and directed our minds to the many blessings we received from God, and how we ought to be thankful for the same. A collection was taken, and it was decided to send $10 to North Manchester College, and $11 for subscriptions to the Gospel Messenger.

Our series of meetings began at that time, but Bro. John Neher, of Illinois, did not meet with us until Sunday morning, Dec. 3. Since that time he has been addressing a well-filled house each evening.

Dec. 2 we met in council at the Grove house. Bro. A. S. Neher officiated. We elected the following Sunday-school superintendents for the coming year: Brethren Chas. Karns and Jas. Barnhart for Charleston; Brethren D. M. Miller and Samuel Studebaker for the Grove house. The other business was also taken up in a orderly way, and disposed of.

KEARNEY, NEBRASKA.

Dec. 2 the Mission Board of Nebraska met in Omaha, to consider the needs of our field and to arrange to supply them as well as possible. The work in Omaha is progressing. There is now an enrollment of 75 members in the Sunday-school. The attendance at the preaching services is also increasing. As the work is growing, we see the need of more workers, and are arranging for another assistant, which, we hope, can soon be supplied. The Board also applied to the General Mission Board for $600 assistance in carrying forward the work in Omaha. While at that place, a council was held, at which Bro. M. R. Weaver was ordained to the eldership. Arrangements have also been completed for locating a pastor at Moorefield. Eld. S. G. Nickley, of Illinois, will move there in January.

The work near Arcadia and Ellison was also under consideration. At the latter place eight were baptized during a recent revival, and the prospects for further success are good. Here they are much in need of a resident minister, who could give part of his time to pastoral work, and we hope the time may soon come when it can be supplied.

We have also investigated two or three new fields, recently. In one of them, at least, the outlook is very good, and work will be continued there as soon as possible. It is surprising how much influence one live, faithful Christian can have in a neighborhood, by a good use of the Gospel Messenger and a few tracts. The Board will gladly assist in supplying the Gospel Messenger and tracts for missionary purposes in Nebraska. The Publishing House supplies the Gospel Messenger to families, where there are no members of our church, at fifty cents per year. It is one of the rules of the Board to supply the Gospel Messenger free to all isolated families, in which there are members of our church, if they do not feel able to pay for it themselves.

ARCADIA, NEBRASKA.

Since our last report, about five weeks ago, a number of good things marked the pathway of the Arcadia church. Early in November one of our young members (a deacon) left us to attend school, and prepare himself for the foreign mission field. The night before he left we held our regular teacher-training class, but turned it into a consecration prayer meeting. On Thanksgiving Day we had preaching at 11 A. M. An offering of $6.41 was given for the Omaha Mission. In the afternoon we had a Sunday-school Meeting, in which some live topics were discussed. As an immediate result the cradle roll was revived, a home department organized, a library started, and all classes above the primary department properly organized.

In our council, Dec. 3, we made a call for a Bible Institute this winter, and elected our Sunday-school officers for the next year, with Bro. A. P. Musselman as superintendent; Sister Jennie Mowery, secretary; Sister Alta Musselman, superintendent of the cradle roll; Bro. Roy Stern, superintendent of the home department. Our Christian Workers' Meeting was reorganized for the next six months, with Bro. D. E. Kile as president; Sister Louella De Witt, secretary.

On Sunday night, Dec. 3, instead of the regular Christian Workers' Meeting, we had a missionary program, in which the plan of the United Band of the Christian Workers of Nebraska, for supporting a missionary on the foreign field, was explained. After the meeting a number of pledges were given. Others took cards home to sign, and return them at the next meeting. This work was introduced by Bro. A. P. Musselman, who is Secretary and Treasurer of the District Committee. Today the sisters met and organized an Aid Society, with Sister Alta Musselman as president; Sister Olive Holmes (a mute), secretary-treasurer. Bro. Geo. E. Stern, one of our ministers, expects to leave us soon to enter Bethany Bible School.

McPHERSON BIBLE INSTITUTE.

McPherson College will conduct a special Bible Institute, beginning Monday evening, Jan. 1, and closing Monday evening, Jan. 8. Bro. P. B. Fitzwater, formerly of North Manchester, Ind., now of Princeton, N. J., will take a leading part, delivering lectures at night, and conducting classes in day time. He is a trained scholar, a fine instructor, and knows the Book. Sister B. S. Haugh will conduct a class in Bible and Hymn reading. Bro. Studebaker and others will conduct classes. Nothing will be spared to make the Institute helpful and inspiring. The aim is to have hope for a large attendance of ministers, Sunday-school workers, and others, interested in the Word and in the work of the church. State Sunday-school Secretary J. H. Engle, of Abilene, Kans., will deliver the closing address Jan. 8. He is a power in the Sunday-school field and will bring us a great message of life and inspiration.

Write to John Andes, of McPherson, Kans., and say that you will come. Come anyway, and you will be cared for. Notice the date again. No tuition charged.

THE ROUND TABLE

Tempus Fugit.

BY I. O. BARNHART.

The Christmas bells our hearts have filled
With song that ne'er shall cease,
And ushered in their prophecy
Of universal peace.

The story old yet ever new,
Has once again been told,
Of glory that forever streams,
Through unbarred gates of gold.

And still the glories of that star,
Light up the eastern sky;
All nations hail it from afar,
Its light can never die.

Oh, blessed, holy Christmas time!
With thee the year is done,
And with the echo of thy chime,
The new year is begun.

Sailing for Home.

BY J. M. BLOUGH.

AFTER the absence of a year from home, one is really glad when he can turn his face toward home again. Of course America feels like home, but India is our real home, and on the eve of our second departure for India, we do not feel that we are going to a strange country, but rather to our home where many dear ones dwell. A year ago they said, "Come back quickly," and I am sure the year has seemed much longer to them than to us. God bless them!

O what a blessing it is to have friends! Friends, friends,—how dear and precious they are! Friends in India, yes, many of them; friends in America, O so many! One of the great blessings of a furlough to a missionary is adding so many good people to his list of friends, and making a closer friendship with his former friends. One cannot, dare not, put a commercial value on this friendship. How glad we are for so many friends!

As we sail for India, the remembrance of the farewell meetings, the good-byes, the prayers, the gifts, the tears, the words of cheer and blessing, the heartto touch of dear friends, fills our hearts with joy. O friends, we wish we might have been able to say and do just what was the best just then. Your sacrifices for us are appreciated. We cannot repay you, but God can and will.

How we would enjoy writing to each one who remembered us so kindly, sacrificed for us, helped us on our way, and sent us a personal letter! This we can not do, but we want to thank all in this message for what you did for us. Our hearts are full of gratitude, and yet we feel so unworthy. May it make us better missionaries, and may God reward you! God be praised for friends!

How happy we will be when we shall meet our dear friends in India again! Pray that this may be our privilege. How glorious when we shall meet all our friends in heaven where parting will be no more! God bless all who have encouraged us so much by their friendship and helpfulness. May we be God's friends too!

The Christmas Vision.

BY IDA M. HELM.

AT this glad time of the year,—the time of the advent of the Christ Child,—where are our thoughts and affections centered? Are they centered about the Child in the manger? Do we, in spirit, hear the glad tidings once heralded by an angel band, "Unto you is born a Savior which is Christ the Lord?" If we have our hearts prepared for a visitation from on high, the heavenly powers may break the monotony of this old world, and flood our souls with a vision of the Christ who brought such priceless blessings into this world. If our hearts are not attuned to harmony with God, this Christmas night, we will fail to hear the seraph song of glad tidings; we will feel no thrill of exquisite joy.

The Christ who came to Bethlehem's manger that night, nineteen hundred years ago, was the child of promise. The Christ we look for today is the Christ of fulfillment. We see him in the Conqueror whose power has gone out, demolishing mighty strongholds of darkness, "Through the tender mercy of God, whereby the dayspring from on high hath visited us, to give light to them that sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, to guide our feet into the way of peace." The Great Light shining on the nations is transforming the lives of many witnesses to the power of the "Dayspring from on high."

Have my heart and yours been lighted by that Light? There are yet vast domains where the Sun of Righteousness has not yet shined. Teeming millions of people have never yet heard the tidings of great joy. For them this Christmas night will be the same as other nights. For them there will be no thrill of joy and hope. Can we not catch a vision of those people for whom Christ died? He is a world Savior. Hear these words from the lips of the King: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." "Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city" (Rev. 22: 14).

Early Times.

BY D. B. GIBSON.

MY father, one of the early Brethren preachers, was an original subscriber of the Gospel Visitor in 1851 and 1852. I remember reading No. 1 of Vol. I, of the Visitor, as published by Bro. Kurtz. I remember the opposition his paper encountered, and its final success. As a boy, fifteen years of age, I devoured its pages, which were filled with what were thought to be the richest gems in literature. A majority of the contributions were signed in nom de plume: "Zelotes," etc. These articles moved my heart as few sermons ever did. Being an invalid, I slipped off my couch and read his appeal to unconverted souls, and fell on my knees,—alone with God.

Well, time has sped its flight. Six decades have passed over me. Instead of a stripling of sixteen I am a veteran of nearly seventy-six years. The influence of this first successful effort to establish a church paper is still bearing fruit.

The varied experiences of the church in the publishing business, its scant patronage in the early days, its controversies, its diversity of interests, we now hope are in the past. Now, with all of our publishing interest the property of the church, firmly established on a sound financial basis, and with its strong editorial and contributors' staff, what ought we to expect? What will be accomplished in the next six decades?

In those early days, who dared to advocate changes? Missionary work was ignored. Higher education for our ministers was feared. Revival or protracted meetings were out of the question, and thought to be wrong. The gloom of bitter separation and lack of understanding are in the past. The grand old church of the fathers has arisen with the strength of a mighty giant, to do valiant service for the uplifting of the world to a higher plane. Our missionaries—God bless them—are carrying the Gospel to the heathen in the dark regions of earth, and in the years to come the doctrines and practices of the church will be known to the uttermost ends of the earth.

Manchester College Ind.

BY GEORGE L. STUDEBAKER.

ONE week of the Winter Term of Manchester College is now in the past, 175 being enrolled.

We have been associated with the College since 1900, and have been more closely in touch with it for the last five years. It is interesting to note the fine increase in attendance and the general standing of the student body. Of the nine ministers enrolled, six are taking the regular Collegiate Course.

We are looking forward with much interest to our special Bible term, to be held in January.

Already we are in receipt of letters, inquiring as to lodging, board, etc. For the first time, in the history of the College, are we forced to announce that we are unable to furnish rooms in the Ladies' Home. Regular students coming can be provided with rooms in Brethren homes, across the street from the College, at Dormitory rates. Ample lodging has been secured for all special Bible term students not far from the College. These rooms, with heat and light, will cost not to exceed one dollar per week for each student. Boarding will be furnished at the College dining hall for $2.25 per week. Let none hesitate to come for fear of lack of accommodations. All will be cared for.

The carpenters are now busy, when the weather permits, on our new building. It will soon be under roof. The students are looking forward with much interest to the completion of this much-needed building. The boys have taken great interest in putting in much of their spare time helping the carpenters, and not a few are quite skillful with the hammer and saw.

We may expect great things of these young people who grow up under the influence of our schools. They are the coming supporters of our schools in patronage and finances. Some unsolicited donations are coming in, for which we are very thankful.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS' TOPIC

Do You Belong to the Church?

1 Pet. 1: 13-25.

For Sunday Evening, December 31, 1911.

I. The Church.—(1) Belongs to God (1 Tim. 3: 15). (2) He purchased it (Acts 20: 28; 1 Pet. 1: 18, 19).

II. It Is Made Up.—(1) Of the "sanctified in Christ" (1 Cor. 1: 2). (2) Of those "called to be saints" (Rom. 1: 7). (3) It is "a holy nation" (1 Pet. 2: 9).

III. It Is the Body of Christ (Col. 1: 24).—(1) Christ gave himself for it (Eph. 5: 25). (2) He is its head (Eph. 1: 22, 23). (3) It is subject to him (Rom. 7: 4; Eph. 5: 24).

IV. Believers Are Added to the Church.—(1) By the Lord (Acts 2: 47; 5: 14; 11: 24). (2) They are united with Christ through baptism (1 Cor. 12: 13; Gal. 3: 27; Acts 2: 41; 8: 12).

V. You Should Join the Church.—(1) Because you are so commanded—"Go work today in my vineyard" (Matt. 21: 28). (2) That God's ministers may feed you spiritually (Acts 20: 28). (3) That they may "provoke you unto good works" (Heb. 10: 24, 25). (4) That you may help to care for others (1 Cor. 12: 25). (5) That you may worship God and enjoy it (Psa. 87: 3-6). (6) That you may be sheltered from the powers of hell (Matt. 16: 18; John 10: 28; 1 Pet. 1: 5). (7) If you do not ally yourself with God's people you certainly do with the devil's (Psa. 84: 10; Matt. 6: 24; Gal. 1: 10; Jas. 4: 4; 1 John 2: 15). (8) Oh, give your heart unto the Lord and your hand to the church tonight! Hear the invitation (Isa. 55: 1-3; Matt. 11: 29; John 7: 37; Rev. 22: 17). There is danger in delay (Isa. 55: 6; Matt. 25: 11, 12; John 7: 34; 8: 21).

PRAYER MEETING

Eben-ezer—Hitherto Hath the Lord Helped Us.

1 Sam. 7: 12; Num. 6: 24-26.

For Week Beginning December 31, 1911.

1. Upon the Threshold of the New Year.—What the coming days, weeks and months hold in store for you and for me, no mortal hand may write. The future is with God, as the past is with him. The forward look is prophecy; the backward look is history. As Samuel commemorated the goodness of God in the days gone by, and erected a memorial on the highway between Mizpeh and Shen, tracing in the one significant word, "Eben-ezer," so we, too, do well to meditate upon God's goodness to us in the past, and to shape our lives to nobler and grander aims in the future (Psa. 27: 11-14; 119: 9-16).

2. God's Gracious Care.—The glorious victory, given to the Israelites by the overruling power of God, was, indeed, worthy of special praise and commemoration. It is an illustration of the devotion to God which should characterize national rulers today, and should inspire all those who love the Lord. Should there not be abundant reason to contemplate, with profound gratitude, God's loving care over us, up to the present, and should we not trust him implicitly for all that is still in the future (Psa. 103: 1-5)?

3. The Call to Greater Consecration.—As we look back over the vanished year, let us be sure to go forward into the new by the erection of an altar for God that will stand as our memorial for the days to come, that others may see that we have been with God, and that God has been with us. This is our duty,—nay, our privilege,—as children of the Great King. There are many ways to show our most earnest consecration, and we need but look around us to see opportunities at every turn (Gal. 6: 9, 10).

HOME AND FAMILY

Let Us Now Go Even Unto Bethlehem.

BY ELIZABETH D. ROSENBERGER.

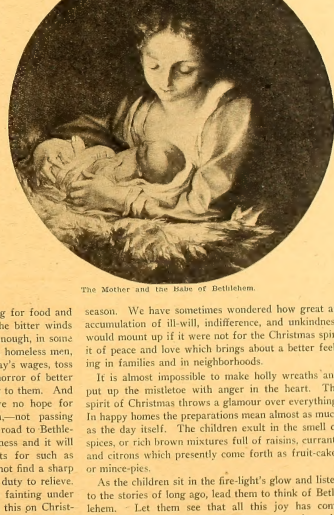
"O little town of Bethlehem,
How still we see thee lie,
Above thy deep and dreamless sleep
The silent hours go by,
Yet in thy dark streets shineth
The Everlasting light,
The hopes and fears of all the years
Are met in thee tonight."

IT is many years since Luther put into verse the universal longing of the human heart on Christmas eve. The stars have shone silently on Bethlehem, and yet how remote it is! How few of us really walk the dark streets of the hillside-city on Christmas night!

A poem we once read speaks of a girl who longed to see Palestine. She would talk of it and plan to go there some day. As she became older she wondered whether she would ever walk through Galilee or look upon the place that once knew him. She said, "One-half of my life I'd freely give, if I could only stand in Bethlehem!" But the years brought many changes.

She thought that God could not have meant his children to labor ceaselessly for food and shelter only, and so this hungering desire colored all her life, and she said to her friends, "Oh how much
I would freely give if I could go to Palestine." She grew old and sat often before the small table on which lay her Bible. She placed her hands between its pages and thought yearningly of Palestine where Jesus had been. Then one day they found her sitting with a serene smile on her dear face. She had gone home,—another way to Palestine!

Tonight we may find a way that leads us to Bethlehem. The shepherds said to one another, "Let us go now, even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which has come to pass, which the Lord has made known unto us." With the angel-song ringing in their ears, and Bethlehem so near, it was easy to set out at once and see the King who had come to bring peace and good will to men.



Let us follow the shepherds and go to Bethlehem and see the Christ who came to bless this world, and to save the people from their sins. Believe me, we shall find Bethlehem if we look for the poor who are suffering for food and shelter. The poor who are facing the bitter winds with slush-sodden feet, hoping to get enough, in some way, to live a while longer. Ragged, homeless men, who are sick and not able to earn a day's wages, toss restlessly on cold bunks, thinking in horror of better days when Christmas meant something to them. And there are many unfortunate who have no hope for anything better, they are living in,—not passing through,—the shadow of death. Our road to Bethlehem lies past the haunts of wretchedness and it will brighten our Christmas to leave gifts for such as these. Then our Christmas joy shall not find a sharp contrast in destitution that it was our duty to relieve. Give something to your sister who is fainting under life's burdens. It is a privilege to do this on Christmas eve. God pity us if, like the two men in the parable of the good Samaritan, we turn away and pass by and do nothing. It may be that when it is too late we shall see our guilt.

"For lo! the poor man was not there, but Christ stood in his place;
And oh! the pain, the pain, the pain that looked from that dear face."

But God does not wish us to be wretched because so many are; to be miserable for their sakes would do no real good to them. Therefore we gather the dear home folks together and enjoy all the good that the dear Lord has given us. On Christmas eve,—the hour of delight and charm,—the happy time begins. There will never be any difficulty in having the children do enough rejoicing, playing and receiving. Let them know that Christmas has a meaning, that at Bethlehem they, too, must learn to think of others. Teach them to be especially thoughtful of the desires of their older relatives. Let grandmother and the old people be included in all your Christmas plans, so that they do not have that lonely left-out feeling which is so likely to come as we grow older, even when our friends are doing all they can. Make this Christmas a glad one for them. Instead of a mile-stone on a dreary road, let these days be a fountain running over with good-will, love and peace, where they have enjoyed a delicious rest in God's garden of delight.

"And when the day is over, and they have all gone home,
Beneath the stars that bless us, from heaven's spreading dome.
Then we turn back contented, and softly shut the door,
And thank the Lord for this day out of all his wondrous store."

By the Christmas fire, heartaches grow less. As you talk over the troubles which seemed sore, you find that you are stronger and better for having passed through fiery trials. You love each other better as you sympathize with each other in your losses and crosses, in your disappointments. Indeed, even those who have been estranged are drawn together again by That deep undercurrent of mutual understanding and good-will with which their hearts are flooded at this season. We have sometimes wondered how great an accumulation of ill-will, indifference, and unkindness would mount up if it were not for the Christmas spirit of peace and love which brings about a better feeling in families and in neighborhoods.

It is almost impossible to make holly wreaths and put up the mistletoe with anger in the heart. The spirit of Christmas throws a glamour over everything. In happy homes the preparations mean almost as much as the day itself. The children exult in the smell of spices, or rich brown mixtures full of raisins, currants and citrons which presently come forth as fruit-cakes or mince-pies.

As the children sit in the fire-light's glow and listen to the stories of long ago, lead them to think of Bethlehem. Let them see that all this joy has come through the manger. And the stranger cousins, who live a distance away, are royally welcomed, for blessed beyond all telling is the homecoming of the children who are doing their own important work in the world. It often means a sacrifice to come home at Christmas time but they can not stay away. They want to join the family circle.

"Each man's chimney is his golden milestone," and at this time we become reminiscent of our joys and sorrows. In the radiance of Christmas eve the joys outnumber the sorrows, but our griefs are not easily lived down. The child, whose vacant chair at the Christmas dinner sends you to a flower-strewn mound, is never forgotten. The family should be bound together by common interests, common aims, and the love that hopeth all things and endureth all things. There should be reverence for the child in the Bethlehem manger. It requires no brilliant gifts, no large wealth to make this a Christmas which all shall remember as the best one. It does not depend upon the value of the gifts but upon the love wrapped up in each parcel. Lovableness is the one grace that must be genuine. It is to move through this blessed Christmas season, giving joy and good will to all, to abide in Christ so that his Spirit shall direct us, for, after all, this is the important part to remember that once, long ago, a child came into this world with a God-sent message and a lesson. He came to tell us that God's gifts to man are rest and peace, not vain ambition or riches, but peace of heart and a quiet, useful life,—just a day's work done as well as we are able.

We all need to go to Bethlehem to learn of Jesus.

"Ye who have scorned each other,
Or injured friend or brother,
In this fast fading year;
Ye who by word or deed,
Have made a kind heart bleed,
Come, gather here.
Let sinned against and sinning
Forget their strife's beginning,
Under the holly bough."

Covington, Ohio.

A Christmas Prayer.

BLESSED LORD, who having all things to bestow didst choose the best for man, we thank thee for the joy of Christ's appearing, for the advent of peace, the blessing of good will. We come rejoicing with a child's serenity of trust in thy beloved Son, whom thou hast not refused for our redemption. Let us have sweet thoughts, this Christmas Day, of the humility which stooped to want and despised not the manger. Let all childlike hearts be glad together in the remembrance of their Lord who was a child. May the joy of giving and receiving, which we have made the sign of thy great gift, be perfect in our hearts, and where we cannot give or help, remember thou to bless. Give us the peace of which thine angels sang. Hasten the glory of thy kingdom and let our love of thee bring forth good fruit in every heart. In the name of him who came to Bethlehem and died on Calvary and ever lives to be our Savior and our hope. Amen!

Fall in Love with Your Work.

Do not look on your work as a dull duty. If you choose, you can make it interesting. Throw your heart into it, master its meaning, trace out the causes and previous history, consider it in all its bearings, think how many even the humblest labor may benefit, and there is scarcely one of your duties which we may not look to with enthusiasm. You will get to love your work; and if you do it with delight, you will do it with ease. Even if at first you find this impossible, if for a time it seems mere drudgery, this may be just what you require; it may be good, like mountain air, to brace up your character.

A Christmas Carol.

O lowly, sacred stable,
Whence light divine is shed;
O humble little manger,
Where rests that Baby Head;
Teach me thy old, old story.
How Jesus Christ was born,
How angels sang their carols,
Upon that Christmas morn.

O Little Star, outshining
All worlds in splendor bright;
O Little Star, revealing
Where rests Incarnate Light;
Now lead me to my Child-King
Encradled in the stall.
The Maker, Monarch, Savior,
The King and Lord of all.

O blessed Babe of Mary,
We worship thee, our King.
O Deity Incarnate,
To thee our praise we sing.
Accept our hearts' devotion,
Receive our homage due,
Bestow on us thy blessing,
Create our hearts anew.

We wish all of our readers a delightful Christmas.

Bro. E. F. Nedrow is booked for a series of meetings at Sand Brook, N. J., beginning Jan. 28.

The revival at Juniata Park, Blair Co., Pa., conducted by Bro. H. S. Replogle, closed with sixteen conversions.

Thirty-nine came out and declared for the Lord during the late series of meetings in the Union Center congregation, Ind.

Bro. C. H. Steerman closed a series of meetings at Black Creek, Ohio, with five accessions,—four baptized and one reclaimed.

Six were recently added to the church as the fruits of some meetings held near Sunnyside, Wash., by Bro. J. U. G. Stiverson.

Bro. D. C. Flory delivered eighteen sermons at Fairfax, Va., and eighteen young people became identified with the church.

Five were recently added to the church at Glendale, Ariz. The outlook for a further increase in the membership seems encouraging.

The Christmas contributions for this issue, in poetry and prose, will be found on different pages, and all of them are worth reading.

Last week it was said that a revival was held at Valley Bethel, Va., by Bro. John W. Mishler. The type should have said John W. Miller.

Bro. J. L. Guthrie, late of Ohio, is now at Fruitdale, Ala., where he is spending the winter, and preaching the Gospel to the Southern people.

Bro. Jeremiah Thomas, so say the Minutes of the late District Meeting, is to represent the First District of West Virginia on the Standing Committee.

Owing to the unusual length of the financial report, about thirty notes from our correspondents, intended for this issue, must be held over until next week.

Our correspondent reports some good revival meetings at Payette Valley, Idaho, with three reclaimed; two baptized and two awaiting the rite.

Bro. A. C. Root spent three weeks in a series of meetings in the Mount Garfield church, Colo., and six Sunday-school scholars were added to the fold.

The December number of Everybody's Friend, published at Stillwater, Okla., in the interest of the Child Saving Mission, is made more than ordinarily attractive by the use of a number of pictures of orphan children.

On page 817, this issue, we are publishing the program for the Sunday-school Teachers' Institute of Southern Ohio, to be held at Bradford, beginning Dec. 25 and closing four days later. Brethren I. B. Trout and P. B. Fitzwater are the instructors for the occasion.

Bro. Edgar Rothrock, of Carlisle, Nebr., but for the present at school in Chicago, was with us over last Sunday, and preached both morning and evening.

The pastor, Bro. J. J. Anglemyer, conducted special services at Eagle Creek, Ohio, and twelve were induced to put on Christ in baptism. One was restored to fellowship, and one is yet to be baptized.

Twelve applied for membership during some late revival efforts in the Donnels Creek church, Ohio. Ten have been baptized, and two are to receive baptism later.

Another congregation has been added to the growing list of churches in Iowa. A sister church was recently organized at Slifer, with Bro. J. Q. Goughnour in charge.

The new college building at North Manchester, Ind., will soon be under roof, and the school management is looking forward to its completion with considerable interest.

The District Sunday-school and Bible Institute for Michigan, to be held at Vestaburg, is announced for Jan. 6 to 15, with Bro. J. E. Ulery in charge. Further notice next week.

Our correspondent at Salamonie Creek, Ind., reports fourteen accessions to the fold by baptism and one restored, as fruits of some revival work done by Bro. J. D. Mishler.

During a revival meeting, conducted by Bro. J. L. Guthrie, in the Crowson congregation, Tenn., ten were induced to put on Christ in baptism, and one was restored to fellowship.

When last heard from, the Beech Grove church, Ohio, was in the midst of an encouraging revival, with five applicants for membership. Bro. H. L. Fadely is doing the preaching.

The membership of the Crowson church, Tenn., has been almost doubled during the last two years. This speaks well for the efficient work done by those entrusted with the interests of the flock.

Bro. D. L. Miller's meetings at Empire, Cal., were quite fruitful. Our last report, Dec. 14, says there were sixteen applicants for membership, with a splendid interest. He is at Raisin City this week.

The members at Hutchinson, Kans., are delighted with the idea of soon having a good meetinghouse of their own. The building is nearing completion, and the date of dedication will be announced in due time.

Recently Bro. W. B. Sell went to a new point in Oklahoma, within the bounds of the Altamont congregation, and held a few meetings, during which thirteen were added to the church by confession and baptism.

The special Bible Institute at McPherson College, Kans., begins on Monday evening, Jan. 1, and continues eight days. Bro. P. B. Fitzwater and others will assist in the work. See further notice on page 817, this issue.

Under date of Dec. 5 Bro. Paul Mohler writes us of his safe arrival at Oyonnax (Ain), France, where he is to reside, for the present at least, and look after the Brethren interest in that part of Europe. On page 828, this issue, will be found a short communication from him.

Bro. Andrew Hutchison is probably at Laton, Cal., this week, where he is to remain eight days. He hopes to reach Los Angeles by the end of the year. Under date of Dec. 12 he writes of the well-attended services at Chico, saying that there is a faithful band of members at that place.

After spending nearly two years at Beaver Dam, Ind., Bro. J. G. Stinebaugh is returning to his former place of residence, Akron, Ind. He leaves Beaver Dam without a resident minister, though preaching is to be supplied. It is to be hoped that the needs of this point may soon receive all necessary attention. Too much good seed has been sown in the community to justify the quitting of the field!

There are people who have the habit of watching the clock during the preaching services, who ought to watch it a little closer before meeting time, and get there in time to hear the text.

The members composing the Spring Creek congregation, Pa., held special prayer meetings before the beginning of their late revival services, conducted by Bro. H. B. Yoder, and were therefore in the proper frame of mind to enter into the spirit of the meeting. As the fruits of the earnest efforts put forth by the members and the evangelist, nineteen decided for Christ and will be added to the fold.

Some of our readers are complimenting the Messenger on what was said, a short time ago, about writers confining themselves more closely to the subject while discussing the "Rebaptism" question. Bro. Daniel Hays, of Broadway, Va., has this to say: "Permit me to compliment you on your editorial on the Rebaptism question in last Messenger. It is a sound, logical call to the main question before Conference."

A number of parents, acting on the suggestion of a few weeks ago, are sending the Messenger to such of their children, away from home, as do not take the paper, hoping in this way to keep them in touch with the church and her work. We believe that all members' children might be reached in this way. We have a personal letter from a minister in limited circumstances who has just ordered the paper sent to five of his children, feeling confident that it will be the means, under the influence of the Holy Spirit, of directing them aright. It occurs to us that parents can not find a better use for some of their money.

Dec. 8 Bro. J. G. Royer and wife, of Mount Morris, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage, they having been united in the holy bonds of matrimony at Hartleton, Pa., in 1861. Their descendants number fifty-two, are scattered from California to India, and it is said that only one death has occurred among them. Brother and Sister Royer are both in good health, enjoy life, and still delight in meeting and entertaining their friends,—and, by the way, they have a host of them. Bro. Royer himself has visited nearly every State in the Union, has directed the education of thousands of young people among us, has been a preacher of the Gospel for forty years, and it is no more than natural that his acquaintance should be extensive.

We are late with the Almanac for 1912, but hope to have it mailed before Christmas, and, since it is free to all of our regular subscribers, it may be regarded as a Christmas present. The publication contains some biographical and historical sketches that will be read with interest, and also a few portraits. The sketches of Brethren Ephraim W. Stoner, Chas. H. Brubaker and David Emmert will be found exceptionally fine. The list of churches and pastors is much more complete than the list published last year. The Ministerial List has been carefully revised. There are three other lists of special importance; viz., District Mission Boards, Sunday-school Secretaries and Temperance Committees. The latter is a new feature. All the tables and lists have been brought up to the latest possible date.

A brother who thinks that we should know something about all the nice things in the Brotherhood, sends us a very neat photo card of the Price meetinghouse in Franklin County, Pa. The scene is beautiful and restful. One sees the broad acres spread out before him, with sheep grazing in the green pastures. Two little girls, who probably read the Messenger, are seemingly watching the lambs and the photographer as well. The little red schoolhouse is almost over the hill, but the Price church occupies the vantage point, with the well-filled cemetery hard by. In this cemetery rests all that is mortal of Bro. William A. Anthony who served on the Standing Committee at St. Joseph, and was expecting to greet hundreds of like precious faith at the York Conference. We should like a large photo of the Price meetinghouse, with a history of the congregation and the little cemetery.

THE Pleasant Valley church, Ohio, had a real spiritual service on Thanksgiving Day. As the result of a protracted meeting, with Bro. Lester Heisey doing the preaching, seventeen were baptized on that day, which, along with two others baptized and two reclaimed, made twenty-one accessions for the meeting.

THE members composing the Sacramento Valley church, Cal., finding themselves without a suitable place for their feast, got their heads together, agreed on the plan, buckled down to work, and in less than six days had a good temporary house, 20x30, in which they are now holding their services. A congregation seldom loses anything by an experience of this sort.

UNDER date of Nov. 15 Sister Sadie J. Miller writes of a pleasant visit in Japan, and pronounces the Japanese a very interesting people. On account of the revolution in China she did not think it would be advisable for her to attempt to reach our missionaries at Tien Tsin, so she sailed to the south, planning to stop at Shanghai a few days. If all went well she should have landed at Calcutta, India, last week.

WHILE the United States is on a peace footing, being at peace with all nations, still her military expense, for army and navy, foots up to nearly a million dollars a day. How much better it would be if this money could be spent in the interest of common humanity! Think of the hungry that might be fed, the naked that might be clothed, the distressed that might be housed and made comfortable, and the sick and crippled that might be provided for. But this is the fruit of militarism. Banish war from the earth and want will almost disappear.

Christmas.

CHRISTMAS is with us again,—the day that has come to have a recognized place in the calendar of the whole Christian world. Whatever may be said of the origin of Christmas, or however much the day may be abused, it plays no small part in commercial as well as religious circles. To provide for the festival requires expenditures running up into many millions of dollars.

In every land where the name of the Babe of Bethlehem is known, children and parents, rich and poor, exchange presents. Considering the value of these gifts, in dollars and cents, the world-wide presentation of gifts on Christmas is certainly a marvelous transaction. Blot out this one feature in connection with the approaching or any other Christmas, and the commercial world, for a brief period, would be almost paralyzed.

But the day means much in a religious sense. All Christian people, whether they know much or little, have come to regard the anniversary as the birthday of the Founder of the Christian religion. Even the infidel respects the day, and bestows his gifts as others do. Though he may outwardly fail to admit that the Christ once graced the earth, that he died and rose from the dead, still, by the gifts he receives, as well as those he bestows, he is yearly reminded of the one whom he must some day meet at the bar of eternity. The very Lord that he denies, and by his life ignores, is each year brought afresh before his mental vision. So, after all, Christmas is serving a purpose with those who deny the Christ.

The day is serving a splendid purpose with those who believe in the Christ and have confessed his name. By the returning festival, and the gifts given and received, and by the Christmas greetings on every hand, they are reminded of their Lord and Master, and his claim upon them, in a manner that has more to do, with moulding Christian character, than many have been led to imagine. Well may we thank God for the day, and all of its attending blessings and joys, though it may not represent the exact time when the new-born King made his appearance in Bethlehem of Judea.

The Marvelous Name.

JESUS has done marvelous things for the world. He not only made the world, as John says, but he gave the people a standard of living that has never been surpassed. Others have been great, and have proved a blessing to humanity, but none of them did for mankind what must be credited to Jesus.

We first learn of him as a babe in Bethlehem, at which place his humble birth was proclaimed by angels. He was visited by the wise men of the East, adored by some of the devout in the temple at Jerusalem, feared by Herod the Great, and shielded from harm by the arm of the Almighty. We have a glimpse of him at the age of twelve when he, by his wisdom and great mental attainments, confounded the distinguished scholars of the Jewish nation.

He grew to manhood; no one knows just how, only that his life seemed to attract little public attention, and yet, at the age of thirty, he entered upon a career as a teacher, preacher and a wonder-worker that has been the marvel of the world's history. He walked the earth as the most humble of the lowly, and yet he possessed a dignity that commanded the respect of the most influential of the land. He was never known to attend a college or a university, and still he had a faultless command of language, and seemed to be perfectly at home in any department of learning to which his attention might be called.

He boasted not of himself or his attainments, and still he conversed as one who had lived in the millenniums of the past, and could look far into the ages to come. He prayed like a child, and talked like a God. He made no pretensions to earthly possessions, and yet he was the appointed heir of all that his eyes beheld. He moved among the common people as one of their number, and still he talked as a lawgiver and a ruler greater than Moses or Solomon. He impressed his followers as being perfectly familiar with the God of heaven, and he could, at any time, call angels to his side. In the eyes of the wicked he may have died like a criminal, but he came from the grave like a conqueror.

While he startled the masses by his miracles, and astonished the learned with his vast store of undreamed of information, he drew hundreds to him by his simple doctrine and his faultless life. While some proclaimed that "never man spake like this man," his humble followers felt that never man lived like their Master. He not only drew them close to him, but he gave them a system of religion that has done more to help the world than all other moral influences combined.

He never wrote a book or composed a poem. He never painted a picture or constructed a great building, and yet no man has been the occasion of more books, poems, paintings and buildings than this humble Galilean. Blot out of existence every book written because he lived and taught; destroy every poem breathing the spirit of the Great Teacher; burn every painting that represents his labors, and demolish every building erected in his honor, or for his followers, and the world would seem almost a blank.

Do away with the civilization made possible by his teaching; close the doors of every educational institution established because he lived and taught; destroy all the cities that now exist because Jesus graced the earth, and what an uninviting world we would have. Then think of the many charitable institutions that have been founded, the many homes that have been provided for orphans and the aged, the sermons that have been preached, the sweet songs that have been sung, the millions that have been made happy and have died in the faith, all because the Messiah lived, taught, died, arose from the dead and ascended on high, and we have something that should be more convincing than even a miracle itself.

Kings and emperors have come and gone; empires and kingdoms have arisen and fallen; great cities have sprung into existence and then disappeared; vast armies have gathered, covered the plains, and as quickly melted away. One great issue after another has stirred the people, only to be forgotten in a decade or two; one great movement or religious wave after another has swept o'er the nations of earth, only to lose power and interest, but not so with the kingdom established by Jesus or the principles he taught. In spite of the downfall of kingdoms and empires, his kingdom remains. The names of the most distinguished men of the past have well nigh been forgotten, while the name of Jesus is known in every clime, and shall long be sung, "through ev'ry land by ev'ry tongue."

Well, indeed, may we honor the name of Jesus above all other names. His remains while others pass from the memory. His is among the first the child learns to lisp, and the last to be whispered by the aged and dying saint. Surely, Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God, and as such we honor him on the Christmas that we are to celebrate the coming Monday.

Which Side?

STRICTLY speaking, we have been from our boyhood up a churchman. Even before our conversion, and before we united with the church, we were a firm supporter of the cause, rejoicing in her successes, and mourning her defeats. In other words, we believed in her doctrines because, as we looked at it, we believed in and accepted only Bible doctrine. As a result of this firm and deeply-founded belief we seldom attended other church services without returning home with a bundle of exceptions to what we heard. We reasoned in this way: The other churches don't believe and teach as we do, therefore their preaching must be different from that of our ministers. And being different, therefore it must be wrong. And, entertaining a feeling of this kind, we listened more to hear the wrong we expected to hear them say, than to hear the truth. Our zeal for our church was, perhaps, untempered with wisdom, as it should have been, as we had not yet learned the wisdom of the little bee that gathers honey from every flower, and from all available sources.

In our early Christian life we were called to the ministry. This new call pledged us to still greater zeal for the cause we loved,—not only to know where the truth was held, but what it was and just how much we practiced it. This new position showed us the necessity of study and preparation. And though we had implicit faith and confidence in the integrity and wisdom of our ministry and the doctrines of the church, we also saw the wisdom of studying, examining, understanding and thinking for ourselves. As a result of our careful and continued study and close thinking, we have always held unflinchingly to the gospel teachings of the Brethren church. When our Brethren say, and always have said, that we have no other creed than the New Testament, we most heartily say: Amen. By the grace of God we hope to be able to continue to say so as long as we live.

But as we grew in years, in study, in experience,—and we hope also somewhat in grace and in the knowledge of the truth,—we began to learn a few other things that touched our mode of thought and life activities. We learned that while we were united on the fundamental teachings and doctrines of the Scriptures, we differed somewhat in our mode of interpretation and our methods of church government. This was always more or less so, but it was not so generally known until after the introduction and dissemination of our church literature.

As these differences of belief and practice thus became known, they took shape in the different churches and Districts, and were sent up as queries to our Annual Conferences for deliberation, discussions and decisions that, as far as possible, we might see and practice alike.

These meetings and occasions brought together, and face to face, representatives from the different churches, holding these different views and practices; and, as a matter to be expected, sides were taken. Those seeing and doing one way took that side, and those seeing and doing another way took the other side. And as the discussions would open and continue, each side had its champion and defenders. This seems all right, is all right, or, perhaps, would be all right could the right spirit always be maintained and the right end be kept in view. But, do you know that this is a hard thing to do,—an exceedingly hard thing to do,—even in a religious meeting and among brethren? And because of this we have been made to feel that the taking of sides on religious questions is, to say the least, unfortunate. We have come to this conclusion for several reasons.

The first one is: Our church has never adopted and recommended for study any special system for Biblical interpretation. And yet, up through all the years, our ministers have been careful and conscientious Bible students. Many of them may think and may tell you that they never had anything to do with biblical interpretation,—never studied any work or system,—and yet, unconsciously or otherwise, they have been using some system of biblical interpretation, as found in the religious books which they have read, or from a living teacher or exegete. In getting our interpretations in this way it is very easy to see how we may get different beliefs and views of some of the Bible truths; and quite as easy to see how these different views may place us on different sides in the discussions at our Annual Conferences, and yet be quite candid and honest in our beliefs and convictions. And do you know, a side once taken is hard,—very hard,—to get away from, no matter how clear and conclusive the reasons and arguments given on the other side may be. It becomes his side, and on it he sets his feet, and with a determined look says: "Here I stand, and you can't move me."

Another reason why we feel that it is unfortunate to take a decided stand on a side, is the belief that we take the place of an advocate, be it a cause or the person or persons representing the cause, and the advocate feels duty bound to stand by his cause, his side and his friends.

Another very great danger in taking sides is, that when any set of men take a side or position, they do not like the idea of being beaten, or to acknowledge the wrong, even if they have been convinced of their error.

You may say that it would be very wrong for brethren and Christians to place themselves on the wrong side of any question. This may be true. But how are we to determine which is the right and the wrong side of many of the questions that come up to our Conferences for decisions? It has, in some cases, taken years to do this. And even then we are not sure that a right decision has been reached. Taking sides seems to be one of the ways of reaching right conclusions, and it may be helpful if carefully guarded. If not, wrong decisions may be made and great harm follow.

Every close observer who has been permitted to attend our Annual Conferences, during the last thirty or forty years, must have been impressed with the manner in which our leading brethren took sides on many of the questions that were discussed before the different meetings. Such men as Hoke, Nead, Kurtz, Sayler, Quinter, Mohler, Long, Moomaw, Wise, Miller, Holsinger, Ebersole, Vaniman, Hanawalt, and scores of others we might name, notably took sides on the different questions discussed, and warmed up in their speeches. Do we not remember how tenaciously they stuck to the respective sides, and never changed? So well were the positions of these men known on the questions that agitated the church during those years, that it was known, from one year to another, who would affirm and who would deny, as certainly as certain could be. Not only was it known as to the sides they would take, but also the arguments they would produce, that some of their speeches might have been largely written out before they were spoken. And, do you know, it was an exceedingly rare thing for any of these brethren to change their views, or to move over to the other side? The oftener they discussed their respective sides, and the more they studied their subject, the more they became confirmed that they were right. Of course, they would. This is one of the psychological results that follow as naturally as the sparks fly upward. We say this without any reflection whatever on the religious character of these brethren, because they were godly men and had the good of the church at heart. Those on the one side or the other were mistaken, that was all. We have the same kind of brethren today. Sides continue to be taken, as of yore, with this difference,—the same results.

The voting body has changed in advance of the speaking. The character of the decisions does not depend so much on the make-up of the Standing Committee, the various advocates or the one that makes the last speech. Our delegate body shows the effects of our schools, of systematic Bible study, and of men and women who do some thinking for themselves, and for the good and perpetuity of the church. This is what we need,—not a radical progressiveness, but a wide and saner church spirit.

It is not our purpose to discourage men in standing up for their convictions, but men are not justifiable in taking a side for which there are no scriptural grounds. The things that are essential to Jesus Christ and our salvation are plainly stated, and we can not add strength to them by propping around them assumptive arguments. We remember of often hearing a good old elder saying: "Things for which we have no Scripture we can well afford to let alone." Amen.

Having Our Own Way.

The desire for this is shown very early in life, and is more or less prominent until life ends. Perhaps we are born with the feeling that we know more than those around us, and that consequently our way is the best way. But, however we come by the desire, it is in most cases harmful. From it have come innumerable evils upon nations and upon individuals. It has led children to rebel against parents, subjects against their rulers, and man against God.

Some men do know more than others and are better qualified to direct in certain lines; and when they have the authority so to direct they should do so to the best of their ability. But when two men of the same ability neither having authority over the other, get to disputing, each arguing that his way is best, time is lost and feelings are hurt. Each has become so great in his own eyes that he cannot think of submitting to the other.

We have seen men in church work so determined to have their own way that they hindered the work and alienated the members. No doubt the individual is sometimes right, and the body of members wrong; but, unless it is a vital matter, that does not give the one a sufficient reason for insisting on having his way. It is better to wait and in the meantime try to get the others to see things as they are. It is hard, of course, to yield when we are positive that we are right; but maybe we are called upon to do so in order that we may learn as well as teach.

We are all fallible; we are placed in the world and in the church in order that we may work together to do the Lord's will. Some are more enlightened than others; but God does not reveal himself especially to the wise; quite the contrary. And no matter how much we think we know, it is worth while, oftentimes, to sit at the feet of some saint who has little of this world's wisdom, and learn some of God's truths. We are inclined to estimate opinions by the position of the man who utters them. And that is not wise. Some men of high position in church and State are really unworthy, unable, to direct in affairs ecclesiastical and political.

When we are convinced that we are right, we must stand by our convictions. But there is a right and a wrong way of doing that. There are not many occasions where it is necessary to take a stand in opposition to our brethren; and even then it is almost always a question of policy rather than of principle. We have the same end in view, but differ as to the best way of accomplishing that end or purpose. Not a one of us but wants to see the church kept pure and the world brought to Christ. We differ as to the means to be employed. But this difference should draw us together to reason it out and to seek the guidance which comes from above.

There is some satisfaction to be had from having our way, from feeling that God so enlightened us as to enable us to direct a given work to a successful end. But isn't it a selfish satisfaction? Should we not be just as thankful when our brother is the one who attains success? Unless we can rejoice with him we are not full-grown Christians. Let us seek more diligently to learn God's way, and think less of having our own way.

G. M.

Speaking Abusively.

Should a brother be permitted to speak in council meeting in such a way as to abuse a member who happens to be on trial? There ought to be no occasion for a question of this sort. Members assembled in council meeting are supposed to be interested in each other's welfare. They are brethren and sisters of the same family, with God as their Father, Jesus as their Elder Brother, and are presumed to have respect enough for each other to be at least polite and courteous. People who love one another, studiously avoid abusive and impolite expressions. They may differ, and talk over their differences, but under no circumstances should one abuse another. A number of devout men and women may take counsel together with a view of converting a member from the error of his way. Regarding the action of the erring member they may not see alike, but there should be no occasion for any abusive or discourteous remarks. If a brother should so far forget the spirit becoming a council meeting as to indulge in abusive or impolite language, he should at once be called to order by the presiding officer. Our council meetings ought to be ideal gatherings, where members can go and assist each other to transact business for the Lord in a brotherly manner. They can not be expected to see alike, regarding each item of business presented for consideration, but they can be at least courteous, and the older they grow in the Master's service the more respect they should show for each others' feelings. This thing of permitting a few indiscreet members to spoil a council meeting by their injudicious talking, is a dishonor to the cause that the church is pledged to represent. When members go from a council meeting, weakened spiritually, there is something decidedly wrong about the meeting. Council meetings should prove helpful to all classes of members, young and old, rich and poor.

Condensing News.

It is certainly kind in our correspondents to keep us so well supplied with news from all parts of the Brotherhood. We are sure that their efforts are greatly appreciated by our people. Quite frequently, however, we receive more reports from the churches than we can possibly crowd into the space set apart for that purpose, and our only way of relieving the situation is to leave some of them out altogether, or cut all of them down as much as they will bear. We choose the latter, believing that it is the logical thing to do. On account of the very generous supply of news since Thanksgiving, we found it necessary to resort to the condensing method last week, and are doing the same thing for this issue. A number of notes from our correspondents have been shortened somewhat, but in no instance has any of the news been omitted. Sometimes several nice little exhortations, a few eulogies, some notices about cheap lands, ideal climate, and things of that sort, have been expunged. Occasionally a writer has been helped to give his report in less words, but the good news he sends is published in the best form possible. While we are grateful for what our correspondents are doing for the Messenger, we trust they will appreciate our efforts in so adjusting matters as to permit all of them to be heard.

Helping the Erring.

Years of observation and experience have convinced us that it is not always prudent to send deacons to labor with members who may have made mistakes. This, of course, does not mean the undervaluing of the value of deacons, for they are an important part of the church, and their services can not be dispensed with. But in many instances it will be found wise for the pastor to take some cases in hand. A sister or two may sometimes have more influence with the erring than one of the church officials. Occasionally young members can be used in this line of work to splendid advantage. When it comes to converting those, who make mistakes, from the error of their way, the most effectual measures should be employed, and that, too, without respect of person. The motive in looking after the erring should be to save their souls, and the pastor who keeps this end in view will learn, sooner or later, that he must employ different measures, for all people can not be helped in the same way.

KINGSLEY, IOWA.

The members of this church met at 11 A. M. on Thanksgiving Day for services in town. Bro. Chas. W. Eisenbise gave us an inspiring missionary-thanksgiving sermon. His subject was "The Gospel Harvest" (Matt. 9: 36-38). A collection of $18.41 was taken. It was decided to send this sent to Bethany Bible School. In the afternoon we met for council, with Bro. H. H. Wingert as moderator. We decided to adopt the constitution as provided by the General Committee of the Sisters' Aid Society. The election of officers was held, resulting as follows: Sister Van Orsdel, president; Sister Ella Eisenbise, vice-president, and Sister Mary Lehman, secretary-treasurer. A vote of thanks was given to the retiring officers. Sister Sheeler has been our faithful president for over two years. Bro. Dana Van Orsdel was chosen a member on the temperance committee. The writer was reelected on the committee for child rescue work; the pastor, Messenger agent. Bro. Eisenbise and family have been over on a little over three months, and we appreciate their work very much, as we were greatly in need of another minister here. Bro. Wingert did his work faithfully, though alone in the work most of the time for several years, and keeping up the appointments at two places. The interest and attendance at the services have been increased. Our midweek prayer meetings, which were started six weeks ago, have been quite well attended. Phoebe Foht.

NEWPORT, VIRGINIA.

Our love feast was held Nov. 4. Elders present from other congregations of our church were Brethren B. W Neff, J. F. Driver, A. S. Thomas, Geo. W. Philips and Johne Clanahan. Eld. B. W. Neff, of Quicksburg, Va., officiated. About 160 members were present. The churchhouse was well filled with earnest listeners, and good order prevailed at night. Bro. A. S. Thomas, of Bridgewater, Va., remained to conduct a series of meetings until the night of Nov. 19. He preached seven well-directed sermons, which proved to have a good effect. Three young men were baptized.

Brethren J. F. Driver and B. W. Neff were instructed by the elders of the Northern District of Virginia to effect an ordination in the Mount Zion congregation, Page Co., Va. The ordination was complied with the forenoon of Sunday morning, Nov. 5. By taking the vote of the members, the lot fell upon Bro. J. M. Foster. Being instructed by the brethren, as directed by the Annual Conference, Bro. J. M. Foster willingly accepted the charge and was ordained to office. The four elders in the Mount Zion congregation are Brethren J. B. F. Huffman, D. N. Spitler, J. M. Foster and the writer. Ten more were received into the church by baptism.

Our love feast in the Newport house was held Nov. 11. Ministers present were Bro. I. D. Byrd, of Calverton, Va., and our home brethren, J. A. Racer and G. W. Painter. Bro. I. D. Byrd conducted a series of meetings until Nov. 22. We had a large attendance and good order. We trust that good impressions were made, and that souls will be brought nearer to Christ. M. Rothgeb.

IN THE BIBLE LANDS WITH BRO. W. R. MILLER.

Bro. W. R. Miller, of Chicago, Ill., gave us six illustrated lectures of great merit and interest in the church of the Brethren, Everett, Pa. Bro. Miller has made about half a dozen tours through the Bible Lands, carrying with him a fine camera, with which he took photographic views of all objects of interest relating to Bible geography or Bible history, as well as to Eastern customs and peculiarities. These views were clearly thrown upon a large canvas by means of a superior stereopticon. Bro. Miller being a fluent speaker and well versed in the Bible, is able to bring his audience in close touch with places and scenes alluded to in God's Word, such as Mars' Hill, where Paul preached, the journeys of Pâul, and the location of the Seven Churches named in the Book of Revelation. He showed us the well of Sychar, on which he sat when he talked to the Samaritan woman, and also other places of great interest. After hearing Bro. Miller's lectures, and seeing his fine views, it is impossible to doubt the truthfulness of the Bible.

The people of Everett feel grateful to Bro. Miller for what they have seen, heard and learned. Each evening our church was crowded with eager listeners and many had to be turned away because they could not get inside the house. The last two lectures were given in the Reformed church, as their house holds twice as many people. The last evening the crowd numbered seven hundred by actual count.

On Sunday morning Bro. Miller preached to a large audience. He expects to make another tour next year. May God bless him as he explores the Holy Land!

WHAT WE DID ON THANKSGIVING DAY.

We decided about four weeks ago to have a children's meeting at 11 A. M. A committee was appointed to provide the program. We liked children with appropriate pieces for the occasion. On the appointed day the children came with smiling faces, ready to do their part. They did it with a willingness that made all the older ones rejoice.

After the program was rendered we were dismissed for lunch. The tables, about fifty in number, were set in the church grounds, and were filled with all the good things the land affords. About 115 partook of the bounteous repast, and yet there was plenty left. Some that were not in a richly favored circumstances were generously.

After lunch we were again called into the house, to enjoy a Ministerial Meeting. A Bible Thanksgiving was the subject, and all the ministers were given a specified time to give their views. This ended the day's service. All seemed happy, and hope that the service may be repeated when occasion affords. J. F. Stevens.

CALIFORNIA.

El Centro.—Bro. Harvey Snell, our District Sunday-school Secretary, came to our church Nov. 25 and remained until Dec. 2, working in the interest of the Sunday-school and the missionary cause. He delivered two encouraging sermons on Sunday, Nov. 25, and also preached on Thanksgiving Day. Our Thanksgiving offering amounted to $15. A teacher-training class was organized with Bro. Frank Eberole as teacher. We are glad to have Bro. Jacob Witmore and wife with us again for a few months. Mrs. Ella Eli Snell, Dec. 5.

Fresno.—We have moved our services into the new church building, and are now holding in our work. The attendance and interest are on the increase. So far the preaching has been done by the ministers from adjoining congregations, but Bro. L. A. Bowman, of Wenatchee, Wash., has arranged with the Mission Board to locate here about Jan. 1 and take charge of the work, for which we are very grateful. Mrs. Minnie Shisler, 2291 Harvey Avenue, Fresno, Cal., Dec. 6.

Long Beach.—Each evening Bro. Hoff, pastor, Bro. A. J. B. Martin, gave us a Bible lesson on some fundamental doctrine of the Word. Interesting, helpful, instructive and uplifting to all who heard them. Dec. 3 we had our communion service. Dec. 4 Bro. Martin, our elder, Bro. Hoff preached the examination sermon. He brought out the necessity of frequently examining ourselves. At 7 P. M. about seventy-five members were present at the table and Bro. Martin officiated. We were much encouraged to see so many members from adjoining congregations present. Quite a number of spectators were present and seemed very much impressed with the service. Dec. 5 we had a basket meal at the East Second Street, Long Beach, Cal., Dec. 4.

Pasadena.—Bro. S. G. Lefever, of Angeles, began a series of meetings here Nov. 18. He gave us several lessons on the Book of Revelation, which created quite an interest. The meetings closed Nov. 25, with a fine interest for a new field. From here he went to the Sacramento Valley to conduct a series of meetings. Bro. Lefever will soon have a home conveyance. We are maintaining two preaching points now.—W. E. Whitcher, Stonyford, Cal., Nov. 30.

COLORADO.

Denver.—Thanksgiving Day was filled with blessings for those who were permitted to meet at God's house. Six afternoon services were held during the day. The pastor preached in the morning from Psa. 118: 24, and gave us much food for thought. At the close of hour 11 sentences were spoken, and a social time enjoyed, after which we met with our dear afflicted brother, Eld. Wolfe, and had song service. At 2 P. M. a Sunday-school meeting was held, and plans discussed for which we hope to improve our school in the coming year. After this a praise service was held. An hour was then spent very profitably in studying the second Sunday's program was rendered by the Sunday-school pupils. A collection of $14.14 was raised for Mission work.—Mrs. Ida Wolfe, 4035 Arvada, Colo., Dec. 8.

Wray.—Thanksgiving Day we met at 11 o'clock. Bro. J. C. Groff addressed us from Psa. 65: 3. His sermon was followed by the Lord's Supper. At noon we assembled around well-laden tables, to partake of a Thanksgiving dinner in the basement of the church. After dinner we spent a few hours, conducted by Bro. Roscoe Luke. This service consisted of appropriate songs, recitations, and a praise meeting, in which the brethren and sisters spent nearly an hour. Services did not have good crops, this year, in this section, yet we have much to be thankful for, especially in the spiritual line. At the close of the meeting a thank-offering of $2.67 was taken for the Mission Board of Mission. I feel that the day was profitably spent and that the Lord will further bless us.—Sadie Groff, Wayne, Colo., Dec. 5.

INDIANA.

Beech Grove.—We met in council Dec. 2. Bro. E. O. Norris was moderator, in the absence of our elder, Bro. J. W. Harrick. Spirit was manifested in our meeting. On Thanksgiving Day the brethren and sisters took their dinners with them and spent the day in the church. Bro. Norman was present for a Thanksgiving sermon by our home minister, and in the afternoon we had a Christian worship meeting. Considerable was all departed to their homes, feeling that it was good to meet in the house of the Lord on such a memorable day.—Hattie Shull, R. R. 38, Ingalls, Ind., Dec. 8.

Landesville church held a council Dec. 7, with Bro. Aaron Moss in charge. Brethren Harley Garber and Henry Wike were with us also. A great deal of business came before the meeting. We elected Bro. I. B. Wike as our elder; Bro. Sherman Lee, church treasurer; Sister Anna Lee, secretary; Bro. Elkanah Kitch, Sunday-school superintendent; Bro. Marshal Pence, president of the Christian Workers' Meeting. We decided to have prayer meeting every Wednesday evening, with Bro. Marshal Pence as leader. Bro. J. W. Norris has moved to Marion to enter into his work in the Marion Mission.—Adella Bradley, Landesville, Ind., Dec. 8.

Manchester.—On Thanksgiving evening we held our love feast in the large basement of our church. Bro. S. S. Blough officiating. This was our first communion since the church territory was divided, yet over three hundred members surrounded the Lord's tables. We were glad for those visiting us from other churches. The Christian Workers' Society made it possible to have an interpreter with us over Thanksgiving, for the benefit of a sister who has not had a sermon interpreted to her for seven years. A visiting brother was also benefited by the interpretation. Dec. 7, we met in regular quarterly council. Business was disposed of in the usual pleasant manner. Eight letters were read, and one was granted. A committee of five was chosen to study the advisability of moving the church and to effect a plan of organization of the church forces. Several other committees were appointed to look after different departments of the church work. The Primary Department of our Sunday-school was started the previous Sunday, with much improvement in the room as will make it more convenient and comfortable. The report given by the Sisters' Aid Society shows that they have been doing their part in the Master's work. At our last prayer meeting it was decided to send $10 to the Bible Department of our College.—Ella M. Cottrell, 726 N. Sycamore St., North Manchester, Ind., Dec. 8.

Mexico.—Bro. L. A. Mahon came to us Oct. 24 and preached seven inspiring sermons until the arrival of Bro. C. S. Garber, of Bethany Bible School, by whom we had arranged to conduct our series of meetings. Bro. Garber continued the meetings two weeks, with Sister Effie Tuttle (of Huntington, Ind., to conduct the song service. Large crowds were in attendance throughout the meetings. As an immediate result, three children and seven young people were added to the church by confession and baptism. Many more are near the Kingdom. This church needs to work today. Eld. Irvin Fisher presided. Four letters were received and three were granted. Our elder, Bro. Elias Fisher, who has been seriously ill the past few weeks from appendicitis, is able to be out, but is not sufficiently strong to take full charge of his work.—Bertha I. Fisher, Mexico, Ind., Dec. 1.

Notice to the Churches of Northern Indiana.—We are confident that the ministers, deacons and sisters are anxious to promote Christian education, and a more thorough study of the Bible, and that they desire to do their part in this all great work. Since there is no tuition charged in the Bible department and Manchester College is so near at hand, a Bible Study Meeting passed a paper, asking that each church raise, in its own way, an amount equal to ten cents per member for this purpose. Please bring this matter in your conference sessions. To avoid confusion with other District funds, forward all money to me, and no questions to me, for none will be given.—Manly Deeter, Trustee for Manchester College, Milford, Ind., Dec. 1.

Wabash.—Bro. Noah Brubaker, of Fratta, Colo., began a series of meetings at this place Nov. 19 and closed Dec. 3. The interest was well sustained throughout the series. Bro. Baker preached the Word with power. While there were no additions to the church, we feel that much good was done. On Thanksgiving morning we met for services. Bro. Brubaker preached a short sermon, after which the pastor gave us some very good talks. An offering of $11.50 was taken. Dec. 7 he went to Flora, Ind., to begin a series. Bro. J. C. Brubaker, presided. Bro. Noah Brubaker was with us. One letter was received and one was granted. The writer was chosen Messenger agent for the new year.—Julia Cromwell, R. R. 9, Wabash, Ind., Dec. 9.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Diehls Crossroads.—Bro. D. K. Clapper, of Mercersburg, Pa., began a two weeks' series of meetings for us Nov. 18. He remained a few days longer, but was taken seriously ill with appendicitis. As appendicitis is the unconverted sore logical, forceful and impressive. There were no additions to the church, though some good has been sown by his earnest labors.—A. L. Simmons, Henrietta, Pa., Dec. 5.

Mattie.—On account of meetings Nov. 18, conducted by our home ministers until Nov. 23, when Elder F. M. Wenger came to us. He remained with us until Dec. 3, and left on Christ through baptism. We held our love feast Nov. 25. Eld. Wenger officiated. On Thanksgiving Day a Sunday-school and Missionary Meeting was held at the Hatfield house. The first feature of the program was a Thanksgiving sermon by Eld. Wenger. Then followed reports from the delegates of the Eastern District of Pennsylvania who were represented here by Sister Lizzie Hoover and Bro. Jacob Hoover. Missionary program, rendered in the afternoon, greatly augmented the sentiment already existing. Missionary meeting in the evening, "Women's" but "Have ye done?"—Mrs. George H. Light, Hatfield, Pa., Dec. 8.

Johnstown.—Nov. 12 Bro. W. F. Seidle came to this place and began a series of meetings in the Locust Grove house. He labored earnestly, and the attendance was excellent much strength spiritually. These meetings were not as large-ly attended as they should have been. Sunday, Nov. 26, Bro. Wenger conducted our Sunday-school and Christian Workers' Meeting at the Walnut Grove house, and Bro. Harry Berkebile superintended the Sunday-school, and Bro. Harvey Berkebile president of the Christian Workers' Meeting.—Ada M. Berkebile, Johnstown, Pa., Dec. 5.

Lost Creek.—On the evening of Nov. 18 Bro. D. A. Poust, of Franklin County, Pa., commenced a series of meetings in the Brethren's house and continued dividing the Word of God very acceptably for two weeks, preaching to large audiences each evening. We were built up by his labors. The meetings closed Dec. 3. Two dear little sisters were buried with Christ in baptism. Two other sisters were reclaimed. Throughout the meetings were well attended, and we think others are near the kingdom.—Mrs. J. J. Sutherlin, R. F. D. 2, Mifflin, Pa., Dec. 4.

Pleasant Hill (Beaver Creek).—Bro. William Miller, of Jacobs Mill, Pa., came to us Nov. 23 and remained with us one week. His sermons were interesting and impressive. Much good seed was sown.—Lucy Danner, Abbottstown, Pa., Dec. 5.

Spring Creek.—Bro. Jesse Stitz, of Lebo, Kans., or Groff's store, Pa., came to the Canowago house Nov. 18, and began a series of meetings which closed Dec. 3. They were opened a series of meetings which closed Dec. 3. They were opened a series of meetings which closed Dec. 3. They were opened

As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country

ARKANSAS.

Springdale.—Our love feast was held Oct. 18 at the Salem Grove schoolhouse. Bro. Rowland, of Lanark, Ill., officiated. Fifteen members communed. The house could not contain all the crowd. Many had never had the opportunity of witnessing such a feast. Good order prevailed. Bro. Rowland conducted a series of meetings at this place, during which one soul was added to the church. Oct. 28 a love feast was held at the home of Bro. I. Frantz near Habberton, Ark. Bro. Rowland officiated, assisted by Bro. Watts, of Brentwood, Ark. Fifteen members communed. After the feast we had the pleasure of listening to a good sermon. We also enjoyed a social meeting in the afternoon. We feel that it was a good way to spend Thanksgiving Day. Bro. J. H. Wilkinson, Ritchey, Okla., Ark., will give us the name of his county, we might be able to locate him. The Springdale church is in Washington county. We would be glad to be served here, if we have no resident minister. Our elder, Bro. W. S. Watts, preaches for us the third Sunday of each month, when his health permits, but he lives thirty miles away. We appreciate his services very much, but need some one who can give more of his time to the work.—Viola Wheeler, Star Route, Springdale, Ark., Dec. 3.

CALIFORNIA.

Butte Valley.—We held our council Dec. 2, with Bro. H. F. Maust in charge. He was reelected as our elder for the next year. Reelected also all the officers, with the exception of the Sunday-school and the Christian Workers' Society. Our series of evangelistic services, conducted by Bro. Maust, recently closed Dec. 2. The next morning, after Sunday-school, he delivered a discourse on self-sacrifice. The house was full at the same day we held our love feast. Bro. Maust officiating. —S. Hollinger, Macdoel, Cal., Dec. 6.

Lindsay.—We are still rejoicing in our services at this place. We have preaching every Sunday, following Sunday-school, and Bro. H. S. Brubaker comes to us every month, filling the appointments. Bro. Wilkinson and wife have located near us. They formerly lived in Lindsay. The new members have brought land here and expect to locate with us in the spring. For further information, any one may correspond address H. D. Finch.—Sadie Finch, Box 636, Lindsay, Cal., Dec. 7.

Norisburg.—We met for services on Thanksgiving Day. Eld. Edw. Frantz preached a very practical sermon for the occasion. The offering amounted to $25.25, on behalf of this place to Home Missions; the other half to World-wide Missions. After the sermon Eld. Geo. Chamberlin, of Fresno, took charge of the services, and by the unanimous voice of the church elected Brethren Harry Frantz, Jr., Ira Wilkinson and Ernest Hoff to the second degree of the ministry. Bro. Chamberlin gave the charge to the brethren elected. Any one address H. D. Finch.—Sadie Finch, Box 636, Lindsay, Cal., Dec. 7.

Los Angeles.—Our church met in council Dec. 8, with Eld. Orlie Crist in charge. Officers for the ensuing year were elected for the ensuing year as follows: Bro. D. W. Crist, to our elder; Bro. Orlie Crist, clerk; Bro. Wm. Wallace, agent; Bro. C. E. Lehmer, superintendent of the school at this place. Sister Florence Stutsman, secretary. Bro. Stutsman has gone of the Santa Fe Mission, with Bro. McGee as assistant. Bro. Hiram Smith has charge of the Boyle Heights Mission. Sister Smith, of membership. Reports were called for and granted. At our Thanksgiving services an offering of $16.25 was taken, to be sent to our Chinese work. Bro. D. W. Crist, elder, has been added to the church by baptism. We are having a very good attendance and interest in the Sunday-school. Our work is being done, while much more is needed.—Eva M. Frantz, 134 North Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 9.

Oak Grove church met in regular council Dec. 9, with Eld. D. R. Holsinger in charge. Bro. Chas. Brabb was chosen Sunday-school superintendent, and Sister Florence Stutsman also attended to. Thanksgiving Day services, were well attended, and the meeting was one of deep interest throughout. We anticipate an interesting meeting during the Holidays, as the Brethren Bible Term begins on the 18th inst.—Mrs. Minnie Latta, Cal., Dec. 13.

Pasadena.—Our church met in council Dec. 1, with our elder, Bro. W. E. Trostle, presiding. Three letters were received and two have been granted since our last report. All Sunday-school and Christian Worker officers were reelected to serve for the coming year. Bro. Trostle was chosen as elder in charge. Brethren Wallman, superintendent of Sunday-school; Sister Ella Schrock, president of the Christian Workers' Meeting, and Mrs. Wallman will superintend the primary class at the Hollisten Avenue Chapel. It was learned at this council that our faithful sister, Mary Ann Wallace, who for many years has made provisions to lift the church debt on our Hollisten Avenue Chapel, by donating $500 to the Pasadena church, which was received with deep appreciation, and steps were made to light the chapel. A series of lectures will be given by Bro. Trostle, of Los Angeles, to begin with a series of meetings. The Pasadena church showed the deep sympathy we have for our dear brethren in Mexico, by lifting a collection for him, amounting to $43.47. At our Thanksgiving services an offering of $20.00 was taken for mission work.—Bertha Harper, 343 North Mentor Avenue, Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 9.

Sacramento Valley.—We are in the midst of a most interesting series of meetings, conducted by Eld. S. G. Lehmer, of Los Angeles, Cal., who came to us Nov. 26. Dec. 2 we held our love feast, at which Bro. Lehmer officiated. Other ministers present were Brethren William Hoff, J. C. Hylton, and Live Oak. We have been worshiping in the Cedora schoolhouse for about two years. Just recently we decided we received notice that we could only use part of the building in the future. As this was not sufficient for our needs, we decided to build a temporary church building. We have the united effort and the help of our neighbors, the building was ready to be used one-half day after it was begun. We also build a permanent building soon.—J. Overholtzer, Glenn, Cal., Dec. 7.

CANADA.

Pleasant Valley.—Our church met in council Dec. 9. Our elder, Bro. J. C. Overholtz, presiding. Officers were reelected for the coming year. On account of our place of worship being in the center of the district we decided to organize, we will close our Sunday-school during the winter months. We decided to have three ministering brethren at Sunday-Sons.—Bro. George Stryker will be with us at a special council Dec. 23.—Hannah F. Dunning, Bulls Head, Alberta, Canada, Dec. 18.

COLORADO.

First Grand Valley.—Our church met in council Dec. 9. We elected our church officers for the coming year, with Eld. J. E. Bryant as elder in charge for 1912; Bro. A. A. Weaver, assistant; Bro. Hail Van Dyke, clerk; Bro. Frank Miller, treasurer and chorister; Sister C. L. Heiny, correspondent; Bro. Hiram Miller, reelected as Sunday-school superintendent; Sister Cora Van Dyke, reelected as president of the Christian Workers' Meeting. Dec. 16 Eld. C. C. Root began a revival at this place, to continue at least two weeks.—D. M. Click, R. D. 3, Grand Junction, Colo., Dec. 11.

Mount Garfield.—Mount Garfield church met today in special council, with Eld. A. A. Weaver as moderator, preparatory to our communion. The deacons found everything in good working order, with very few exceptions. Nov. 29 we had our love feast, Bro. S. E. Sharp officiated. About sixty were at the tables. The sisters broke the bread and passed the cup for the first time. Bro. A. C. Frantz, of Palisade, Colo., had been here for the last three weeks. He preached twenty-three soul-cheering sermons. Six dear Sunday-school scholars decided for Christ. There were young people and two new children about nine years old. The church was much strengthened. On Thanksgiving Day our Sunday-school rendered a program. Meetings were held. Many good talks were given. The District Meeting was held Dec. 2. A collection was taken on Thanksgiving evening.—Clara Clark, Mesa, Colo., Dec. 15.

ILLINOIS.

Astoria.—Last Sunday, after services, a brother and a sister were baptized. They came out as the result of closing the series of meetings conducted by Bro. Mohler.—Goldie Newell, Box 74, Astoria, Ill., Dec. 11.

Hickory Grove.—At our Thanksgiving services Bro. Eisenbise preached a very appropriate sermon, after which a collection of $12.56 was taken for Bro. Mohler's Mexican work. A cordial invitation is extended to the adjoining churches to attend our services on the Holidays. An offering of $12.56 will be given to World-wide Missions.—Minnie Trostle, Astoria, Ill., Dec. 11.

Notice to the Churches and Sunday-schools of Southern Illinois.—The District Bible and Sunday-school Institute of Brethren Bible Term will be held at Mt. Gerdo, Ill., Dec. 24 to 28. The District Sunday-school Meeting will occupy the first day. "Gerdo" is a station on the Illinois Central Railroad, near to two delegates. Attention is called to the recommendation of District Meeting, that all the ministers and delegates of Southern Brethren Galen B. Royer and Jas. M. Moore have charge, and a very helpful session is expected. Bro. Royer will arrange for lodging, board or tuition. Come and enjoy this season of Bible study.—Jas. D. Heckman, Secretary of the Committee, Cerro Gordo, Ill., Dec. 8.

INDIANA.

Beaver Creek.—Our church met in council Dec. 9. On account of sickness in his home, Bro. Jacob Norris, was not with us, so Bro. Chas. Oberlin presided at the meeting. Bro. Oberlin presided at the meeting. Bro. Oberlin preached Sunday evening. On account of bad weather the attendance was small on Sunday. Sunday-school was held as usual. We also were with us—Sarah Hahn, R. D. 1, Pulaski, Ind., Dec. 14.

Bremen.—Bro. John F. Miller came to us Saturday, Nov. 25, and held a two weeks' series of meetings. Owing to the very bad roads we were obliged to close our meetings, but have decided to have another series of meetings, which will begin before long. One soul confessed Christ, but has not yet been baptized. Sunday-school is in a flourishing condition. Good appropriate sermon, which was appreciated by all. An offering was taken for Foreign Missions.—Mrs. Minnie Kesler, Bremen, Ind., Dec. 11. Our Thanksgiving day service was greatly strengthened.—Monroe Martin, Bremen, Ind., Dec. 11.

Buck Creek.—Our congregation met on Thanksgiving Day. Bro. L. L. Teeter gave us a good sermon, after which a collection of $18.72 was taken for Bro. Mohler's work. Our church assembled in council Dec. 9, with a fair attendance. Eld. L. L. Teeter presiding. Bro. Ezra Hoover was elected as treasurer, and Sister Nellie Paul as president of our Christian Workers' Meeting. Bro. Hoover was also elected Clerk.—Ind., Dec. 13.

Ladoga church met in council Dec. 9. Sunday-school officers for the year 1912 are Brethren Wilfred Harshbarger and Clayton Mahorney, as superintendents, Sister Maud Kessler, secretary, and Bro. Ira Mahorney, as chorister, for a term of three years. Some arrangements are being made for a series of meetings. Bro. E. S. Riggle, of Mt. Morris, Ill., of Ohio. On Thanksgiving evening Bro. Herbert Studebaker delivered an interesting discourse at the Christian Church, Ladoga, Ind., Dec. 11.

Missionary.—Our church met in council Nov. 25, with Elders L. W. Teeter and L. T. Holsinger present. Bro. J. A. Miller was ordained to the eldership. Bro. Teeter returned home the next day. Bro. Holsinger remained over Sunday evening, at which time he closed a twenty days' series of meetings. Bro. Holsinger has been preaching for us two sermons for us. Bro. A. C. Young tendered his resignation as elder in charge of the Missionary church, to take effect at another year.—John F. Shoemaker, Sibleder, Ind., Dec. 10.

Walnut Grove.—We held our Thanksgiving day at 10:30 A. M. Teeter preached an inspiring sermon, after which a collection of $18.72 was taken up for the Anderson church. We held our council Dec. 9, with a fair attendance present at the meeting. We elected superintendents for our Sunday-schools as follows: Bro. Jesse Hamilton, to our Walnut Grove Sunday-school; Bro. John Herr, for Locust Grove; Sister Lydia Bowman, for Mississinewa, and Bro. Jas. Bowman, for Lone Branch. We also elected our local missionary committee, with Bro. Will Teeter as foreman.—Chas. M. Miller, Hagerstown, Ind., Dec. 9.

Mississinewa.—Our church assembled in council Nov. 25, with Eld. William Burcham presiding. Eld. L. W. Teeter and E. Sweitzer, of Arcadia, Ind., were with us. Eld. William Burcham was reelected elder in charge for the year 1912. We elected Sunday-school officers for 1912. The writer was reelected Sunday-school superintendent for the Mississinewa Sunday-school. Our Christian Workers' Meetings are growing in interest and attendance each week.—E. E. Stern, 312 Grant Street, Noblesville, Ind., Dec. 13.

Rivesa.—Our church met in council Dec. 9. In the absence of Bro. Jesse Hamilton, Bro. Jas. Bowman presided. Bro. Bowman and wife have moved to Bloom, Kans., on the fourth Sunday-sons, at which time Bro. Geo. Stryker will be with us and give us two interesting addresses.—Bro. Joseph Studebaker, of Flora, Ind., will be with us during the holidays to conduct a singing class.—Maude A. Myers, Dallas Center, Iowa, Dec. 8.

Des Moines.—Our elder, Bro. W. E. West, presided at our members' meeting last Tuesday evening, at which time officers were elected for the ensuing year to direct church activities. In compliance with the "Missionary Educational Plan," adopted by the Conference, we have divided our "five wires" as our Local Missionary Committee. In response to a call for a missionary secretary for the District Mission Board, we voted unanimously to increase our pledge for 1911-12 by fifty per cent.—Virgil C. Finnell, 1643 Lyon Street, Des Moines, Iowa, Dec. 8.

English River.—On Thanksgiving Day at 10 A. M. we met for worship at the South House. We had some good talks by several of the brethren. The day was ideal, and the audience good. We had a collection of $5.00 for the Mohler work.—Peter Brower, South English, Iowa, Dec. 4.

Monroe church met in council Dec. 9. Our elder, Bro. Peter Brower, presided. We decided to choose our church officers every year instead of every two years, as our by-laws provide. Bro. Harvey Bruere was elected Sunday-school superintendent. Sister Florence Pouts was chosen solicitor for Dissemination Missions. Bro. Miller got a letter for the Pollet Home. One letter was granted.—Lydia C. Bruere, Prairie, Iowa, Dec. 11.

KANSAS.

Altamont.—I left here to this church and preached for them on Sunday, Dec. 10, and on Monday evening. On Monday morning Bro. Lashbaugh took me twenty-two miles south to the place where the brethren had decided to have preached. Fifteen applied for baptism. Dec. 9 Bro. Button, of Altoona, Kans., came, and thirteen were baptized into Christ's body. Bro. Button and I preached the same evening two. On Sunday there was a large crowd at the water. The baptized are: Mrs. Ella Bowers, Mrs. Lucinda Bowers, Mrs. Nell Soll, Fredonia, Kans., Dec. 11.

Maple Grove.—Our council was held Dec. 2. Bro. C. W. Shoemaker presiding. We were glad to have Eld. Geo. Fishburn and wife with us. Reelected officers, with an elder for our church. Sunday-school, and Christian Workers' officers had expired, the work of reorganizing was attended to. Bro. J. M. Wall was elected president of the Christian Workers' Meeting. Bro. Jesse Homberry is our Sunday-school superintendent. Bro. Miller Sunday-school superintendent. Bro. J. M. Ward was chosen president of the Christian Workers' Meeting. Bro. Homberry is reelected Sunday-school superintendent. his assistant, the elder and two others, was authorized to visit the schools and attend the teachers' meeting of the school. We enjoyed a good meeting on Thanksgiving Day; also a temperance meeting on Sunday evening, Dec. 3.—Mrs. Ella Miller, Independence, Kans., Dec. 11.

Belleville church met in council Dec. 7. Our elder, Bro. E. E. Eshelman, presiding. Officers were reelected for the year for the coming year. Bro. Warren Gish is our superintendent. Christian Workers' Meeting was reorganized for the coming months with Bro. Chas. Ball as president. A committee was appointed to elect new officers for the Sunday-school at the next meeting. Instead of all, except the primary class, choosing their own teachers. The committee consists of the superintendent, assistant superintendent, secretary, and Bro. Jesse Ward, to report to begin a series of meetings Jan. 16, to be conducted by our elder.—Mrs. Ella Miller, Belleville, Kans., Dec. 11.

Eden Valley.—Our congregation met in council Dec. 2, with Bro. C. H. Wheeler presiding. Bro. Jesse Hamilton, of St. John, St. John, Kans., Dec. 9.

McPherson.—Thanksgiving Day, after a sermon by our pastor, Eld. J. J. Yoder, an offering of $20.21 was taken for the Congregational work in Mexico. Dec. 3 Bro. C. E. John, in the Field Secretary. Five young ladies of our Sunday-school were baptized. The Sunday-school is preparing a Christmas program.—Mrs. Ella Miller, Box 1, Eden Valley, McPherson, Kans., Dec. 11.

Plain Creek.—Nov. 26 we met for Thanksgiving services. Bro. Reed gave an interesting discourse. A small offering was given for the Mexican work. Our council meeting occurred on Dec. 2, when we held our love feast. It was a very spiritual occasion. Bro. Reed officiated. On Sunday, after services, Bro. Ruff's son and wife were baptized. On Sunday evening Bro. Reed preached his farewell sermon. With his family he has moved away, leaving Bro. Ruff alone again. Our council will be held Dec. 23.—Annie Richard, Uniontown, Kans., Dec. 11.

Lone Star.—Our council met in council Dec. 2, with Bro. Lemman presiding. Bro. John Campbell was elected Sunday-school superintendent, and Sister Ella Miller Sunday-school secretary. Bro. Wall, reelected president of the Christian Workers' Meeting, and the writer, secretary. Messenger agent and church correspondent. It was decided to organize a teacher-training class. —Mary Sharrekel, R. D. 2, Sub. 19, Fostoria, Ohio, Dec. 2.

West Big Creek Mission.—Our elder, Bro. D. A. Crist, of Quinter, Kans., began a series of meetings Dec. 19, continuing two weeks. He did much visiting in the homes during the day, while we all appreciated very much. Two were baptized. As other duties called him away, he had Bro. J. W. Jarboe come and take his place. Bro. Jarboe continued the meetings until Thursday night, when his voice gave out and he had to close home. On Thursday afternoon a few of us met with an aged couple who lived some distance away, and had a very spiritual meeting with them, which all seemed to enjoy very much. We had had large crowds and very good attention. Many were thinking seriously, but Satan hindered them. Christians were much encouraged.—Mary A. Sensenbaugh, R. D. 2, Grinnell, Kans., Dec. 4.

MARYLAND.

Meadow Branch.—This church held a well-attended Thanksgiving meeting Nov. 20. Bro. J. W. Thomas preached an appropriate sermon, after which an offering was received for the World-wide Fund. Our church is in a prosperous state.—Dec. 8. Our elder, Bro. Uriah Bixler, presided. One was received by letter. Two were added to the church by baptism. Brethren Frank Garner and Howard Wareline were reelected as Sunday-school superintendents for the coming year. All committees reported favorably. The temperance committee here has arranged for a special meeting the afternoon of Dec. 17, when there will be present a representative from our District Temperance Committee, and one from the Annual Meeting Temperance Committee. Bro. F. J. Bloser, of Hagerstown, will occupy the Westminster house next Sunday morning. Our next regular semi-annual love feast will be held May 11 at 2 P. M.—Dec. 8. The home of the writer was the place selected for the meeting of the Mission Board, which met Thursday, Dec. 7, at 2 P. M. Eastern District of Maryland, Nov. 18. The day was spent mainly in instructing the members of a routine plan for the betterment of all the churches in the District. The title for the church and property was ordered to be sent to the congregation of the Long Green Valley brethren. This property was secured and a church built under the auspices of the Board. Place for a church was secured with the Board, but the deed of the church were considered. Last year this Board expended, for its work here in Maryland, about $1,000, with a low float, the sum of $1,022.58.—W. E. Roop, Westminster, Md., Dec. 19.

Pearl Branch.—On Nov. 26 our elder, Bro. J. H. Cline, closed a two weeks' series of meetings at the Pipriver house. There were no additions or accessions to the church, but we believe that the seed sown will bring forth fruit in the near future. The members gained a deeper insight into their duties and responsibilities, and were inspired to greater zeal in the Master's work. We are glad to report that one precious soul was received into the church by baptism at our last regular council held Dec. 1. Our Sunday-school superintendents were reelected. Sister Alice Pike for the Pipriver house, and Brother Frank Rittenhouse for the Baston house. It was decided that the Thanksgiving collection of the two houses be sent to Anna Hutchison, who went from our congregation as a missionary to China. This year's collection from the Fairview Sunday-school, $11.50, will be sent to the Home Missionary Fund. A singing school is to be held at Fairview during the Holidays. —C. Ellen Hutchison, Cordova, Md., Dec. 8.

MICHIGAN.

Saginaw.—Our council was held Dec. 2. One letter was granted. A missionary and temperance committee was appointed, though as yet nothing was reported this coming year; Bro. Aaron Baker, agent for the Publishing House, the writer, and second president of the Board, were on hand. Meeting and church correspondent. Bro. J. P. Neff and family, of Ohio, have moved here and located on the farm owned by Sister Bannister, Mich., Dec. 11.

Woodland.—Closing series of meetings, conducted by Bro. Bro. Arthur S. Workman, commenced Oct. 23 and closed Nov. 19. The weather and the roads were bad. A young sister made the start, and the meetings closed with a love feast, at which Eld. Workman officiated, assisted by Brethren Raliegh and Samuel Workman, our churches at Saginaw. Also with Eld. John Smith presiding. Two letters were granted. Bro. Oscar Fleming was called trustee for the ensuing year. Sister Martha Smith, Brethren Geo. Culler and Edson Perril were chosen as a temperance committee. Brethren Smith, Christian Workers' Meeting were reelected, and librarians were appointed. We met on Thanksgiving Day. After an able discourse by Bro. G. F. Culler on Phil. 4:19, an offering of $21.40 was given, for the benefit of State mission work.—J. J. England, R. D. 3, Woodland, Mich., Dec. 11.

MONTANA.

Medicine Lake.—We held our Thanksgiving services at the Beaverly schoolhouse, conducted by Eld. J. H. Lehman. The collection of $8.52 was taken for Home Missions. The same day we unanimously agreed to have services as follows: Sunday-school at 10 A. M., preaching at 11 A. M., and Christian Workers' Meeting at 12 M. We expect to have an evergreen Christian Workers' Meeting during this winter. Letters have recently been received.—Mrs. J. E. Keller, Enterprise, Montana.

NEBRASKA

Falls City church has just closed a Bible Normal, conducted by Bro. Ed. Young, of Beatrice. Many helpful lessons were given, covering the whole of the Bible. Bro. Young is a good instructor. The attendance and interest in the Normal sessions were very good. One little girl is ready to be taken into the fold and others are coming rapidly. It was a week of good things for all, and our church feels greatly strengthened. One sister has united with the church since our last report.—Orville Beahm, Falls City, Nebr., Dec. 11.

Red Cloud.—Since our last report four have been received into the church, three by letter and one by letter. We held our love feast on Saturday evening, Nov. 25. The meeting began on Sunday morning. Bro. A. D. Wolfe, assisted by Eld. Ed. Beatrice, Nebr., were with us. Bro. Sollenberger preached for us at 10 A. M. and 7:30 P. M. Sunday evening a goodly number surrounded the Lord's tables. Bro. Sollenberger officiated. On Sunday morning Bro. Sollenberger began a series of meetings, continuing two weeks. The meetings were well attended and much good was done.—Ella I. Eshelman, Red Cloud, Nebr., Dec. 18.

NORTH DAKOTA

Bowdon Valley.—We met for worship on Thanksgiving Day. This was the first meeting we ever held on Thanksgiving Day at this place, and we enjoyed the services very much. An offering of $19 was taken, which will be donated to Home Missions. Since Bro. Price has moved in among us we have our meetings regularly. We ought to be thankful.—Mrs. Arthur Pike, Cleveland, N. Dak., Dec. 11.

Williston church met in council Dec. 6, with Bro. D. F. Landis, elder in charge, presiding. Three letters of membership were granted. The writer was chosen Sunday-school superintendent. Sister Alice Keltner, assisted by Sister Myer, Sisters Emily Keltner and Lora Marsh were chosen as a temperance committee. We held services on Thanksgiving Day. A collection of $6.45 was taken and sent to Bethany Bible School.—Etta Myer, R. D. 2, Box 101, Williston, N. Dak., Dec. 11.

OHIO.

Alliance.—I have been laboring in the Reading congregation. Since Aug. 1 we have had a large congregation, and much interest is manifested. The church is in love and union. The attendance at Sunday-school averages about ninety. We have a good Christian Workers' Meeting. Eight were received by baptism last May, and Brethren George Myers and his son-in-law, John F. Kahler, 2629 South Union Avenue, Alliance, Ohio, Dec. 6.

Scioto Grove.—Our series of meetings at this church is now in progress, with increasing interest. Bro. Noah Erbaugh is called to labor in the footsteps of their Savior. Many are the efforts put forth by Bro. H. L. Peters to trust that many others will unite with us before these meetings close.—E. S. Hollinger, R. D. 1, Bellefontaine, Ohio, Dec. 11.

Bellefontaine.—Dec. 3 our Sunday-school donated its collection of $11.11 to Sister Mary Cox. Our attendance on this day was sixty-eight, for which we feel very much encouraged. Our elder, Brother Samuel Crist, of Quinter, gave us an illustrated sermon to the young. Dec. 9 we met in council, with Bro. A. F. Swinehart, Eld. Snyder and wife brought their letters of membership to this congregation, which were received. Bro. Snyder was elected as our elder. Bro. J. H. Swank, treasurer; Bro. Ira Snyder, clerk and Sunday-school superintendent; Sister Hazel Bowman, president of the Ladies' Aid Society, and Sister Gordie Snyder, president of the home department of the Sunday-school; Sister Gordie Snyder, Sister Hazel Bowman and Elsie cradle roll superintendent.—Ohio, Dec. 12.

Donnels Creek.—Bro. W. W. Fidler, of Dayton, Ohio, came to the New Carlisle house Nov. 19 and began a series of meetings, which closed Dec. 3. Our elder went home on Friday evening before the meetings closed, on account of illness in his wife. The home ministers continued the meetings until Sunday evening. The weather was cold, and the attendance fair. Ten were baptized and two await the rite. The two that were received by letter are an aged brother and his seventy-five and seventy-seven years old, respectively. During the meetings the Sunday-school was held each night. Bro. Cosner, of Pechler, Ohio, was with us and led the singing. Bro. J. H. Cline, of Pipriver, Maryland, was also present. Bro. David Leatherman, who is now past seventy years old, was at the meetings nearly every night.—Elsie Winget, R. D. 1, Box 175, Springfield, Ohio, Dec. 11.

Eagle Creek.—Our two weeks' series of meetings, conducted by Brethren Hollinger and Wise, closed Sunday evening. Twelve were baptized and one reclaimed. One awaits baptism. Brethren Hollinger and Wise will continue meetings.—Hattie Hume, Williamsburg, Ohio, Dec. 10.

Greenville.—Our church convened in council with our elder, Bro. Samuel Horning, presiding. The visiting brethren were Brethren Jesse Fleming, Samuel Smith, Noah Erbaugh and J. C. Bright. Bro. Smith was chosen to preach for us, which was much appreciated. One letter of membership was received, and three were granted. Three ministers were chosen, and three brethren are to serve as a temperance committee. Sunday-school officers were chosen. On Thanksgiving Day Bro. John Root, superintendent; Sister Carrie Diehl, secretary and Sister Mary Sherman, treasurer. Our elder is also our first school of the year. We also agreed to purchase 100 "Kingdom Songs" for use in our singing classes. Our singing class to be conducted sometime in February by Bro. A. L. Crouse.—Ida Ritter, Clay Center, Ohio, Dec. 11.

Evergreen.—Thanksgiving services were well attended Bro. I. J. Rosenberger preached in the morning. At 2:30 P. M. we met at the house of worship, and at 3 P. M. had our communion services. Brethren D. M. Gayer, Aaron Coy and C. M. Horn officiated. The collection was taken up and sent in at the close of the morning services, most of which will be used in sending the Messenger to poor families. Bro. Hollinger has been elected as our Sunday-school worker. We hope to we find quite helpful in Bible study. He brought out many practical thoughts in his talk. Our Sunday-school is progressing very much. The church was full at these services.—Anna Mae Gayer, Orrville, Ohio, Dec. 11.

Logan.—We met in council today, with our elder, Bro. A. B. Hess, presiding. Bro. Hess is now in charge of the Orphanage of Northeastern Ohio. We decided to adopt "Kingdom Songs" for our Sunday-school. Bro. A. Miller was chosen as our elder for the coming year; Bro. Jesse Hess, Sunday-school superintendent; Sister Flossie E. Mohr, clerk; Bro. Jesse Hess, treasurer; Sister Flossie E. Mohr, church chorister; the writer, correspondent. A missionary committee of three was elected.—Flossie E. Mohr, R. No. 1, Box 15, Bellefontaine, Ohio, Dec. 9.

Owl Creek.—Our congregation met in council Nov. 4 in the Owl Creek house, with Eld. C. J. Workman presiding. Brethren Jackson Bechtel, S. J. Workman and Joseph N. Bechtel were elected as delegates to the District Meeting. Our meeting began Nov. 11 and closed Dec. 2 with a love feast. The meetings were conducted by our elder, assisted by S. S. Strausbaugh. One was made willing to accept Christ, and others are near the kingdom.—Marie Bechtel, Bloomdale, Ohio, Dec. 11.

Wyandot.—Bro. A. S. Workman came here Dec. 2 and gave us six very practical sermons. He is visiting the West public, logically and understandingly. There were no accessions, but the attendance was good. We expect Bro. Workman will be with us again.—J. W. Coon, R. D. 3, Sycamore, Ohio, Dec. 12.

Yoder, R. D. 5, Box 16, Bellefontaine, Ohio.

Lerew, Sister Dellah, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Leed, near New Kingston, Pa., Dec. 3, 1911, aged 77 years and 4 days. Her husband, Jacob H. Lerew, preceded her a number of years ago. Since then she was a member of the church. She was a devoted follower of Christ until she was very suddenly called by death. She leaves two sons and three daughters, who mourn the loss of a kind mother. Services and interment at the Franklin church, near the road leading from Dillsburg to Gettysburg, Pa., by Bro. Adam Hollinger, assisted by Mr. Grubb (Lutheran) the writer. Text, Job 5: 26.—Henry Beelman, Dillsburg, Pa.

Lucabaugh, Bro. Jesse B., died of dropsy, followed by a stroke of paralysis, at his home, Nov. 11, aged 76 years, 8 months and 16 days. He is survived by his wife, one son and two daughters. The deceased resided all his life in the bounds of the Upper Codorus congregation, York Co., Pa., of which he was a member for many years. Services and burial at Black Rock, Pa., by the undersigned, assisted by Bro. H. E. Bressler and David Smith. Text, Rev. 3: 5.—E. S. Miller, Lineboro, Md.

Overbaugh, Bro. J. F., born in Ohio, Feb. 24, 1831, aged 42 years, 8 months and 23 days. He was visiting with his friends in Benton, Ark., at the time of his death. He was taken with a congestive chill while sitting in his chair, and died. He united with the Church of the Brethren about thirty-two years ago, and remained faithful till he was called hence. He leaves a wife and eight grown children, who live in the vicinity of Benton, Ark. He was a member of the Coquille Valley congregation, having come West about thirty years ago.—J. F. Stevens, Myrtle Point, Ore.

Miller, Ira B., died Oct. 29, 1911, while on a visit to his son, Jacob R. Miller, residing at Hanover, Pa., aged 84 years, 5 months and 29 days. His wife preceded him about sixteen years. He is survived by four sons and two daughters. He had his residence in the bounds of the Upper Cumberland congregation. Services and interment at the Stone church, York County, Pa., by the writer, assisted by Mr. Ehrhart, a Lutheran minister. Text, 2 Cor. 5: 1.—E. S. Miller, Lineboro, Md.

Mills, Bro. John Robert, son of Mr. H. and Sister A. Mills, born in Franklin County, Va., died at the home of his parents, Nov. 30, 1911, aged 6 months and 4 days. He leaves his parents, two brothers and four sisters. One brother and one sister preceded him. Interment in the family graveyard.—Nancy Shaver, Copper Hill, Va.

Rickles, Sister Iris Esther, daughter of Mr. G. H. and Sister Ellen Rickles, born in Franklin County, Va., in the bounds of the Copper Hill congregation, died of consumption at the home of her parents Dec. 3, 1911, aged 19 years, 6 months and 17 days. She was a consistent member of the Brethren's church for fifteen months. She called for the elders and was anointed on Thanksgiving Day. She leaves her father and mother, four brothers and four sisters. Services at the home by Eld. I. H. Shaver, assisted by Eld. D. M. Shaver. Interment in the family graveyard.—Nancy Shaver, Copper Hill, Va.

Oxley, Bro. James Preston, born in Franklin County, Va., Aug. 13, 1836, died-at Quinter, Kans., July 11, 1911, aged 75 years, 10 months and 24 days. He was united in marriage to Susannah Plisher Oct. 22, 1863, in Wabash County, Ind. To this union six sons were born, all of them living except one who died in infancy. The youngest son is a minister in the Church of the Brethren. Bro. Oxley was a member of the Church of the Brethren about forty years, serving as deacon a number of years. He was a great sufferer for over eighteen months, and underwent three surgical operations at different hospitals, but all to no avail. He bore his suffering with Christian fortitude till the Master released him from labor to reward. His wife and four sons were all present at the funeral services by Eld. D. A. Crist, assisted by other brethren. Text, John 14: 1-3.—J. W. Jarboe, Quinter, Kans.

Stroup, Bro. David, born March 1, 1837, died at a complication of diseases, Nov. 28, 1911, at the home of Mr. Harry Weaver, aged 31 years, 8 months and 12 days. His companion passed away about fourteen months ago. The same shock made his home with his brother, Eld. C. L. Pfoutz, till nine months ago, when his home was broken up by the death of our dear mother. Since then he made his home with his niece. He united with the Church of the Brethren in his youth, and has always remained faithful. A few days before his death he called for the elders and was anointed. He is survived by three sons and one brother, Eld. C. L. Pfoutz, who is the only one left of twelve children.—Ida M. Lightner, Gettysburg, Pa.

Shroll, James Elmer, born in Defiance County, Ohio, March 11, 1881, died Dec. 2, 1911, aged 30 years, 8 months and 21 days. Mr. Shroll had been employed by the B. & O. R. R. Co. as telegraphic line ever since he was nineteen. His death was caused by a fast train running into a motor car in which he was riding. His death was instant. The accident happened in Ohio. His remains were brought back to his brother, Peter Shroll, near Walkerton, Ind. He leaves an aged father, Bro. Christ Lapher Shroll, two brothers and three sisters. One brother and one sister preceded him. Services in the Pine Creek congregation, at the center house, by Bro. Jacob Eikenberry. Text, Matt. 24: 14. Interment in the Center cemetery.—M. S. Morris, R. D. 1, Walkerton, Ind.

Swigart, Bro. George, died Nov. 23, 1911, in the bounds of the Spring Run congregation, near the Pine Glen church, Mattawana, Pa., aged 49 years. Bro. Swigart was employed on the railroad, and for twenty-three years had boarded with Mrs. Grassmyer, at whose home he died. While trying to kindle a fire, an oil can which had contained gasoline that he had been using to start the fire, exploded, throwing the burning oil over him, and instantly he was a mass of flames. Mrs. Grassmyer was severely ill at the time, but she was done to relieve his sufferings, but all in vain. He died in the evening about four o'clock. Bro. Swigart was a member of the Brethren church for a number of years, and was pleasant and genial. He bore his suffering patiently, praising God and giving praises to God almost to the last. He leaves three brothers and three sisters. Services at the Spring Run church, also by J. C. Swigart, assisted by Brethren Lawrence Ruble and Samuel James Swigart.—Ida M. Miller, Mattawana, Pa.

Trimmer, Bro. Reuben, born in York County, Pa., Nov. 3, 1841, died of pneumonia, at Goshen, Ind., Nov. 28, 1911, aged 70 years and 25 days. He came to Indiana about forty-six years ago. He was united in marriage to Sarah Evans April 9, 1866. To this union were born seven sons and five daughters. He united with the Church of the Brethren twenty-nine years ago, and was elected to the deacon's office six weeks later, in which he served faithfully to the end. He was a corresponding secretary and Messenger agent for his local church for many years. He leaves his wife, six sons and three daughters. One son and two daughters preceded him in death. The church, as well as the family, mourn the loss of this faithful brother. Services by Bro. Wm. Hess, assisted by Bro. C. W. Wampler. Interment in the cemetery near by.—Mrs. Osie Brumbaugh, Goshen, Ind.

Weeland, Bro. Isaac, died near his home in the bounds of the West Greentree congregation, Pa., Nov. 28, 1911, aged 69 years, 1 month and 21 days. He is survived by his wife and one daughter. Death came without a moment's notice. While working at a house which he was building in Rheems, he slipped off the ladder, fell into the cellar and broke his neck. He breathed but a few times and life had fled. He was a member of the church of the Brethren for many years, and was a trustee of the Rheems house, in which capacity he served very ably. He will be keenly missed in the home and community in which he lived. Services at Rheems by Eld. D. M. Esheleman, assisted by Brethren S. S. Shearer and Hiram Kaylor; also by Simon Landis, a Mennonite minister. Interment in the Greentree cemetery.—S. R. McDannel, Elizabethtown, Pa.

Wyatt, Bro. James M., born near Robins Chapel, Union Co., Ind., July 28, 1841, died Oct. 29, 1911, at Lewsburg, Cal., aged 81 years, 3 months and 1 day. He was united in marriage to Elizabeth Moss, daughter of Eld. Abram Moss, March 22, 1855. He and his companion united with the church in September, 1858, and remained faithful until death. His wife died March 24, 1871, leaving two little daughters, who live in Preble County, Ind., where their mother died. Feb. 23, 1873, he was united in marriage to Nancy Lewis, who passed away Sept. 23, 1910, after they had sojourned together thirty-seven years and six months. One daughter was born to this union, who with his infant passed away May, 1902. Bro. Wyatt was united in marriage to Sarah Garman Dec. 27, 1910. She survives him, also two daughters, five stepsons and four stepbrothers, living respectively, in Indiana, Tennessee, Arkansas, Washington, New Mexico, Oklahoma and California. His father and only sister are buried at Laporte, Ind. Services at the Brethren church here by Eld. W. F. England, assisted by Eld. E. Forney. Interment in the Evergreen cemetery.—Grace Hileman Miller, Lordsburg, Cal.

Zook, Bro. John, died of dropsy Oct. 10, 1911, aged 67 years, 6 months and 29 days. He leaves a widow, three sons and three daughters. Bro. Zook was much concerned about the church and her prosperity. He was an exemplary member for many years. Services in the Diehl Crossroad church by Eld. J. R. Stayer, assisted by Brethren M. R. and J. D. Brumbaugh. Text, 2 Tim. 4: 7.—J. C. Stayer, R. D. 1, Woodbury, Pa.

AND
OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

For $1.85 we will send you the Messenger for one year and a copy of Our Saturday Night. This is only 35c for the book which contains 192 pages.

The Gospel Messenger

is a religious paper of superior merit. Our Saturday Night is a book that will interest and help you. The Messenger, being the official organ of the Church of the Brethren, and special value to members of the church, though many not identified with our Brotherhood read it with interest and appreciation. The things of most vital interest to the church are communicated through the columns of this paper only. Its work is being appreciated more and more, as the increase of the list of subscribers indicates. The Messenger is indispensable as a religious educator and spiritual counselor. One brother says: "It has been a forerunner to conversion and church unity in city and rural districts."

Our Saturday Night

is a collection of the ripe fruit of a master mind. Following are a few phrases from those who have read the book: "Interesting and instructive." "Food for various months." "Good reading and will do good." "Good from beginning to end." "I am charmed with it." "Replete with warnings, timely examples and good counsel." What more need be said? You must read it to learn its real merits. Get it now. It is going rapidly.

But Do Not Forget

it is not for sale. A subscription to the Gospel Messenger is simply means of obtaining this charming little volume.

The Olive Branch of Peace and Good Will to :: Men ::

By S. F. SANGER and D. HAYS

¶ The doctrine of nonresistance as taught and practiced by the Church of the Brethren has, at different times, brought her members face to face with severe trials and suffering, and even death. But with all that, it has also been instrumental in preserving that abiding faith in God, that feeling of brotherly love, that unyielding fidelity to the teaching of Christ's Gospel, which characterize the true followers of the Prince of Peace. Sustained by the deep convictions as to the right of it, the persecutions and suffering have been endured, and the doctrine remains in the church as one of the fundamentals of true Christianity.

¶ The above named book is a history of the trials and experiences of the Brethren during the War of the Rebellion, together with a brief record of the persecutions of the Brethren in Germany and the early years of the church in America.

¶ The object of the presentation of this history to the public is (1) that it may be a means of increasing the courage, strengthening the faith and deepening the convictions of the Brethren in relation to this doctrine, and (2) that our peace principles, and our relation to the government in maintaining these principles, may be better understood.

¶ In these days, when the subject of international peace is agitating the minds of men in high places in all civilized countries, a book of this kind is a timely one, and will be read with peculiar interest.

ONESIMUS
The Runaway Slave

By ELD. H. B. BRUMBAUGH

A book of sacred history, and biography, which, in a fascinating style, portrays an interesting phase of Eastern life and the institution of Roman Society at the time when Paul wrote his epistle to Philemon. This little volume was not written in a day. Much research and careful study are clearly evinced throughout.

Better not begin the reading of it at a time when you have an important appointment near at hand. When once you begin it you will not want to stop short of the end. It is a charming story of an elevating character. Bound in cloth with gold side title.

Notes from Our Correspondents.

my brother, C. A. Robinson, and myself. We have had three meetings here, but as the village of Union is mostly composed of Mormons and Seventh-Day Adventists, the attendance here rather slim. The people care more for ten-cent shows than they do for the Gospel. With the interest running extra session, it seems that the world (and even the church) is rapidly going downward. One is made to ask, What will the harvest be?—A. A. Robinson, Union, Oregon, Dec. 14. (The writer may be addressed at Nampa, Idaho.)

PENNSYLVANIA.

Little Swatara church met in council at the Meyer meetinghouse Dec. 11. Our elder, Bro. E. M. Wenger, presided. Bro. Emanuel Merkey was appointed treasurer for the Meyer meetinghouse, which office was made vacant by the death of his father, Bro. Joseph M. Merkey. The church elected the following superintendents for our respective Sunday-schools: Bro. Jacob F. Merkey at Ziegler's, Brethren & N. Sherman and C. R. Bonsack at Merkey's, Bro. A. Light at the Union meetinghouse, and Bro. H. M. Frantz at Frystown. One dear aged sister, a member from concern, was granted membership into the church by baptism.—H. M. Frantz, R. D. 5, Myerstown, Pa., Dec. 11.

Norristown church met Dec. 3 and enjoyed a very pleasant love feast. About sixty precious souls partook of the Lord's table. In the absence of our elder, Bro. James B. Shisler, Eld. R. A. Nedrow, of Frederick, Md., officiated. Bro. Nedrow preached an able sermon on the subject of "Love" on Sunday morning. In the afternoon he preached at the State Hospital, and labored for us in the evening. Our little love feast one dear aged sister was called to her eternal home.—Hattie M. Nedrow, 1317 George Street, Norristown, Pa., Dec. 11.

Spring Creek.—Eld. H. B. Yoder, of Lancaster, Pa., opened a series of meetings at the Palmyra house Nov. 11 and closed Dec. 6. Seven came out on the Lord's side, making the number were those for whom we had been praying for years. The church held a special prayer meeting for the success of the meetings. Eld. Yoder delivered strong gospel sermons.—Edgar M. Hoffer, Elizabethtown, Pa.

TENNESSEE.

Crowson church met in council Dec. 9, with Eld. J. L. Guthrie presiding. It was decided at this meeting to organize our Sunday-school, which will be held at 2:30. Our series of meetings closed Dec. 10. They were well attended, and as a result six precious souls were buried with Christ in baptism, and one reclaimed. It was indeed a feast to the soul to the little band of workers at this place. Our church membership has been almost doubled, in the past two years, by conversions. We now have forty-one members, and good prospects for others in the near future. Bro. J. L. Guthrie, who has labored so earnestly with us for four weeks, is on his return trip home to Southern Oklahoma, where he will go to spend the winter and do some work in the Master's vineyard. Why can not other ministering brethren stop over with us as they are passing from the North to the South, or from East to West?—A. M. Hardin, Lawrenceburg, Tenn., Dec. 11.

New Hope.—Our church met in council Dec. 9, with our elders in charge. As there was no preacher present before the meeting, Bro. A. M. Laughrun preached for us. The Sunday following Bro. S. W. Bales, of the Pleasant Valley congregation, preached an able sermon to us and the Sunday-school congregation. Bro. J. B. Hilbert preached for us on Sunday evening. We decided to hold a series of meetings, beginning Jan. 14, 1912.—Laura Saylor, Jonesboro, Tenn., Dec. 11.

TEXAS.

Pleasant Grove.—Nov. 19 Eld. J. A. Miller commenced a series of meetings, closing Dec. 3. Bro. J. Wm. Miller, of San Antonio, Texas, conducted the song service. During his stay he gave spiritual lessons in music, which will be a lasting good to the community. On Thanksgiving Day, prior to our love feast, the church met in council and elected Bro. F. J. Long. Our love feast, held Dec. 2, was well attended. Seven brethren and five sisters surrounded the Lord's tables.—Nannie Bonds, R. D. 1, Spring, Texas, Dec. 8.

VIRGINIA.

Bethlehem.—Our church met in council Nov. 25, with Eld. Geo. Bowman presiding. Two new members by were granted. Bro. I. N. H. Beahm gave us an inspiring talk. On the evening following our council, Eld. J. H. Moore, of Patrick County, Va., began a series of meetings at this place. He preached thirteen sermons. The meetings closed Dec. 3. Bro. Lackey is an inspiring and able preacher. The meetings were well attended We had a much enjoyable time and an earnest labors. As an immediate result three united with us by baptism, and one was restored to fellowship. Our Thanksgiving offering amounted to $26.—C. C. Myers, Boone Mill, Va., Dec. 6.

Fairfax.—Nov. 19 Eld. D. C. Flory and wife, of Waynesboro, Va., began a series of meetings, closing Dec. 3. He preached eighteen sermons. Eight Sunday-school scholars were baptized. Bro. Flory labored earnestly, and we feel sure the members feel strengthened.—Maggie Miller, Oakton, Va., Dec. 12.

Flat Rock.—At the close of the fall term the Volunteer Mission Band of Bridgewater College came into our congregation and rendered two helpful programs,—one at the Cedar Grove church, Dec. 1; another, Dec. 3, at the Flat Rock church, with the motto, "The World for Christ." A similar program was given on Thursday evening in our adjoining congregation. Prof. Rock, who is a member of the Band, preached for us at Flat Rock on Sunday morning, and again at night. The band consists of twelve members. Only eight were on this tour.—John E. Wine, Forestville, Va., Dec. 11.

Johnsville church met in council Dec. 9. Eld. D. C. Naff presided. Much business came before the meeting. Three letters of membership were granted. We decided to have a series of meetings during the Holiday week, if arrangements can be obtained.—Bertha Dallas, McDonalds Mill, Va., Dec. 11.

Roanoke.—This church met in council Dec. 5, with Eld. P. S. Miller presiding. Bro. J. H. Murray, solicitor for the Bluefield church, reported $13.25 raised, so far. Our Sunday-school is progressing in good shape. Sunday-school officers for the following year were elected, with Bro. J. H. Yost as superintendent. Bro. W. S. Greenawalt was chosen Messenger agent; the writer, correspondent; Bro. L. C. Moomaw, church treasurer. The finance committee was reappointed. Eld. P. S. Miller gave us a soul-refreshing talk on Thanksgiving Day, after which an offering of $30.48 was received.—Homer E. Trout, Vinton, Va., Dec. 11.

Valley Pike.—We met in services on Thanksgiving Day. The Sunday-school children's dime investment was paid in that day, amounting to $16.65, which goes to the District Missionary Fund. The collection of $13 was sent to help pay for the new churchhouse at Deerfield, Va. Our church will meet in council Jan. 6, at Sunday-school is moving along nicely.—Vena S. Bussard, Bolar, Va., Dec. 12.

WASHINGTON.

East Wenatchee.—The church has enjoyed a splendid revival, which began Nov. 19 and continued until the evening of Dec. 10, being conducted by Bro. A. O. Harvey, of Greenville, Ohio. Bro. Forster labored earnestly and faithfully. Three young sisters accepted Christ. Dec. 9 we had a pleasant members' meeting. Elders J. J. Yoder and C. E. Holsinger presiding. Two letters were received and two granted. Eld. J. J. Yoder was chosen as elder in charge; Bro. Andrew Sperline, clerk; Bro. J. C. Sperline, treasurer; Sister G. W. Buntain, Messenger agent; the writer, correspondent. Special Thanksgiving services were also held and a collection of $15 was sent to Timothy Bible School.—Vinnie A. Sellers, R. D. 4, East Wenatchee, Wash., Dec. 11.

North Yakima.—We met at 10:30 A. M. on Thanksgiving Day for services. Eld. George E. Hollenberg, of Ione, gave an interesting address. An offering was taken for District Mission work. Eld. Hollenberg remained over Sunday and delivered some excellent sermons each evening, also on Sunday morning. Three sermons were also attended. Dec. 6 we met in council. Bro. Wise, our pastor, presided. Church officers for the coming year were elected. We met again Dec. 13 to elect officers for the Sunday-school and Christian Workers' Meeting. Bro. P. H. Hortzog was chosen as our elder for the next year.—Mrs. Ed Reppert, 702 South 2nd Street, North Yakima, Wash., Dec. 11.

Pacoma.—Sister Hall last report three mothers and one father have been baptised. Brother and Sister Stiverson are with us again, after taking a few months' vacation made in a revival.—Elsie Garman, R. D. 2, Box 258, Tacoma, Wash., Dec. 5.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Maple Spring.—Bro. J. S. Long, who has spent eight years as a missionary in India, was with us Dec. 9 and 10. He gave us three splendid talks on mission work. Bro. Long devotes his whole time and heart to his work. A collection of $16 was taken up at the close of the meetings, to help the missionary work in India.—Pearl A. Hamstead, Eglon, W. Va., Dec. 11.

Mayaville.—We held our annual Thanksgiving service at the Brick church. On account of the weather the attendance was small. An offering of $14 was donated for the Worldwide Mission Fund.—C. G. Hesse, Mayaville, W. Va., Dec. 6.

Sandy Creek.—Bro. Ira Hostetter, of Ohio, is with us, by way home on a furlough, was with us on the evenings of Dec. 7 and 8. He is a man in two very important lines of mission work in India. All were very much aroused. A collection of $26.21 was taken.—James M. Thomas, R. D. Box 62, Clifton Mills, W. Va., Dec. 15.

NOTES NOT CLASSIFIED.

Special Notice.—We wish to say to all the Sunday-school scholars of the Brethren Sunday-school, Lanark, Ill., that Bro. J. C. Nininger, that the Mission Board would like to have the proceeds from the same on Jan. 1, 1912, if convenient as convenient. Send all the money to I. H. Miller, and he will give you a receipt for it.—Lanark Sunday-school, Cordell, Okla.—Dec. 18.

Lanark.—Our church met in business meeting on Monday evening, Dec. 4. F. Eckerle was elected superintendent of our Sunday-school for another year; Bro. D. D. Stitzel, church clerk; Bro. Truman Eckman, trustee for three years; Bro. Boyd Zuck, treasurer. Rev. W. J. McNight, of Syracuse, N. Y., representative of the Reformed Presbyterian church of North America, gave us a series of lectures this week on "The Bible the Guide Book," "Mummies Found in the Pyramids," "Found in the Temple, and Why They Were Not Used in the Synagogue," "The Bible and the Lodge," and "Is the United States a Christian Nation?" Every ten years the Bible is interpreted on Sunday morning after services. Bro. M. W. Emmert, of Mount Morris College, will conduct the Bible Term Jan. 9, 10 and 11.—Addie Arnold Zuck, Lanark, Ill., Dec. 16.

AT HOME IN FRANCE.

We are very thankful to announce to our Brethren in America that we have arrived safely in Southern France, and are comfortably housed,—for the winter at least. No one could ask a kinder welcome, or more helpful thoughtfulness than we have received from the workers here,—Bro. and Sister Pellet, and Bro. Marino. To them and the good Father, who provided for us, they are, we owe our present comfort and pleasant situation.

It is, of course, too early for us to say much about the outlook here, but this we have already seen, that there are some precious souls or children in attendance at one or the other of the services, weekly, as well as a smaller number of grown people. The children take an active part in the work, especially in the singing, which they do very well indeed.

I have also noticed the uniform and universal respect with which our Bro. Pellet is greeted by the people as we pass through the town together. This shows that there has been right living here, to say the least, and that, we know, is the fundamental thing. We can not but believe that there will be a good work done here in Oyonnax, and in time a large work will be done in France, you helping, together with us, by your prayers to God.

Sister Marino is still in Italy, where she is receiving treatment. Her absence cripples the work by that much and more, as it is a source of anxiety to Bro. Marino. We are praying for her speedy recovery.

We will do our best to keep the church informed as to the conditions here, the progress and our needs. We begin with the language today (Dec. 5).

Paul Mohler.

Finger Posts on Life's Highway

Showing How to Succeed in Life

BY JOHN T. DALE

A new book, full of pointers which point in the right direction. A book for the young, the middle aged and the old.

The purpose of the author, in gathering the material, during many years, was to assist those who are striving to gain character, intellectual power, business success, and merited esteem of their fellowmen. Out of a long and varied experience he has been able to collect into this volume more than one hundred articles on that many different subjects, touching human life from almost every possible angle. It is not a novel nor a story, nor yet a long and dry treatise upon some abstract subject, but a collection of articles on everyday topics, written in language and style easy to be understood, making the points so clear that the way of a truly successful and happy life is more easily found. The book abounds in words of wisdom, caution and warning.

We have great hopes for the sale of this book, knowing that it will appeal to all classes with equal force, and be the means of accomplishing good wherever it goes. Should any of our readers be interested in taking an agency for it, write us at once. We can offer liberal commission. The book contains 628 pages, bound in cloth. Illustrated. Will be sent to any address, postpaid, for $1.50

Church Influence in Political Affairs.

When the world's Redeemer said, "My Kingdom is not of this world," he clearly circumscribed the metes and bounds of his realm. While his followers may do their duty as loyal citizens of the land in which they live, he does not expect them to become so fully affiliated with the contestants in the political arena as to be part and parcel of the powerful combinations, so often resorting to questionable means of achieving their ends. Right now the just criticism is being made that dignitaries of the Catholic church are using undue influence in controlling the votes of their people. If this charge can be substantiated, the members of that body, as well as the people in general, can well afford to file their serious protest against a practice so clearly detrimental to the best interests of church and State.

Another Mission Field Opening.

During the last few years thousands of people from India have settled on the western shores of the United States, and at present the number bids fair to increase annually. Most of these immigrants are Sikhs from the Punjab, and all of them are said to be well-behaved and industrious, even more susceptible to gospel influences in their new home than in their native country, if properly and tactfully approached. The great question now confronting the Christian people of our country,—and especially those on the Pacific Coast,—is, how to turn these sons of India from their idols to serve the living God. They can be reached with but little expense, and since, providentially, they have been placed at our very threshold, our duty is plain and obvious,—" Go, . . . teach!"

Sensational Methods in Church Advertising.

With some degree of justice do Jewish and Catholic journals criticise and condemn the highly sensational methods employed by many Protestant churches to fill the vacant pews of their respective places of worship. A Pennsylvania minister, after announcing the startling topics of a series of Sunday evening services in a most captivating manner, sought to add still further to the promised attraction by stating that there would be "illustrated songs, recitals, the ringing of chimes,—all highly entertaining." One is made to wonder in which part of this elaborate service the minister proposed to offer the spiritual food for his hungry hearers. Well may there be a united demand, on the part of the more thoughtful church workers, for a greater reliance upon the Gospel,—pure and unadorned,—as the most effective means of filling the churches.

The Better Way.

President Taft is to be commended for his tactful method of avoiding possible complications with Russia by promptly abrogating the treaty of 1832. The "Sulzer resolution," which was sought to be passed by the House, attempted to secure recognition and protection for American Jews in Russia, but its way and method were peculiarly objectionable to the Russian authorities. To avoid any further strained relations, our Chief Executive took the step above referred to, which paves the way for an up-to-date treaty, in every way fair and equitable to all concerned. Again we are reminded of the fact that there are right and wrong ways of adjusting difficulties. Happy is the man or the nation that, in a spirit of righteousness, can say as did Abraham of old to Lot, "Let there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee, . . . for we be brethren."

Persia Forced to Yield.

In our last we chronicled Russia's withdrawal from Persia, at the urgent insistence of Great Britain. Since then, Russia has once more entered upon a campaign of aggression. Absolute compliance with the Russian ultimatum has now been promised by the Persian cabinet. This, unfortunately, includes the dismissal of Morgan Shuster, the American who has been so ably administering the finances of the country. Mr. Shuster's admirable management of affairs, even in the short time he was in control, wiped out Persia's heavy indebtedness and placed the country on a sound financial footing. But this was not satisfactory to Russia. Intent upon the eventual "assimilation" of Persia, the Czar seems now to have the upper hand in its affairs. European diplomats concede that Russia, by important railway concessions through Persia, some years ago, secured an entering wedge to complete control of the country in the near future. Through the concessions and present submission of Persia to the Czar's dictates, Russia will control seaports very close to India, cutting transportation costs from Liverpool to Bombay and Calcutta into halves. This will be accomplished by the proposed railroad construction from Caucasian points across Persia from the Aras River towns,—only about 300 miles,—to the Persian Gulf ports. Thus Russia, if permitted to carry out present plans, will become one of the foremost maritime powers of the world, so far as seaports are concerned. Incidentally the world's geography will again be materially changed, once more illustrating most forcibly the transient nature of man's possessions and plans.

Old Year, Farewell!

By Sarah Doudney.

Farewell, Old Year; we walk no more together;
I catch the sweetness of thy latest sigh,
And, crowned with yellow brake and withered heather,
I see thee stand beneath this cloudy sky.

Here in the dim light of a gray December
We part in smiles, and yet we met in tears;
Watching the chilly dawn, I well remember
I thought the saddest-born all the years.

I knew not then what precious gifts were hidden
Under the mist that veiled thy path from sight;
I knew not then that joy would come unbidden
To make thy closing hours divinely bright.

I only saw the dreary clouds unbroken,
I only heard the plash of icy rain,
And in that winter gloom I found no token
To tell me that the sun would shine again.

O dear Old Year, I wronged a Father's kindness;
I would not trust him with my load of care;
I stumbled on in weariness and blindness,
And lo! he blessed me with an answered prayer.

Good-by, kind Year; we walk no more together,
But here in quiet happiness we part;
And from thy wreath of faded fern and heather
I take some sprays, and wear them on my heart.

Distress and Suffering in the East.

While peace and plenty, joy and gladness, have been the chief characteristics of the blessed Christmas season so recently enjoyed by the people of the United States, a less fortunate lot has fallen to the people of the East. China, still in the throes of a revolution, is experiencing want and privation most deplorable, for even in times of peace her swarming millions have but the most meager resources. In northern India, gaunt famine again threatens the thickly-settled districts, and many will doubtless fall before the grim reaper. Recent dispatches from St. Petersburg reaffirm the reports of widespread suffering, already alluded to in these columns. A great task still confronts the various governments of the countries involved, to remedy known conditions of evil, and institute needed reform measures. To those who, like the people of the United States, are highly favored with better light and knowledge, there is an evident duty that cannot be shirked. "To him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin."

Revival of the Family Altar.

While it is generally deplored that the family altar,—the sacred refuge of every devoted Christian home,—has been allowed, by many, to fall into decay, various means have been sought to revive the waning interest,—once more to establish the family altar fire in its rightful place. "The Family Altar League" has for some time been active in this work, and it is now estimated that at least 140,000 lives are being daily touched and influenced by family prayers, reëstablished by its efforts. The plan of operation is simple indeed. Any family making a solemn covenant to maintain family worship, is thereby enrolled in the League. A systematic effort is then made to help these families in their religious life by furnishing them with daily Bible readings. While this plan may be helpful to many, let none of our readers forget that it is within the power of each family to make its own covenant with the Lord, and that the home altar may readily be erected without further delay. The opportunity for a higher degree of spirituality by this agency is always available. "Him that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out." Renewed spirituality may be ours in 1912, if we look well to the home altar fires.

A New Capital for India.

King George, as Emperor of all India, is astonishing the more conservative diplomats of his realm by the radical reform measures he is devising for the welfare of his Indian dependency. One of the most far-reaching of these is the removal of the capital from Calcutta to Delhi. With the laying of the first stone of the new capitol, Dec. 15, King George also laid the foundation of a better understanding between the natives of India and their English ruler. At no other point could the capital be located, that would be so generally acceptable to the people, as in the place now designated. The tactfulness of King George is well shown in the various concessions recently granted the people of India, and will go far in maintaining more friendly relations in the future. "He that would have friends," says Solomon, "must show himself friendly," and in this, as in all else, actions speak louder than words.

Increase in Bible Study.

Though infidels and other enemies of the truth, throughout the world, would hinder the progress of the truth by every possible means, there is much to encourage the earnest believer in his pilgrimage Zionward. We are told that 80,000 college men in eighteen different countries are engaged in voluntary Bible study. Last year over 350,000 young men in the United States were identified with organized Bible study classes. In the Sunday-schools of the world 28,011,199 persons, representing more than fifty nations, are studying the Bible. Twenty-seven Bible Societies in 1910 printed 12,843,196 copies of the Scriptures. The Oxford Press alone prints 20,000 Bibles every week. Last year 3,000 young Chinese Christians met at Shanghai for a three-days' Bible study. Seeing all this, who is there among us, not willing "to thank God and take courage," resolving to do still more and better work for the Lord?

Providing for British Workers.

Acting on the principle that a part of each worker's wages, during the days of his greatest efficiency, should be the nucleus of a pension fund during his days of decline, the English Parliament has recently passed a bill to that effect. The measure was drafted by Chancellor Lloyd-George, and substantially is as follows: The State deducts from the income of all who earn less than $800 per annum a certain amount for State insurance. School-teachers and members of the Army and Navy are exempt. The standard deduction will be eight cents a week from a man's wages, and six cents from a woman's. Employers will contribute six cents a week, and the State four cents. The plan includes medical attendance during sickness and a pension for permanently disabled. Strange to say, the plan does not meet with the universal approval of those who are mainly benefited thereby. Upon the whole, however, the measure bids fair to be acceptable to the British people in general. By it each worker is assured a stated amount when old age or accidental injury incapacitates him for active labor, and he has the satisfaction of knowing that he has in part, at least, contributed to his own pension fund.

Our Increasing Divorce Record.

While there is, perhaps, no period in life when good counsel and judgment are more needed than during the days when youth is verging into the more mature years of life's experience, it is nevertheless a fact that good advice and due reflection at that time are generally passed by. Statistics compiled from the records of the District Supreme Court of Washington, D. C., reveal the astounding fact that forty per cent of all divorces in that city are the results of hasty marriages, and that seventy per cent result from marriages in which one of the contracting parties was under twenty-one years of age. The most appalling feature, however, is seen in the fact that there is one divorce court in the District of Columbia to every four marriage licenses. This, by the way, is not confined to Washington alone, but is true of many other places in the United States. Might it not be well, as already suggested by eminent jurists, that both the pulpit and the home do more effective teaching along the line of entering the marriage relation only after the most mature and spiritual reflection upon its great and responsible duties? Greater care in this respect would undoubtedly curtail the large number of unhappy marriages and consequent divorces. Divine Writ assures us that "marriage is honorable in all," and surely we need but exercise our God-given faculties to make it an institution conducive to the best interests of the human race, as well as an honor to our Great Creator.

New Year's Day.

BY B. F. M. SOURS.

O New Year's Day, we hail thee!
The past is past: today
We wait thy coming morrow;
We greet thee on thy way.
The dreams of night are parted
Like curtains, and the gloom
Yields to the breaking daylight,
And springtime and its bloom.

Come, New Y ar's Day of gladness,
And bring new joy to me!
I see the blush of morning
Like sparkle on the sea.
It comes to part the shadows,
To chase the night away,
To tell the glorious morning
Of holier, happier day.

Come, New Year's Day of shadows—
I know they wait, they come
Like carrier-pigeons homeward—
They wait to touch my home.
O Father of all mercies,
Look with thy loving eyes,
And fill my humbled spirit
With heavenly, sweet surprise!

O New Year's Day, we hail thee!—
Come, make us glad and strong!
Come with thy minor music
And with thy major song!
We trust all to the Father;
And strength the Christ will give,
And New Year after New Year
For him we trust to live.

The Annual Visit.

BY J. W. LEAR.

JUST when the annual visit was authorized by the church, I have never discovered. It may not have been introduced by a decision of the Conference, but rather as an expediency, which gained favor, and became universal.

In 1867 the Conference recognized the service, and adopted a set of questions which unified the plan and practice.

The Purpose.

The purpose of the visit is to ascertain the standing of the membership from year to year, to find out the relation of the individual to his God, his brethren and sisters, and to discover his interest in the growth of the church.

From the nature of the visit it was designed to bring to light any condition which might militate against the purity and power of the church, with the view of correcting the evil. The service is also instructive and inspiring to all, where it is properly conducted.

A Formal Practice.

There is always danger, even among the best of people, of losing the very life of a service, and observing the lifeless form with all the conventionality of a sage. This is often the cause of an otherwise good service falling into disrepute. "The letter killeth but the Spirit giveth life."

A Wrong Use.

This service, notwithstanding the good intentions of the promoters, and the good that may be accomplished, if properly conducted, may be used as an opportunity selfishly to expose the faults of others, or it may be used to whip somebody, and get revengeful satisfaction, with a show of good intentions.

The Formula.

The questions adopted by the Conference are well chosen, and although few in number cover a broad field. If the spirit of these interrogations is fully met, only good can result. We shall examine them separately:

"Are you in the faith of the Gospel as you declared in your baptismal covenant?" This question searches our heart in reference to our standing with God, as well as our relation to the covenant of grace. "Without faith it is impossible to please him." Paul said he had kept the faith and he exhorted his brethren to "fight the good fight of faith."

Faith lies at the very foundation of Christian experience, and, indeed, there can be no Divine fellowship without it. It must be the kind, however, that is perfected by works of righteousness, and the works must be wrought in love.

"Are you at peace with all the members of the church, as far as you know?" We are now face to face with a question that relates to our fellowship and standing with each other. Paul told the Thessalonians to "be at peace among themselves." He exhorted the Corinthians to "live in peace; and the God of love and peace shall be with you." Also, in the hortatory section of his epistle to the Romans, he carries us outside the fold, when he says: "If it be possible, as much as in you lieth, be at peace with all men."

The purpose of this question is to discover, if possible, any contention, strife, envy, backbiting, hatred, variance, offences or misunderstandings existing in the church. The importance of this lies in the fact that, when peace is gone, the Spirit is gone; and when this is the condition, the church is shorn of her power as a witness to the truth.

It is a lamentable coincidence that members can answer this important question in the affirmative and before the visitors are out of sight, hold up some member of the church for ridicule and censorious judgment. If Christ were here he would say, no doubt, "Woe unto you, hypocrites; ye appear on the outside, when the visit is going around, to be at peace, but the inside is full of envy and strife, as indicated at other times by your backbiting and evil speaking."

"Are you willing to work for a greater degree of holiness, both in yourself and others?" This is too serious a question to answer without prayerful meditation. We are dealing with purity. We are looking for higher ground. We at once recognize the need of holiness, for without it no man shall see the Lord. The standing of the Christian demands purity, and the great need of purity demands that we work to obtain it. The fruit to be borne is holiness. The soil to be cultivated is, first, our own hearts, and then to assist each other.

The apostle John tells what class of people will work for holiness. He that hopes to be like Jesus when he is manifested will purify himself (1 John 3: 2, 3). Do we belong to that class? We say "Yes." Do we mean it? Would we pretty hard on the pipe, plug and cigar. I feel sure it would change some of the conversation. More grace, seasoned pretty well with salt, would be the result. The church would take on new life, if this work of consecration would find scriptural fulfillment in each of our lives.

"Be ye holy, for I am holy" is a high standard, but none too high. It will keep us doing just what we promised,—work. "Without holiness no man shall see the Lord" is a pretty strait gate,—none too strait though. It will keep us busy trimming ourselves down, and exalting Christ in our lives.

Place for Suggestions.

After these questions are asked, opportunity to give suggestions for the good of the church should be given. This is important, and should not be overlooked.

At this point we are sorely in need of education. The matter and tone of our suggestions oftentimes manifests the shallowness of our ambitions. They surely uncover the breadth of our thoughts, and as we examine them, sometimes they have not much depth of earth. At a certain business meeting, when the visit was reported, a long list of suggestions was enumerated, and fully 90 per cent of them related to the dress of the members. Then came several admonitions of considerable length, covering the territory of the suggestions. It is not to be questioned, that there was need for some wise teaching, on the subject of adornment in that congregation; but to make that the chief or supreme question of the hour, is, to say the least, advertising our ideals, as to the needs of the membership, to a disadvantage. How about your midweek meeting? Do ten per cent of your members attend? Could there be some improvement in your Sunday-school, or your Christian Workers' Meeting? Does the spirituality or consecration of the membership register 100 per cent or thereabout? Are the members giving as the Lord has prospered them? Are family altars erected in every home, and kept aglow by daily Bible reading and prayer?

Would not these and a dozen more, we might mention, be fine subjects for the usual "admonitions"? Is there much use to doctor an effect? Would it not be better to go after the cause? Is it not a fact that the neglect of some of the problems cited, is the cause of the effect that we are laboring so hard to counteract?

Organization.

The elder, by virtue of his office, should organize the visit. He should call his visitors together and carefully instruct them. The deacons, by virtue of their office, constitute the visiting body. If necessary, they may call upon the ministry, or even the laity, for assistance.

A most earnest prayer for guidance is indispensable. The elder should then proceed to qualify his visitors. He may answer the usual questions himself in the presence of the body, and then interrogate each official likewise.

The Visit.

The visitors should go two and two. A memorandum and pencil will be necessary. The names of the members, their physical and spiritual condition, and especially their suggestions, should be carefully tabulated. No one should think of trusting the memory. This tabulation will be profitable to the elder.

Don't hurry! Undue haste will spoil anything. Take all the time necessary to do it well!

Have a pleasant greeting on entering the home. Have all of the members of the home present, if possible. State the purpose of the visit; also remark upon its importance. If at all possible, have a short prayer with the family. This will take no longer than is often spent in meaningless conversation.

The Report.

If a careful record has been kept, an intelligent and instructive report can be made. The number of members visited can be stated. If any are physically indisposed, it should be mentioned. Those suffering for lack of material comforts, as well as those who are spiritually on the decline may be looked after. All this should be stated to the officials first, to see if it is expedient to mention all to the congregation. Some things can best be arranged for adjustment in a more private way.

The suggestions should all be placed in the hands of the elder, and need not be reported by the visitors in the open council. At the close of the report, these may be read, and then be the basis for some well-arranged and wholesome instruction. If they are of sufficient gravity, they might become good subjects for discussion at monthly members' meetings, where all could take part.

The necessity of this service has been questioned at different times. Upon investigation we find the cause to be a lack of teaching as to its relative importance, and the cold, lifeless way in which it is conducted, along with the unbrotherly methods resorted to at times.

Let the elders of churches study the importance of this service, carefully teach it to their respective flocks, over which the Holy Ghost has made them overseers, and then have it organized and executed prayerfully and under the guidance of the Spirit, and only good can result therefrom.

Acts 19: 1-6.—How Readest Thou?

BY J. HARMAN STOVER.

Points.

1. PAUL found certain disciples.
2. Disciples means learners.
3. Their entrance into the church was irregular, unauthorized, hence not in harmony with the working body,—not having heard whether there be any Holy Ghost.
4. Fellowship was impossible.
5. Something must be done.
6. That was done which brought them in harmony with God and the church.

7. It took Christian baptism to do it.

The above analysis is true and it does not show as to the vital points at issue one feature or phase of the question before the church today. It does not, in any way, bear upon the problem confronting the York Conference in reference to rebaptism.

Our Problem.

1. We find certain disciples.

2. They have learned of a higher way. Thus far there is a parallel.

3. Their entrance (so far as it behooved them) is regular, and even the most conservative will not say that it was not authorized. Their baptism,—as far as they are responsible,—was, in form and purpose, genuine Christian baptism, hence there is no parallel between the Ephesian twelve, in the first century, and the many hundred, in the United States, and elsewhere, in the twentieth century.

4. Fellowship is possible (all things being made right according to the original committee's report).

5 and 6. Nothing more remains to be done but to grow and to be useful in the Master's work.

7. This had already been done in the earlier stages of learning.

The present problem is, how to receive those who have been properly baptized, but by an administrator whom, for lack of other gospel principles, or for too close an alignment with worldly things, we, as the church of Christ, can not fellowship.

The whole question hinges here. This question comes to every one of us: Is it Gospel, is it in keeping with Divine grace for an honest seeker to be acceptably born of God by and through the service of a doubtfully authorized and often very unworthy administrator? There is a very commendable, worthy, safe hesitancy on the part of the church to open this door.

If you settle the above question in the affirmative, the door should then be cautiously opened. If you settle it negatively, the individual member, to a man, should stand against it.

Have we a precedent in Scripture? John 4: 1-2 says, "Jesus baptized not but his disciples." If Judas, who was a devil, really performed this service acceptably, we have a precedent, but it would be very unwise to establish a principle of action, so vital as this one, upon a theory merely supposable, or so far-fetched.

Heb. 6: 1-3 might seem at first to be a precept authorizing such an action, but it takes little reflection to note that it has reference to those returning who had gone out from the body, and has no reference to those coming up from other persuasions. Balaam, while condemned in his individual life, did some prophesying that has stood the test for ages. God used him to do his will.

Looking at the question fairly, and without bias, it seems that one coming to us from another body, declares by his very severance from his former fellowmembers that he adjudges them unworthy of his further fellowship. He ought therefore to come in at the door.

But the question being without scriptural precedent, it is one that ought to be settled, after all, by the individual conscience.

While the foregoing conclusions show argument favorable to rebaptizing, I find my sympathies on the other side of the question, for the three following reasons:

1. I can not believe that we are the only recognized people of God on the earth, and that we, and we only, are authorized to make disciples.

2. Men were authorized to preach and baptize, who had no authority even to invoke the Holy Ghost upon those they had baptized (Acts 8: 5, 11, 12, 13-17). In short they could begin but not complete the work.

3. We have no precedent whatever for rebaptism in the Scripture where genuine Christian baptism in form and purpose was ever asked or demanded.

But the most important decision that could be made for the peace and safety of the church at the York Conference would be to decide to go slow.

THE fact that we are here and not in heaven, is good circumstantial evidence that God has something here for us to do.

The Standing Committee.

BY JNO. CALVIN BRIGHT.

OUR Annual Meetings are directed and controlled by a committee, commonly called the Standing Committee. As it only lives a week or ten days, the word "Standing" is almost a misnomer. In some of the early Minutes, as well as in some of the later references to this committee the word, "General" is also used. As that title, "The General Committee" is open to no criticism, why not use it henceforth?

This General Committee was doubtless composed of all the ordained elders present in the earlier meetings. As the churches grew and multiplied, and the number of elders increased, then, perhaps, the leading elders chose this committee, and later the elders of the church in which the meeting was held had the important responsibility given to them. This was the rule until late in the sixties of the former century.

This rule did not give general satisfaction. The writer lived close enough to the Annual Meetings of 1850 and 1862 to know whereof he affirms. At the 1850 meeting, my father, then an active young minister, lived next door to the meeting and the elders. At the 1862 Conference a number of the "chief men among the brethren" stayed at our house. And though only ten years old, I heard them speak "openly," and confidentially about the matter. What they said, however, need not be put down on paper. In our day we wonder why that rule kept in vogue so long.

The General Committee was not so large, nor were its duties so onerous or various as in these later decades. And, as might be expected under such circumstances, there were not so many changes in the makeup of the committees in the different years. Some of the elders served ten, twenty, and even thirty years in succession on this committee.

In 1862 this committee was first represented from beyond the Mississippi. Now we are arranging to have nearly one-half of her representation from that territory. Then we had from nine to eighteen elders on that committee. Now we have over fifty. Then we had very few changes. Now, sometimes, nearly one-half are new men who never had experience in that body. Then we held them almost a life-time in this responsible position. Now we say, "Only one year at a time, please." Then one or two elders chose the entire committee. Now we choose from each District, by the delegates from each church. Then they were in session one day before the General Conference, now they hold four days' session.

These changes have been for the furtherance of the cause, the prosperity of the church, and the purity and efficiency of the General Committee. And from data collected I will show, in my next article, that the query from Northern Illinois, asking for radical changes in this committee is neither wise nor constitutional. Will they get ready to read it?

Christ's Victory on the Cross.

BY C. C. WILKINSON.

"He saved others; himself he cannot save" (Matt. 27: 42).

For a time the career of Jesus was one of marked success and popularity. We see him followed by admiring multitudes, while his opposers had not yet developed any radical hostility. But soon there came a turning point beyond which his popularity waned and his success seemed turned into defeat. The multitudes, ever changing and fickle, forsook him, while the fury of his enemies waxed stronger and deadlier. This apparent failure continued to increase until he was brought alone and forsaken to the cross. Apparently a more ignominious defeat had never before overtaken any individual. We find him facing this defeat, and the jeers and sarcasm of his enemies, as shown in the account of his tragic death, as given by the four evangelists. He hangs on the cross apparently helpless, and lets his life ebb slowly away, while the chief priests, the scribes and the elders, with unpitying eyes watch the solemn tragedy, and mockingly utter the words of the text, "He saved others; himself he cannot save."

In what sense did they mean these words? Evidently, that he had not the power to deliver himself from the death of the cross. It was the final and supreme utterance of their unbelief. It was spoken in bitter derision against one whom they thought to be helplessly in their power. It was a cruel boast which mere brute power always makes over weakness. It was indicative of a hatred which would show no pity and tolerate no interference until death should put an end to the sufferings of the one hanging before them.

But the question arises, Could he not have saved himself? Was he totally helpless in their hands? Did the cross hold him fast as it would have held you or me? Had he no power to tear himself from it and come down?

I answer, Jesus could have saved himself. If he had not the inherent power to come down from the cross and save himself, then he had not the attributes of Divinity, and his death would have availed nothing. But he could have come down. He had the power. The cross did not hold him fast as it would have held you or me. He, before whom the band of Roman soldiers fell to the ground at a word, could have leaped down from the cross at his will. He who had said to a disciple, "Thinkest thou that I cannot beseech my Father, and he shall even now send me more than twelve legions of angels?" could have invoked all the powers of the universe, if necessary, and, in answer to the taunts of his enemies, have hurled the cross from him, and gone scot-free, none daring to hinder him. He who had brought Lazarus forth from the dead, could not have been held by the cross against his will. They were greatly mistaken in the sense in which they meant what they said. He could have saved himself. Some great purpose prevented him.

Let us notice, at this point, the tacit, though unintentional, admission of his enemies to his essential Divinity. This appears in the words, "He saved others." In saying this they admitted more than they thought. He had, indeed, saved others. He had healed the sick, caused the lame to walk, the deaf to hear, and the blind to see. He had cleansed the lepers, cast out demons, forgiven sins, and raised the dead. All these mighty works had been done before their very eyes. This part of their sentence was but the utterance of the truth which they could not deny. And yet, on what ground could they account for this power to work miracles and save others?

But one answer can be given. He was more than human; he was Divine. The omnipotent power of the Deity resided in him. He was one with the Father. He himself, on several occasions, appealed to the works which he did as proof of his essential Divinity (John 5: 36; 10: 25, 38).

If, then, he was Divine and had the power to come down from the cross, why did he not do so, and thus silence the taunts of his enemies? Why appear to be weak and helpless, when he was almighty? As I said before, Some great reason or purpose prevented him. That purpose was the fundamental aim which had brought him into the world,—to give his life a ransom for many. It was this purpose which had kept him in the path which was always leading straight to Calvary. It was this purpose which gained the victory in the Garden of Gethsemane. It was this purpose which held him steady and gave him such a Divine resignation before Pilate. It was this purpose which held him those agonizing hours on the cross, until he could cry out, "It is finished." This purpose must be accomplished. A higher motive animated him than that of self-preservation. He who had taught, "Whosoever would save his life shall lose it," in the hour of greatest test would he not verify his own teaching? He came to give himself a sacrifice for others, and he was not the one to fail in the test. Jesus, here, by an example that has never been equalled, taught that self-preservation,—one's own ease and comfort,—are not the highest and noblest motives that can work in the heart.

Again, if he had come down from the cross before his death, no atonement would have been made. The great plan of redemption would have failed. The death of Christ was necessary in order to salvation. Without the shedding of his blood there could be no remission of sins. Take death away from the redeeming act of Christ, and redemption is ruined. The influence of his holy life, while great, could not answer the purpose of an atonement. The hope of a lost world lay on him, and his life must be given up for its salvation. He might have saved himself, but it would have been the eternal death-knell of the world if he had. And he would have failed actually, a thousand times more than he failed apparently, had he not gone through. He went to the cross voluntarily, and he staid there voluntarily, until the last drop of his blood was shed for our redemption, and no jeers or taunts of his persecutors could deter him. Here is the sense in which he could not come down from the cross, but one of such high moral value that his enemies did not apprehend it.

Notice, also, the element of temptation to falter and turn back which enters here. No one was ever haunted with strong temptation to the very end like Jesus. The taunts and mockeries of his enemies were a temptation to prove to them that he could show himself to be the Son of God, and do all, and more, than they dared him to do. He had met it before in the Satanic suggestions in the wilderness. It comes to him again in this trying hour as a last shot from the foe. Such a temptation,—the temptation to draw back from a holy purpose, to rescind, to retract, to assert one's self and one's rights,—always comes to the man under trial. Every martyr could have purchased his freedom at the cost of his conscience and the principles which he believed. Every one of us will have a chance to back down and give up. But it will always be at the cost of the plan and purpose of God for our lives. When the trial is the heaviest, the temptation is likely to be the severest. Then we will have to be sustained, not only by the grace of God, but by a holy purpose which has been refined by some Gethsemane experience, and which no Satanic power can crush. Jesus conquered on the cross, and because he overcame we can overcome, and the victory which he gained there can be incorporated into our lives, and will be when we say with Paul, "I am crucified with Christ."

Pastoral Care for Students.

BY A. G. CROSSWHITE.

If it be admitted that the social and intellectual side of the student body has reached a plane of development disproportionate to the ethical or spiritual possibilities, then this brief digest of the subject is before you without further apologies. Conceding these premises, it may be well to look for the logical remedy, and that may be stated in a few words,—a systematized method of pastoral care.

But, lest the hypothesis be questioned, it might be better to detail some facts which have led up to this conclusion. In the first place, our schools have been placed at a great disadvantage by not having sufficient patronage to make them self-supporting from the natural operating fund, resulting from board, tuition, incidentals, etc. The lack of endowment or outside donations has materially cramped our efforts and, in some instances, State requirements have brought our schoolmen face to face with greater issues still. To keep up our standard to a competitive basis has entailed an unreasonable amount of self-sacrifice on the part of teachers, and increased their burdens almost to the point of despair or intellectual martyrdom. Neither patron nor pupil can realize the dangers of the situation until it is too late.

In the second place the constant strain and depletion of the entire faculty, to meet the literary demands, has poorly fitted them for the larger responsibilities of directing the soul culture,—the primary object of all church schools, the absence of which at once removes the strongest argument for their existence. The logical sequence of such spiritual development is the manifest consecration of the life touched by the Holy Spirit, the perfect exemplification of the "simple life."

We judge the factory by its output, but the exterior appearance has never been its greatest test, neither should we grade and shelf our school products in this superficial way. The nickel on a stove may increase its commercial value, but it adds nothing to its real worth or usefulness.

Our plea for pastoral care of the student body, if considered in an active and idealistic sense, would answer some of the following objections at least. Admitting that some students come away from our schools prouder, as to personal appearance, than when they went there, proves one of three things, probably a summary of the three:

1. Home training was deficient.

2. Former church government and environment were faulty.

3. College life was not properly moulded and developed by pastoral care.

The admonition, "Train up a child in the way he should go," etc., is a dead letter argument with the parent who expects greater results from an occasional contact with godly men and women than the constant influence of the father and mother through the favored period of character building, and the adolescent stage of life when both character and destiny hang in the balance.

Let us look at the other side of the question for a moment. How many of our sons and daughters have been guided into useful and remunerative channels of life through school influences? How many have entered the sacred ministry or volunteered for the mission field through this recruiting station? Has not the good more than offset the evil? This much has been accomplished by the crude methods employed, but how much more might we enjoy and hope for, had we a well-regulated pastoral system, in which the seed, thus sown, might be cared for through the period of fecundity, and on to maturity and reproduction?

To show the absurdity of conserving these forces and utilizing this precious gold dust of society, socially and spiritually, under our present system, has been our effort, and it must be apparent to all that the multiplication of duties, along the line of social and intellectual development, has given rise to a corresponding multiplicity of devices of Satan, to turn our young people from parental and Christian influences, and render them more worldly-minded each succeeding generation.

Churches in which our schools are located, are scarcely recognizing the talent of the student body, and very few provisions are ever made to have them attend services, or exercise their various gifts. The gap is there, beyond question, and the only plausible way to bridge it over and bring church and school together, is to have a school pastor whose daily duty it shall be to look after the students' spiritual interests and to prepare and keep them in readiness for the larger duties awaiting them in the various fields of Christian activity.

A change is restful, at least, and the rest will enable us to examine other positions. The matter under consideration is of sufficient magnitude to command a favorable examination of the premises, and when this is done, the Board is optimistic enough to believe that speedy results will follow.

The Character of Christ.

BY OSCAR B. REDENBO.

The character of Christ may be studied from different angles. It is singularly fitted to call forth the impulses of the heart, to awaken love, admiration, and moral delight. As an evidence of his religion, perhaps, it yields to no other proof. Perhaps no other has so often conquered unbelief. The character of Christ is a strong confirmation of the truth of his religion. The more we study Christ's character, as exhibited in the Gospel, the more we shall be impressed with its genuineness and reality.

The evangelists set before us the most extraordinary Being who ever appeared on earth, and yet their descriptions are as artless as the stories of childhood. The authors do not think of themselves. Their aim is to show us the Master, and they manifest the deep veneration which he inspired, by leaving him to reveal himself, by giving us his actions and sayings without comment, explanation, or eulogy.

The narratives are no varnishings, no high coloring, no attempts to make his actions striking or to bring out the beauties of his character. We are never pointed to anything, as illustrative of his greatness. The evangelists write as if comment or praise of their own were not worthy to mingle with the recital of such a life.

Because of our very familiarity with the history of Jesus, we are not struck by it as we ought to be. We read the story before we are capable of understanding its excellency. Christ's wonderful works become familiar to us as the events of ordinary life, and his priestly offices seem commonplace.

On this account it is well for ministers of the Gospel to do what the evangelists did not attempt,—to offer comments on Christ's character, to bring out its features, to point men to its higher beauties, to awaken their awe by unfolding its wonderful majesty. One of our most important functions, as teachers, is to give freshness and clearness to truths which have become worn. We have to fight with the power of habit. Some men look on this glorious creation with insensibility, and are less moved by the all-enlightening sun than by a show of fireworks. So it is in regard to Christ's character. Men become used to it until they imagine that there is something more admirable in a great man, a statesman or a conqueror, than in him, the latchet of whose shoes the greatest are not worthy to unloose.

The character of Christ is one which could not have entered the thoughts of men, could not have been imagined or feigned. It is marked with genuineness and truth, and ought, therefore, to be acknowledged as real and of divine origin.

Let us transport ourselves to the times when Jesus lived. He lived in a state of society singularly remote from our own. Of all nations the Jewish was the most strongly marked. The Jew was accustomed to speak of himself as chosen by God,—holy, clean, whilst the Gentiles were sinners, dogs, polluted, unclean. With other nations he could not eat nor intermarry. He was, however, obliged to wear the shackles of Rome, to see Roman legions in his territory, and a Roman tax-gatherer levying extortionate taxes for the support of an unrighteous government and an idolatrous worship, though he regarded all forms of worship as being due only to God.

He had, however, one secret consolation,—the prophetic age was at hand, when Judea was to break her chains and rise from the dust.

Her long-promised King was near, and was coming to wear the crown of universal empire. His law was to go forth from Jerusalem, and all nations were to serve the chosen people of God. The Jews erred. When Jesus came, he taught that his power was not bounded by limits of earth.

A Roman centurion makes application to him for the cure of a servant whom he valued. On expressing, in a strong manner, his conviction of the power of Jesus, to heal at a distance, Jesus, according to the historian, "marvelled, and said to those that followed, Verily I say unto you, I have not found so great faith in Israel; and I say unto you, that many shall come from the east and west, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, but the children of the kingdom (that is the Jews) shall be cast out."

The Jews' hopes of Messiah's kingdom were crushed, and the extension of his pure religion, to the ends of the earth, began to be proclaimed.

Jesus was born and grew up a Jew in the midst of Jews, a people burning with one passion, and throwing their whole souls into the expectation of a national and earthly deliverer. Christ grew up among them in poverty, seclusion, and labors, fitted to contract his thoughts, purposes, and hopes; and yet we find him escaping every restraining influence of education and society. We find him as untouched by the feelings which prevailed around him, which religion and patriotism concurred to consecrate, which the mother breathed into the ear of the child, and which the teacher of the synagogue strengthened in the adult, as if he had been brought up in another world. We find him conceiving a sublime purpose, such as had never dawned on sage or hero, and see him possessed with a consciousness of sustaining a relation to God and mankind, and of being invested with powers in this world and the world to come, such as had never entered the human mind. Whence now, I ask, came the conception of this character? It surely came from God, because he says, "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased."

We feel that a new being, of a new order of mind, is taking a part in human affairs. There is a native tone of grandeur and authority in his teaching. He speaks as a being related to the whole human race. His mind never shrinks within the ordinary limits of human agency. He speaks, in a natural, spontaneous style, of accomplishing the most arduous and important change in human affairs. Jesus never uses that swelling, pompous, ostentatious language, which almost necessarily springs from an attempt to sustain a character above our powers. Jesus talks of his glories as one to whom they were familiar. He speaks of his intimacy and oneness with God as simply as a child speaks of his intercourse with his parents. He speaks of saving and judging the world, of drawing all men to himself, and of giving everlasting life, as we speak of the ordinary powers which we exert. He makes no set harangues about the grandeur of his office and character. His consciousness of it gives a hue to his whole language, breaks out in indirect, undesigned expressions, showing that it was the deepest and most familiar of his convictions.

This argument is only to be understood by reading the Gospels with a wakeful mind and heart. It does not lie on their surface, and it is stronger for lying beneath it. The majesty of the life of Jesus never falls below his sublime claim.

Let us receive the full import of such passages as the following: "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest," "I am come to seek and to save that which was lost," "He that confesseth me before men, him will I confess before my Father in heaven," "Whosoever shall be ashamed of me before men, of him shall the Son of Man be ashamed when he cometh in the glory of the Father with the holy angels." Such are the sayings of our great and "Holy Redeemer."

Pleasant Mound, Ill.

West Johnstown, Pennsylvania.

BY J. H. CASSADY.

THE first annual session of the Bible, Missionary and Sunday-school Institute of the Western District of Pennsylvania was held in the Roxbury church Dec. 4 to 9. This Institute was planned and authorized at our Ministerial Meeting in August. The following committee was appointed to work out the plans: Bro. J. H. Cassady, chairman; Bro. J. L. Weaver, secretary; Bro. D. K. Walker, treasurer; Brethren H. S. Replogle and George Yoder. Bro. D. W. Kurtz, of Philadelphia, was secured to give nine lectures on the great doctrines of the Bible. These lectures are soon to be in print, and they certainly ought to have a wide sale. Every family in our Brotherhood should secure a copy.

Bro. Wm. Howe gave a course of lectures on the Book of Galatians. They were of the most practical character, and every one who listened to them was certainly impelled with a desire to do better work for the Lord.

Bro. J. M. Blough seemed to be at his best, just on the very eve of his departure for the foreign field. His lectures and appeals were listened to with most intense interest, and we believe the die was cast, for some lives at least, to be given wholly to the Lord.

Bro. R. D. Murphy, our Field Secretary, conducted the Sunday-school round table discussion each evening, from 7 to 8. Bro. Murphy, in his very practical way, brought out a discussion of many vital Sunday-school problems, which will certainly have a splendid effect on the Sunday-school work of our District.

Bro. W. R. Miler, each evening, gave his illustrated lectures on the Orient. The views are the finest that can be produced, and Bro. Miller's vivid description of these places and the many practical lessons he teaches, makes it a course of lectures that ought to be given in every church in the Brotherhood.

Forty-five ministers were in attendance at this Institute. The attendance was most gratifying in every way. Three hundred and three people registered at the day sessions. We had three sessions each day, and eight periods, making a total of thirty-five periods, with an average attendance at the day and evening sessions of 325.

The climax of the meeting seemed to be on Thursday evening,—the time of the departure of our missionaries, Brother and Sister Blough. That evening our large auditorium was packed with about 1,000 people at seven o'clock. A Sunday-school Meeting from 7 to 8 was followed by Bro. Miller's lecture from 8 to 9. The farewell meeting had been arranged for the hour from 9 to 10, and almost the entire assembly, many of whom had already been standing for two hours, remained for the farewell meeting. Eld. J. F. Dietz had charge of the meeting. Short addresses were then made by Brethren Kurtz, Murphy, Miller, Cassady, Howe, J. E. Blough, and Brother and Sister J. M. Blough. This was an evening long to be remembered.

In the audience sat the aged and feeble mother of our dear Bro. Blough, bidding farewell to her son the second and last time, perhaps, but with the joy that banishes all regrets of a separation from a son and daughter who are willing to go.

During the meeting the question was asked: "How many of you fathers and mothers would be glad to give your sons and daughters for the foreign field, if the Lord would call them?" and more than a score responded. Over 150 people went to the depot in three special street cars, to see our missionaries take their departure. As the great train pulled into the depot, the crowd was singing, "God be with you till we meet again." As our departing ones entered the train, the sweet strains of "Blest be the tie that binds our hearts in Christian love" were wafted on the evening breezes as sweet and harmonious as I ever heard. As the great train pulled out of the depot, amidst joy, sorrow and waving of handkerchiefs, the last good-bye was said, and a day never to be forgotten had gone into the great past.

On Sunday night was Bro. Miller's closing lecture, with over 1,000 people packed into the auditorium and 100 turned away. This work has proved to us that the people will be attracted by the Bible when it is presented with power.

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches"

MINERAL CREEK, MISSOURI.

The District Sunday-school Meeting of Middle Missouri was held here Dec. 9 and 10. Bro. L. B. Trout was to have been with us, but on account of sickness was unable to come. In his absence Bro. Aaron Lentz, of Adrian, Mo., presided over the meeting. Quite a few from the neighboring churches were with us. Among them were Eld. Geo. Lentz, of Kansas City, and Eld. Ira Wilmore, of Adrian, Mo. On Saturday Bro. Geo. Lentz preached to a small audience who came through the rain. On Sunday we had an all-day meeting. Many good things were said, and topics of much interest to Sunday-school work were discussed. All seemed to enjoy the meeting and wished for other like meetings soon.

On Thanksgiving Day we met for worship at the church, and a collection of $19.93 was taken in remembrance of the poor. The Juvenile Mission Band of the Sunday-school also contributed the earnings of their ten-cent investments, amounting to $22.07. There were twenty-four active members in the band this year, and four more have joined the band for next year.

Our Sunday-school has been reorganized for next year, with Sister Ida Mohler and Bro. Elmer Arnold as superintendents, and Sister Leola Wenrick as secretary. Bro. James Mohler was chosen as our presiding elder for the coming year. Zilpha Campbell.

CLOVIS, NEW MEXICO.

Our series of meetings, held by our pastor, Eld. C. H. Brown, closed Dec. 10, after continuing three weeks. The attendance was the best we have ever had. The interest was good throughout. Four entered the fold by baptism. Others feel the call and are very near.

Thanksgiving Day will long be remembered. In connection with our services for that day the Sunday-school gave a program. An offering was taken for Home Missions. A free dinner was given at the church, to which parents and friends were invited. Everyone seemed to enjoy the day, and all felt that the bonds of friendship were drawn closer. The crowning event for our little band, that day, was the meeting in the evening around the Lord's table, to engage in the blessed ordinances of the church. Every member (twenty-seven), in reach of the church, was present. No visiting members were present. Bro. Brown officiated.

Our council was held Dec. 7, at 2 P. M. Brethren William Willoughby and Leslie Simpson were elected and duly installed into the deacon's office the following Sunday.

Since the quarantine is lifted in West Clovis, and the children are allowed to come to services again, our Sunday-school has resumed its former life. Our new song book, "Kingdom Songs," seems to have added new life to our singing. Our minds often revert to Bro. Neff and family, who so faithfully planted the little vine at this place. May it produce copiously for the Master!

BEAVER DAM, INDIANA.

After a stay of twenty-two months at this mission we are now returning to our former home in Lower Deer Creek church, near Camden, Ind. We have enjoyed our work, although there were many discouragements and some hindrances. The members here are few, aged and scattered. The people of the community are indifferent to religion, hard to get interested and to attend services regularly. We have maintained a regular Sunday-school and preaching services every Sunday. The series of meetings, last April, by Bro. C. S. Garber, aroused considerable interest and called forth the debate in August. This was well attended, and so far as the people of this vicinity are concerned the question of church doctrine is settled in our favor. But when these special efforts were over, they settled back in their habit of indifference and were irregular in attendance. During our stay here two were baptized, one restored, two received by letter, and six letters were granted, leaving twenty-four members at present. At the council, Dec. 9, it was decided to discontinue the Sunday-school for the next quarter, and the Mission Board will supply the pulpit twice a month. The Mission Board deserves much credit for the effort put forth, and the judicious and economical management of expenses at this place. Our prayer is that the barriers may be removed, and that the seed sown may yet bring forth fruit to God's name, honor and glory. J. G. Stinebaugh.

MEETING AT SMELTER HILL, MO.

I have just returned from the love feast at Joplin. It was a rich feast. There was a shaking of "dry bones" during Bro. Smith's series of meetings at that place. When the breath of the Almighty, from the four winds, blows upon them, there will, no doubt, be a little army of recruits marching onward together to Zion.

The feast was a beautiful one throughout,—calm, spiritual, orderly and inspiring. It was an epoch in the history of Smelter Hill and the band of devoted worshipers located there. Bro. Barnhart officiated. Bro. Teeter, the elder in charge, was also able to be present, although he has only partially recovered from a serious cold. Sister Hoover, assisted by Bro. Burris and others, had charge of the culinary department, which was efficiently attended to. The aged were there; also the young,—notably two grandsons of our aged Bro. Harvey, of Jasper, Mo., and other young soldiers of the cross. God be praised for their vigorous wielding of the Gospel armor, for we feel that "onward will the battle go."

I write thus exultingly, because of the long struggle we had with Satan to get this little plant started in Joplin, right "where Satan's seat is." The battle has raged for six long years. Thank God, we had some undaunted, faithful soldiers who led perseveringly, and brought victory out of times of seeming defeat.

Having been a participant in building the church, can you blame me for feeling grateful for what has been accomplished, and for the splendid meeting enjoyed? Suffice it to say there is now a lamp burning that sheds rays of divine light over the great darkness that hangs like a cloud all over the city. In the western part of the city is a colony of people, mostly the plain, common people, who cherish the truth and, like the common people of old, are willing to follow the Master.

They have Sunday-school at 10 A. M., preaching at 11 A. M., Christian Workers' Meeting at 6 P. M., followed by preaching each Sunday evening, and prayer meeting every Tuesday evening. Thus the altar is aflame, and the holy light continually burning. Bro. Burris is in charge of the church. May God bless them abundantly!

Carterville, Mo., Dec. 11.

It is easy to say, "Let God's grace into your life," but it is not so easy to do. God's grace will not live in the same house with sloth or pride or selfishness or disobedience. If you really want to be a gracious worker, you must yield yourself in glad compliance to what you know to be God's will for you; that is all there is to it, but that is much. And then, how you will sing at your task!

THE ROUND TABLE

A Bit of Reminiscence of the Civil War.

BY EMMA A. M. REPLOGLE.

A few weeks ago, while stopping with some old friends, a member of the family handed me a book to look at, in which he was very much interested. It was a late history of the Twenty-second Pennsylvania Volunteer Cavalry, and he had just gotten it at their reunion at Tyrone, Pa.

I looked through it, more for respect to my friend than that I cared to read it, as I had never had any soldier friends in a cavalry regiment. While leafing through it, I was soon interested in the following:

In September, 1899, Col. Greenfield and Adjutant Isenberg made a trip through the Shenandoah Valley, visiting the scenes and battlefields in which they figured during the Civil War. After this Isenberg, in a letter addressed to his comrade, gave a very interesting account of his trip and the war memories it awakened. . . .

It was in this engagement (Weyers Cave) I was wounded. My comrades carried me into the house of Isaac Long, a Dunkard preacher, where I was kept over night, and in the hands of the enemy. Just one mile north, on the hills, were the campfires of my comrades brightly burning. Ah me! How I longed to be there! It seemed the longest night I ever lived. I thought the morning would never come, but it did come and it brought relief, for with it came Custer with his Brigade, and our Brigade. The enemy retreated and I awoke surrounded by men I loved, as I have never loved men since. Col. Greenfield and I visited the old stone house wherein I lay that dreadful night. We inquired for Isaac Long but he had been gathered to his fathers. The son lived there but he was not at home. A winsome young lady entertained us. I told her of my night in the house, and expressed a desire to see the room in which I lay. She said, "Yes, I have heard my grandfather speak of it, but they all thought you were dead."

She showed me into the room, and spread out an old-fashioned folding lounge on which she said I lay, and which is marked with blood stains yet. Just here I want to confess that I felt a kind of choking sensation in my throat. I walked out on the porch and found Col. Greenfield (whose cheeks never blanched in battle) weeping. Just then I swallowed the lump in my throat and said, "Colonel, why do you cry?" He said, "I don't know, but why do you cry?" I answered, "I suppose because you do." I turned to the young lady and said, "Young lady, why do you weep?" She said, "Because you gentlemen weep." Do you say our conduct there was effeminate? Well, perhaps it was, but somehow I felt better after it was over, and I guess I will not apologize for it.

Our Ministerial and Missionary Meeting.

BY W. R. HORNBAKER.

The Western Colorado and Utah State District assembled at the Mt. Garfield church, near Palisade, Colo., Nov 30, the day previous to our District Conference, to discuss questions relating to the ministerial and missionary interests of our District.

After devotional exercises several topics were ably discussed. We give a few of them, followed by such remarks as are of special interest:

1. "Is It in Harmony with the Spirit of the Gospel for More than One Minister to Live and Labor in the Same Congregation?" The position was taken by some that the Spirit of the Gospel would limit the number to two, and several examples were cited. This position was strengthened by such quotations as, "Ordain elders in every city," "And when they had ordained elders in every church," etc. These quotations, however, do not limit the number. Others showed that the number should not be limited by figures but by opportunity to work. No drones should be allowed.

2. "How Can Ministerial Distribution Be Effected?" The following plan was suggested and met with general approval, although some defects were pointed out: A central bureau, located in the offices of the General Mission Board, to which all ministers, desiring to change locations, may send their names and addresses with any other information that would be helpful, and to which all churches in need of ministerial aid may send their application, together with any conditions of helpfulness they would be able to render to such minister. Thus there might be established a ministerial agency much like the teachers' agencies now in operation in our country.

Seven other topics were considered and some splendid points were presented. The last topic was as follows: "Which Field Should Engage Our Strongest Efforts—Home or Foreign?" Some able arguments were advanced, favoring each, but no definite answer was given. Wherever God calls there should we direct our strongest effort.

The Dying Year.

BY EDGAR M. HOFFER.

It seems to us but a short time since the last new year was ushered in, but it is true, nevertheless, that the old year is dying. The year 1910 has been placed on record, with all its joy, all its adversity. Let every reader stop to reflect on the rapid flight of time. It may have been a very busy year, a very prosperous year, a very happy year, for many of us, but how short it seemed to be! Many had to spend the year on a bed of affliction, and in distress.

As we take a view of the year that is now drawing to a close, we must admit, with grateful hearts, that our Heavenly Father has showered upon us countless blessings. Do we thank him enough for his love? We have enjoyed many blessings during the year, such as living in a land of plenty, in a land of Bibles, in a land of peace, in a land of prosperity. It was not always thus. Our forefathers endured many hardships before our dear native land was free. Now we enjoy the blessing of serving our God in a church where all his commandments are observed. Let us remember in all our service, that the Blessed Christ endured much for us, long, long ago!

Yes, the year is dying! All we said is on record for eternity. Every kind deed has been placed to our credit. Every unkind word and action stands against us. Lost opportunities will never return. As we look back we see our frailty, but let us do better, by God's help in the future.

During the year many glorious series of meetings were held, and many came to Christ. Our Publishing House has also done a good work for the church, and we hope that every member has done his part.

During the year the angel of death entered many homes, and many dear ones have fallen asleep. As the sun sets beyond the western hills, on the last evening of this year, let us meditate and pray, for soon our sun, too, will set beyond the hills of time. Let us improve the golden opportunities, for we shall not pass this way again. Remember that only the faithful ones receive the crown.

On the Pacific Slope.

BY A. HUTCHISON.

It has been the privilege of the writer to spend the time since the Conference at St. Joseph, Mo., in Minnesota, North Dakota, Washington, Oregon, and California. At this time my place of work is in this city (Chico, Cal.), and while I have met earnest workers at every place along the line, none have outstripped the few members in Chico. They have built themselves a churchhouse that might well be considered a credit to any plain Bible-obeying people. Bro. Hiram Forney and the little body of members, working with him, have made a fine beginning.

Chico is a city of something over 13,000 people. Some five years ago a mission was opened here under very unfavorable conditions. They had no house they could call their own. But now they have a splendid house which they call the "Lord's House." Up to this time twenty-one have been baptized in this mission. When you are passing through here on the Southern Pacific Railway, stop and see. You might decide that the place is good enough to make to make a home here. Why not?

One of the most impressive scenes of this trip, was the sailing of our missionaries for China. As we thought of them, and why they were aboard of the great Minnesota, an earnest "God bless them" was said.

We expect to close our meetings in this city with a love feast Dec. 17. Then I move on south, making a short stop with the Father's children at Empire and Laton, Cal. I hope to arrive in Los Angeles Dec. 30. About April 1 I think of moving east, hoping to be in York, Pa., in time for Conference.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS' TOPIC

The Priceless Treasure.

Psa. 119: 105-112; Rom. 15: 4.

For Sunday, Jan. 7, 1912.

The Bible is a precious treasure.

I. Because it is: (a) "The book of the Lord" (Isa. 34: 16); (b) "A book of remembrance" (Mal. 3: 16). ¶

II. Old Testament saints esteemed it precious: (1) "More than my necessary food" (Job 23: 12). (2) "The joy of mine heart" (Jer. 15: 16). (3) "His delight" (Psa. 1: 2).

III. Because of its cost: (1) The New Testament alone cost the Father "His only begotten Son" (John 3: 16). (2) It cost the Son "his life" (Mark 10: 45; 1 Tim. 2: 5, 6). (3) And the life of those who wrote it.

IV. It should be precious to us: (1) It is an unerring guide (Prov. 6: 23; 2 Peter 1: 19). (2) It cleanses (John 15: 3; Psa. 119: 9). (3) It has power to save (Rom. 1: 16; Jas. 1: 21).

Let there be earnest prayers offered at this, the first meeting of the new year, that "The word of the Lord may run and be glorified" (2 Thess. 3: 1).

Helps.—Tell (a) how we came to get the English Bible; (b) how we may know that it is precious to us; (c) why it is not equally precious to all; (d) why it is not precious to bad people; (e) name your favorite chapter in the Old Testament; (f) in the New Testament.

Song.—"Cling to the Bible, tho' all else be taken."

PRAYER MEETING

Prayer, the Source of True Prosperity.

Psa. 122: 6; James 1: 5-7.

For Week Beginning January 7, 1912.

1. The Mighty Power of Prayer.—Prosperity without prayer is like an express train without an engine, a steamship in the rapids without a pilot. The regulating force in any undertaking can not be withheld without serious consequences. National prosperity without a band of righteousness is a helm will end in ruin. Prayer and prosperity can not be divorced. There is a "success" that is rank failure. There is a "prosperity" which is founded on unrighteousness, but the end thereof is humiliation. Success without the guiding spirit of prayer is in danger of going on the rocks. Ask, and you will receive (Matt. 7: 11; John 14: 13, 14).

2. Prayer the Great Regulator.—There are perplexities in public as well as private life that can be adjusted only by prayer. If men would more frequently go to God with all their troubles and difficulties, these might all be readily adjusted, and prosperity might smile upon their undertakings. We fail because we leave God out of the question (Heb. 13: 5, 6).

3. Prayer Is the Key to Unlimited Possibilities.—As the mighty vessel on the ocean depends for safety and progress on its efficient equipment, so the child of God depends on the power of prayer as a means of reaching the highest realms of usefulness. The prayer-directed soul basks in the everlasting sunshine of God's grace. It moves onward from victory to victory, and success, in the highest sense of the term, is sure to be reached. Through God's loving-kindness we are heirs of his unsearchable riches, and joint-heirs with his Son. Led by the Spirit of God, as we commune with him in prayer, we are truly sons of God,—children of the Great King,—knowing "that all things work together for good to them that love God" (Rom. 8: 26-28).

HOME AND FAMILY

A Review of the Year.

Dear Lord, on this, thy day of days
Forgive me, if to thee,
In place of songs replete with praise,
This prayer alone my heart essays,
"Work thou thy will in me."

I can not thank thee for the pain
With which I wait to hear
Familiar footsteps, or again
Listen for songs whose blithe refrain
Made glad our hearts last year.

I can not praise. Beneath thy cross
I bow, and silently,
With eyes washed clear of much of dross,
I strive to see, above my loss,
The joy of those with thee.

The Clock Strikes One.

BY ELIZABETH D. ROSENBERGER.

GRANDFATHER'S clock held the place of honor among our furniture. Our chairs and tables never attracted any notice, but three out of four of our visitors would say something about the beautiful old clock. Truth compels me to say that its mahogany case, quaintly carved, and its open, honest face distinguished it from many other grandfather clocks which I have seen. It kept good time, usually. When Grandfather lived, he used to wind it so regularly that it never lost or gained a minute, but since other hands have been winding it, we find that it is not quite so reliable. On the night when the old year is dying, we all look at the old clock, and watch the old year slowly passing on by the tick-tock of the long pendulum. It would not seem right to consult another clock about this, for over seventy years this clock has ticked away the dying hours for some of our family, and we turn to it with assurance, ready to welcome the New Year at its summons.

And as the family wait for the hours to pass, we think of the experiences of the past year and we know all that goodness and mercy have followed us all the days of the year, but tonight we regret many things, oh, so much that should have been different. Now our opportunities have gone by, and we cannot look for them in the coming days. We are haunted by a sense of the neglected "might-have-been." We think of how soon we shall be watching the moments slip slowly by for our last watching of the old year's dying hours. Ah, so soon it will be the last hour for so many pleasant things. Tonight we are glad to think that we are here, to enjoy a little while longer the beauty and happiness of living. Time is speeding us on towards eternity. The world, with a tragic velocity, is going away from us each moment, like the waters of a cataract into the chasm below. The grass is already withering, the flower fading, with the dying year.

In youth we are prodigal of the hours. There are so many years before we come to the fourscore which marks old age. If one enchanted hour comes to an end, we are hopeful of many more to come. Others may lament about lost time and lost chances, we shall not. We shall be wiser. Alas for us, when it is borne upon us in tragic suddenness, like a miser who has been robbed of his gold for which he bartered all, —that, unaccountably, the best part of life is gone and we are not saved. Bleak and cold are the hours as we listen to the plaintive tones of remorse, ever reminding us of the things we have failed to do that we should have done. Our effort may not be blemished by anything visible, but we know only too well that we are capable of better work, and we have fallen far below our ideals.

He who liveth his life shall live it! It is a grave error to give ourselves grudgingly to our experiences. The Savior tells us of those who shall have life more abundantly, but we must turn away from self first. "A penitent, sweeping and eternal surrender of self to the mastery and purposes of Christ, will make our path much smoother in the coming year. We have wanted some other things more than Jesus. We have wanted our own way, we have wanted some one thing so badly that we paid too much to get it, and the thing has proved a curse to us. Now let us do differently. What if our great desire for some one thing is eating our heart out, and shutting Christ out? With God's help we can submit and take the gift he gives instead of what we wanted.

At this hour, when the sounds of the busy world are hushed, the pendulum is counting out the slow minutes. It counts them out grudgingly as if unwilling to let go of the old year. And we find ourselves shrinking from the future. It is always the unknown that terrifies us. The clock ticks regularly and we think of the time when we stopped the pendulum in its regular beat,—stopped it at the moment when one dear to us was taken to eternity's shore. From the depths of our own bereavement we feel, lest in coming golden days, the tick of the clock may sound loud and sad in a room made empty because the death angel was here.

Let us find more joy in life in this coming year. We complained too much in the past. It seems a pity that we can not be cheerful in spite of hard work and discouragement. The sunshine of God's love floods this world. There is no heart too small to feel its comforting rays, no life too poor to flourish in its radiant warmth. But we, ourselves, must choose to live in God's sunlight instead of creeping into some dark, damp place to live and grumble at our lot.

"Then we dare not charge the power of God
With planning for us our sorrows;
On the hurrying looms of our own todays
We are weaving our own tomorrows."

Covington, Ohio.

What Have We Done This Year?

BY WEALTHY A. BURKHOLDER.

"Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave whither thou goest" (Eccl. 9: 10).

"What hast thou done to show thy love
To him who left his throne above;
His glorious throne in yonder sky,
And came to earth, for thee to die?
Tell me, my soul.

"Hast thou the world renounced entire,
And for its pleasure felt no desire?
From ev'ry folly turned away,
To seek for joys that last always?
Tell me, my soul."

"Hast thou e'er dried the mourner's tear,
Or sought the orphan's path to cheer?
Hast thou e'er raised the fallen up,
And bidden him once more to hope?
Tell me, my soul.

"Or hast thou lived in selfish ease,
Seeking alone thyself to please,
Forgetful that thy God would claim
Thy service, if thou bear his name?
Tell me, my soul."

It is well that time still is ours to make amends for the past. While a retrospection shows our many weak points during the year about to close, we still have time to improve the past and to be more careful in the future. Truly, we need to do and to be better, and this should be our most earnest desire and prayer.

"Forget not, soul, that by and by
A reckoning comes in yonder sky,
When Christ, as Judge, will ask of thee,
'O soul, what hast thou done for me?
Remember, soul.'"

A SURPRISE

Awaits the Local Temperance Committees of the Brotherhood. The General Temperance Committee has issued a "revised letter," addressed to the District and Local Committees. It contains "Our New Financial Plan," which will doubtless both interest and please all parties concerned. Moreover we have also compiled a number of temperance helps in the form of a leaflet. A package of each goes before Christmas to the Secretary of each District Committee. The District Committees are urged to get these into the hands of the Local Committees as soon as possible. There will be one of each for each Local Committeeman. We believe they will prove real helps to Committees. Look for them and use them well when they come.

SISTERS' AID SOCIETIES

PORTLAND, IND.—Our Sisters' Aid Society met once each week for six months. The average attendance was six. We quilted six quilts and knotted three comforts. We spent $4 for shoes for the poor, and placed into the treasury seventy-five cents.—Ella Grafmiller, Portland, Ind., Dec. 12.

LOGAN, OHIO.—Our Aid Sisters' Aid Society met on the regular meeting at the home of Sister Mary Starr. The following officers were elected for six months: Sister Ella Kaylor, superintendent; Sister Glenn Yoder, president; the writer, secretary-treasurer. During the year we held seven all-day meetings, and seven meetings in the afternoon, with an average attendance of seven. We made thirty aprons, five bonnets, one comfort and some children's clothes. We sent a box of clothing to the Sunday-school Extension in Chicago, Ill., and soon expect to send a box to the mission at Grand Rapids, Mich. We sent $2 to the Manchester College, with which to purchase a tablecloth for the dining hall. The amount received during the year was $25.84; amount brought forward from last year, $8.49; expenses, $11.09; amount in the treasury at present, $23.24. The society has lost a noble worker in the death of Sister Belle Yoder, who was one of our most active workers. We feel that her influence is still going on for good, and is an incentive to the workers to go on and do better work for the Master. She requested her dear companion to remember the Aid Society, which he has already done in different ways.—Bertha L. Yoder, R. D. 5, Box 16, Bellefontaine, Ohio, Dec. 8.

MANCHESTER, IND.—We give a report of the Sisters' Aid Society from Jan. 1, 1911, to Dec. 1, 1911. The society met every three times with an average attendance of thirteen. The industrial work consisted of quilting, knotting of comforts and general mending of wearing apparel. We received donations, clothing, 138 articles; solicitors received cash, $8.45; general collections, $15.50; received for articles sold, $8.96; result from the sales of lunch at public sales in the county, $25.10; a collection for custom work, $7.75; also cash received not reported at the time; total amount of cash received, entered from the treasurer's book during the year, $76.18. Relief work: For the support of India orphans, $22; contributed for the house of worship at Lawrence, Kans., $5; gave out 132 articles of clothing to the Orphans' Home at Mexico, Ind.; to the Brethren Mission, at Logansport, Ind., 17 articles; for the number of articles given out, 269. Each year did some home work. We donated the work of two general sewings and meetings to worthy friends. We paid quarterage to the amount of $46.68; balance on hand in the treasury at present writing, $13.43. Sister Emma Bowman is our president; the writer, secretary; Sister Sophia Lehmer, treasurer.—Lavina Brower, Secretary, 401 Corner Sixth and Wayne Streets, North Manchester, Ind., Dec. 12.

CHICO, CAL.—Our Aid Society is still at work, though no report of it has been given. We have been busy sewing. We have been meeting each Thursday, but of late we meet two or three days in a week. We are making comforters and paper coverings. We have been trying to raise funds to purchase our dishes and other things needed for our communion, which we hope to get at the close of our protracted meeting, beginning on Thanksgiving Day. Bro. Andrew Hutchison is to be with us to hold our meetings. It will be the first love feast held in the Chico church. We are anxiously looking forward to the feast, as a number of our young converts have never seen or enjoyed a communion service. An aged brother and sister, also, have never enjoyed these services before. We desire the prayers of all the faithful in behalf of the work here in California. When we look around us, we see that many are going on in sin and wickedness. Many children are not in Sunday-school, because their parents are not interested in Christianity, but are seeking the pleasures of the world and drag their children down the broad road to ruin, and cast aside the words of Christ unto them. We would be glad for some faithful brethren and sisters to come and help gather the tidal waves for Christ. There is plenty of mission work to do here in Chico.—Mrs Hiram Forney, Chico, Nov. 21.

THE new churchhouse at Akron, Ohio, is to be dedicated Jan. 21.

NINE, by confession and baptism, were recently added to the church in Covington, Ohio.

THE Beech Grove, Ind., revival, conducted by Bro. H. L. Fadely, closed with five conversions.

AFTER an absence of four weeks in Kansas, Bro. J. H. B. Williams and family have returned to Elgin.

BRO. J. G. STINEBAUGH, of Indiana, is returning to his former home at Camden, and not Akron, as stated last week.

As fruits of the evangelistic efforts of Bro. D. L. Miller, at Empire, Cal., twenty-three were added to the church.

FIVE came out on the Lord's side during the series of meetings held by Bro. David Metzler in the Walnut church, Ind.

WRITING from Vyara, India, under date of Dec. 1, Bro. A. W. Ross reports that seventeen natives were baptized recently.

ALL told, there were seventeen accessions during the two weeks' meetings at Flora, Ind., conducted by Bro. D. M. Adams.

FIVE accessions were reported as the fruits of some revival services held at Dry Valley, Pa., conducted by Bro. Frank Lightner.

AT New Enterprise, Pa., Bro. Mahlon Brougher delivered twenty-four gospel discourses and five persons were added to the church.

FEB. 11 Bro. G. W. Miller, of La Place, Ill., is to begin a series of meetings at the town house, Mulberry Grove congregation.

BRO. J. W. KILLIAN is expected to assist in a series of meetings in the Thornapple congregation, Mich., East house, beginning Jan. 13.

SIX came out on the Lord's side and received baptism during the revival services at Eel River, Ind., conducted by Bro. G. A. Snider.

BRO. S. G. LEHMER did some effective evangelistic work in the Sacramento Valley congregation, Cal. Nine were baptized and three others await the rite.

THE members at Grundy Center, Iowa, are planning to build a new churchhouse, and will then endeavor to procure more help in the ministry.

BRO. D. L. MILLER, who is now at Raisin, Cal., goes from there to Fresno, and then to Pasadena, where he may, for the present, be addressed at 752 Herkimer Street.

A CHURCH will probably be organized at Herndon, Fla., in January. There are now several groups of members in the State, and a few of them may be organized before the winter passes. It looks as though our people are to get another good foothold in the Land of Florida.

THE revival meeting at Ridgely, Md., conducted by Bro. Rufus Bucher, closed with fourteen added to the fold by confession and baptism, and one restored to fellowship.

A NEW churchhouse at North Bend, Ind., within the bounds of the Danville congregation, was dedicated the first Sunday in December, Bro. H. C. Early delivering the address.

BRO. T. A. PRATHER, of Fayetteville, W. Va., says that he had the MESSENGER, for the year, sent to several persons, and as a present result one whole family has united with the church.

BRO. D. W. WEAVER dealt out the Word of truth in a series of meetings in the Chiques congregation, Eastern Pennsylvania, and five volunteers entered the fold through the act of obedience.

A CHURCH has been organized at the South Side Mission, Kansas City, Kans., with Bro. I. H. Crist in charge. He is to locate in that part of the city, and give the work his special attention.

SEVENTEEN were born into the kingdom during a series of meetings in the Botetourt congregation, Va., conducted by Bro. Isaac Frantz. One awaits baptism and two were restored to fellowship.

THE series of meetings conducted by Bro. Chas. D. Bonsack at Elizabethtown, Pa., closed with five accessions. Bro. Bonsack and wife spent last Lord's Day and Christmas with the members at Washington City.

A SERIES of meetings, which seems not to have been reported, was held by Bro. J. H. Garst sometime ago at a schoolhouse within the bounds of the Peter's Creek congregation, Va., and ten precious souls were born into the kingdom.

BRO. JOHN E. METZGER, our field agent, writes us that he is spending the Holidays with his family at Rossville, Ind. He further adds, that his recent trip among the churches was the most pleasant he ever made in the interest of the House.

BRO. WM. JOHNSON, of Wichita, Kans., visited in Elgin last week, and called at the MESSENGER sanctum. He is one of the pioneer preachers of the West, and though seventy-six years old, is still fairly active, and deeply interested in the work of the church.

CHRISTMAS passed off pleasantly at Elgin. The Sunday-school program was rendered on Friday evening in advance, and a Christmas address was given on Sunday morning. The evening was taken up by a special Christmas program, arranged by the Christian Workers.

WORK on the new churchhouse in Greensburg, Pa., is progressing nicely, and the dedication has been announced for Feb. 11. Bro. C. C. Ellis, of Huntingdon, will conduct the dedication services and Bro. J. H. Cassady, of Johnstown, is to follow with a series of meetings.

THE late District Meeting of Northern California decided that the elder, representing the District on the Standing Committee, should receive $2.50 a day for the time spent going to, returning and attending the Annual Meeting, in addition to having his railroad fare, boarding and lodging paid.

BRO. MOSES DEARDORFF writes us from Larned, Kans., where he is to remain a few weeks, and then to go to Roanoke, La., for the winter, expecting to return in May, by the way of Chicago. He is accompanied by his wife, and goes south to escape the cold winter months, and to preach the Gospel wherever he finds an open door.

BRO. G. A. PHILLIPS, of Waynesboro, Va., who spent several months at mission work among the common people of the mountain sections of his State, writes us that, as a token of love and appreciation upon the part of many people visited on that trip, he recently received ninety birthday cards, reminding him of the fact that he had, Dec. 14, reached the sixtieth milestone of his earthly pilgrimage. He can not, by letter, at this time reply to all these tokens of respect, but may respond later.

A NUMBER of our readers will be glad for Bro. J. W. Lear's article on "The Annual Visit," which appears in this issue. The visit, if rightly managed, may be made exceedingly helpful in developing the spiritual side of a congregation, and is a subject that might be discussed to advantage in a number of the churches.

WE can not hold these pages open long enough to make note of all the interesting news reaching the House on Tuesday morning. At the time we close, and arrange for going to press, hundreds of letters are yet to be opened, mostly business letters, of course, but in them will be found much news for our columns. These are busy days for every department of the mission work.

THE December number of the Advocate of Peace, published at Washington, D. C., contains more valuable information regarding the pending Arbitration Treaties than we have before seen in convenient form. These treaties, in their various bearings, are ably discussed by writers selected on account of their special ability, and thoroughly acquainted with the subjects assigned them. Those of our readers who wish to keep fully informed on the peace movement may do well to send ten cents to the American Peace Society, Washington, for this special issue of the Advocate.

BRO. J. S. RODEFFER, of Mount Morris, Ill., has taken upon himself the blessed privilege of donating forty copies of the MESSENGER each year to as many families where there happen to be no members. He sends $20 and directs that twenty copies be sent to St. Joseph, Mo., and twenty copies to Brooklyn, N. Y. This is Bro. Rodeffer's way of doing mission work, and he probably reaches as many people, with his messages, as does the average preacher of the Brethren church. Why could not scores of others follow his example, by investing $20 a year, or even half that amount? The papers thus ordered may be sent to different addresses, it being provided, however, that they go into families where there are no members. Some who arrange for papers on these terms, have them sent to their neighbors. Even congregations have found that it pays to invest money in this kind of House.

IN this issue the District Mission Board of Southern Kansas is calling for the names of all isolated members in the District desiring services. This is a wise thing to do. It is leaving the ninety and nine safe in the fold and going in search of the one. Something of this sort ought to be done in every State in the Union. We must find the isolated and break to them the Bread of Life. Then search should be made for the unconverted children of members. Hundreds of them are out in the cold world, but most of them can be won for the Lord if we go at it rightly. Talk about mission work! There is plenty of it to do right at our own doors. We should not only find these lost and isolated people, but we should see that the MESSENGER goes to their address. If they do not feel disposed to subscribe, the paper should be donated to them. It will, for the whole year through, be food to their souls, and may be the means of winning many for the Master.

WE are not in the habit of saying anything about editorials appearing in the MESSENGER, but we think it no more than proper that we should call special attention to what Bro. H. B. Brumbaugh has to say on the next page, under the heading, "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow." Some of us have lived long enough to know what is said about the mission spirit and labors of our ministers, fifty years ago, to be true in every particular. Some of them, at their own expense, did fully as much in the way of preaching the Gospel at isolated points and building up churches, as is now done by some who are amply supported. Generally speaking, we believe that they manifested more real working zeal than is common today in the most aggressive sections of the Brotherhood. All of this is said, not to underrate the value of what we are doing, in this day and generation, but to show that there are no grounds whatever for censuring our older preachers on account of their lack of missionary interest. Relatively speaking, they did just as much as the most aggressive members of this generation, and had a great deal less to say about it.

THE mail order department of the House is becoming a busy place. It requires twenty clerks to open the letters, enter the accounts, fill the orders and to mail our various publications. Our head mailing clerk says that when he first entered the office he could do nearly the whole thing himself. By this it will be seen that our business is growing.

True Love.

THE man who insists on preaching all love, and disregards what the New Testament says about obedience, has yet to learn what real love is. He is not only deceiving himself, but he is misleading others. We are told, "For this is the love of God that ye keep his commandments." That which fails to include obedience is not true love, for, be it understood that love and obedience are always found in the same heart. Obedience can never be separated from love. True love prompts obedience, and the absence of obedience indicates the absence of love. Jesus says: "If a man love me, he will keep my words." Nothing can be truer than this.

The real test of love is obedience. This will be found true in every department of life. The child who loves its mother will obey her. But hear the Master once more: "He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me." We may ask, Who loves Jesus? The answer is, "He that hath my commandments and keepeth them." Every man who has the New Testament in his home has the commandments of Jesus, but if he does not obey these commandments from the heart, it can not be truthfully said that he loves his Lord.

In the light of what we have said, it must be evident that love is greatly misunderstood. Men and women, so far as sentiment is concerned, may seem to give every indication of love. They may say they love the Lord, may speak most reverently about him, may pray to him regularly, and may make many sacrifices for his cause, and yet pay no attention whatever to some of his commandments. The Word of God demands that they do this, that and the other thing, and still no heed whatever is given to what is required. Do such people love the Lord? If they do, how do we harmonize their conduct with the plain declaration of the Master: "If a man love me, he will keep my commandments"? This is a serious matter, and should be considered candidly. If the New Testament statements cited be true,—and they surely are,—there is no way of escaping the conclusion that a host of sincere people are most woefully deceived. They think they love the Lord, and yet the Scriptures plainly declare that they do not.

Close of Volume Sixty.

RECKONING from the beginning of the Gospel Visitor in 1851, the present is Vol. 60 of the church paper. In a previous issue we traced the development of our publishing interest, showing how it grew from the little plant in the loft of a spring-house until the splendidly-equipped establishment,—the Brethren Publishing House,—was made possible. During all these years the church paper, under different names, has also grown, and as the result of the efforts put forth, from year to year, we have the GOSPEL MESSENGER.

With this issue another volume is completed, and in a measure its work has been finished. And yet it is not completed, after all, for some of the seed sown in the hearts of its readers is yet to be heard from. At the very least calculation the paper has been read by not less than 75,000 people, young and old. We try always to keep in view the kind of seed sown, knowing that only the seed which is good can produce the desired results. If we can succeed in depositing the good seed in the hearts of earnest people, as the years go by, we can not help feeling that some good will certainly follow.

In a sense the MESSENGER may be called a sower, sent forth to sow good seed. Some of this seed may have fallen by the wayside, some on stony ground, some among thorns, but we know that much of it has fallen into good ground and will grow. Our hope for an abundant harvest of souls is in the seed that has found its way into good and honest hearts. Our first aim is to sow good seed by bringing out a good paper, that clearly and forcibly represents the teachings of the New Testament, it being our purpose thus to reach as many honest hearts as possible. By this method we pave the way for some most encouraging results.

Then we have steadily kept in view the unity and integrity of the Brotherhood. Jesus prayed for a union of all his people, and it has been our purpose, so far as the Church of the Brethren is concerned, to help answer this prayer. To accomplish this, the spirit as well as the subject matter have been carefully guarded. Everything calculated to harmonize the different elements in the church, and firmly unite the Brotherhood on the New Testament principles, has been encouraged and welcomed, but that which had for its aim discord and disunion was avoided as much as possible. As the result of this carefully-planned policy we are glad to report that all parts of the Brotherhood appear to be most thoroughly united. We have few discordant notes. True, we differ on many points, but we are learning to work together in spite of our differences.

The principles for which the Brotherhood stands have also been kept constantly in view. It occurs to us that a paper, owned and controlled by the church, should fully represent the teachings and practices of the church, and at no time has the MESSENGER deviated from this policy. Our people have well-defined principles, and to keep these steadily before the reading public has been our constant aim. More than likely this phase of our policy has not impressed our readers as forcibly as they might have been impressed.

The Brotherhood is growing. Our church activities are increasing, and our field of usefulness is widening. We have labored to keep fully abreast of this growth and development, believing that a church organ should be in the very front ranks of every movement intended to advance the interest of the Fraternity. In some lines we may not have led out as fast as some would have preferred, but we always so regulated our movements as to keep the rank and file of the membership with us. The real working body of our own people have kept step with the MESSENGER, and we have endeavored to keep step with them.

In every part of our labors we have studiously avoided that which is sensational and spasmodic, maintaining that it is the steady and healthy growth and development that count in the long run. Our religion is of the substantial type, and we are noted for our simple and sensible way of looking at things. We may move slowly, but when we do move we all go together, and that makes of us a body whose principles, when properly carried out, are almost irresistible. It is for this steady movement, this unity of action, and this fidelity of purpose that we have been constantly laboring.

And while doing all this, each interest of the Brotherhood has been kept in mind and every possible effort has been made to encourage and promote each one. We have our educational interest, the Sunday-school work, the aberrance movement, missionary interests, at home and abroad, the Christian Workers' department and other activities, and, so far as we know, not one of them has been overlooked in the MESSENGER.

It has doubtless been observed that the MESSENGER never antagonizes the church. The fixed purpose of the Brotherhood has been the fixed purpose of the paper. Efforts have been made to induce our people to move up and live on a higher plane, and to adopt, so far as possible, improved methods of doing some things, but the suggestions made from week to week have invariably been in keeping with the principles of the church. Our idea has been to have the whole body move together in every good work undertaken, believing that the tendency of such a policy is to make of us a strong, aggressive, loyal force. And what has been our policy in the past, in this particular, is to be the policy of the paper in the future.

Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow.

IT is not our purpose, in this paper, to discuss whether the world, religiously, is growing better or worse, as we find that there is not a very general agreement in what we have already written on this subject. It was not our expectation that there would be, but it is a good thing to stir up some of these questions, occasionally, so that we do more careful thinking in reference to them. We find that our decisions are shaded somewhat by the conditions by which we are surrounded, religiously and otherwise. And while there is but one standard, we are measured by it somewhat after our knowledge or interpretation of it.

Our subject for this paper includes all the time we have had, have now, and all that we can expect,—the past, the present and the future, so it is broad enough to contain anything that we may have to say. Our leading thought is: Should we be better,—religiously better,—as individuals and churches, today, than were our Brethren as individuals and churches, say forty or fifty years ago? We name this period of time because there are, perhaps, more of us who can, intelligently, make a satisfactory comparison. In making our decisions there are a great many things that must be taken into account.

Fifty years ago we had many well-organized churches, earnest and faithful, with a ministry comparatively as good as we now have. By this we mean that they stood, relatively to the membership and to the people generally, intellectually, theologically, and in the manner of presentation and teaching, as we do today. Of course, since then there have been wonderful advances made along many of these lines; not all of them, but it has been in a relative sense. What we mean is,—the laymen have done much in all of these things, perhaps quite as much as the ministry.

If we are right on this point there is no room for boasting either way. Fifty years ago there were, comparatively, only a few churchhouses. Many of the places of worship could properly be called "churches in the homes." We were born and raised in a church of this kind, though the "meeting" came around only every sixteen weeks. But every one of them was an important social and religious epoch in our expanding life. These were no ordinary occasions, whether they happened in our own home or in the homes of other members, at other points of the church district. It was a time of religious service from Saturday afternoon to Monday morning, so it was a fruitful time for religious teaching in example and precept, from beginning to end. As a result, very few of the members' children forsook the religion of their fathers. These social home meetings had, as a rule, a very salutary influence over the minds and hearts of the community in which they were held.

The churchhouses that were built in those days were very simple in plan and manner of construction. But, compared with the homes then built, they were quite up to the standard in convenience and comfort. Some of the quite old ones were built of hewn logs, the roof of clapboards, split out in the rough, the cracks on the sides were filled with clay. There was a puncheon floor, slab-hewn seats, and greased-paper windows. And yet the people resorted to these places of worship, on horseback, in ox-teams, and on foot for miles and miles, with their hearts filled with great expectation and joy,—hungering and thirsting for the bread and water of life. They sat on these slab-benches, listening to sermons of several hours' length with very much more grace and less wriggling and show of impatience than many of us do in our modern houses, with their comfortable heating and seating, during the delivery of our more carefully and systematically prepared sermons of thirty to forty minutes.

And yet, when we read these old-time stories as to how our fathers lived and worshiped, "we can't understand." And the question comes to us: How could people be good under such conditions? You can not understand, because you were not born fifty years ago in the log cabin, hemmed in for miles around by hills and mountains of forests, or in the sod-house on the seemingly boundless prairie.

But they lived yesterday, when these things were today with them. Our today is the tomorrow that some of them were hoping and looking for. Can we recognize the fact that the things we are enjoying and are so proud of today, were made possible for us by these "yesterday" fathers?

But, for a moment, let us look at some of their disadvantages, as we now see them. They had no Sunday-schools, no prayer and young people's meetings, no ministerial meetings, no high schools and colleges, and no special Bible training of any kind. Neither had they any organized missionary societies or systematized missionary work. Were these things which they did not have disadvantages to them in their religious work and spiritual advancement? Yes, we think they were; but, considering the conditions as they then were, the disadvantages were not so great as they now look to us. There was much of value in their home lives and their church lives in their homes, their closer association of the children with the ministers and their religious work, the home Bible reading and the discussions on doctrinal subjects, the earnestness on the part of the ministers and their zeal in entering every open door in their neighborhoods, to preach the Gospel. Missionary tours were made by the ministers on horseback into distant fields, spending weeks and, at times, even months, at great sacrifice to their business and to their families, thus doing relatively a greater amount of home mission work than is now being done under our much more favorable conditions.

These things, and others we might name, were redeeming features in their work that we should by no means overlook. And while the young people of yesterday, in the distant past, missed many of the advantages that ours now enjoy, they also missed many of the temptations and dangers that crowd into the paths and lives of our young today. The floodgates of sin, it seems to us, are thrown open in a way and to an extent that they never were before, and our young people, and older ones too, are exposed to temptations that were never dreamed of fifty years ago. Inducements of all kinds are, everywhere, placed before our young, in their most beguiling forms and colors, to entice them into the ways of sin.

Only the other day we heard a lecturer of wide experience say that it was not safe for parents to allow their children to go on the street as far as the post-office, in many of our towns, as their young minds and hearts were in danger of being impressed with sin wherever they looked. On sides of shops and fences were posted pictures of vile, cheap shows, moving pictures and Wild West scenes, giving invitations to the boys and girls, and even small children, to go to these dens of vice and have their minds impressed and blackened with things and scenes that are immoral, dangerous and destructive. To the larger ones there are the enticements of the open saloons, and the filthy-mouthed loungers, reeking with profanity. At every corner they are waylaid by the agents of sin in some form or other.

It is true, we boast of our Sunday-schools, our many church privileges and many other agencies for good, and yet, with all these means for good, are not our hearts made to tremble for the safety of our children and young people, when we know and see that the powers of iniquity and of sin beset them at almost every turn?

In conclusion, is it not reasonable to conclude that, what "yesterday" has done for "today," today will, to some extent, do for tomorrow? In order to emphasize the thought which so many of us cherish so dearly, that the world is growing better, we must study, plan, work and crowd into our today so much goodness, love-spirit and holiness that the coming tomorrows will be and must be a continual growth in righteousness, and a gradual enlargement of the church of Jesus Christ in the world. And as we continue to pray, "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven," let us also work with him to this end, and it will come. H. B. B.

An Old Soldier Has Passed Away.

Bro. Abram D. Garber, of the Pleasant Valley congregation, Weyers Cave, Virginia, died Dec. 1. He was born Dec. 19, 1824, and if he had lived eighteen days longer, he would have been eighty-seven years old. His remains were laid peacefully away Dec. 4, in the old Pleasant Valley graveyard, to await the resurrection of the just. The services were attended by a large and sympathizing congregation whom he had served for many, many years. Funeral text, "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone; but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit" (John 12: 24).

Bro. Garber was one of a large family of children. But one of the family remains,—Eld. Levi Garber, for many years the elder of Middle River congregation, now aged and sorely afflicted. Bro. Abram spent all his life near his birthplace. He was married twice. The first marriage was to a Sister Wine. To this marriage nine children were born, all of whom are living. The second marriage was to Sister Sophia Bird. To this marriage a daughter was born, who still lives. Eld. S. W. Garber who has served a number of churches in the Southern District of Illinois, is a son.

Bro. Garber was chosen to the ministry when he was a young man. He served in the ministry for more than fifty years, and was, at the time of his death, the oldest minister in his State District, most probably the oldest in the State. He served long and faithfully. For devotion to the interests of the work, he was equal to the best. His chief pleasure, it always appeared, was in the service of God's house. Like David, he was always glad when the time came to go up to the house of the Lord for worship. And he was always present, day and night, wet or dry. If he was absent, all knew that something was in the way, beyond his control.

During a long period of his ministry he spent much time and labor in neglected territory. Alone, or with his wife, or another brother, he often spent weeks at a time, away from home. In the early part of his ministry buggies were a luxury. In those days horseback riding was the means of travel, even for hundreds of miles. Bro. Garber rode on horseback for many hundred miles in his ministerial work. Just how many, it would be interesting to know. Often his journey was with much discomfort and fatigue, but he never uttered a word of complaint. He found joy in service, furnishing his own horse and time, and paying out of his own pocket his bills of expense. If it were so now, how many would go? The faithfulness of the fathers will never be known until the last day. The good they did and the foundations they laid will all be shown up when the records are opened. God bless their memory!

The crowning beauty of Bro. Garber was his beautiful spirit. His was like the spirit of Jesus, always kind, never returning evil for evil, always seeking the good in the lives of others and laboring to encourage it. I have known him intimately all my life, and never did I see him not sweet in spirit. And he leaves behind him a family of the finest children,—all much of the temperament of their father, and all members of the Church of the Brethren.

Bro. Garber was a particular friend in my father's family. In times of sickness and death he was always called. He ministered more in the family than any one else, having officiated at most of the baptisms, marriages and funerals. It was just thirty-five years, Dec. 12, that he baptized me, on one of the coldest days that ever swept the Valley of the Shenandoah. How much I owe him, I can not tell. As a feeble expression of appreciation I contribute these lines.

To Our Correspondents.

Before closing this volume of the Messenger we desire heartily to thank all of our correspondents for the interest they have taken in supplying us with matter for our columns. We have not known what it is to be short of copy even for one week. In fact, we receive a great deal more manuscript than we can possibly use. Especially is this true as it relates to the essay department. While it has been necessary to decline considerable matter, our disposition of each manuscript has generally been received kindly. As regards church news, we have been able to make room for all that has been received, but there have been times when it became necessary to condense some of it considerably. This was done with a view of giving our patrons more real choice news and making the paper only the more interesting for them. But to each and every one who has helped us to fill the Messenger with reading matter, we desire to express our thanks. You have aided us in this way much more than you realize. We invite one and all to continue their efforts, for without their aid the paper would certainly prove a failure.

Minutes of District Meetings.

So far we have received the Minutes of twenty-five District Meetings held since the St. Joseph Conference. We name the Districts:

Northern California.
Idaho and Western Montana.
Northern Illinois and Wisconsin.
Southern Illinois.
Northern Indiana.
Middle Iowa.
Northern Iowa, Minnesota and South Dakota.
Southern Iowa.
Northeastern Kansas.
Northwestern Kansas and Northeastern Colorado.
Southwestern Kansas and Southern Colorado.
Southeastern Kansas.
Western Maryland.
Michigan.
Middle Missouri.
Southern Missouri and Northwestern Arkansas.
Nebraska.
North Carolina.
Northeastern Ohio.
Oklahoma, Panhandle of Texas, New Mexico, etc.
Tennessee.
Eastern Virginia.
Washington.
First District of West Virginia.
Second District of West Virginia.

The Minutes of the Districts not named in this list should be forwarded to the Messenger Department at once. Our purpose is to publish all the queries intended for the Annual Meeting the first or second week in January, and for that reason we should have the Minutes. But the missing Minutes should be sent us, whether they contain any queries for the Conference or not, as it is important that we have a complete file for each fiscal year.

To Our Patrons.

One year ago we undertook to furnish our subscribers with a well-filled paper for twelve months. This meant that we were to supply fifty-two issues. With this paper the contract has been completed. And, by the way, our patrons are numbered by the thousands. We probably never had a larger paid-up list. But now we close the volume, only to begin another. With this issue thousands of subscriptions expire. Many of our friends have renewed, but a large number are slow about sending in their renewals. And while we take this method of thanking one and all for their patronage and cooperation, we also invite each one to be with us next year. We should regret to part with even one subscriber. We hope not only to hold all of our old subscribers, but we feel confident of having many new ones. We invite those who have not yet renewed their subscriptions to do so without any delay whatever. To remove a name from the list and then replace it a few weeks later makes much extra work. This can be avoided by a prompt renewal.

Ungratefulness.

We have a letter from a brother who has much to say about the fine weather and splendid crops in his part of the State, but he has more to say about the troubles in the congregation of which he is a member. Judging from his letter, it would appear that while everything is going wrong in religious matters, the conditions in nature are simply ideal. Now, all this is strange,—very strange. For a body of members to be at variance with each other while the good Lord, in the way of weather and crops, is supplying them with the best there is, certainly shows a spirit of ungratefulness. It may be the proper time for these people to put on sackcloth and ashes, and do some repenting. Just think of the souls that are lost because of discord among the brethren! The churches that are filled with discord, instead of being filled with the Holy Ghost, need the kind of revival that brings people to their knees and causes them to call mightily unto God for mercy. There are places where judgment should commence at the house of God, and where discord exists among brethren, is one of these places

WHERE ARE THE OTHER HALF?

In July we sent a personal letter to each overseer of the churches of Southern Ohio. At the Ministerial Meeting in August we made a personal appeal. By the first of October we heard from one-half of the elders. WHERE ARE THE OTHER HALF? Please answer the questions sent you at once. How can the committee act without your assistance?

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

Nearly three weeks ago the writer began a tour among the churches of the Second District of West Virginia, giving talks on our India mission field and work.

The reader may take it for granted that in spite of very bad roads and changeable weather, and consequently entire very small crowds, the work has been much enjoyed. One has joy and peace when he knows he is doing his duty, and especially when the performance of that duty means awakening and blessing to others as well as to himself.

The Second District of West Virginia has a good and large field for operation. It has a ministry true to the principles of the church, and many good members. In my rounds I saw on one man's house this sign, "Please don't ask to lodge here." He was not a brother, you may rest assured, and of course was not hospitable, indeed.

But along with reasons for praise and for praising on, I found many adversaries, which, as usual, are not all on the outside the church, where they ought to be.

Where, in the Brotherhood, is not pride a hindrance to the growth of the church? Are there not hosts of men everywhere who might be in the church but for secret orders? While sitting in the Clarksburg railway station, the other day, I overheard a man say, "The Odd Fellows' Lodge is the best church of all. It costs me only $4 a year, but is a source of untold comfort and joy to me." Has the day already dawned when men have to go to the lodge for true brotherhood?

Again; the preaching of a doctrine of Universalism, no hell, etc.,—Millennial Dawnism,—by one of our own onetime brethren has caused the principles of several congregations to be in complete ruin of, so far as our church is concerned. The Lord truthfully said that Anti-Christ is, if possible, deceiving the very elect. Under these conditions one naturally finds some Brethren not very hopeful for the outlook of the church.

In West Virginia the ministry is usually getting old and few; all too few are in training for the future ministry. Some say, "We have no material of which to make ministers." The reasons are clear, however. Young people are usually not put to work in the church and Sunday-school, I feel. And at present I don't know of a young man or woman away at one of our schools, in preparation for life's work. Several, however,—and they are not yet members,—are away in State schools. The elders, also, with an exception or two are rather old for active service.

But, Brethren, there is abundant hope. "The gates of hell shall not prevail." "Greater is he that is in us than he that is in the world." In all love I venture a few suggestions:

The Second District of West Virginia has several real good evangelists who ought to be kept in the field, for I believe there are hosts of people in the vicinity of our churches who would join in with us. We are God's people who obey all his counsel, we need to remember, and the world wants the truth, once they are ready to give their hearts to Jesus. Oh, the need for true evangelism!

I believe only ministers get the "Visitor" in this District, and I saw the "Messenger" in but one home of the laity. Now if three times more Brethren would take the "Visitor" and five times more Brethren would take the "Messenger," as they usually take State papers, God would get glory and every home would get great blessing. Don't you think so?

That we may have good Sunday-school and church workers, I would open my purse in greater measure than in bank stocks. Let us send away to our own church schools some of our young talent. Oh, the need for young ministers and elders,—nay for a host of young people, wideawake in the Sunday-schools! I doubt the wisdom of ever using union Sunday-school literature. Why not use our own exclusively?

Hindus say, "Where there is faith, there is God," and if he is with us, the work of our hands will surely prosper. Yes, the Second District of West Virginia may be a great success yet; if we will it. God will it.

One pleasing incident may not be out of place. One good brother practically agreed to give as much to the cause of missions as he chews up in tobacco. Good for that! But how much better if the weed were put away, and the two parts, instead of one, were given for the salvation of the lost! There is a large room for self-denial in our lives that Jesus may have more wherewith to finish the work he began to do 1900 years ago,—the bringing of the world back to the Father.

IDAHO.

Payette Valley.—Thanksgiving Day was appropriately observed by our church in the Payette Valley. At 11 A. M. Eld. Neher delivered a well-prepared sermon to a large and attentive audience in the Payette church. At noon the ladies and children had prepared a bountiful repast, of which over one hundred persons partook. The afternoon was spent in singing, mostly by the young folks. We also had short talks appropriate to the day. At the close an offering amounting to over $30 was taken for the India Mission. The meeting in Payette will occur once over Sunday yet. Bro. Neher is preaching the Word with power. The attendance was the largest yet. Three were received, two baptized, and two more await the rite. Sister Ella Knuffman, whose home has been remodeled, will be ready some Wednesday evening preparatory to a critical operation.—S. J. Kennpp, Payette, Idaho, Dec. 2.

INDIANA.

Beech Grove.—On Thanksgiving Day a few members and friends met at the church at 10:30 A. M., and listened to an appropriate sermon by Bro. Ulrey. After this we had dinner on a bountiful table for all who were present. At 2 P. M. we met for an independent service. An offering of $14.15 was given for the World-wide Missions.—Linnie H. Landig, Lapel, Ind., Dec. 7.

Bethel.—Our church met in counell Dec. 2, at the Milford house, having been deferred one week. Our elder, Bro. Manly Dowler, presided. All seem to be well. When it became necessary for him to leave, in order to reach North Liberty, Ind., that day, where he had his first appointment, he became ordinally for the cause of Christ. After his departure Eld. W. R. Deeter was chosen to act. Two letters of membership were received and two were granted. One brother was restored to fellowship. The church decided to hold a series of meetings, to be held at Goshen, Ind., expects to conduct a series of meetings in the Chapel house in February, and I. Bro. C. S. Garber, of Missouri, will preside. Bro. Mishler, of Milford, Ind., will be with us.—D. J. Sellrod, Ind., Dec. 7.

Pipe Creek.—Our two weeks' Bible school, conducted by Bro. J. Edson Ulrey, closed on Thanksgiving Day. During evening services we studied the history of the early church in the Book of Acts, in which Bro. Ulrey proved himself a very efficient instructor. During day services we took up "Old Testament History," which proved very interesting and helpful. Both services were held on Thanksgiving Day. We had a sermon by Bro. Ulrey, after which the offering of $14.15 was taken for the benefit of mission work in the Southern District of Indiana. After the sermon we had dinner in the church basement. A query box, most of the questions of which were answered satisfactorily, was an interesting service. We also had a sermon by Bro. Ulrey in the evening. We are thankful to Bro. Ulrey again, to conduct a Bible school during the Holidays.—Ella R. Ulrey, Rt. 1, Box 17, Akron, Ind., Dec. 4.

Solomon Creek.—Our church met in council Dec. 3. Our elder, Bro. James Neff, presided. Two members were received by letter. At the Sunday-morning preaching appointment was changed from Solomon Creek to Bethany. Bro. Bert Neff was elected superintendent of the Sunday-school. Bro. Noble Neff and Sister Ruth Morehouse, secretaries; Bro. Guy Morehouse, treasurer, and Bro. Jerry Barnhart, Attie Berkey, Messenger correspondent. Prior to this meeting we had a very pleasant series of meetings, conducted by Bro. J. D. Mishler, of South Whitley, Ind. The meetings began Oct. 15, and the attendance was large. Fourteen precious souls were received into the church by baptism, and one was received by letter. Another labored earnestly and presented the truth with power. Oct. 28 we held another series of meetings, conducted by the Lord's tables. Our meetings closed Oct. 29, with a full house. We feel much encouraged over the work done. Just after the short stay of Brother and Sister Mishler among us.—Pearl Geyer, Syracuse, Ind., Dec. 11.

South Keokuk church met in council Dec. 9. In the absence of our elder, Bro. A. Senger presided. An efficient corps of Sunday-school workers were elected. Correspondents were appointed for various lines of work. Bro. Geo. W. Burgin was chosen presiding elder for the coming year. Bro. Burgin and the chosen Messenger agent in our congregation. Sister Bertha Shelby having resigned her position as correspondent the writer was chosen to fill the vacancy.—D. F. Shelly, Olile, Iowa, Dec. 11.

KANSAS.

Altamont.—Bro. W. B. Sell, who formerly filled appointments at this place, preached three sermons for us Nov. 24 and 25. Bro. C. Hope Miller, of Parsons, preached for us Nov. 26 on Sunday morning. Bro. Sell returned with him to hold protracted meetings for Bro. J. Brethren. Others, not yet known, has never been taught there.—Cora Morris, R. D. 3, Box 25, Parsons, Kans., Dec. 11.

Hutchinson Mission.—Our church building is almost completed except the inside finishing. It is a frame structure, 24x44 feet in size, with a 12x16 front addition for an organ room, that can be thrown open to the main audience room. It also has a basement, but we can appreciate it as a convenience owing to a lack of necessary funds. This church is a credit to any community. Some of the members have been very liberal self sqlice. The members of the Pleasant View church have especially proved their liberality. Some of the Hutchinson brethren have given liberally. Now we are grateful. Those, however, that have pledged for this cause and not yet paid, would do the building committee a favor to remit at once. The date for the dedication has not been set, as it is uncertain when the furniture will be secured.—Andrew G. Miller, 626 East Sixth Street, Hutchinson, Kans., Dec. 12.

Larned church met in council Dec. 9, Bro. Michael Keller presiding. Three letters of membership were granted. Officers were elected for our Christian Workers' Meeting, with Bro. D. B. Hoover, secretary, and Bro. Titus Forney, treasurer. We held services on Thanksgiving Day. An offering of $23 was sent to the Kansas City Mission. In the evening a excellent program was rendered in the evening, the young people and children doing exceptionally well. Prof. Clemens, of Sharpsburg College, gave us a splendid talk the following Sunday evening on education, after which we were addressed by Bro. Johns, also of Sharpsburg.—Edna Cook, Larned, Kans., Dec. 12.

MICHIGAN.

Long Lake.—Some time ago our Sunday-school decided to use the collection taken on the first Sunday of each month to send to some needy place. This being the first collection taken for this purpose, we decided to send it to Grand Rapids, Mich. All three collections amounted to $14. It makes us glad that we can send this money to bring in the Lord's coming. Nov. 20 we all gathered at the home of Bro. Z. S. Bussero, who lives on what is called the village of Fremont, to give praise and thanksgiving to the Lord who is the Giver of all good. All appreciated the meeting. Rev. Pa. 100, by our minister. Several strangers were present. We trust good seed was sown. We have a mission box at our house of worship, to collect funds for the Lord's work. Our council will be held Dec. 9 at the home of Eld. J. Hoff. We expect to elect new officers at this council.—Wm. Bittel, Fremont, Mich., Dec. 7.

Vestaburg church met in council Nov. 18. Bro. Samuel Mullinger presided. Minister of ov. elder. Bro. Milton Bollinger was elected Messenger agent. At our love feast on Thanksgiving Day Bro. Mullinger was licensed to act as deacon. Brethren J. E. Albaugh and J. E. Frederick were the visiting elders. Bro. J. E. Albaugh preached two inspiring sermons.—Milton Bollinger, Vestaburg, Mich., Dec. 13.

MISSOURI.

Farrenburg.—Our elder, Bro. H. J. Lilly, came to us Dec. 2 and conducted our council. His being his last visit as our pastor and elder. He stated that he could not serve as pastor for another year, as his wife's relatives want him to visit them in Michigan and other States. We expect Bro. Mohler to preach for us the coming year. During the week Bro. H. J. Lilly consented to act as our elder for 1912, but he can not be with us more than twice during the year. The present officers were reelected for the ensuing year as follows: Bro. J. C. Mays, treasurer and solicitor; Bro. N. W. Bisenbise, correspondent, to attend the council; Sister Ida Moss, secretary and assistant correspondent. The meeting was most distressing on account of the heavy rains and the big forenoon and evening of the following day, when Bro. Lilly gave us Bible readings. This was the last visit of many of 1911.—N. W. Eisenbise, Farrenburg, Mo., Dec. 11.

Warrensburg church met in council Dec. 7. Sister Nannie Mann was chosen to succeed the writer as church correspondent and Bro. Ed Mann, agent. A proposition to make two organizations of the Warrensburg church met with very little encouragement. It was the sense of the council to organ toward providing a more suitable place of worship in town, as a part or all of the whole church.—Jesse D. Mohler, Warrensburg, Mo., Dec. 12.

MONTANA.

Medicine Lake.—We have organized two of our mission points for the winter; also one Sunday-school. These points were a long ways from home, and we thought best to drop them during the winter. We have taken up a class for baptism, one being with pledges, which have all been paid, amounted to $40 each month for the past few months ago, making $120 all of which was sent to our mission board secretary. Half of this is to go for the support of Bro. D. M. Mohler in the mission in France; the other half for the support of Bro. Geo. Hilton in the mission work in India. In the near future we expect to support of these two missionaries in the mission field. Our Thanksgiving offering was $8.52, which was sent to our District Treasurer for Home Missions.—D. M. Moothart, Culbertson, Mont., Dec. 8.

NEW MEXICO

Dexter.—Our church met in council Dec. 2, with our elder, Bro. Jacob Wine, presiding. Our Sunday-school was reorganized by election of officers. Jay Hiller was superintendent. We decided to hold a series of meetings sometime this winter, provided some one can be secured. Our Thanksgiving services were well attended. Bro. Jacob Wine preached a good sermon. A Thanksgiving collection was taken. It was sent to the General Mission Board.—Letta Bahney, Dexter, N. Mex., Dec. 9.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Back Creek.—Our two weeks' series of meetings at the Brandt churchhouse closed on Sunday evening, Dec. 3, with a good-sized congregation present. Bro. Jacob Hoke and Bro. Steerman conducted the meetings. Four were added by baptism and one by letter. We held a Bible class each day, after conducted by our home ministers, and took up a collection of $16.09.—Pearl Hockenberry, R. 1, Williamsburg, Pa., Dec. 14.

Meyersdale.—Dec. 10 we had with us our pastor, Bro. D. K. Clapper, who is spending nearly all his time in the evangelical field. He preached morning and evening. At the close of the morning service one dear sister was restored to church fellowship, and at the evening service four of the Sunday-school scholars came forward and were baptized in the pool, in the basement of our church. Our Sunday-school was reorganized for another year, with Brethren B. B. Dickey, J. M. Swaney and W. G. Saylor as superintendents, and a good corps of officers.—Ellen M. Flike, Meyersdale, Pa., Dec. 14.

VIRGINIA.

Midland church met in council Dec. 2. Eld. M. G. Early presided. Most members were attended to. We have been having two Sunday-schools, but decided to unite them, on account of the small size of the two. We had preaching each at each place. Those of Midland are Brethren I. S. Hoddings and J. A. Hoffman, and Sister Hannah Herring. The former is superintendent. Thanksgiving services were conducted at Mount Hermon by Bro. D. Weimer. The collection taken collection was taken up later at the Midland church, and will be given to a needy family, the amount being $11.70.—Eva Hinegardner, R. D. 1, Midland, W. Va., Dec. 13.

WASHINGTON.

Sunnyside.—Brother and Sister J. D. G. Stiverson, of Tacoma, Wash., came to us and remained from November 25 to 27, at the Euclid schoolhouse, a mission point. Six were added by baptism.—Mrs. M. E. Hall, Sunnyside, Wash., Dec. 10.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Harman congregation met on Thanksgiving Day for services. Bro. Shirly, of Preston County, gave us a good talk. A collection was taken for home missions. Dec. 9 we met in quarterly council. Our elder, Bro. Jonas Pike, presided. Bro. Pike remained, and gave us three refreshing sermons. Dec. 11 Bro. I. S. Long gave us two lectures on his work in India, which were very interesting and much appreciated. An offering of $12.80 was given. It was the first time most of us knew had ever seen a missionary. We feel that good seed has been sown. Our Sunday-school still continues.—Cora A. Harman, Harman W. Va., Dec. 13.

Notes From Our Correspondents

As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country

CALIFORNIA.

Lordsburg.—We held our semiannual love feast Dec. 10. Bro. J. F. Dickey preached the examination sermon at 11 A. M. The evening services began at 6 P. M. Eld. S. Frantz had charge of the services. About 300 surrounded the Lord's tables. The best of order prevailed, and we had a very inspiring service.—Clarence H. Miller, Lordsburg, Cal., Dec. 12.

Patterson.—Since our last, report three more families of members have moved into our midst, for which we are very thankful to our Heavenly Father, as we need more workers. We expect other soon. Since our last report we have received the baptism of Bro. J. N. Gwin, who gave us two fine discourses; also two good sermons by Bro. R. H. Miller. We have a neat, block gray church seven Dec. 3 to a well-filled house. Come and help us in God's cause. We need your presence and help, and God's power service. Who will answer?—Mrs. G. Gilbert Patterson, Cal., Dec. 16.

Reedley.—On Thanksgiving Day our congregation met for a season of thanksgiving and praise. Our aged brother, Eld. Samuel Bonsteel, now in his ninety-second year, gave a short but very interesting talk. Others also gave short talks in which they expressed their thankfulness. Our collection for the day was $18, which we intend to give to Eld. Jas. M. Neff, Dec. 3 we met in council. Quite an amount of business was disposed of. This was the time to elect an elder and church Sunday-school officers. Bro. J. S. Brower was chosen as our elder-in-charge; Brethren P. H. Bruce and D. W. Wingler, Sunday-school superintendents; Bro. Morris Keller, president of the Christian Workers' Meeting. We are also supporting a missionary to work among the Japanese and Chinese of Reedley and vicinity. We expect Bro. Crist, of Los Angeles, to be with us a series of meetings for us Dec. 16.—Susie Mitchell, Reedley, Cal., Dec. 11.

Sacramento Valley.—Our series of meetings, conducted by Eld. S. G. Lehmer, of Los Angeles, Cal., came to a close last evening. We intended to have commenced on the 3d inst., but, tired, and three other applicants are awaiting the rite. The neighborhood has been greatly stirred and revived to near the kingdom. Bro. Lehmer labored most ably and untiringly, while with us. He can only regret that he could not have remained a week longer.—J. Overholtzer, Glenn, Cal., Dec. 14.

CANADA.

Battle Creek.—We had a very spiritual and uplifting love feast at Bro. J. H. Strickler's home. Our elder, Bro. George Stryker, officiated. We expected other brethren to be with us, but were disappointed. A goodly number of members and friends order prevailed throughout. The next morning we had Sunday-school, followed by preaching services. Attendance was little folks,—but all seemed to enjoy it.—Mrs. Maria L. Swihart, Kelvinhurst, Sask. Can., Dec. 11.

COLORADO.

De Beque.—Last night we closed a ten days' series of meetings with a full house and the best of interest, at one of our appointments in a little log schoolhouse. The power was impressed with the truth and a number were convicted. In some of the lower districts where we have had no meetings we are manifested. In these meetings we had the assistance of Bro. J. A. Lichty and family. Brethren, we are in need of help. Laymembers, occasionally, for assistance; they are a good help. We also had the assistance of our friend, Eld. Hiram Keller, of Race Creek, who assisted in the song service and prayer meeting. He is seeking a church home, and we favorably impressed with Brethren here, too. Others are halting between two opinions. It was a good series of meetings all through.—Ida Berry, De Beque, Colo., Dec. 18.

Idalia.—Bro. Redding, of Flasher, Colo., returned to his home last Saturday after holding a series of meetings for us in this vicinity. His sermons were highly appreciated, especially by the members. He also assisted at the love feast and council meeting.—Oscar M. Andrews, Idalia, Colo., Dec. 18.

IDAHO.

Twin Falls church met in council Dec. 16, conducted by our elder in charge. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: Eld. C. Fahrney, elder in charge; Bro. H. A. Swab, clerk; Bro. H. F. Flory, treasurer; Bro. Ira Bowman, correspondent; Bro. J. S. Flory, superintendent of the Sunday-school; Bro. J. H. Flory, superintendent of the Christian Workers' Meeting; Bro. Ira Bowman, superintendent of the Missionary Committee. Two letters were received.—Ella Fahrney, Twin Falls, Idaho, Dec. 17.

Weiser.—We had our love feast Dec. 9. Eld. L. H. Eby officiated. We had a refreshing meeting. Two were anoints as for their first communion. Dec. 16 we met in council, with Eld. L. H. Eby presiding. Bro. Wm. Hoffman was elected superintendent of the Sunday-school; Sister Edith Russel, secretary-treasurer; Sister Daisy Eby, correspondent and agent and president of the Christian Workers' Meeting; the writer, reporting. Correspondence address: Midvale, Russel, 414 East Commercial St., Weiser, Idaho, Dec. 21.

ILLINOIS.

Cherry Grove church met in council Dec. 14. Three letters of membership were granted. Bro. Aaron Hawbecker was chosen superintendent of the Sunday-school; Sister Jane Potterbaugh, secretary. Bro. Aaron Hawbecker was also elected to the deacon's office. We decided to purchase "Kingdom Songs" for the use of the Sunday-school. We will have a series of Sunday-school library.—Ross Shidler, R. D. 3, Lanark, Ill., Dec. 18.

Franklin Grove.—We had our love feast Dec. 9, with Bro. C. M. Suter presiding. The church decided to order the new song book, "Kingdom Songs." Bro. Chas. Weybright was reelected president of our Christian Workers' Band, and Sister Etha Trostle was chosen choirister. The Sunday-school was reorganized with Bro. C. M. Suter as superintendent. Bro. C. M. Suter was again chosen as our elder for the coming year. Plans have been made for a Bible Institute, beginning Jan. 14, conducted by Bro. J. S. Zimmerman, of Quinter, Kansas. Bro. Zimmerman has been at Franklin Grove and Olin Shaw and Sister Bertha Dutcher.—Anna S. Buck, Franklin Grove, Ill., Dec. 14.

Mount Morris.—The general condition of the church at this place is at present very encouraging. Attendance at Sunday-school and preaching services seems to be growing steadily. Twice, recently, has the Sunday-school attendance risen above the 300 mark. The secretary always takes an accurate record of classes in which every student has brought his Bible. Dec. 10 one was reported. The Christian Workers' Meeting on that day was delivered by Bro. M. R. Myers, of Chicago. In the afternoon Bro. Samuel Kauffman addressed the Sunday-school. Both he and Bro. Galen B. Royer spoke at the missionary meeting at 6 P. M. Preaching services at 7:30 P. M. and song evening service, in which Bro. Galen B. Royer again spoke. A men's Bible class was recently organized which promises to become popular.—Charles H. Keltner, Mt. Morris, Ill., Dec. 17.

Shannon.—Bro. F. F. Eckerle, of Lanark, Ill., preached an impressive sermon on Thanksgiving Day. Our missionary offering amounted to $18.25. We met in council Saturday, Dec. 16, with Eld. Rowland presiding. Our Sunday-school officers were reelected. Bro. Rowland was elected Christian Workers' Meeting, where he expects to spend the winter. The church will miss him very much. Brethren Ruan and Bryan will have charge of the work during his absence. Our Christian Workers' Society is preparing a Christmas program, to be rendered on Sunday evening, Dec. 24.—Etta Kreider, Shannon, Ill., Dec. 19.

Yellow Creek.—Bro. F. R. Keltner and wife, of Rockford, Ill., began meetings in Pearl City Nov. 26, and continued until Dec. 10. Our brother preached twenty sermons, made seventy calls and visited thirty-four families while with us. We had also two afternoon prayer meetings. The interest was good during the meetings. The attendance was also good, considering the afflicted among us.—Lizzie Studebaker, Ivesdale, Ill., Dec. 12.

INDIANA.

Eel River.—Our church met in council Dec. 5 to hold an election for elder, Bro. Ellsworth Rodkey from others churches were Brethren G. A. Snider and Daniel Snell. Brethren Roy Mishler and Amos Freed were chosen, and Brethren Snell and Bay. Bro. Snider having charge of the services. Our elder, Bro. Snell, was reelected to the ministry, but he declined to reelected him for another year. He has served the Eel River church as elder going on twenty years. Bro. Snell's wife died last Thursday evening. Six were baptized. Others are thinking seriously. Bro. Snider labored very earnestly while we feel that much good will be done. He gave us two instructive talks on Sunday-school work, which were much appreciated.—Lizzie Wolfe, Churubusco, Ind., Dec. 18.

Elkhart city church met in council Dec. 19. One letter of membership was received by experience. Our Sunday-school was reorganized with W. U. Miller superintendent, and Pearl Grush, secretary. Bro. Miller was also elected president of the "Christian Workers' Meeting for six months. Sometime in January Bro. Isaac Pronts will berth a series of meetings at this place.—Pearl Grush, R. R. 7, Box 107, Elkhart, Indiana, Dec. 20.

Flora.—On two weeks' evangelistic services, conducted by Eld. D. M. Adams, of Pennsylvania, closed with seventeen additions to the church. Correspondence was missed. The Antioch Run church met in council Dec. 14 and completed arrangements for a division of the church property, which was made necessary by the division of the church proceeded to organize, with Eld. A. G. Crosswhite presiding. All the regular church officers were elected for the ensuing year. Our church will be known as the "Flora" church. Dec. 19 a special council was held for further organization.—Ida Shellenberger, Flora, Ind., Dec. 20. officers were elected: also Missionary and Temperance Committees. Brethren Jesse E. Hoke was elected superintendent, and Sister Mary H. Metzger, president of Christian Workers' Meeting. Sister Grace Kain, secretary and correspondent. One letter was granted and four members were received by letter.—Elmer C. Metzger, Flora, Ind., Dec. 20.

Goshen.—Dec. 16 we met in council. Bro. Leslie Studebaker with the church at West Goshen Dec. 17. He came to see some of the members who live in the Bethel congregation. Dec. 17 at West Side on "The Lord's Prayer." His remarks were fitting and did us all good.—D. Ellis Yoder, Goshen, Ind., Dec. 20.

Howard church met in council Dec. 5, our elder, John W. Flora, presiding. Four letters were granted. Bro. Oscar Sink was our Sunday-school superintendent. Bro. Oscar Sink was elected superintendent, and Sister Clyde Sink, secretary and treasurer.—Grace Hire, R. R. 1, Bringhurst, Ind., Dec. 18.

Huntington.—Bro. Grover L. Wine and wife assisted us in a two weeks' series of meetings, beginning Dec. 3. They labored earnestly, preaching the Word in its purity. Dec. 14 we met in council. Eld. J. H. Bobbitt presiding. Three letters were granted. Bro. Wine's wife was received by the church as his helpmeet in the second degree of the ministry. Sister tion, president of the Christian Workers' Meeting; Sister Gump, church solicitor; the writer, correspondent. Three letters of presbytery were received. Bro. Lafayette Wolfe, superintendent of the Sunday-school.—John Sherfy, Mont Ida, Kans.

Notice to the Southeastern District of Kansas.—Any of the churches or isolated points desiring to have a visit from District Evangelist, will please write me at once, so that we can arrange for the trip before the coming rainy season.—Otho Secretary, McCune, Kans., Dec. 18.

Osage.—Worshiping services were held at the church at 11 A. M. by Eld. L. Wolfe. Bro. W. H. Leaman attended church that day for the first time since his illness. He gave a short talk, much to the joy of all present. Bro. Wolfe, Eld. W. S. Eld. W. H. Leaman presiding. The church was well represented. Sunday-school officers were elected: Bro. Jay P. Neher as superintendent; Bro. Roy Neher, secretary-treasurer. The writer preached the communion sermon.—Messenger.

Our Sunday-school expects to give a treat to the scholars Dec. 24. Christian Workers are to have a short but nice program on Christmas Eve.—D. W. Shideler, McCune, Kans., Dec. 18.

Westphalia.—Nov. 29 Bro. R. A. Yoder, of Sabetha, Kans., began a series of meetings, preaching twenty-one sermons in all. Three were added, one by letter and two by the first with power, and the church was strengthened. Sister C. A. Miller led the singing. Bro. C. A. Miller met with us during the first week of our meetings and assisted much in the work. Our elder being present, he held our communion Dec. 16 and 17, Jan. 6, the regular time. Bro. Miller presided. Three letters of membership were granted. We also elected officers for Sunday-school officers for the coming year, as follows: Bro. C. A. Miller, elder in charge; F. E. Smith, foreman; Bro. Eld. Clair Clark, treasurer; Bro. A. C. Smith, treasurer; the writer, correspondent and Messenger agent; Bro. C. Myers, superintendent of the Sunday-school. We organized a teachers' meeting.—Mrs. Minnie Smith, Westphalia, Kans., Dec. 18.

Whitewater.—Meet at the Eld. Mission church for services on Thanksgiving Day, and our minister, Bro. N. C. Baker, delivered one of the best Thanksgiving sermons ever heard in the church. Bro. Frantz, of the West Side Mission, and Bro. J. B. Wine also spoke to us some talks. We had a nice dinner which we decided to send to two Chinese brethren, to help educate them at Bethany Bible School. We had song service in the evening conducted by Bro. Baker. Sister Gump spoke to a Bible class every Saturday evening, which is appreciated by all who attend.—N. J. Brown, 1514 Spruce Street, Wichita, Kans., Dec. 18.

LOUISIANA.

Oak Grove.—Bro. Minnix came among us and greatly cheered us, but on account of the condition of the weather he could not hold meetings. He promised to come to see us soon in the future. We think a great deal of good can be done here.—Isaac P. Wimer, Box 11, Clarks, La., Dec. 14.

MARYLAND.

Bush Creek.—We met in council Nov. 30. Eld. S. H. Utz, assisted by Brethren Thomas Kolb and Silas Harp, presided. After the usual business, an election was held, resulting as stated in choosing Bro. Geo. C. Main and the writer. They were duly installed with appropriate remarks. A collection was given by Elders Kolb and Harp. A collection of $26.71 was taken for General Missions, $24.16.—C. E. Duvall, New Market, Md., Dec. 14.

Ridgely.—The revival, which was begun by Bro. Rufus Bucher, closed the second last night. Fifty-two were added to the fold by baptism and one was reclaimed. Others are near the Kingdom, and the whole field seems ripened unto harvest. Love was held Dec. 10. About 125 surrounded the Lord's table. Bro. Bucher officiated. Nov. 19 we held a love feast and communion meeting, which was well attended. An offering of $10.76 was taken. Three-fourths of it is to be used in the temperance cause. Dec. 6 our District Sunday-school Meeting was held. Bro. Bucher was with us. He gave us much helpful instruction. At our Thanksgiving service, which was held in the morning, an offering of $12.03 was taken, to be given to the Children's Aid Society. Dec. 16 we expect to have a day of fasting and instruction in vocal music. Sister Elizabeth Kline, of Elizabethtown, Pa., will have charge of the work.—Rebecca Kline, Ridgely, Md., Dec. 19.

Shady Creek.—Our congregation held services on Thanksgiving Day. We had a good sermon by Eld. A. P. Snader. The collection amounted to $17. We are expecting Bro. P. J. Blough, of Hagerstown, Md., to labor with us commencing on Monday night, Dec. 18.—Minerva Roop, New Windsor, Md., Dec. 15.

MICHIGAN.

Clarksville.—Bro. J. E. Ulery will begin the District Sunday-school Teachers' Institute in the Clarksville church, Jan. 6, to continue till Jan. 15. Let all our Sunday-school workers rally to the support of the Institute. Let every Sunday-school make it a blessing for the District. Song and praise service a special feature. Bring Brethren Hyanmal. Bro. Ira Hahn, of Mount Hope church, Kans., will have charge.—Mrs. Lucinda Sarah Long, Clarksville, Mich., Dec. 18.

Marion.—We had Thanksgiving services at the church. We had appropriate sermons at 10:30 A. M. and 2 P. M. A collection was taken for the Home Missions. Bro. Eld. Jesse Deardorff, of Brethren, Mich., and Brother and Sister Neher, of Scottville, Mich., were with us and spoke to us. Also Eld. J. L. Thomas, of Selling, Okla., with his family, is now located with us, which will add much to the strength of our ministerial force. We will also add to the force in the District elder list.—Rosa Weller, R. D. 2, Copemish, Mich., Dec. 15.

Long Lake.—The church met in council Dec. 9. Bro. J. E. Ulery as presiding elder. The following officers were elected for the coming year: Sister Alta Hollinger, treasurer; Bro. Eld. Landis, clerk; Bro. Daniel Landis, church correspondent and Messenger agent; Bro. S. S. Bussern, superintendent. Bro. John Landis, trustee for three years, as the time of his predecessor expired at this council. Bro. J. E. Ulery was again elected as our elder for one year. We are glad to number him to be with us for a series of meetings during the Holidays. We elected a ministerial committee as follows: Bro. J. E. Ulery, three years; Bro. Wm. Landis, two years; Sister Emma Landis, one year. Bro. D. E. Sowers was elected to the ministerial assistance committee. Our mission box yielded about $5, which we decided to send to Bro. Messner as stated in the District letter, no one should succeed himself as delegate to any meeting. The trustees will look up a location for a meeting house. All members were all present except four. We will have prayer meeting at the home of Bro. Sowers each evening this week, to prepare our hearts for further labors.—Mrs. Daniel Landis, Pressoll, Mich., Dec. 8.

Thornapple church met in council Dec. 9. Our elder, Bro. I. F. Ralph, presided, assisted by Eld. J. L. Mishler, of the Grand Rapids Mission. On account of Bro. Ralph having arranged to move away from this place, and being inconvenienced somewhat by deafness, he thought best to resign as elder in charge of this congregation, having served in that capacity for more than twenty years. Bro. S. M. Smith was chosen as elder in charge for one year. Brethren I. F. Ralph and S. M. Smith were reelected as clerk and treasurer, respectively. Bro. Elmer Weiss was chosen as a member of the finance committee; Sister Ora Gibson (Mote) is bur church correspondent for one year. Two letters were received and two granted.—Grace E. Messner, Lake Odessa, Mich., Dec. 15.

MISSOURI.

Deepwater church met in council Dec. 9, with Elders T. J. Simmons and L. B. Irish present. The former presided. Most of the business was postponed till the spring council. We have secured the services of Bro. Chas. A. Miller, of Kansas, to conduct a three weeks' series of meetings for us next fall, beginning Sept. 8.—Roxie M. Bray, R. D. 32, Montrose, Mo., Dec. 17.

Peace Valley.—Our series of meetings, which began Dec. 2 at the Weatbley schoolhouse, closed Dec. 14. The meetings were conducted by Bro. Bixler, of Hardy, Ark., and Bro. J. L. Fike, of Peace Valley, Mo. There were no accessions to the church, but we are now raising a class that promises to be interesting; the attendance good, and the people gave good attention.—Annie Dieffenbaugh, Peace Valley, Mo., Dec. 19.

NEBRASKA.

Bazada.—On Saturday night I closed my third Bible school in this community, six weeks' session in all. Eld. J. H. Miller superintendent for Bible schools, just as we already have one for common schools. Let us work to that end!—J. E. Young, Bazada, Nebr., Dec. 18.

NORTH DAKOTA.

A Call for Workers.—Are you willing to contemplate changing location and have the welfare of the church at heart, we have some good inducements to offer. We have a good church building, Christian neighbors, and many who are not. Dak. Owing to the Canadian emigration, many of our members moved away, and only a few are left to keep the church up to more and better work for the Master, we say, "Come over and help us." Brethren, Sisters, will you not consider this good school. We need you; will you come? Address the writer for further information.—Mrs. Ida Ellis, Box 15, Bowbells, N. Dak., Dec. 14.

Berthold.—Bro. J. M. Myers, of Minot, N. Dak., came to us Dec. 9 and gave us two more interesting sermons. Our Sunday-school is progressing nicely.—Bessie Stong, Berthold, N. Dak., Dec. 14.

Rock Lake church met in members' meeting Dec. 9. This was a council. Two letters of membership were granted. Two letters of membership were granted. Church and Sunday-school officers were elected for the coming year, as stated in a letter for six months. Bro. Wm. Eller was chosen Sunday-school superintendent; Bro. A. Noah, correspondent. Thanksgiving services were held at this place Nov. 30, after which a collection of $11.39 was taken, to be given to some worthy cause.—Delia Rimmel, Edmore, N. Dak., Dec. 13.

OHIO.

Akron.—Yesterday, at our regular services, one dear soul was made willing to accept Christ as her Savior and Giver of his Master. Others are near the kingdom. We met in council Dec. 2. Bro. Wm. Conner was reelected superintendent of the Sunday-school for the coming year; Sisters Catherine Dague and Pearl Bowers, secretary and treasurer, respectively. Sister Morse and Bro. Wm. Border were elected as our Christian Workers' meeting for the coming year. Sister Dague's election of our new church building is to take place Jan. 21. Those coming will please bring their Brethren Hymnal. To those who may not know, we have moved to 1514 Spruce Street, Main and Market street car, going south; get off at Voiss Street, go one block west. Our place is the first brick store block.—Jennie M. Shriver, 807 Coburn Street, Akron, Ohio, Dec. 18.

Covington.—Through the years of trial and sunshine our church has been blessed with a congregation that is large in season and out of season,—of keeping at it! We pray that our prayers for prosperity may continue. Our services every Thursday evening Bro. Flory preached on the subject, "What the Church of the Brethren Stands For." He had announced his series of sermons for the winter and a large audience assembled to hear this sermon. The Lord blessed his efforts, for at the close of the sermon one young man came forward for baptism. On last Sunday we had 401 in Sunday-school. All seemed happy and enthusiastic. Bro. Flory spoke to us again while Bro. Flory preached. At the close of the sermon, four came forward, three for baptism, making seven in all. Seventeen were baptized. We pray that more may follow.—Elizabeth D. Rosenberger, Covington, Ohio, Dec. 17.

Dayton.—Love feast was held at our church at North Bend Dec. 19, Bro. H. C. Early preaching the dedicatory sermon. Brethren E. Brumbaugh and J. F. Sturgeon assisted in the services. We were greeted with a large and appreciative audience. We wish a blessing upon the church and all who attend the following services. Bro. Early remained and preached for us until Thursday evening. Bro. Early was with us throughout the weather, we decided to close the meetings.—Elisabeth Daughterly, Dunville, Ohio, Dec. 18.

Fostoria.—Services at church Nov. 30 for Thanksgiving services. Our pastor, Bro. C. A. Wright, and Elders L. H. Dickey and D. C. Wright gave us short talks, after which the names of the members told of special things for which they were thankful. A collection was taken for the Children's Aid. Bro. Dickey met in council Dec. 14. Quite an amount of important business was disposed of. Bro. C. A. Wright was elected elder in charge. The church is in fine working order. Our Sunday-school was reorganized Dec. 17. Bro. Wright was elected superintendent; Sister Mary Hanna was chosen as superintendent of the cradle roll; Sister Pannila Miller, superintendent of the home department. Bro. Noah Bowser, superintendent of the Christian Workers' Meeting, and Sister Lydia Dickey as Messenger agent. Arrangements are being made for a Christmas program.—Mrs. Conference committee. Since our last report one young sister was received by baptism. Bro. J. H. Helsey was also with us.—Mrs. Sarah B. Wright, 426 W. Culbertson Street, Fostoria, Ohio, Dec. 18.

Greenville.—Bro. Eld. Landis, of Long Lake, Mich., Bro. Hollinger presiding. Considerable business was brought before the meeting. Two letters were granted. Church officers were elected for the coming year, as follows: Bro. Hollinger as our elder; Bro. Alen Weimer, Sunday-school superintendent; Sister Jennie Hollinger, secretary. Bro. Eld. Landis was elected as our Christian Worker Committee. Our building committee gave a report of their work. A collection was taken for the benefit of the poor. Bro. Henry Baker assisted in the meeting. Bro. Hollinger will remain with us for a number of days during the coming week. Our church services and Sunday-school are quite interesting, with quite an increase in attendance.—Mrs. Ina Wise Lowman, Greenville, Ohio, Dec. 18.

Lima.—Our series of meetings, of almost three weeks' duration, closed Dec. 17. Bro. Lambert Hoover, of Ashland, Ohio, was in attendance and interest were good. All enjoyed the meetings given us by Bro. Hoover. Bro. Hoover was present at our council Dec. 15. We elected our church and Sunday-school officers, to serve for the coming year, as follows: Bro. Jay Hoover was reelected Sunday-school superintendent; Sister Early was reelected presiding sister of Christian Workers' Meeting.—Hallie Inman, Lima, Ohio, Dec. 18.

North Poplar Ridge.—We met in council Dec. 9. Two letters were granted. Bro. Samuel Flory and Bro. Jay Hornish were chosen as our superintendents. Our series of meetings, conducted by J. M. Lair, closed Dec. 17. Bro. Lair labored earnestly with us for two weeks, holding forth the Word in its purity. On the evening of Dec. 10 he gave a very interesting talk to the children. One dear soul was received by baptism, others seem near the kingdom.—Jennie Flory, R. D. 2, Jewell, Ohio, Dec. 17.

Panther Creek.—Bro. Land U. Kreider, of Omaja, Cuba, gave us four very instructive addresses from Nov. 12 to Nov. 14, including a few practical remarks about the Mission Work in Cuba, which were listened to with much interest. Nov. 26 Bro. L. A. Bookwalter gave us a very convincing temperance lecture. Supt. Marcellus, of Brookville, will also give us a temperance lecture in the evening of Dec. 12.—Levi Minnich, Greenville, Ohio, Dec. 12.

Pleasantville church met in council Dec. 16. In the absence of our elder, J. C. Bright, Bro. Henry Baker presided. Elders G. W. Minnich and Moses Hollinger were present, and gave their advice. Our Sunday-school superintendents for the following year are Brethren Ira N. Rife and Ira Baker. Eld. David B. Wise was chosen treasurer and church correspondent.—Elizabeth Baker, R. D. 3, Greenville, Ohio, Dec. 18.

Pleasant Valley (Ohio).—Our series of meetings, conducted by Bro. Lambert Hoover, Ohio, began Dec. 3, continued to Dec. 14, in the Jordan house and continued until the evening of Dec. 10. One night during this time there was no meeting, owing to the inclement weather. Our dear brother has been faithful and presented the truth with power. Nineteen were received by baptism and two by letter. Seventeen were baptized on Thanksgiving Day. We thank God for the glorious Thanksgiving Day we have had. We have been without a Sunday-school here by Bro. Helsey coming among us. Nov. 5 we had a home communion and love feast, at the close of the series of meetings mentioned. Dec. 10 Bro. Helsey gave an illustrated talk to the children. Dec. 14 Bro. L. A. Bro. David Wise was present. We had a very pleasant meeting. Six letters were granted as follows: Bro. Samuel Blocher, elder; Bro. Eld. Jesse Hoover, treasurer; Bro. Wise, trustee; Br. Claude Mikesell, Messenger agent and correspondent. Eld. Brethren John Jones and Walter Clark as Sunday-school superintendents; Sister Dora Mikesell and Mrs. Ida Clark as secretaries. Bro. Sell was elected president of the Christian Workers' Meeting. Eld. Wm. Conley, of Brookville, Ind., N. Dak., have located in our church, for which we are very glad, as we need help in the ministry very much. Bro. L. A. Bookwalter, of Trotwood, Ohio, will give two temperance lectures in the evening of conference, one at the Jordan house and one at the Valley house.—Mrs. Claude Mikesell, Box 56, Ohio, Dec. 18.

Swan Creek.—We met in council Dec. 2. Our elder, O. W. Myers, presided. Two letters were granted. Church officers: As Bro. Sellers expects to leave for the West in the spring, Eld. Noah Hoover was elected elder in charge. Bro. Christman began a series of meetings in the west house Nov. 26, and continued until Dec. 10. Bro. Christman is a good man and the Lord much good has been accomplished.—Clara Clark, Wauseon, Ohio, Dec. 13.

OKLAHOMA.

Big Creek church met in council Dec. 16. Our elder not being present, Bro. Eld. Hammond presided. Six letters were received and one was granted. Church officers were reelected for another year. Sunday-school officers were elected for six months, with Bro. Fred Holderread as superintendent, and Nellie Dague, secretary. One has been baptized since our last report. Our series of meetings began Dec. 16, with Bro. J. C. Brown, of Clovis, New Mexico, is doing the preaching, and we are having good services.—Nellie Flowers, Stidham, Okla., Dec. 13.

Elk City church held her regular council Nov. 25, at which time the deacons reported the annual visit, recently made. Nicely edited reports were read, by the way, and we were glad that only fifty-seven were present at the communion services to be followed next day, Sat., by the love feast and baptism. A large audience showed considerable interest in the ordinances. It was a spiritual uplift to the members. We decided to hold a series of meetings at each of the regular appointments, three in number. Thanksgiving Day was observed by an appropriate service conducted by Bro. Eld. Hoffman, who took by the brethren. We would welcome other Brethren to this locality.—A. M. Hylton, Elk City, Okla., Dec. 18.

Washita.—Our Thanksgiving services were well attended. A collection was taken. Bro. Eld. Hall is now at work in St. Joseph Mission, and the other half to the Kansas City Mission. Bro. Eld. Hall will be with us Dec. 23 to hold our Sunday-school convention. On account of rainy weather only one of the assigned speakers from the adjoining congregations was present. Bro. Eld. Hall preached a very interesting sermon in the evening our young people, in number about ninety, occupied the front seats. Bro. Hall made very helpful suggestions and songs, which were much appreciated. This service was followed by the reception of two by letter into the Monitor church, Okla.—Mollie Yoder, Cordell, Okla., Dec. 16.

OREGON.

Bandon.—I came here last July with my husband, who is serving as minister and pastor, to labor for the scattered members at this place. While we do not have a well organized church, we have faithful workers. A new churchhouse is partly finished, and we are already using it for services. Our Sunday-school, which is now in its eighth month old, has an average attendance of thirty. Our preaching services have been well attended. We feel that the field for more accommodations were not the best at times.—Chelsea M. Barnett, Bandon, Oregon, Dec. 18.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Alderson Mission.—Bro. William Frele, in company with Bro. Frank Hollenberg, of Philadelphia, Pa., came by appointment of Dec. 9 and 10. We had splendid order and a good crowd. This gives us encouragement to think about a protracted meeting. Our next meetings will be Jan. 6 and 7. We are thinking of having a series of meetings in February.—Mrs. E. Smith, R. D. 1, Box 10, Alderson, Pa., Dec. 16.

Chiques.—Dec. 17, at our regular services, five applicants were received into the church by baptism, as a result of a series of meetings held in November at the Mount Hope house, conducted by Bro. Eld. Jesse Hoover, of Hildreth, Pa. Dec. 16 we commenced a series of meetings at the Chiques house. Bro. H. B. Otto, of Manheim, Pa., is preaching for us. We hope for good results.—Henry Zug, R. D. 1, Mount Hope, Pa., Dec. 19.

Spirata.—Our series of meetings closed last night. Bro. J. Kurtz Miller, of Brooklyn, N. Y., gave us twenty sound sermons. The members of the church were much strengthened. Five accepted Christ. Many others are almost persuaded, for whom we pray. Love feast was held Dec. 9.—Ella Ober, Dec. 18.

Juniata Park.—Eld. H. S. Replogle, of Shelocta, Pa., came to us Nov. 13, and preached faithfully for two weeks. The good Lord was with us. His convincing and converting power was felt and experienced. Sixteen precious souls were

BAGLEY, IOWA.

The Brethren have a good churchhouse at this place, in the bounds of the Coon River congregation. They have had preaching services once in two weeks regularly, for the past ten years or more, but since the organization of the Sunday-school we have preaching every Sunday. The Sunday-school is now nearing the completion of its first year's work, having been organized on Christmas Day, 1910, under the direction of Bro. Daniel Wise, of Dallas Center, Iowa. Bro. Emory Fiscel, of Yale, Iowa, is our superintendent. He has sacrificed much to give us his care and direction. The teachers have been very faithful to their duty, and all members of the church are also members of the Sunday-school. Our attendance is regular, —usually between fifty and sixty, sometimes more. Quite a number of young people have been brought into the church during the past year, partly through the influence of the Sunday-school,—the writer being one of them. Our older brethren and sisters tell us that it is very encouraging to them to see so many young people in the church,—that we are the hope of the church in the future,—so we are trying to be worthy of their confidence. The Sunday-school has done much for the church at Bagley, and all the members are working together in perfect unity of thought and purpose, with no misunderstandings or dissensions among us. It has taken years of earnest endeavor, on the part of some of our faithful workers, to bring the church at this place to its present active condition. We, who are younger, esteem them very highly, in love, for their work's sake, and hope that we, too, may live lives worthy of imitation, and accomplish much that our Father would have us do. Hen. McClellan.

Bagley, Iowa, Dec. 14.

SLIFER, IOWA.

The organization of this church took place Dec. 3, 1911. Brethren A. P. Blough and W. H. Lichty, of Waterloo, Iowa, met with us Dec. 2. Sister Mabel Foutz was chosen clerk pro tem. Twenty-seven letters of membership were read. The result of the organization was as follows: Bro. J. Q. Goughnour, elder; Brethren A. B. Woodard and J. E. Eikenberry, ministers in the second degree. The choosing of the deacons was deferred until the next church meeting. Sister Goughnour was chosen as clerk; Bro. Arthur Woodard, treasurer; Sister Clara Goughnour, Messenger correspondent and solicitor; Brethren A. C. Woodard, James Galentine and J. N. Goughnour, trustees. The church was named "Slifer."

The Sunday-school was organized with Bro. J. N. Goughnour as superintendent. A committee of three was chosen to select teachers and officers for the Sunday-school. The elder of the church was selected as leader with the exception of an advisory member. In the evening an appropriate sermon was delivered by Bro. M. W. Eikenberry, the carpenter and builder of the house. He theme was "Companionship With God." Thus closed a memorable day, full of work for the newly-organized church at Slifer.

Sunday morning dawned bright and clear. By eleven o'clock the well-equipped and nicely-finished house was filled, and Bro. A. P. Blough delivered the dedicatory sermon. His words were full of inspiration, and will be preserved in the basement to all present. At three o'clock we had a second sermon by Bro. Blough. His theme was "The Fatherhood of God." On Sunday evening a series of meetings was opened by Bro. Lichty, and several brethren and sisters were with us from adjoining churches, which we appreciated. We were fortunate to have Brethren Samuel Fike and H. C. Sheller, members of the Mission Board, with us. They were much interested in the building of the house and the organization of the church. Bro. Fike remained with us for several days during the meetings and was an inspiration to us in song service. After Bro. Fike left, the song service was conducted by Sister Pearl Bell, of Ankeny, Iowa. The series of meetings is now at a standstill, and we are hopeful that a good revival motion will be given to the newly-organized church at Slifer.

Slifer, Iowa, Dec. 13. Clare Goughnour.

THANKSGIVING AS OBSERVED AT DENAIR, CAL.

Our little band,—like the Puritans, far away from home and friends,—decided to spend Thanksgiving Day together. A committee was appointed to arrange the necessary details.

At 10 A. M. we gathered at Bro. Leavell's home and proceeded to render the program as arranged by our committee. After devotional exercises, one of the Sunday-school scholars recited a Thanksgiving welcome. Then we had a sermon by Bro. Leavell, followed by Eld. J. C. Seibert, in some of his life experiences, and a prayer by our aged brother, James McDonald. A collection of $6.09 was taken for our churchhouse in Denair. Another recitation was then given.

We next had two hours' intermission for our dinner. As we passed out of the door, each person was allotted his part in preparing the dinner. In about thirty minutes the tables, each 16 feet long, constructed of boards, were erected in the yard and spread with the dinner. There were forty-one present. Seated at the head of the table was Eld. J. C. Seibert, of Empire, Cal., who, with his wife, came to spend Thanksgiving Day with us. They could not remain for the afternoon service, as they had to return home at two o'clock.

After the dinner hour the Sunday-school rendered a program. There was plenty left from dinner for luncheon. With the exception of Bro. Lehman's, all were near enough to return for the evening service, after doing their chores, when we spent a social meeting together. We believe that each one present was filled with Thanksgiving cheer, and that this day shall be remembered for many years.

Denair, Cal., Dec. 8. Myrta Leavell.

PLEASANT VALLEY, W. VA.

Bro. I. S. Long, of India, came to our place Dec. 2, and gave us two lectures on India. He also preached one good sermon on Monday, at 10 A. M. He told us much of interest, concerning the customs of the people in India. On Monday night he gave his first lecture. It was a rainy night, and only a few of the members were out. On Monday a small congregation was out, but on Monday evening a good crowd was present. We took an offering of $11.50 for the World-wide Mission Fund. This was the first time we ever heard one of our missionaries. We should have been glad to have Bro. Long with us for a week or longer. He is a good talker and gave us some good advice in his sermon on Monday. Eld. D. W. Kirk, of Thornton, W. Va., came to our place and gave us seven days' series of meetings. He is a good reasoner and well posted on the Scriptures. He preached thirteen good sermons at the church and two at the schoolhouse on Rush Creek. The members were greatly revived. M. C. Cizgan.

The Story of the Gospel

By Charles Foster.

A Child's Life of Christ, printed in short, easy words. The language is so simple as to be easily understood by any child. The pictures illustrate the most important scenes. The events as related in the Four Gospels are not repeated, but the details of each event are placed in their proper order, thus making a full, complete and interesting account of the Life of the Master.

The value of this book to those who wish to instruct the young in the truths of the Bible can scarcely be overestimated. Its very general use, and the sale of more than 80,000 copies is proof of its merit and popularity. Bound in fine cloth, stamped in gold and colors; with ornamental design. One hundred and fifty illustrations. 366 pages.

FLASHLIGHTS FROM REAL LIFE

BY JOHN T. DALE.

Those who have read any of the author's other books will want to read this one. The sketches and incidents given are real flashlights thrown upon things which are worth revealing. The author in his preface says: "Some of the sketches are based on facts which have come within the personal knowledge of the author, others are founded on incidents which have come under the observation of others, but they are all typical of the ever-changing experiences and mutations of life, as the grand panorama of existence moves onward."

Following are a few subjects taken from the table of contents:

Advice to Young Men
The Boy Mayor
Dangers of City Life
The Father's Example
The Gullible Girl
The Power of Advice
Single and Married
The Smoker's Curse
The Young Lawyer's Downfall

The Book contains 205 pages. Bound in cloth.

The Twelve Apostles

J. W. Wayland

This is the only book of the kind offered to our people, and, indeed, it stands almost, if not altogether, alone as a volume containing the biographies of the twelve men whom the Savior chose as a central group—a nucleus from which all future effort takes its beginning. Ordinarily we think of them as a group. The author of this book portrays them as individuals. To know "who they are and what they did" of the men who were called to a position of such importance and responsibility is not only interesting but helpful to the Bible teacher and student. The book ought to have a place in every Sunday-school library, as well as in that of every minister and Sunday-school teacher. The material for this volume has been obtained at the cost of much thorough and painstaking investigation, and the reader is the reaper of the rich fruitage. 252 pages, bound in cloth. Price, 75 cents.

Modern Fables and Parables

OR

Moral Truth in a Nutshell

This book contains 352 pages and more than 100 fables and parables. The great majority of these are new. Some are old fables and parables recast and covered in modern dress. They present truth in a forcible style, which is also striking, and makes it easily understood and remembered. The application may be made spiritually as well as morally in most instances. In the variety of subjects almost every phase of human life is touched. The illustrations, 75 in number, by Paul Kraff and others, add greatly to the interest and help wonderfully in making clear the meaning. A careful study of these fables and parables will help one to see himself and others in a new light and enable him to live a nobler and happier life.

DAYBREAK IN THE DARK CONTINENT

By Wilson S. Taylor.

For centuries Africa has been groping along in spiritual darkness. Is there any hope for the break of day? Read the book. It will tell you of much that has been done, of present conditions and of future prospects. Bishop Hartzell, the writer of the introduction, says,

"The author is exceptionally well qualified to write on Africa. In addition to extensive previous travel and research, he spent a year, as my traveling companion, diligently studying at first hand the mission coasts and its widely separated sections; the continent and its people."

The book contains a number of illustrations showing the methods of life and the changes that have been wrought by the introduction of Christianity; also several maps which are of great value in helping to make the contents intelligible.

added to the church. Our meetings closed with a love feast, which was largely attended and very enjoyable. Bro. Repogle made many friends while with us.—Mrs. Emma Hoffer, 1003 Siebert Street, Atlantic City, Pa., Dec. 17.

Lower Canowago.—Our two weeks' series of meetings, held at the Walgamuth house, closed Dec. 3. The meetings were conducted by Bro. S. H. Hertzler, of Elizabethtown, Pa. He preached many interesting sermons. The meetings were well attended and the interest was good. One put on Christ in baptism, and others are considering. We also had a love feast at the same place Dec. 16, in council. As the weather was very unpleasant, not as many members were present as we would have enjoyed to meet in council at the Bermudian house. We adjourned, to meet in council at the Bermudian house March 27, at 10 A. M.—O. W. Cook, Dillsburg, Pa., Dec. 18.

Mingo.—Our church met in council Dec. 2. Our elder, Bro. Jesse Ziegler, presided. One letter of membership was received. The officers of the Shippack Sunday-school were elected for the coming year, with Bro. Cassel as superintendent. Dec. 10 we closed a two weeks' series of meetings, conducted by Bro. Nathan Martin, who held forth the Word with power. The attendance and interest were excellent throughout the meetings. Three were received into the church by baptism. Others are counting the cost. The members awaiting baptism. Others are counting the cost. The members were greatly encouraged.—Elizabeth B. Hunsberger, R. D. 1, Daysroad, Pa., Dec. 14.

New Enterprise.—Bro. Mahlen Brougher, of Greensburg, Pa., came to the Waterside house on Friday evening, at which church Nov. 26, 1911, and held a series of meetings, during which five came out on the Lord's side and were received into the church by baptism.—W. H. Mentzer, New Enterprise, Pa., Dec. 12.

Philadelphia (First Church of the Brethren, Dauphin above Broad Street).—On Friday evening, Dec. 1, we had our annual harvest meeting. All who had not yet made their pennies grow, or that evening brought in the amount earned. This money is to be used for missionary purposes. We were glad to have with us Eld. T. T. Myers, of Juniata College. He gave us a short talk and also preached a good sermon Sunday for us the following Sunday morning. Last Sunday, at the close of the evening service, a mother and her daughter took the hand of the presiding elder, Bro. Wm. Miller, of York County, Pa., began a series of meetings at this place on Wednesday until Dec. 15. Bro. Miller preached the Word with power, and as a result four came out on the Lord's side and were baptized. Others are near the kingdom.—Milton G. Forney, R. D. 8, Lancaster, Pa., Dec. 21.

TEXAS.

Manvel church met in council Dec. 8. Four members were received by letter. We elected our officers for the coming year. Bro. M. H. Peters was reelected as our presiding elder. Bro. J. D. Clear was elected superintendent of the Sunday-school, and leader of the Christian Workers' Meeting. This has been a very prosperous year for the little church at Manvel. Eighteen members have received during the year by letter and the rest by letter. We were glad to welcome Bro. Badger among us again. All members are requested to be at Goodrich Texas this fall and winter are invited to stop over at Manvel.—A. J. Hicks, Manvel, Texas, Dec. 12.

VIRGINIA.

Beaver Creek.—Our church met in council Dec. 8, with Eld. J. D. Glick officiating. A good deal of business came before the meeting. It was decided to have a series of meetings in the congregation next year,—one at Beaver Creek and one at Izzy Peak. We expect to use the envelope system hereafter to collect money for church and missionary work, beginning with the first of the year. A collection was taken on Thanksgiving Day for the Orphanage, amounting to $19 and over.—Nannie J. Miller, R. D. 3, Bridgewater, Va., Dec. 12.

Elk Run church met in council Dec. 9, with Eld. Jacob Zimmerman presiding. Two letters were granted. One sister was reclaimed. We decided to hold a series of meetings at the Moscow church, and to follow with a love feast sometime in the spring, if the necessary arrangements can be made. A collection of $8.80, taken on Thanksgiving Day, will be given to the Orphanage.—Sarah C. Zigler, R. D. 1, Broadway, Va., Dec. 15.

Mason's Cove.—Bro. J. H. Garst began a series of meetings at Mason's Cove schoolhouse, in the bounds of Peter's Creek congregation, Sept. 19. Ten were added to the church by baptism and two others desire membership.—Mrs. Samantha Otawba Sanatorium, Va., Dec. 18.

Oak Hill.—Our church met in council Dec. 9, with our elder, Bro. John Canaban, in charge. Everything passed off harmoniously.—Jacob W. Funk, Jr., Seven Fountains, Va., Dec. 19.

Redoak Grove.—We held our Thanksgiving meeting at Stonewall, one of our preaching points. Our offering was $4.80. We decided to use this to have the Gospel Messenger sent to some of our neighbors and friends. We now have a list of 20.—Rhoda Ann Rexrode, Va.—Ella Bowman, R. 2, S. Box 44, Floyd, Va., Dec. 13.

WASHINGTON.

North Yakima.—On Wednesday evening Dec. 13, we met at seven o'clock for a special council. It was decided to have Bro. J. Scertit conduct a Bible School at this place some time in January. One letter of membership was granted. The Sunday-school and Christian Workers' officers were elected for the coming year. Sunday-school superintendent, Ernest Fau; secretary, Bro. Wm. Bowman. President of Christian Workers, Bro. R. A. Wine; secretary, Bro. R. Miller. We are arranging for a Christmas program, to be given by the Sunday-school.—Amy N. Repogle, 702 E. Yakima Ave., North Yakima, Wash., Dec. 14.

Spokane.—Bro. John R. Peters came to the church Nov. 26 and remained over Sunday for interviews. Our elder, Bro. H. C. Longanecker, of Yelsco, Wash., met with us Dec. 9 in council. Two letters were granted. Bro. and Sister H. C. Longanecker was unanimously reelected as elder in charge. The board of trustees was elected as follows: Bro. J. F. Miller for three years, Bro. R. C. Weimer for two years, and Bro. A. D. Ackenbrenner one year. Bro. R. C. Weimer was chosen as church clerk; Bro. Royal Force, church treasurer and correspondent; the writer, assistant; Bro. Royal Force, Sunday-school superintendent; Sister Ada Dunning, secretary-treasurer; Sister Baker and Bro. T. D. Ackenbrenner were elected pianists of the Sunday-school and meeting. A local mission board was appointed at this meeting, consisting of Bro. A. D. Ackenbrenner for three years, Bro. C. D. Ackenbrenner for two years, and Bro. Geo. Dunning for one year. This board is to act in conjunction with the Mission Board in forwarding mission work in Spokane. This board met and organized, with Bro. D. Ackenbrenner, 418 S. Post St., as chairman; Bro. Geo. L. Dunning, 3528 Harrison Avenue, secretary; Bro. C. D. Ackenbrenner, 3318 Cedar Avenue, treasurer. All of Spokane, Wash. Our elder's fatherly care for the church was felt by all present. He remained with us over Sunday and preached for us both morning and evening, and evening, with much power. We have an evergreen Sunday-school and Christian Workers' Meeting. Any information connected with the mission work at this place can be obtained by correspondence with the writer.—W. D. Ackenbrenner, 418 S. E. Street, Spokane, Wash., Dec. 14.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Morgantown.—Our minister, Bro. W. R. Hamilton, preached for us during a three weeks' series of meetings. While conducting these services he was called to Littleton, W. Va., to preach Sister Philfer's funeral. Bro. Hamilton's work here is progressing. Four came out on the Lord's side. Two young men were baptized into Christ.—W. R. Hamilton is pastor, Morgantown, W. Va., holding a series of meetings, to close with a love feast.—Mary Wolfe, 264 Beechurst Avenue, Morgantown, W. Va., Dec. 18.

WISCONSIN.

Worden church met in council Dec. 9, with Eld. W. H. Byer presiding. Sunday-school officers were elected for the next six months, with Bro. Jesse Hoover, superintendent. Christian worker officers were also elected, with Bro. J. A. Gearhart, as president; the writer, secretary. Bro. J. A. Gearhart was chosen church trustee; Bro. J. A. Gearhart, church clerk. NOTES NOT CLASSIFIED.

To the Churches of North Dakota, Eastern Montana and Western Canada.—Your District Temperance Committee at once desires the co-operation of those who are serving as local Temperance Committees in this District. We have on hand some literature and a supply will be sent as soon as local committees on reporting to congregations have not yet appointed local committees, will you please do so at once? The District Temperance Committee is desirous of co-operating temperance work carried on throughout the District, the coming year, and to this end we solicit your co-operation.—D. H. Fouts, Secretary, Surrey, N. Dak., Dec. 21.

Beaver Dam.—We met in council Dec. 9. Eld. Byerly, Foreman of the Mission Board, presided. At this meeting Eld. D. M. Gerlaugh, of Rock Run, Ill., gave us their credentials called for their letters of membership, expecting to move back to Illinois in the spring. Bro. Gerlaugh and wife have truly lived here nearly two years and made many friends. We much regret losing them. Bro. and Sister Gerlaugh preached his last two sermons here to appreciative audiences.—J. L. Kline, R. D. 1, Beaver Dam, Wis., Dec. 14.

Waddams Grove.—We met in council Dec. 16. Our elder, Bro. P. R. Keltner, presided. Officers were elected for the coming year. Bro. Jesse Hoover was reelected as Sunday-school superintendents; Bro. Kelley Moore and Sister Fanny Hoover, assistants. Bro. Keltner was elected superintendent of the Christian Workers' Society. We expect to have a Christmas program and tree on Christmas Eve.—Ida Challenbaugh, Albert Myers, Waddams Grove, Ill., Dec. 21.

Greensburg Mission.—We are glad to report that the work of building the church moves along quite nicely. The building is nearly completed now. The house will be dedicated the 4th Sun. in Feb., 1912. Bro. H. B. Brumbaugh, of Meyersdale, Pa., will deliver the dedicatory address. Bro. J. H. Cassady, of Johnstown, Pa., will begin a series of meetings in the house of Feb. 11. Our first love feast here will be held Feb. 25. We invite ministers and members everywhere to be with us in these meetings. Traveling accommodations to Greensburg are very good via Pennsylvania R. R. There is also street car service from Pittsburg to Greensburg.—Mrs. Ella Bowser, 126 Washington St., Greensburg, Pa., Dec. 21.

Codorus Church (Spring Grove, Pa.).—Bro. Long were fairly well attended, and a collection of $17.22 for World-wide Missions was taken up. Bro. Hess will continue to preach for Bro. J. B. Shiner, of Harleysville, Pa., began at this place Dec. 3, closing Dec. 17. He preached talented soul-inspiring sermons. The attendance was very good. One was baptized, and others are near the kingdom. The members were much strengthened.—Lizzie A. Long, Logansville, Pa., Dec. 18.

Flathead Valley.—Services were held on Sunday, Dec. 17, at Kalispell and Dec. 24 at Kalispell, in the Baptist House. Early gave us a very interesting sermon on doctrine, followed by a few remarks from Bro. Hutchison. The latter has spoken us against false doctrines. Six have been taken into the church by letter since our last report.—Mrs. Levi Learn, Box 440, Kalispell, Mont., Dec. 23.

Home Department of the Sunday School

The need of the Home Department is not limited to any locality. It is needed in every church no matter where that church may be. It is sadly needed in the great metropolis, with its unchurched millions. It is needed in the towns with their thousands outside of the Sunday-school. It is needed in the village and rural communities, where only a few are indifferent. It is needed in your school. It will work in every community whether city or country, where one or more persons are out of the Sunday-school.

GREAT EPOCHS OF SACRED HISTORY

By James M. Gray

Popular Bible studies on the first twelve chapters of Genesis, covering the Primeval History on present and coming events. The book is composed of lectures originally spoken to large audiences in New York, Chicago and Grand Rapids and previously in Glasgow and Edinburgh. Following are the subjects of the six lectures:

1. When the World Was Made.
2. When Sin Entered the World.
3. When the First City Was Built.
4. When the Flood Came and Swept Them All Away.
5. When the First World-Monarchy Began.
6. When the Last World-Monarchy Shall Appear.

The content of the book is both historic and prophetic. Dr. Gray judges the future by the past. His conclusions are based upon a thorough study of the Bible History and its obvious lessons for future generations. The pernicious teachings of the destructive critics and the fallacies of Darwinian evolution are conclusively exposed. If you are a Bible reader you will appreciate this book; if you have not been interested in the Book of books, this will create a desire in your heart to read it.
